Chemistry Program Gains National Accreditation

Graduates of the chemistry program at SSU know that they have worked hard for their degree: as hard as any chemistry major in the country. But after this year, you won't have to take their word for it.

The chemistry program at SSU, part of the Henson School of Science and Technology, has been accredited by the American Chemical Society, a national organization of 140,000 professional chemists and science educators. Dr. David Rieck, the faculty member who headed up the accreditation effort, was pleased to learn that their hard work had paid off.

"Every professional chemist is a member of the ACS," Rieck explained. "This accreditation means that everyone in the field now knows that the degree we give is as good as that at any other accredited school."

Chemistry Department chair Dr. Frederick A. Kundell, like Rieck, beams when he talks about the value that ACS accreditation brings to his department's graduates: "Now we're in the 'in' group. When taking applications for their graduate programs, a lot of universities only accept transcripts from ASC-accredited programs," he said.

Earning the ACS seal of approval was no small feat. For the past six years, Kundell and Rieck and others at the University have been revising the program curriculum and examining faculty and equipment needs. Kundell points out that the support of the University administration has been "critical.

"It's really been a team effort," he said.

That administration support enabled the department to purchase a most impressive, and to chemists, important piece of equipment: a Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectrophotometer (NMR), installed last summer. Kundell is currently on sabbatical from SSU and has found out first hand how important this analytical tool is to chemists. "I'm working as a chemist at DuPont," he said. "And the first thing I do with anything I need to analyze is get an NMR on it." When it came to shaping the curriculum, the ACS guidelines were fairly general. "We designed the curriculum to meet the needs of our students," said Kundell. "As a result, it's very strong."

Having painstakingly examined and adjusted its program over a period of years, the Chemistry Department was ready for the test. Rieck explains that a pair of science educators who sit

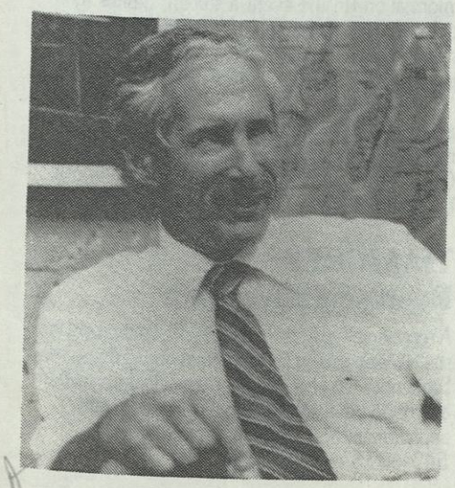
Riall Lecturer Cites Need for Education Change

For Dr. Harold Hodgkinson, a close look at who we are and how we live can yield valuable insights into how we can improve both. His upcoming appearance in Salisbury is one of many he makes to spread the news across the country.

Consider it a wake-up call.

Hodgkinson is the director of the Center for Demographic Policy of the Institute for Educational Leadership, a post that has led to intense analysis of population and policy trends.



Dr. Harold Hodgkinson

Hodgkinson is also the first guest speaker of the year in the Riall Lecture Series hosted by the Education Department at Salisbury State University. His presentation, scheduled for Monday, September 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium, is free and the public is invited.

When he says that "Maryland's future is already here," the news is not good.

Hodgkinson characterizes the legislative body as "anachronistic" in terms of its resemblance to the rest of the state. While Maryland's political leadership is dominated by upper-middle-class white males, the state's minority youth population is growing faster than any other. By the year 2000 the number of Marylanders under 18 years of age is expected to reach 1.26 million. Minorities will represent 42 percent of that number. In other words, when middle-aged Marylanders retire, they will depend on a Social Security system supported increasingly by a workforce significantly composed of minorities.

Statistics show that minority children are more likely to grow up in poverty than white children. And when you look at the circumstances in which most children—white and otherwise—now live in the U.S., the outlook is not promising. Hodgkinson's recently released "Demographic Look at Tomorrow" cites the following statistics about children in the U.S. in

State Report Ranks Salisbury State No. 1

If you think the campus has been looking good lately, you're right. And you're not the only one who has noticed.

For the third year in a row, a report by the Maryland Department of General Services awarded SSU its highest ranking among college and university campuses in the University of Maryland System.

Each year, an inspector from General Services visits the 13 campuses in the System, evaluating the facility itself, its programs for preventive maintenance, housekeeping, groundskeeping, management, its cost-effectiveness: "every aspect of the facility, from soup to nuts," according to SSU's vice president of administration, Joseph K. Gilbert. And for yet another year, SSU has finished ahead of the rest.

In fact, the University has held onto the title

Carl Perkins Loan Recipients

Students receiving the Carl Perkins Loan for the fall semester must sign a promissory note on September 8-14 in room 205 of Holloway Hall. Hours are 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Failure to sign the note will result in the withdrawal of the loan.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Activities

Beginning Monday, September 14, Wellness Hour will be Monday through Friday, 5-6 p.m. Sign up in the Nautilus Room at Maggs. Beginning Tuesday, September 15, faculty/staff aerobics will be Tuesdays and Thursdays, 5-6 p.m. Sign up in the dance studio. For more information, contact the Campus Recreation Office at 543-6350.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

25 YEARS OF SERVICE. Three University employees were recently recognized for their 25 years of service to the institution. Left to right are Keith Vail, Blackwell Library; Frances Showell, University Dining Services; and Marie Neal, Financial Services Office.

Personnel Office Cites Special Meetings

University employees may wish to make note of the following:

September 16, seminar on prostate cancer (open to all male employees or husbands of employees);

September 16, TIAA/CREF personal conferences (by appointment);

November 16, annual health benefits fair (open enrollment information); and

November 17, specialized information relating to new health insurance procedures.

Additional information and/or literature will be forthcoming prior to each activity. Feel free to call the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

ROTC Offers Opportunities, Scholarships

The Military Science Department would like to welcome all new students to SSU. Army ROTC is a way for students to expand their horizons and add experiences to their college career that will help following graduation. The Military Science Department invites students to learn about time management, group dynamics and leadership skills. Training events for the semester include a rifle range and rapelling classes for selected students.

The Army offers three-year scholarships to qualified students who enroll in the ROTC program. These scholarships pay all tuition and fees at SSU and provide $225 per semester for books. Contracted cadets receive $100 per month to assist with other expenses.

Contact Capt. Keith Street or Maj. John Faulconbridge at 543-6296 or 543-6299 for more information.

Vending Machine Program

The University has recently taken over the vending machines on campus. Lance, Inc. and Pepsi-Cola products are being sold. To reduce the chances of experiencing a problem with Lance products firmly press the selection button until the product has dropped. As with any new program, there are bugs that must be worked out. If you have any other questions, concerns or problems leave a message on the "Vending Hot-line" at 548-7953 (on campus only).

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Student Handbook Published

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1992-93 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1992-93 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy. Students maintain the right to consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. Salisbury State University will assume the right, under the provisions of this Act, to provide student directory information found in a students's educational record without prior consent of the student. For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in Room 212 of the University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the Salisbury State University policy can be obtained in the Dean of Student's Office.

TIAA/CREF Representative Here

A representative from TIAA/CREFF (retirement tax shelter programs) will be on hand on Wednesday, September 16, for personal consultations in the afternoon. Call the Personnel Office for an appointment and additional information at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

Pictured are the coordinators of SSU's Students Literacy Corps program, Dr. I. Eugene White, assistant professor of psychology, and Dr. Ellen Whitford, assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies.

SSU Students Trained To Combat Illiteracy

Twenty-three students at Salisbury State will be trained as literacy tutors this fall and sent into the local community to help selected adults and children improve their skills in reading, writing and critical thinking.

A part of the University's long-range plan to involve its students and faculty in real-life community problems, the new project is being carried out with the cooperation of the Wicomico County public schools and other local agencies concerned with reducing illiteracy in the general population.

Called the Student Literacy Corps, the SSU project is being financed as a two-year pilot program by a nearly $50,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education which is funding the literacy corps nationally.

"We're excited about this new venture and pleased with the interest our students are showing in it," said the project's director, Dr. I. Eugene White, assistant professor of psychology, "We planned for an enrollment of 15 students and were happily surprised when 23 registered for the tutor training.

"We're finding," he continued, "that many students want to help those in need through volunteer work. This course will show them one effective way to do it while earning credits toward their undergraduate degrees."

The three-credit, one-semester course, called "Literacy and Community Involvement," is offered to education majors as an elective and is open to any other undergraduate for general education credit.

During the first four weeks of the course, the students will undergo intensive training as literacy tutors under the overall direction of Dr. Ellen Whitford, assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies. Working with her will be Dr. Amy S. Meekins, assistant professor of education, and Dr. Patricia Killian, assistant professor of English.

When they are ready for tutoring, the students will be given their choice of working with an individual in one of three groups: adult illiterates, elementary school children who need help, or individuals of foreign descent, usually Hispanic or Asian, who are using English as a second language.

Illiterate adults will be selected for tutoring through Literacy Works/Project Read at the Wicomico County Library. The SSU tutors who choose to work with adults will be trained by the program's coordinators, Linda Parry and Salee German.

"We think the SSU program is a wonderful opportunity for us," Parry said. "We are continually looking for volunteers to tutor adults seeking help."

Elementary school children will be selected for the tutoring by public school officials. Marian B. Church, county supervisor of elementary education, said, "We feel the services of the SSU tutors will be of tremendous benefit to the students of our county who are in need of additional assistance."

Persons of foreign descent in need of tutoring will be selected with the help of both school officials and the Eastern Baptist Association, a local agency working with Hispanics and Asians.

Dr. James P. Cooper, migrant coordinator for the Baptist Association, pointed out there are many individuals with valuable job skills who cannot get jobs making use of them because they cannot read or write English. "The program definitely will be of help," he said.

The SSU tutors will work with their subjects four hours a week for 10 weeks under the supervision of SSU faculty members and officials of the outside agencies involved. Testing before and after the tutoring will measure its effectiveness.

After completing the tutoring training, the students will finish the semester with a weekly seminar conducted by SSU faculty. Designed to enhance the student's awareness of social and psychological issues related to illiteracy, the seminar will explore such subjects as cultural diversity in the classroom, local politics and educational policy-making, the philosophy of caring and service, and the history of poverty on the Eastern Shore.

In the second semester, the student may elect to continue tutoring their subjects under faculty supervision for additional credits toward their degree and, perhaps, build up a continuing relationship with their proteges.

During the second year of the project, the course will be repeated with a new group of students. At the end of the two-year period the effectiveness of the program will be assessed by evaluators both within and outside the University.

Both White and Whitford, noting the value of the program to the college students and the community, expressed the hope that at the end of the two-year program means will be found to make the literacy corps a permanent part of the University's academic program.

Last year White directed another of SSU's community outreach programs in which students spent a week prior to the start of classes helping to build homes for the underprivileged through the local Habitat for Humanity program.

Whitford also has been active in outreach programs. She supervised the Shore Future project in which SSU student volunteers tutored at-risk middle school students. She also directed the federally funded Shore Revitalization Project aimed at helping dislocated workers.

She currently is working on a project at the Woodson Middle School in Crisfield designed to encourage minority students to become teachers.

Palmer at Institute

William Palmer of the Department of Modern Languages was one of 25 professors and researchers from around the country who attended a five-week summer institute on Mexican colonial art which was jointly sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the University of Mexico.

During the first three weeks members of the institute attended classes and seminars at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. The final two weeks were spent in Mexico. There the group studied works of Mexican colonial art in Mexico City, Pueblo, Tlaxcala, San Luis Potosi and Zacatecas, and in churches and monasteries in small towns.

Perdue Faculty Present Research

It has been a busy summer for members of the Perdue School of Business faculty. Research work has garnered awards and will keep faculty members on the road presenting papers at conferences across the country this fall.

Heading the list is the Richard D. Irwin Procter & Gamble 1992 Outstanding Research Paper Award for contributions in promoting the understanding of occupational safety and health in colleges of schools of business. Dr. James D. Brodzinski, associate professor and chair of the Department of Management Information Systems, and his co-authors received the prestigious award for their paper, "A Systems Approach to Developing a Safety Management System through Human Factor Data Analysis."

Management information systems instructor Thomas W. Dillon was awarded an M.S. in information systems from Loyola College in May. Dillon is now working on his doctorate and will return to the Perdue School in January 1993.

In May, Dillon also presented a working paper at a Human-Computer Interaction Research Symposium at Loyola. He and his co-authors have learned that two other papers of theirs have been accepted for presentation at the annual conference of the American Voice Input/Output Society this September in Minneapolis.

In November, Dr. P. Mohan Rao, associate professor, and Fatollah Salimian, assistant professor, both in the Department of Management Information Systems, will present their paper, "Evaluation of Gross Corporate Product" at the 1992 Decision Sciences Institute meeting in San Francisco.

Attendees at the the Northeast Business and Economics Association annual conference this fall in Burlington, VT, will hear two papers presented by Dogan Tirtiroglu, business administration assistant professor, and his co-authors.

Tirtiroglu also joined Dr. Khashayar "Kashi" Khazeh associate professor, and Dr. Zakri Bello, assistant professor also of business administration, in attending a one-day workshop on "Internationalizing the Finance Core Courses" last May. The objective of the program was to share knowledge, experience and ideas on introducing international elements to core undergraduate and graduate finance courses.

Also sharing knowledge, experience and ideas were Dr. Rebecca Emery, business administration lecturer, who addressed the Builders Association of the Eastern Shore in May, speaking on "Goal Setting." Frank M. Shipper's topic was "Total Quality Management" when he made a presentation to the Annual Mass Transit Administration/Transportation Association meeting in Ocean City in May. Shipper is a professor of business administration.

And it was a team of students in Emery's Principles of Management class who recruited accounting professor Sandy Smith to speak to a summer session class. Smith is executive director of the area chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society and her topic was "Not-for-Profit Management."

DiSylvestro at Institute

Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of University Dining Services, was among 19 food service professionals from across the United States to attend the Professional Development Institute.

The four-day, advanced-level executive seminar, an educational program made available to its members by the National Association of College and University Food Services (NACUFS), was held in June, at the Tyson Management Development Center in Russellville, AK. The program focused on the development of strategic planning, communication and plan implementation skills.

T'ai-chi Course Starts in September

The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture.

The beginners course will be held on Tuesdays starting September 15 and the intermediate course will be Thursdays starting September 17.

The classes, which will meet for 10 sessions, will be held from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the dance studio of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the United States and Taiwan. He has been teaching it in Wicomico County since 1976.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170 or Fusaro at 742-9170.

Brodzinski Authors Award-winning Paper

Co-authors Dr. James D. Brodzinski of the Perdue School of Business, Dr. Elaine A. Crable of Xavier University and Dr. Robert F. Scherer of Wright State University recently received the 1992 Richard D. Irwin/Procter & Gamble Outstanding Research Paper Award (Distinguished Recognition).

The winning paper, "Systems Approach to Developing A Safety Management System Through Human Factor Data Analysis," examines the patterns of human factors which cause work place injury and then suggests implementation of a safety management system which include total quality management, ergonomic work place design and behavior-based training models. The Minerva Education Institute at Xavier University sponsors the research paper competition annually.

Business Professors Attend Workshop

Drs. Kashi Khazeh, Dogan Tirtiroglu and Zakri Bello of the Perdue School of Business recently attended a one-day program of workshops on "Internationalizing the Finance Core Courses" at the Center for International Business Education and Research (CIBER) at the College of Business and Management, University of Maryland College Park.

The objective of the program was to share knowledge, experience and ideas on introducing international elements to core undergraduate and graduate finance courses.

Prehealth Students

The committee to advise prehealth students (premedical, preveterinary, predentistry and any other health profession not offered at SSU) has been reorganized. Please refer any students indicating an interest in these areas to Dr. Harry Womack, Potomac Hall, room 135, as soon as possible.

Public Safety Has Bike Patrols

What's new in Public Safety? A new location and bicycle patrols. Over the summer, the Public Safety Office moved from Holloway Hall to the new Administrative Services Building (formerly the Music Building), located in front of Maggs Gym. The office hours will be the same, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday, phone 543-6222. Also located in the building is Dick Yobst's office, director of administrative services, and telecommunications/work experience and John Morris' office.

The newest innovation in law enforcement is to put police officers on bicycles. SSU has been using bicycle patrol for a few years, but this year the program has been expanded. Don't be surprised to see a campus police officer wearing shorts, three-button pullover shirt, white socks and a helmet. The typical white shirt and long navy blue uniform pants have been replaced for the bicycle patrol officers. The new uniform is meant to be more comfortable and functional.

The bicycles are great for patrolling the entire campus, particularly the sidewalks and grass areas which can't be patrolled by other vehicles. Officers on bikes can respond quickly to any call and usually arrive before other officers. Bike officers will be highly visible to pedestrians and visitors who need their assistance.

Student Teaching Orientation on Labor Day

"You Are Our Team" is the theme of student teaching orientation on Labor Day, Monday, September 7, 10 a.m.-noon in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

More and more student teachers (teacher candidates) are being trained by cooperating (clinical supervising) teachers who have had training in skills of clinical supervision. The initial training package, and funding for delivery of it, came from the Maryland State Department of Education. It is now being offered on campus. Some support is provided for delivery of training to area teachers by the SSU Foundation. Most of the clinical teachers have welcomed students into their classrooms for their own orientation programs, so that they could learn how to set up and prepare for the arrival of pupils.

University supervisors are experts on teaching, through study and through experience and they have skills in supervision. They work with the teacher candidate and clinical supervising teacher as a University liaison, a third "pair of eyes," and as a trouble shooter. They maintain contact also with the seminar leaders on campus.

Seminar leaders meet weekly with all teacher candidates on matters of practicallity and theory. Candidates have the opportunity, each week, to discuss common concerns and triumphs; plan for their job search and certification; and relfect on what it means to be in the classroom.

Most teacher candidates will be ready for graduation after completion of the 14-week experience, which will begin on September 8 and end on December 21.

Instructional Media Relocated in Caruthers

The Instructional Media Office has moved to Caruthers Hall, room 125G, in the northeast side of the building in the former computer lab area. The new location is easily accessible from the parking lot or the building's north entry doors. Phone numbers remain the same.

Call 543-6230 to place an order for classroom equipment or contact Mary Gillespie at 543-6232 for special assistance. Operation hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Throughout the semester, hands-on workshops will be offered in a number of areas: slide production, slide duplication, educational videotape production (faculty editing and computerized graphics design), PC viewer (IBM and MAC) and ETEC classroom introduction. To participate in one of these workshops, call 543-6232.

During September, new faculty will be contacted by instructional media to identify special support areas. Faculty are always welcome to tour the area, peruse video catalogues or discuss special classroom assistance needs.

Fallfest Coming To Furnace Town

Fallfest, a two-day celebration of 19th century art, music, dance and lifestyle, will take place on September 26 and 27 at Furnace Town History Site near Snow Hill. Saturday's hours are 11 a.m.-9 p.m. On Sunday the site will be open from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Furnace Town, the site of the Nassawango Iron Furnace, interprets the history of and life in the early 19th century village of Furnace Town.

Staff and volunteers will provide costumed demonstrations of blacksmithing, broom-making, weaving and printing. In addition, artisans from throughout the Eastern Shore will demonstrate and have for sale crafts which could have been done during the historic era of Furnace Town. Call (410) 632-2032 for information.

James Phillips, director of the Office of Public Safety, presents an award to Kathy Groutt for programs sponsored by the Office of Housing and Residence Life to increase awareness of crime prevention to SSU students. Groutt is director of housing and residence life.

Housing Recognized For Crime Prevention

The Office of Housing and Residence Life was recently presented with a plaque recognizing its efforts in the area of crime prevention by the Office of Public Safety.

This past academic school year the Office of Housing and Residence Life conducted 94 programs addressing risk management themes for the 1,754 residence students of the University. The programs were designed to heighten student awareness of personal safety and property protection.

As a result of the programs given by the Office of Housing and Residence Life there was a marked decrease of 15 percent reported thefts from the residence halls. There was also a 45 percent decrease in the number of bicycles reported stolen. Malicious destruction and vandalism showed a 6 percent decrease.

"The manner in which the programs were given to students was innovative, not boring them with statistics but rather challenging them to open their minds and give them good tools from which to work from, to make it fun to discuss the issues and at the same time raising the level of awareness," said James Phillips, director of public safety. This in turn enhanced the overall crime prevention program at the University to help make it a safe campus.

"The overall decrease in crime statistics and the level of awareness that the students exhibit is due in part to the dedicated staff of the Office of Housing and Residence Life."

VAX Training Classes

Training classes for the introduction to the VAX, part I, which includes the EDT editor, will be held in the Fulton VAX Lab, Fulton Hall, room 140 on:

Wednesday, September 16, 7-8:30 p.m.;
Thursday, September 17, 2-3:30 p.m.;
Monday, September 21, 2-3:30 p.m.;
Tuesday, September 22, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.;
Wednesday, September 23, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.;
Thursday, September 24, 7-8:30 p.m.;
Monday, September 28, 7-8:30 p.m.; and
Tuesday, September 29, 2-3:30 p.m.

Those interested must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Sign-up sheets are located in the Academic Help Room, Fulton Hall, room 149.

Models Needed

Models are needed for both painting and drawing classes. Please leave name and telephone number with the Department of Art at 543-6270.

Fall Convocation

Fall Convocation is Wednesday, September 16, at 10 a.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Classes at 10 a.m. will be cancelled. The speaker will be William Palmer, associate professor of modern languages. The title of his address is "Columbus Rediscovered."

Honors Convocation Seeks Speaker Candidates

The 1993 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria:

must have graduated at least five or more years ago from SSU in an approved program of study;

must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of SSU;

should be active in community activities;

should have been active in campus events as a student at SSU;

should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 1.

Russia Trip Planning Meeting

Tremendous changes are taking place in Russia nowadays. In which direction will it be going? SSU's winter term study-tour there may find out. Everyone is invited to participate in the trip scheduled for January 18-29.

Like past trips, participants will visit the capitals of old and new Russia.

Moscow, Russia's largest city and capital, is the center of this rapidly changing country. Tour participants can see the changing of the guard, tour the Kremlin, walk through Red Square at midnight and see St. Basil's lit up, an unforgetable sight. Nearby is the old religious capital of Zagorsk.

St. Petersburg, the old imperial capital, is Russia's most European city. Second in size, it is also the place where the Bolshevik Revolution took place over 70 years ago. It is a city of great beauty and magnificient museums and palaces. Catherine the Great's palace at Pushkin is close.

The study-tour is sponsored by the History Department. The instructor for the course and tour leader is Dr. Robert Berry, who teaches Russian history and has led several groups from SSU to Russia. The cost for the tour is $1,600, which includes all the basics and lots of amenities, including a stopover in Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia. The study-tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU. The local community is invited to participate.

For more information, attend an open meeting scheduled on Wednesday, September 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room C. If that date is inconvenient, contact Berry at 543-6251 or stop by his office, Holloway Hall, room 372.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at the University. Staff in the Health Center recommend that students have health coverage by obtaining coverage on their parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

Choral Auditions

Choral auditions for students interested in singing this academic year are scheduled for Monday, September 7 (1-4 p.m.), Tuesday, September 8 (10 a.m.-noon and 2-4 p.m.), and Wednesday, September 9 (10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.) in Fulton Hall, room 130. Please sign up on the choir rehearsal room's door and come prepared to sing one song of your choice (any style).

Any students interested in private voice lessons, Class Voice I, Singer's Diction I, and Choir should contact Dr. Duane Karna, director of choral activities, during the week of September 7-11 at the Department of Music, Fulton Hall, room 240.

Choral Society Holds Rehearsals

The Salisbury Choral Society holds its first rehearsal of the 1992-93 season on Tuesday, September 8, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 130.

This year's season includes the choral music of Randall Thompson ("Mass of the Holy Spirit"), Ralph Vaughan Williams ("Magnificat" for women's voices and contralto soloist), Guiseppe Verdi ("Stabat Mater"), William Walton ("The Twelve"), Benjamin Britten ("Rejoice in the Lamb") and Roger Petrich ("Variations on Ah, Holy Jesus").

The fall performance will be held at St. Frances De Sales Catholic Church in Salisbury on Sunday, November 22, at 4 p.m. The spring performance is scheduled for Saturday, May 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury. Guest accompanists are Scot Hawkins and Taylor Harvey.

Singers are responsible for the cost of their choral scores, annual dues and concert attire. Regular and consistent attendance is expected. If you enjoy singing choral music and would like to participate, contact Karna at the Department of Music, Salisbury State University, or call (410) 543-6385.

Radio Announcer At WSCL Wanted

WSCL-FM seeks two part-time announcers to work 20 to 30 hours each a week, one chiefly evenings and one chiefly weekends, and both as holiday and vacation substitutes.

Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting will be helpful. An audition will be required. The positions are available September 14. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to Fred Marino, General Manager, WSCL-FM, P.O. Box 2596 Salisbury, MD 21802-2596 until September 11. WSCL-FM is licensed to the Salisbury State University Foundation and is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

As of August 31, all the fall sports teams have begun preseason practices. The football team has been in preseason camp the longest, having checked in on August 23. The Gulls have been going through a routine of two-a-day practices and meetings since that time. Camp will end this Saturday, September 5 with an intersquad scrimmage. Coach Joe Rotellini's squad opens the season at home on September 12 against C.W. Post.

The soccer team will play its traditional alumni game on Saturday, September 5, welcoming back its former letterwinners for a 2 p.m. contest. The team begins its regular season on September 13 at home against Randolph Macon.

Coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team begins its quest for a ninth straight NCAA tournament appearance on September 9 when they open the season at home against Catholic. SSU finished 11-6-1 last year and advanced to the national quarterfinals. The volleyball and cross country teams both begin play the weekend of September 11-12.

The volleyball squad will compete in the Gettysburg College Invitational Tournament on Friday and Saturday, while the men's and women's cross country squads run in the Lebanon Valley Invitational.

The women's tennis squad debuts on September 18 in the Goucher College Tournament in Baltimore.

'Educated Cats' Seek Good Homes

The SSU Feline Committee is seeking homes for the following kittens and cats still living at SSU:

"Gorgeous Grey," tabby kitten;

"Patches," white with black eye patches, kitten;

"Salis," white/grey/black/brown one-year-old cat;

"Berry," white and grey, one-year-old cat; and more kittens on the way soon.

If you are interested in any of these still wild, but very sweet animals please see Mia Vye in the President's Office in Holloway Hall, room 237.

The cats are in the process of being caught and taken to the vet for shots, etc. Alternatively, the Feline Committee's cat fund can help the new owner with some of the expenses.

Football Statisticians Needed

The Sports Information Office seeks individuals interested in serving as statisticians for the upcoming football season. Applicants need to be able to work all home games this fall (September 12, October 10, 24, November 7, 14).

Previous experience helpful, but those with an eagerness to learn are also welcome. A good knowledge of football is important. Contact Paul Ohanian at 543-6016 if interested.

CLEP Test Deadline Approaches

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 21. The registration deadline for the test is Friday, September 18. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Modern Languages Placement Test Dates

The Department of Modern Languages will give placement tests in French, Spanish and German on September 9 and 10 from 4-5 p.m. in the following rooms:

French, Potomac Hall, room 120;
Spanish, Potomac Hall, room 123; and German, Potomac Hall, room 119.

There is no fee to take the tests. Results will be available the day after the test is given. Results will provide students with information regarding placement in the appropriate language class in which they should enroll. Students may be eligible to receive up to nine credits based on their score.

October Date Set For Award-winning Century Bike Ride

One of the nation's most popular and scenic bike rides transversing terrain "as flat and fertile as a slice of Kansas set down in the mid-Atlantic states" affords cyclists the opportunity to enjoy the Eastern Shore's pristine beauty at its loveliest.

The Sea Gull Century/Metric Century, a pair of bike rides, one just over 100 miles and the other a metric century (around 62 miles), will be held on Saturday, October 10.

The League of American Wheelmen recognized the 1991 Sea Gull Century for "highest mileage ridden" among 165 centuries held during last fall's National Century Month.

A total of 1,134 cyclists participated in the event: 841 participants competed the 101-mile route and 286 finished the 63-mile route—a total of 102,959 total miles ridden.

"The Sea Gull Century/Metric Century is the best organized of any century that people on my staff have attended," said Gilbert Clark, executive director of LAW (headquartered in Baltimore).

"The ride features good roads, flat terrain, excellent organization, good food, everything. It should appeal to riders of all abilities, said Clark.

"I'm told that the 1989 National LAW Rally hosted by Salisbury State was the best ever," said Clark. "Salisbury is rapidly becoming famous as a fabulous riding area."

Sponsored by the SSU Cycling Club, both rides promise to be a sublime trek down country roads and past solemn beaches, with outstanding support services if last year's Sea Gull Century is any indication.

This year's accent is on water with cyclists passing by the ocean, bays, rivers, creeks, lakes and ponds. After a winding journey through the canopy-covered roads of the Pocomoke Forest, riders can make their the initial sag stop at Milburn Landing State Park on the Pocomoke River. This "river without banks" framed with cypress trees and lily pads gets its dark color from the cypress trees' tannic acid. The deepest river for its width in the United States, the Pocomoke has been given "scenic river" status by the state of Maryland.

Next (for 100-milers only) it's Assateague Island and a chance to glimpse Chincoteague ponies and migrating wildfowl against the backdrop of the Assawoman Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. While not a part of the measured ride, only 12 miles separate Assateague from the famed boardwalk of Ocean City, providing a fun-filled side trip for those so inclined. (In October, with most of the tourists gone, Ocean City traffic should be diminished affording riders a safe and scenic excursion.)

Powellville, a quiet, signature Eastern Shore town, is the site of the final sag stop, near the fresh-water Adkins Mill Pond and one of the most northerly stands of cypress trees.

The route itself, a cyclist's dream with its flat, rural, lightly-trafficked roads, much of them shaded as they wind through the dense Pocomoke Forest, is well-marked. A number of rural stores, visitor centers and public facilities are open at locations throughout the ride.

Afterward, cyclists can shower at Maggs Physical Activities Center on the campus and swim in the indoor pool. Masseuses will be on hand following the ride (at a slight charge).

Also, a chicken barbecue dinner is available at $8.75 each. Advance registration and payment are required for the barbecue.

For early arrivals, there is a "no frills" ride and pizza dinner on Friday, October 9, and an early registration and social later that evening. Ride-day registration begins at 7 a.m. at Maggs. The fee is $17 which includes a map of the route, cue sheets and a long-sleeve T-shirt (if registered prior to September 25). Rides depart at 8 a.m.; helmets are required. The ride is sanctioned by the League of American Wheelmen. Any profits from the ride will be used by the SSU Cycling Club, an LAW member, to foster bicycle education, recreation, racing and touring on the Eastern Shore.

On Sunday, October 13, there will be a 33-mile "no frills" ride to the historic Iron Furnace in Snow Hill followed by a 38-mile "Red Roost Ride" for all-you-can-eat crabs and chicken. Cost of the "Red Roost Ride" is $12.

Discount motel rates are available for the weekend as is a list of camp sites and bed and breakfast locations. For more information or to pre-register, write: SSU Cycling Club, Campus Box 3046, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD, 21801-6837; or call Joseph Gilbert at 548-2772.

Salisbury Symphony Orchestra Announces Season Schedule

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University will begin its 1992-93 season rehearsals on Sunday, September 13, at 7 p.m. in room 112, Fulton Hall.

In only six seasons, the SSO has grown from a small ensemble of less than 25 musicians to a 63-member full symphony orchestra capable of performing some of the most challenging works from the symphonic repertoire. The orchestra is composed of a mixture of professional Maryland instrumentalists, students and faculty from Salisbury State and highly-skilled amateur musicians from throughout the Eastern Shore.

This season's performances will include a traditional holiday concert on Saturday, December 5, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, December 6, at 2 p.m. Both performances will be held in Holloway Hall. In March the orchestra will join the SSU Theatre Department for six performances of "West Side Story."

Savor the Symphony, the Salisbury Symphony's annual fund raiser, will be held on Friday, April 2, in the Guerrieri University Center and the spring concert will be held on Saturday, May 8, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 9, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

Anyone interested in becoming a patron of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra should call the Department of Music at 543-6385. All patrons receive two gold passes which admit them to each of the fall and spring performances of the SSO and a discount on the "very hard to get" Savor the Symphony fund raiser tickets. In addition, all patron names are listed in each SSO concert program. Patrons have commented on the added convenience of having a gold pass mailed to their homes.

SSO rehearsals are held Sundays from 7-9 p.m. and open auditions will be held in September. Anyone interested in playing with the SSO should arrange an interview with Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the SSU Department of Music and music director of the Salisbury Symphony. For more information, call 543-6385.

1990: 13 percent of all children were regularly hungry; 25 percent were born to unmarried parents; over 20 percent of all children under age 18 were poor; about 350,000 were born to drug-addicted mothers; 19 percent had no health insurance; and 166 juveniles of every 100,000 were behind bars.

Hodgkinson's studies also show that poverty, regardless of race, to be a strong factor in predicting academic performance. It has been demonstrated in every ethnic group: children at higher socio-economic levels are more successful in school.

All of this analysis points not only to the problems, but to some likely solutions. Pre-school programs, for example, which provide for the educational, nutritional and health needs of children of poverty and their parents have a high success rate.

Hodgkinson also recommends that schools prepare now for the growing cultural diversity among students. That message holds true from pre-school through higher education. To SSU's own faculty, Hodgkinson says, "In terms of diversity, 'you ain't seen nothing yet.'"

In his Salisbury presentation, Hodgkinson will focus on Maryland and on SSU's own prospects for the future. Statewide, he highlights some telling figures. In health care, for example, the percentage of areas in Maryland that are underserved is relatively low: 2.9 percent. Yet this state's infant mortality rate is one of the highest in the country.

And if funds for pre-school education or health care delivery have been meager, the news is worse for higher education. As we have already seen, college budgets are hit early and hard when the state tightens its fiscal belt. In Maryland, Hodgkinson points to the tendency to concentrate support on a flagship school: in this case, the University of Maryland at College Park.

When he looks at state and national spending policies Hodgkinson points to the difference between two opposite approaches to the nation's growing crime rate. "The cost of the nation's prisons is increasing faster than that of any other social service, including education and health. Yet the return on the investment is extraordinarily low.... Given the increase in drug-related crime and the get-tough policies now in vogue," he writes, "it is very likely that the number of inmates in U.S. prisons could reach two million before the decade is over." Clearly, he adds, increasing the number of jail cells has not reduced the crime rate.

Harold Hodgkinson has seen the future of education. And, according to him, it's time to make some changes.

The Riall Lecture Series was established in 1988 by the late E. Pauline Riall, a long-time principal and teacher of Salisbury State University's Campus School. The purpose of the series is to bring to the University and community outstanding national lecturers in the field of education.

Cleaning Solvent Available to Departments

The Public Safety Office has on hand 16 eight oz. cans of 1,1,1-trichloroethane, trade name Chlorothene, also known as TCA. This is a cleaning solvent.

If any department has a use for this, please contact Jim Phillips, director of public safety, at 543-6007. There is no charge for the product. Public Safety is attempting to avoid a hazardous waste disposal fee.

SSU Chemistry Graduates Know Success Formula

Salisbury State's Chemistry Department has seen many of its recent graduates go on to success in industry, teaching as well as graduate school. Chair of the department, Dr. Frederick Kundell, finds it unsurprising since "We have some excellent students."

Several students have gone on to receive Ph.D.s from other institutions. They include Barbara Schweitzer from the University of Colorado and John Burbage from the University of Delaware.

One of Kundell's students, Rita Ware, has gone on to graduate school at the University of Arizona. Ware graduated from SSU in 1990, but her continuing attachment to her department was evident when she learned of the Chemistry Department's new accreditation by the American Chemical Society. "I'm so thrilled. I know everybody was working hard to get it."

Ware is a student in the Pharmacology Department at Arizona, which is the second largest in the country. She found that the small classes at SSU enhanced the quality of her education. "Especially the small lab classes," she said. "They really give you an opportunity for individualized instruction."

Kundell said he hears similar feedback from other students. "The most common statement made by students returning to SSU is that they were very intimidated when they left for graduate school, because their colleagues were from big name institutions. But our students found that they were actually better prepared.

"It's not surprising," said Kundell. "If you look at students going on to graduate studies, a large percentage come from small- to middle-sized institutions. Smaller classes offer more contact with the faculty. That is very helpful to students in the hard sciences."

Former chemistry major William Utermahlen is now with the National Cancer Institute in Frederick, MD, where he analyses samples for research companies. He was hired on at the lab after completing an internship with the company. "No question, I learned a lot at SSU. The professors down there are really good," Utermahlen said.

Shane Beard, who graduated in 1988, said that he found his SSU education to be practical. Currently employed as a quality control supervisor for Celeste Industries in Easton, Beard said his choice of field was influenced by his educational experience. "There was a lot of steering. If you were not going on to teach, the faculty encouraged you to figure out what you would do."

"I feel the faculty helped us understand what the job environment was like. The curriculum provided the option for people like me who did not want to go on for a Ph.D."

Beard also commented on the advantages of a school the size of SSU. "I was looking for more individual attention. The quality of education, from Dr. Kundell all the way down through the department as well as the rest of the University, was really helpful. It was a technical education, but it was liberal enough to give you a good grounding all over."

Beard, a Seaford native, said, "I just felt really fortunate to have a school the caliber of SSU nearby."

The department has a history of attracting slightly more female majors than male, a departure from the national trend. Kundell believes this indicates that there are no gender barriers within the department. "It is a beautiful field for women."

One of them, 1987 graduate Alison Walt, now teaches chemistry at Seaford High School. "I can't imagine teaching anything else," said Walt. "I enjoy teaching it. It's so neat when you can say this thing that you enjoy in your life, that you've known since you were five, this is why it happens. Chemistry does that for you." Walt found her education at SSU gave her a good background for teaching 10th and 11th graders. "Because of my training, I can answer pretty much any question off the top of my head."

despite the fact it ranks last in state funding—and despite this year's rather severe budget cuts.

Gilbert gives credit for the high marks to the people involved: the students and other staff the University employs, who take pride in their work; the management team, each of whom is academically credentialed and dedicated to SSU's high standards; and to SSU's president, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, who is, in his own words, "convinced that when you give students an atmosphere that is pleasant and orderly it goes quite far in helping them to study and be serious about what they are here for."

While they are proud to be leading the state, both Gilbert and Bellavance point out that the notoriety has not been their goal. "We like to have awards," Gilbert said, "and we appreciate them; but we're working toward a higher, more idealistic goal. We strongly believe that an enlightened education institution ought to be able to manage itself well." As Bellavance put it, "the facility should reflect the quality of the institituion."

Maintaining their own high standards has been toughest this year. When the State cut back on the funding for its colleges and universities, all SSU departments felt the pinch, not just the physical plant. Like everyone else on campus, Gilbert and his staff worked hard to hold onto the improvements they had made in recent years. In some ways, the plan already in place has paid off. Gilbert reports that they are able to replace campus fixtures on a piecemeal, rather than a wholesale basis. "Eventually, we will be able to stabilize the prices students pay," he said. "In housing, for example, we won't have to replace boilers or aluminum windows: we'll be maintaining what we are buying now."

Another key ingredient to SSU's success, according to Gilbert, has been its policy of hiring students, rather than contracting for campus services. Not only does this inspire students to take pride in the campus, but it can give them the experience they need in beginning their careers. One student, who was involved in the SSU recycling project, now works for a major recycling company, BFI. Others, who received their training in the food services and groundskeeping departments, have gone on to jobs in restaurant and landscaping businesses.

But the students aren't the only ones enjoying the campus. "People stroll the campus as if it's a park," said Gilbert. Bellavance is also pleased to see the community adopt the campus as their own.

All of which means more to both men than do accolades from a government agency.

"Along the way," Gilbert said, "all we did was what was correct and right. That was sometimes harder, but we have had good people on the job. As a result, the campus has blossomed."

on ACS committees visited the University for two days. "They interviewed everyone: students, faculty, administrators. They examined our curriculum, our labs; they sat in on classes." The committee then met and only recently announced its decision.

For President Thomas E. Bellavance, earning ACS accreditation marks an important achievement in an on-going effort.

"This is all part of our campaign for increasing the quality of the institution," he said. It is a campaign that has earned the University several other national accreditations, for its education and nursing programs, among others. Work to earn accreditation for SSU's business program is ongoing.

The Chemistry Department will continue its efforts to maintain the ACS seal of approval. Barbara Gallagher, secretary to the ACS's Committee on Professional Training, explains that annual reports are required to ensure that high standards continue to be met. In addition, an extensive re-evaluation is conducted every five years.

Bellavance welcomes the challenge. "This forces us to make a commitment to investing in state-of-the-art equipment and to top-notch standards. It's another indication to our public—to potential students and potential employers—that we have met some high national standards in education."

Arts in the Park, September 13

Sunday, September 13, will bring the second celebration of "Arts in the Park," the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's autumn festival of the visual and performing arts.

"Arts in the Park" is held from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. The fences along the Beaverdam entrance to the Salisbury Zoo will be ablaze with color as regional artists display their work under the pines. Performing ensembles will also be on hand with dance, theatre and musical selections to entertain audiences of all ages. Food booths and some children's hands-on-arts programs will round out the day's offerings.

Art Institute Holds Members Sale

Paintings, drawings, wood and ceramic sculpture, handmade paper and photography by the members of the Art Institute & Gallery will be on exhibit until September 18, during the AI&G's annual members exhibition and sale.

The AI&G is open from noon-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, but extended hours are available for groups. The AI&G is located at Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane on the north side of Route 50 in downtown Salisbury. For more information, call 546-4748.

WSCL Announces Fall Program Changes

The addition of a second national news service and relocation of two popular music programs are among the fall schedule changes announced by WSCL (89.5 FM).

Starting October 1, WSCL will offer listeners Monitor Radio's "Daily Edition" at 4:30 p.m. weekdays. "Daily Edition" is an hour-long summary of the day's news. It will be followed by "This is Living," a WSCL News production that deals with national and regional issues. Together, the two programs will replace "All Things Considered" from National Public Radio.

Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL, said there were three reasons for the afternoon news changes.

"Listeners have told us they would like to hear another perspective on national and international news, in addition to that provided by National Public Radio," Marino said.

"By offering NPR's 'Morning Edition' in the morning and 'Daily Edition' in the afternoon, we will provide that perspective," he added.

"Daily Edition" is a broadcast service of The Christian Science Monitor and "offers listeners the balanced global perspective which is the hallmark of Monitor journalism's 80-year tradition," said Marino. "'Daily Edition' provides thoughtful, accurate, up-to-the minute coverage from a worldwide network of news bureaus."

The second reason for the switch to "Daily Edition" is cost. Marino said the price of "All Things Considered" increased 14 percent this year and is more than seven times the cost of "Daily Edition."

"Staff members spent weeks listening to both services and comparing them for quality and content. Our conclusion is that 'Daily Edition' provides the same quality and an additional news perspective at far less cost. The money saved will go toward other service improvements, such as increased local production," he said.

"This Is Living," a half-hour weeknightly program, has focused primarily on such national subjects as health, law, environment and women's issues. WSCL plans to devote more of the program to the particular interests of the Delmarva Peninsula. Marino said those efforts will coincide with the switch to "Daily Edition" and together, the two programs will provide a comprehensive 90-minute news summary each weekday.

Marino said moving the afternoon news to an earlier start responds to another listener suggestion—that WSCL not program news at the same time that local and national news is offered by local television stations. "Beginning in October, we will return to music at 6 p.m. weekdays, with 'Karl Haas's Adventures in Good Music,'" Marino said. "Then listeners will have a choice of local television news or WSCL music programming at 6." "Karl Haas" is presently offered at 7 p.m. weeknights.

The other relocated program is the popular WSCL variety show "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva." Starting October 3, "RFD" will become a 30-minute show broadcast every Saturday at 5:30 p.m. Marino said that making "RFD" a weekly broadcast and shortening it are intended to attract more listeners to the WSCL production. The live two-hour production of "RFD" will continue on a monthly basis. That live production will then be edited into half-hour shows for the weekly broadcasts.

Other changes in the public radio schedules are relocation of several programs: "Soundprint" to 8 a.m. Saturday, "Classical Countdown" to 5 p.m. Sunday and "Pipedreams" to 8 p.m. Sunday. "Sound Money" was moved to 8 a.m. Sunday at the beginning of August. "Music From the Hearts of Space," a new age music program was dropped from the schedule.

"Just Folks," a Saturday night program of recorded folk music hosted by John Kalb, will be expanded from two to three hours. "All these changes," Marino said, "are intended to respond to listener reaction to WSCL programming and to provide an even better service to as many people as possible across the Peninsula."

Radio Free Delmarva Returns September 19

After a four-month hiatus, WSCL's popular radio variety show, "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva" returns to the stage on Saturday, September 19. The program will have a slightly different format, but will still offer the Delmarva Peninsula's best variety entertainment to an audience.

"We will do a live taping once a month, with each two-hour show divided into four 30-mintue segments," said host and WSCL News Director Van Williamson. "Beginning October 3, a half-hour 'RFD' will be broadcast from 5:30-6 p.m. every Saturday. We believe this will allow the program to build up a consistent radio audience, while allowing the live show to continue on a regular basis. We think it's a great idea."

The September live taping will feature some old faces and some new ones: Richard Ben Cramer, author of "What It Takes: The Way to the White House"; bluegrass band New Ground; folk singer Karen Goldberg; blues guitarist Chris English; harpsichordist Roy Clark; horticulturist Jean Scott; the RFD Quintet; and the RFD Players with an original radio semi-drama focusing on election year politics.

"RFD" will be taped before a live audience in Holloway Hall Auditorium on September 19. The band begins at 7:30 p.m., the show at 8 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

"RFD" was first broadcast by WSCL in October 1989. The show received an honorable mention in the National Federation of Community Broadcasters 1991 Golden Reel Awards Competition.

Outdoor Club Sponsors Backpacking Workshop

A backpacking workshop and slide presentation featuring Cindy Ross and Todd Gladfelter, authors of Backpacker Magazine's column "Everyday Wisdom-General Tips and Sound Advice for the Novice in Us All," will be presented on Monday, September 21, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Ross is the author of three books on hiking: "A Woman's Journey on the Appalachian Trail," "Journey on the Crest-A 2600 Mile Walk from Mexico to Canada" and, newly released by Fodor Sports/Random House, "HIKING-The Art & Spirit of the Sport and How to Enjoy It."

Collectively, Ross and Gladfelter have over 12,000 miles of backpacking experience. Their presentation will draw from that experience as they provide anecdotal stories on how they learned the hard way. They will offer hints and tips on backpacking gear, packing sensibly, food for the trail, dressing for the outdoors, safety in hiking, hiking the trail, footwear for backcountry travel, staying in camp, selecting a sleeper, a quick pitch for tents, cooking on a portable inferno, backpacking with children and recording your trip.

Their presentations have been lauded by many organizations and individuals. According to The Wilderness Society, "Cindy Ross bares her soul and allows us to share with her, in a uniquely intimate way, the rewards and punishments that are a part of hiking."

The Eastman Kodak Company observed that Ross has "a very warm style of presentation (that) instantly wins the audience. Sincerity is everywhere in her manner. It was gratifying to see such excellent use of the medium (photography)."

The Guerrieri Center and the Outdoor Club are sponsors of the presentation by Ross and Gladfelter. Admission is free and the public is invited.

For more information, contact the SSU Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

Auction '92 Benefits Furnace Town

Site Auction '92, an annual benefit for Furnace Town Historic Site, will be held on Sunday, September 27, at 2 p.m. beneath the pavilion at Furnace Town.

All items for the auction are donated by area businesses and individuals, and include dinners in private homes and fine restaurants; weekends for two at area bed and breakfast inns, hotels and motels; sports packages; gift certificates; and other services. An assortment of collectibles, antiques, prints and original artwork, tools, toys and sports equipment is found. Bidding is lively for special baskets of homemade jams and relishes, and made-to-order cakes, pies, and sweetrolls.

Items will be divided into those placed on silent auction and those to be sold at the live auction. All items will be on display from Saturday, September 26, at 11 a.m. in the museum at Furnace Town. Sealed bids may be placed on Saturday from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. on live auction items for those unable to attend Auction '92 on Sunday. Bids may also be placed on items on silent auction during those hours.

Wonder, Dread, Awe Focus of Miller Book

Moving beyond the dread of death by opening oneself to a willingness to die and thereby winning through to a deeper spiritual dimension in one's life is the theme of a new book by Dr. Jerome A. Miller, professor of philosophy at SSU.

Titled "In the Throe of Wonder: Intimations of the Sacred in a Post-Modern World," the book has just been published by the State University of New York Press in both paperback and hardcover editions.

Primarily directed at other professors of philosophy and students majoring in that field, the book, Miller concedes, may prove "hard going" for the average reader. Even so, he says, it is written in a straightforward, non-technical style that should be clear to any serious reader.

The book focuses on three aspects of experience: wonder, dread and awe.

Wonder begins in childhood as a natural openness to the mystery of things and a fascination with being alive.

Dread, Miller explains, is common to all adults whether it be fear of the loss of a loved one or of one's bank going bankrupt or of any of the countless chance happenings that can devastate our lives.

The common element in dread, he points out, is its threat of an end to our world and thus, at bottom, all dread is the fear of death. The basic argument of the book, Miller says, is that when dread enter's one's life with its awareness of impending death we lose our sense of wonder and react by trying to control our lives in a futile defense against dread. One attempt at control that is common nowadays, he says, is the piling up of material possessions in the hope of bolstering our sense of security.

Instead of trying to prevent dreadful things from happening to us, the book advises opening oneself to the fact of death and its "awe-ful-ness" so as to live a richer life unburdened by fear.

"By willingness to die," Miller explained, "I do not mean we should recklessly endanger our lives, but we should recklessly pursue a life that seems to us worth living." As an example he cites Mother Theresa and her dedication to the poor despite the daily threat of contracting deadly diseases.

Ultimately, the book argues, acceptance of death can lead to a sense of the mystery of life that goes beyond the child's wonder and the adult's dread and enters a religion dimension.

In pointing this out, one reviewer of an advance copy of the book said it "begets a radical questioning" that ends with discerning a beyond "that may be what some call God."

The reviewer describes the book as a "thoughtful, penetrating, well-informed reflection" that takes the reader on a rewarding journey.

Locally the book is available at the SSU book store. Copies may also be had by writing the publisher, State University of New York Press, c/o CUP Services, P.O. Box 6525, Ithaca, NY 14851. Fax orders only: 1-800-688-2877. The paperback costs $14.95 and the hardcover $44.50. Add $3 for postage and handling the first first copy, 50 cents for each additional copy.

Miller joined the SSU faculty in 1972. He earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Scranton and his Ph.D. at Georgetown University.

He is the author of one previous book, "The Way of Suffering: A Geography of Crisis," published in 1989 by Georgetown University Press.

SWAC Announces Grant Decisions

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) receives funding from the Maryland State Arts Council's Community Arts Development program. A major portion of those funds is then regranted to local arts organizations in Wicomico County.

For the fiscal year 1993, the Arts Council had intended to make awards of $15,000 to area cultural agencies. However, recent funding reductions from the state has forced the Arts Council, which had its overall budget reduced by 50 percent to reduce its grant awards by 33 percent.

Recipients of grants for arts programs in Wicomico County during the 1993 fiscal year's first granting cycle follow:

—The Community Players of Salisbury, supporting its 1992-93 theatrical season.

—The Greater Salisbury Youth Symphony Orchestra, which received a grant toward its 1993 performance season.

—The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU, which received support for its 1992-93 performance season.

—The Wicomico County Department of Parks and Recreation, in support of Community Band concerts.

—WSCL-FM, which received two grants, one for the locally produced program, "RFD: Radio Free Delmarva," and one for a new program of remote tapings of area music concerts for broadcast.

—The Ward Museum, which received two grants, one for the outreach and children's program, "Ducks on Wheels," and one for it's docent training program.

SWAC processes two cycles of grants each fiscal year. The next application deadline for events occuring between January 1 and June 30, 1993, is November 20. Applications are now available and may be picked up at the Arts Council Office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

For more infromation on grants, or on other programs administered by SWAC, call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 10, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 2

Columbus Scholar William Palmer Is Convocation Speaker

As they prepare to begin their own adventure, students, faculty and staff at SSU will hear an inspirational message about one of the great adventurers of all time: Christopher Columbus.

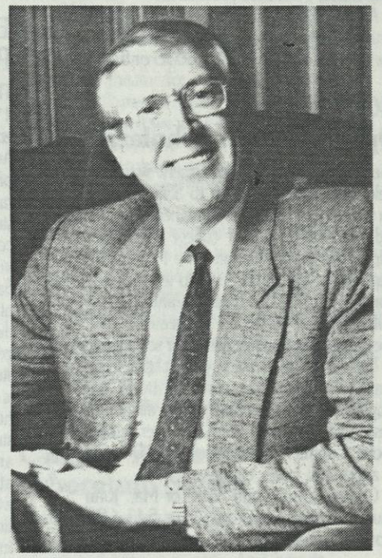
The University will mark the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of the New World in a series of presentations this year. Even before that begins, Columbus scholar and SSU faculty member William Palmer will address the University's fall convocation at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, September 16. The convocation will be held in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

"The convocation sets the tone for the academic year," Palmer said. "In his exploits, his character, his determination, Christopher Columbus can provide a model for all of us."

Palmer is the author of "The Secret Journal of Christopher Columbus," and has received National Endowment for the Humanities funding for his study of the explorer. He has immersed himself in information about the Age of Discovery and the intellectual and cultural world in which Columbus lived.

Inspired himself by the man and his deeds, Palmer has written, spoken and even performed dramatic monologues in which he portrays Christopher Columbus: all in his effort to increase understanding of Columbus and his time.

When he speaks of Christopher Columbus, Palmer recalls the ideals of a bygone era, using words like valor and gallantry. The explorer not only sought out new ways to reach the Indies and the Orient, but was equally resourceful and determined in pursuing his other goals. In his research, Palmer has discovered what he considers to be the key to understanding Christopher Columbus.



William Palmer

"He was truly a man of faith," said Palmer. "He was driven by his profound and abiding faith in God and the conviction that he was an instrument of God. He believed that he couldn't fail because he was on a divine mission.

"This enabled him to endure many difficulties and to sail on confident in the belief that he was doing God's work."

While the personal voyages undertaken by those who are beginning their school year may not quite match those of the man who discovered America, Palmer is certain that others can benefit by learning from Columbus' example.

"One of my messages is that it is only in the pursuit of one's dreams that good arises," he said. "It is not sufficient to dream. Columbus had a dream and was determined to see it through."

While Palmer acknowledges the controversy that has arisen over the many consequences of Columbus' arrival in what he called a New World, he will focus his convocation speech on the inspirational aspects of Columbus' exploits. In this quincentenary year of the discovery of America, Palmer has an opportunity to share what he has gained in his study of the explorer.

As he prepares for a year of carrying this message across the Shore and across the country, William Palmer finds it has rubbed off on him.

"You can't separate the accomplishments of Christopher Columbus from his character," Palmer said. "I find myself drawing inspiration from the man and his deeds."

The public is cordially invited to fall convocation. There is no admission charge.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Geography Department Rated Among Nation's Best

It may be one of Salisbury State's best kept secrets; but not for long.

The geography program at SSU has long been respected for the successful graduates it produces. And a new national study ranks the department in the nation's top 20.

A new type of survey of geography programs that values teaching and community involvement over graduate research ranks SSU's program 14th in terms of overall effectiveness in serving undergraduate students. The survey was conducted by the State University of New York College at Geneseo.

"This is a student-oriented department," said its chair, Dr. Calvin R. Thomas. "The faculty are required and encouraged to do scholarly activities, but students' needs come first. Students get a great deal of individual attention here."

That attention has won the small department the gratitude of its students; and it has won rewards for the students themselves. Seven of this year's graduates have not only been accepted to prestigious graduate programs, but will receive a remission of their tuition and a stipend to help support their studies. These seven are following in a long-standing SSU tradition of success.

Although they tend to finish the program with a firm grasp of their future, most SSU geography students start their college careers without knowing exactly what they want. Dr. Robert A. Rosing who chaired the Geography Department for 10 years, until 1985, explains that the connection is usually made in the classroom.

"It's very unusual that we get freshmen (geography majors). They're very often attracted by the courses or the teachers." Faculty members take time to talk to students about the discipline and about the career opportunities that can come with a degree in geography. It's part of what Thomas calls "meeting students' needs."

Dr. Brent Skeeter is one faculty member who has learned this lesson from two perspectives: he is a graduate of the SSU Geography Department who has returned to teach.

When he left for graduate school, Skeeter found that SSU had met his needs — even better than he had expected.

Season-long Series On Columbus Set for Fall

The 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of the New World will be marked at the University by a fall series of lectures presented by some of the leading Columbus scholars in this country.

"Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away" will include nine lectures plus a poetry reading and performance of flamenco dance and music. All presentations, except the music and dance, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

"Columbus the Man" by SSU faculty member William Palmer begins the series on Wednesday, September 23. Palmer will portray Columbus in a dramatic monologue complete with period costume. Following the presentation, SSU History Department professor Dr. Timothy Miller and SSU Philosophy Department professor Dr. James Hatley will present the pros and cons of Columbus' arrival in the Americas to help define some of the controversy surrounding the quincentenary celebration.

Palmer is the author of "The Secret Journal of Christopher Columbus" and has received funding for his study of the explorer from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Next in the series will be "The World of Columbus" by Dr. Eric McGeer of Harvard University's Department of History on Monday,

Carl Perkins Loan Recipients

Students receiving the Carl Perkins Loan for the fall semester must sign a promissory note on September 8-14 in room 205 of Holloway Hall. Hours are 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Failure to sign the note will result in the withdrawal of the loan.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Activities

Beginning Monday, September 14, Wellness Hour will be Monday through Friday, 5-6 p.m. Sign up in the Nautilus Room at Maggs. Beginning Tuesday, September 15, faculty/staff aerobics will be Tuesdays and Thursdays, 5-6 p.m. Sign up in the dance studio. For more information, contact the Campus Recreation Office at 543-6350.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Stop Smoking Seminar

SSU smokers who have finally decided to stop smoking should consider attending an upcoming seminar offered by Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

During the two-session seminar, McBrien will present a step-by-step approach to kicking the smoking habit. It will consist of education, behavioral and visualization experiences which guide participants to stop smoking and maintain their non-smoking status.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on September 15 and 22 from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The second section will take place from 4-5 p.m. on September 16 and 23, also in the Manokin Room.

Personnel Office Cites Special Meetings

University employees may wish to make note of the following:

September 16, seminar on prostate cancer (open to all male employees or husbands of employees);

September 16, TIAA/CREF personal conferences (by appointment);

November 16, annual health benefits fair (open enrollment information); and

November 17, specialized information relating to new health insurance procedures.

Additional information and/or literature will be forthcoming prior to each activity. Feel free to call the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

ROTC Offers Opportunities, Scholarships

The Military Science Department would like to welcome all new students to SSU. Army ROTC is a way for students to expand their horizons and add experiences to their college career that will help following graduation. The Military Science Department invites students to learn about time management, group dynamics and leadership skills. Training events for the semester include a rifle range and rapelling classes for selected students.

The Army offers three-year scholarships to qualified students who enroll in the ROTC program. These scholarships pay all tuition and fees at SSU and provide $225 per semester for books. Contracted cadets receive $100 per month to assist with other expenses.

Contact Capt. Keith Street or Maj. John Faulconbridge at 543-6296 or 543-6299 for more information.

Vending Machine Program

The University has recently taken over the vending machines on campus. Lance, Inc. and Pepsi-Cola products are being sold. To reduce the chances of experiencing a problem with Lance products firmly press the selection button until the product has dropped. As with any new program, there are bugs that must be worked out. If you have any other questions, concerns or problems leave a message on the "Vending Hot-line" at 548-7953 (on campus only).

VAX Training Classes

Training classes for the introduction to the VAX, part I, which includes the EDT editor, will be held in the Fulton VAX Lab, Fulton Hall, room 140 on:

Wednesday, September 16, 7-8:30 p.m.;
Thursday, September 17, 2-3:30 p.m.;
Monday, September 21, 2-3:30 p.m.;
Tuesday, September 22, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.;
Wednesday, September 23, 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.;
Thursday, September 24, 7-8:30 p.m.;
Monday, September 28, 7-8:30 p.m.; and
Tuesday, September 29, 2-3:30 p.m.

Those interested must sign up prior to attending any scheduled training. Sign-up sheets are located in the Academic Help Room, Fulton Hall, room 149.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Student Handbook Published

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1992-93 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1992-93 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy. Students maintain the right to consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. Salisbury State University will assume the right, under the provisions of this Act, to provide student directory information found in a students's educational record without prior consent of the student. For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in Room 212 of the University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the Salisbury State University policy can be obtained in the Dean of Student's Office.

TIAA/CREF Representative Here

A representative from TIAA/CREFF (retirement tax shelter programs) will be on hand on Wednesday, September 16, for personal consultations in the afternoon. Call the Personnel Office for an appointment and additional information at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

Radio Announcer At WSCL Wanted

WSCL-FM seeks two part-time announcers to work 20 to 30 hours each a week, one chiefly evenings and one chiefly weekends, and both as holiday and vacation substitutes.

Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting will be helpful. An audition will be required. The positions are available September 14. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to Fred Marino, General Manager, WSCL-FM, P.O. Box 2596 Salisbury, MD 21802-2596 until September 11. WSCL-FM is licensed to the Salisbury State University Foundation and is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Laura Twiford

Atrium Exhibit Combines Quilt Design, Paper-Making

Art work that combines traditional patchwork quilt designs with paper-making will be on exhibit at Salisbury State starting Thursday, September 10. The work, by SSU student and Chincoteague resident Laura Twiford, will be in the Atrium Gallery, located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Drawing from her past as a quiltmaker, Twiford now uses her newly learned skill of paper-making to execute her designs. Often she recycles egg cartons and other paper. She also uses cotton linters, which are short fibers left over after the longer fibers have been extracted to make fabric.

The cotton and paper pieces are cut up, pureed in a blender, boiled, then colored and molded by hand into designs. "Working with fabric, color, texture and design have been a natural form of expression for me for years through quiltmaking," Twiford said.

Some of Twiford's pieces are clearly traditional quilt designs such as Double Wedding Ring. Others are adaptations of original designs and still others are Twiford's own designs. All of the pieces are hand-formed and hand-pressed.

Twiford's work will be on display through 30. The Atrium Gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and on Sundays from noon-4 p.m.

The Atrium Gallery will feature several exhibits and art sales throughout the semester. For a schedule of these events, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Waters Recognized By State Arts Council

Dr. Michael Waters, an English professor, has received an Individual Artist Award in Poetry from the Maryland State Arts Council. The $3,000 award was given on the basis of artistic excellence.

During his recent sabbatical from SSU, Waters was granted residency fellowships by the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts in Mt. San Angelo, VA; Yaddo in Saratoga Springs, NY; and the MacDowell Colony in Peterborough, NH. At each colony he worked on the manuscript for a new volume of poems.

Waters' latest book of poetry, Bountiful, is already receiving good reviews. Floyd Collins in The Gettysburg Review, wrote: "I can not call to mind anyone of Waters' generation who is currently writing better poetry."

In addition to working on new poems, Waters is currently editing a volume of multi-cultural poetry to be published in 1994.

Fulbright Trip Brings Rubin Rich Experience

Bridging the gap between American and Oriental cultures and education systems was the purpose of a recent trip to Japan and Korea by Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Rubin was one of six American educators to participate in an International Education Administrators Fulbright trip to the two countries from June 29 to August 1.

During the four weeks in Japan, Rubin and the other five Fulbright scholars visited 20 colleges and universities as well as elementary and secondary schools and major corporations in order to see that sorts of educational opportunities are offered "from cradle to grave." Additionally, they visited shrines, festivals and the Kabuki theater for a first-hand look at Japanese culture. "It was a much richer experience than if we were on a typical tourist or business trip," she said.

Although the group was kept busy in Japan, Rubin said she felt as if they had slowed down from the fast American pace. Meetings with Japanese educators were usually preceded by formal introductions and tea. While these formalities seem frustratingly slow at first, the Fulbright group came to appreciate them because they offered a chance to get to know the people with whom they were meeting. "Sometimes the real business can then be done a lot better," she said.

After four weeks in Japan, the group traveled to Korea for a week's stay. Although geographically close, Rubin said the two countries are very different in their values and feelings on work and education.

As dean of the Fulton School, Rubin would like to see more internationalizing of the University's curriculum and that was the main purpose of her trip. She feels that the University's students will be "citizens of the world" and should be learning more about different cultures through courses on campus as well as trips abroad and exchanges with other countries.

Currently, SSU students are offered various courses to help them understand other cultures, including World History and Third World Literature. "Here and there, there are very wonderful attempts," she said. But internationalizing the curriculum has not yet been approached with a clear goal in mind. "I want the faculty to think about how to be more systematic and coherent—what should we teach? How should we teach it?" she said.

Rubin says there are a few foreign students on campus, and, unlike most Japanese universities, there are no programs through which students and faculty regularly exchange with other countries.

"We could be doing a lot more," Rubin said. "We don't want to use the excuse that we're just a small school in a rural place because a lot of Japanese universities are small, rural, and international in perspective."

Campus Achieves Arboretum Status

The gardens on campus not only make the grounds more attractive, but have an educational benefit as well. And having achieved arboretum status, they have earned a new feather for SSU's cap.

The University is now and institutional member of the American Association of Botanical Gardens and Arboreta (AABGA), an organization dedicated to education, display and research in horticulture.

SSU's director of horticulture, Leslie F. Lutz, Jr., has been working toward this goal since he arrived on campus more than seven years ago. He and his staff continually expand the University's plant collection and keep records of it all. A map, designed to guide a walking tour of what Lutz calls the "significant" plants on campus, is also in the works.

The educational and research value of the arboretum has benefits not only for SSU, but for other horticultural institutions, including Longwood Gardens and the U.S. Botanical Gardens, with whom Lutz shares his findings. Lutz points out that AABGA membership will further enhance the University's status in the field.

According to AABGA Executive Director Susan H. Lathrop, SSU is at the fore of a growing trend among universities who recognize importance of their "green space" to their communities. Lathrop estimates that 25 percent of the AABGA's institutional members are university gardens, the fastest growing group of members. "The schools see themselves as having an important role," she said. "The gardens are an amenity for the community, as well as for the students."

Lutz currently offers plant tours of the campus each semester, for the growing number of students interested in horticulture and for area garden clubs.

'Daily Edition' Debuts in October

Beginning October 1, WSCL-FM 89.5 will begin broadcasting Monitor Radio's "Daily Edition." The hour-long daily news program will be broadcast from 4:30-5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"'Daily Edition' hosts Pat Bodnar and Rob Nelson draw extensively on the extensive resources of the Christian Science Monitor to bring listeners a comprehensive analysis of the news and issues of the day," said Fred Marino, WSCL general manager.

Marino also pointed out that the Christian Science Monitor enjoys a distinguished reputation for factual unbiased reporting. Monitor Radio builds on that 80-year tradition providing listeners with a global perspective of events as they happen around the world.

"Because Monitor radio provides thoughtful, accurate, up-to-the-minute coverage from a worldwide network of news bureaus," Marino said, "'Daily Edition' reaches more than 1.3 million listeners a day. We believe that 'Daily Edition' and National Public Radio's 'Morning Edition' will give WSCL listeners a broad perspective on national and global news."

HBO Comedians Live in Salisbury

Five of the hottest comedians from the popular HBO show "Def Comedy Jam," are coming to the Wicomico Civic Center on Sunday, September 20, at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale for $19.50 and are general admission.

The four comedians are Bill Bellamy, Reggie McFadden, Adele Givens and Bernie Mac, along with DJ Kid Capri. All five resumes read like a who's who of comedy, appearing at all the major comedy clubs across the country and opening for national celebraties like Sinbad, Natalie Cole and Smokey Robinson.

For more information or to order tickets call the Civic Center box office at 548-4911.

Riall Lecturer Cites Need for Education Change

For Dr. Harold Hodgkinson, a close look at who we are and how we live can yield valuable insights into how we can improve both. His upcoming appearance in Salisbury is one of many he makes to spread the news across the country.

Consider it a wake-up call.

Hodgkinson is the director of the Center for Demographic Policy of the Institute for Educational Leadership, a post that has led to intense analysis of population and policy trends. Hodgkinson is also the first guest speaker of the year in the Riall Lecture Series hosted by the Education Department at Salisbury State University. His presentation, scheduled for Monday, September 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium, is free and the public is invited.

T'ai-chi Course Starts in September

The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture.

The beginners course will be held on Tuesdays starting September 15 and the intermediate course will be Thursdays starting September 17.

The classes, which will meet for 10 sessions, will be held from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the dance studio of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the United States and Taiwan. He has been teaching it in Wicomico County since 1976.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170 or Fusaro at 742-9170.

Prehealth Students

The committee to advise prehealth students (premedical, preveterinary, predentistry and any other health profession not offered at SSU) has been reorganized. Please refer any students indicating an interest in these areas to Dr. Harry Womack, Potomac Hall, room 135, as soon as possible.

Instructional Media Relocated in Caruthers

The Instructional Media Office has moved to Caruthers Hall, room 125G, in the northeast side of the building in the former computer lab area. The new location is easily accessible from the parking lot or the building's north entry doors. Phone numbers remain the same.

Call 543-6230 to place an order for classroom equipment or contact Mary Gillespie at 543-6232 for special assistance. Operation hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Throughout the semester, hands-on workshops will be offered in a number of areas: slide production, slide duplication, educational videotape production (faculty editing and computerized graphics design), PC viewer (IBM and MAC) and ETEC classroom introduction. To participate in one of these workshops, call 543-6232.

During September, new faculty will be contacted by instructional media to identify special support areas. Faculty are always welcome to tour the area, peruse video catalogues or discuss special classroom assistance needs.

Devilbiss Lab (DH 242) and Blackwell WP Lab (BL 010/015) will be closed during that time.

Honors Convocation Seeks Speaker Candidates

The 1993 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria:

must have graduated at least five or more years ago from SSU in an approved program of study;

must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of SSU;

should be active in community activities;

should have been active in campus events as a student at SSU;

should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 1.

Russia Trip Planning Meeting

Tremendous changes are taking place in Russia nowadays. In which direction will it be going? SSU's winter term study-tour there may find out. Everyone is invited to participate in the trip scheduled for January 18-29.

For more information, attend an open meeting scheduled on Wednesday, September 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room C. If that date is inconvenient, contact Berry at 543-6251 or stop by his office, Holloway Hall, room 372.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at the University. Staff in the Health Center recommend that students have health coverage by obtaining coverage on their parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

'Educated Cats' Seek Good Homes

The SSU Feline Committee is seeking homes for the following kittens and cats still living at SSU:

"Gorgeous Grey," tabby kitten;

"Patches," white with black eye patches, kitten;

"Salis," white/grey/black/brown one-year-old cat;

"Berry," white and grey, one-year-old cat; and more kittens on the way soon.

If you are interested in any of these still wild, but very sweet animals please see Mia Vye in the President's Office in Holloway Hall, room 237.

The cats are in the process of being caught and taken to the vet for shots, etc. Alternatively, the Feline Committee's cat fund can help the new owner with some of the expenses.

Football Statisticians Needed

The Sports Information Office seeks individuals interested in serving as statisticians for the upcoming football season. Applicants need to be able to work all home games this fall (September 12, October 10, 24, November 7, 14).

Previous experience helpful, but those with an eagerness to learn are also welcome. A good knowledge of football is important. Contact Paul Ohanian at 543-6016 if interested.

Radio Free Delmarva Returns September 19

After a four-month hiatus, WSCL's popular radio variety show, "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva" returns to the stage on Saturday, September 19. The program will have a slightly different format, but will still offer the Delmarva Peninsula's best variety entertainment to an audience.

"RFD" will be taped before a live audience in Holloway Hall Auditorium on September 19. The band begins at 7:30 p.m., the show at 8 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Outdoor Club Sponsors Backpacking Workshop

A backpacking workshop and slide presentation featuring Cindy Ross and Todd Gladfelter, authors of Backpacker Magazine's column "Everyday Wisdom-General Tips and Sound Advice for the Novice in Us All," will be presented on Monday, September 21, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

For more information, contact the SSU Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

West African Study Trip Planned

An interest meeting will be held Thursday, September 17, in Fulton Hall, room 121, at 3:30 p.m. for a study tour to West Africa during the 1993 winter term.

Dr. Cyril Daddieh (political science), Dr. Karin Johnson (nursing) and Dr. Phillip Bosserman (sociology) will be the co-leaders of this study seminar which will concentrate on political, social, economic and cultural development with a special emphasis on health delivery systems.

The study tour will visit sites important to the slave trade, contemporary problems of the economy, political life, the family, religion, art, education and health. Participants will also sample the exciting, vital social and cultural life of West Africa.

SAT Course Set

Beginning Tuesday, September 22, the University will sponsor a four-week course to prepare students to take both the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and the PSAT, which is administered to high school juniors.

The course will be taught from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesdays in room 109 of Caruthers Hall. The instructors will be Dr. Thomas L. Erskine of the English Department and Dr. Donald Cathcart of the Math Department.

The cost of the course is $65, plus the textbook, which will be available for purchase at the first class meeting.

For information and registration call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170. Registration is also possible at the first meeting of the class, but enrollment is limited.

Outdoor Club Meeting

The first meeting of the Outdoor Club for the fall semester will be on Monday, September 14, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. The meeting will feature an introduction to the semester's activities and final sign up for the tubing, whitewater canoeing and hiking trip to Harpers Ferry, WV, on September 18-20. All interested students are welcome.

Faculty Bible Study Meets on Fridays

Of what value is wisdom and knowledge? To what extent do things like work, possessions and pleasure really satisfy? Is there really a "Time for Everything?"

These are some of the topics to be explored this semester during faculty Bible study. Steve Young with Campus Crusade will lead a discussion of the Old Testament book of Ecclesiastes. All are welcome to join and consider what King Solomon, reported to be the wisest man who ever lived, said about these and other aspects of life.

Meetings are Fridays from noon-1 p.m., beginning September 11 at the Computer Services Conference Center Room, second floor, south wing of Fulton Hall (enter through room 280). Just bring a bag lunch and Bible. No prerequisites. No homework.

Homer Austin, Mike Burton, Ed Senkbeil, Ed Shaffer, Wayne Shelton, Jerry Waldron, George Whitehead, Brent Wilhelm and Jeanette Wolinski are current members.

EMPLOYEES RECOGNIZED FOR YEARS OF SERVICE. Three University employees were recently recognized for their years of service to the institution. George Armstrong (left) and Richard Briddell of University Dining Services were recognized for 35 years of service and (seated) Barbara Bundick of custodial services was recognized for 30 years of service.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

By Paul Ohanian

Most of the athletic squads inaugurate their 1992 campaigns this week as the fall season heads into full bloom. The field hockey squad kick- started the varsity season with Wednesday's home match against Catholic University. The Sea Gulls, under the direction of sixth-year Head Coach Dawn Chamberlin, are coming off an 11-6-1 season from a year ago. SSU made its eighth straight NCAA Tournament appearance, advancing to the national quarterfinal round. The Gulls, featuring a veteran lineup this year, will host their annual Sunfest Tournament, sponsored by The Hampton Inn, on September 19 and 20.

The football team begins its third season under the guidance of Head Coach Joe Rotellini this weekend as the Gulls welcome C.W. Post for a 1:30 showdown on Saturday. Junior QB Len Annetta, with help from RB Ron Stump, WR Charlie Whalen and a veteran offensive line, will lead the offense. Senior LB Rick Helton and junior CB Henry Fehlman, last season's top two tacklers, will spearhead the defense. SSU fell to Post, 10-5, in last year's opener, but is 11-9 all-time in season openers.

The volleyball team begins its season at the Gettysburg College Tournament this Friday and Saturday. The Gulls hope to offset the loss of last year's top hitter, Heidi Smid, with a core of experienced players including Jenean Plumley, Shannon Cianelli and Jodi Boast. SSU finished 18-21 overall last year, but claimed its fifth straight Eastern States Athletic Conference championship.

The men's and women's cross country teams begin race competition at the Lebanon Valley College Invitational this Saturday. Senior Tim Smith, the team's top returning runner, hopes to duplicate his effort of a year ago when he claimed the meet's individual championship with a time of 25:27. The women's team will look to fill the shoes of last year's top runner, Erin Smith, now an assistant for Head Coach Jerry Thomas.

The men's soccer team hosts Randolph-Macon on Sunday in its season opener. Coach Gerry DiBartolo's team looks to better its 8-9 record from last year with a quick start this season. The Gulls will also look for revenge for last year's 3-0 loss against RMC. Mike Conners, Matt Roberts and Scott Talley are among the key returnees for the Sea Gulls.

The women's tennis team will be the last of the seven varsity squads to begin its season this fall as the Gulls begin the campaign on September 18 at the Goucher College Tournament. Among Coach Ray Still's top priorities in the early season will be to find a replacement for Lisa Trelease, the team's number one singles player for the last three years.

Public Safety Services and Crime Statistics

The Public Safety Office is providing this information in compliance with the Federal Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act.

Location/Telephone Hours

Administrative Services Building
543-6222 or ext. 36222 from any campus phone
Office hours, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday; campus police officers are available seven days/week, 24 hours/day, 365 days/year.

The Public Safety Office is responsible for the safety and security of students, faculty, staff and visitors and for the protection of property on the campus. Vehicle registration and traffic control is handled by this office.

Services Provided

- Investigations - Criminal and non-criminal violations of state law or the University Code of Conduct are investigated by campus police. Victims or witnesses of a crime or other incident should call public safety and an officer will respond to investigate.
- Escort Service - Provided to anyone who feels uncomfortable walking alone on campus or to nearby off-campus locations during the hours of darkness. Student volunteers provide this service from 9 p.m. -1 a.m., seven days a week and campus police officers provide this service at other times.
- Lost and Found - If you lose an item on campus file a lost item card with this office. Many items such as keys, clothing, eye glasses, wallets, checkbooks, bookbags and other personal property are regularly turned into the Public Safety Office. If a lost item card is matched with a found item the owner will be contacted.
- Assist Motorist - Campus police officers respond to calls of keys locked in cars and dead batteries. Officers have access to equipment to unlock car doors and to jump start or "hot shot" vehicles with dead batteries.
- Medical Assistance - Officers are trained in advanced first aid and CPR. For medical emergencies call 911 for ambulance service.
- Vehicle Registration and Traffic Control - Students, faculty and staff are required to register their vehicle(s) with public safety. The fee is $10. Freshmen resident students are not allowed to park a vehicle on campus. Traffic control and enforcement is the responsibility of public safety. Complete parking rules and regulations are available at the office.
- Crime Prevention Services - These services include a speaker for campus groups, including new student seminar, brochures and pamphlets for distribution, publication of crimes and incidents in the campus newspaper, and Operation Identification. Engraving devices are loaned or an officer will assist in engraving driver's license numbers on personal property. Operation I.D. can prevent thefts or in the case of theft can assist in the recovery of stolen property.
- Bicycle Registration and Safety - Students are encouraged to register their bicycle with public safety at no charge. A registered bicycle will assist police in recovering a bicycle if it is stolen. It is highly recommended that a U-type bicycle lock be used for securing your bike. Public safety can assist in selecting a lock to meet one's needs.

Riding Safely

- Be aware of storm drains, wet pavement, wet leaves, metal grills on bridges and road surfaces that can be hazardous.
- Do not ride a bicycle without an approved bicycle helmet.
- Obey all "rules of the road" including signs and signals.
- Night riding is 20 times as risky as day-time riding. Avoid night riding if possible. By law, at night a bike must have a white headlight, red taillight and a red rear reflector. A flashing yellow strobe is recommended. Wear white or light colored clothing, with reflective tape. Pedal and spoke reflectors are highly effective.

Environmental Safety

Environmental safety is part of the Public Safety Office. Programs are designed to ensure the safety of the campus community and the environment.

Office of Public Safety Questions and Answers

Frequently asked questions about personal safety on campus:

Q. How do students and others report crimes or other emergencies on campus?

A. The Office of Public Safety has the responsibility for safety and law enforcement on the campus. Officers are on duty 24 hours/day, 365 days/year. The office is located in the Administrative Services Building and is open Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Campus police officers can be contacted by calling 543-6222 from a public phone or ext. 3-6222 from any campus phone. Campus extension phones are located at various locations in academic buildings and at the main entrances of most of the residence halls. "Blue light" phones are located at various locations on the grounds.

Q. What does the University do when a crime is reported?

A. All reported crimes and incidents are thoroughly investigated by campus police officers. When an investigation is complete, if there is enough evidence to identify the person who is responsible, the case may be referred to the State of Maryland Criminal Court system in Wicomico County. The University also has a University Judicial System which adjudicates breaches of the University "Code of Conduct." Victims are encouraged to participate in resolving incidents through these systems.

The University Crisis Team, comprised of representatives of the Public Safety Office, Dean of Students Office, Housing Office, Health Center and the Center for Personal and Professional Development, is available when incidents occur on campus that require in depth intervention of these University resources.

Q. How is access controlled to campus residence halls and academic and administrative buildings?

A. Residence halls are kept locked 24 hours/day. These facilities are for use by residents and their bonafide guests. Access to residence halls by guests is done by telephoning the resident and having the resident meet his or her guests at the door. All students have phones in their rooms and a phone is located at the front door of most residence halls. Individual student rooms are lockable and the residents have a key to their own room. Students are encouraged to keep their room locked at all times, even if they are only going to be out for "a few minutes." If exterior doors are propped open, an alarm will sound. Academic and administrative buildings are normally open 7:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m., Monday-Friday, and at other times when events are scheduled. Blackwell Library is open seven days/week and the schedule can be obtained there. Those needing access at times when buildings are closed may do so if proper authorization is received by the Office of Public Safety from a responsible faculty member or administrator.

Key control is maintained by the Office of Public Safety. Employees are given the keys that are necessary for them to complete their work assignments. Keys are assigned and collected daily from employees who require keys only during working hours.

Q. What security considerations are used in the maintenance of campus facilities?

A. Outdoor lighting is surveyed on a montly basis and repairs are made in a timely manner. Trees and shrubbery are regularly trimmed so that exterior lighting is not blocked and walks and entrances are kept clear. Landscaping is maintained to minimize security risks.

Q. What authority do University police officers have and what is their working relationship with state and local police agencies?

A. The campus police officers are sworn certified police officers as required by Maryland state law. All officers attend the minimum standards training for police officers as mandated by the Maryland Police Training Commission. Annual in-service training is required. Enforcement authority of campus police is derived from Art. 27, Sec. 13-201 of the Annotated Code of Maryland. Campus police have enforcement authority on the jurisdiction of the University. The Maryland State Police, Wicomico County Sheriff's Department and the Salisbury Police Department may be called for assistance if requested by the University.

Q. Are members of the campus community encouraged to report crime?

A. All students, faculty, staff and visitors are encouraged to make a prompt and accurate report to the Office of Public Safety if they are the victim or witness to a crime.

Q. What type of programs are available to inform students and employees about campus security procedures and practices?

A. New students are required to attend an orientation session at the beginning of their first semester. This four-week orientation includes eight sessions of which three are on the topics of public safety services and personal safety, alcohol and drug abuse, and acquaintance rape. Similar training sessions are made available to students, faculty and staff throughout the academic year upon request. Groups that usually avail themselves of these sessions are resident assistants and resident students through floor meetings, fraternities and sororities, athletic teams and other recognized University organizations. Faculty, staff and employees are advised that they are their own best protection by taking common sense security precautions.

Q. What crime prevention programs are availabe to students and employees?

A. An informed public is better prepared to ensure their own safety. Crimes and incidents are reported to the campus newspaper, The Flyer, on a weekly basis. This regular column, "Crime Beat," contains a summary of occurrences from the previous week. Also, in this column are "Crime Prevention Tips" which is timely prevention information. The weekly campus newsletter, Salisbury State University News", is distributed widely on campus. Each addition contains "personal safety tips" and other relevant information about safety and well being on campus.

Q. Are statistics kept concerning the occurrence of crimes on campus during the two preceding school years and the current school year?

A. An annual report is available to report all categories of crime that occur on campus.

Q. Does the University have any jurisdiction over student behavior at off-campus locations?

A. The University has the authority, and exercises that authority through the Dean of Students Office, to take disciplinary action in cases of off-campus misconduct which is detrimental to the University's interests. A cooperative agreement with local police departments is currently in place to support this policy, including reporting incidents and participating in University judicial proceedings.

Q. Are statistics available concerning the number of arrests for liquor law violations, drug abuse violations and weapons possessions?

A. This information is available along with the crime statistics.

Q. What is the University's policy regarding alcohol beverages and illegal drugs?

A. The University "Alcohol Policy" and "Code of Conduct" address alcohol and drug issues.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 17, 1992

VOL. IX NO. 3

International Miro Exhibit Comes to University Gallery

An art exhibit of international importance—possibly the first of its kind on the Eastern Shore—will be on display at the new University Gallery in Fulton Hall. The collection of lithographs and etchings by Spanish surrealist Joan Miro will be in the gallery from September 28-October 15.

An exhibit of Miro's work is very timely, according to show coordinator Heather Timmons. Interest in Spanish culture is at a peak this year because of the Summer Olympics in Barcelona as well as the upcoming 500th anniversary of Columbus' first voyage to the New World on behalf of Spain.

Through Miro's work, gallery visitors will be able to glimpse art that was influenced by colorful Catalan peasant folk art and the architecture of Antoni Gaudi in his hometown of Barcelona.

Living in Paris in the years after World War I, Miro joined a group of young visionaries that rejected the old masters and called themselves surrealists. While these artists were struggling to break with tradition in order to attain a kind of pristine vision, Miro lived it naturally. The past was an order in which he never believed.

"Painting has been in decline since the cavemen," Miro once said. His chief aim was to dismantle the "hierarchal order that has been forced onto art by time, centuries and styles."

Although Miro is generally described as a surrealist, many art historians find his work eludes categorizing. His mature work holds a place among the few 20th century artists whose work can truly be described as modern. Along with Duchamp, Mondrian, Kandinsky and Klee, Miro created from a void, filling it with ideas that had never been done before.

Composed of 55 prints, the SSU exhibit helps the viewer better understand the attitudes and expressions of one of the most influential artists of this century. Included are several L'Enfance d'Ubu prints as well as many other significant works.

It is the intention of the University to attract other shows of the same calibre to the new gallery. Prior to this exhibit, it was impossible to bring artwork of this sort to the Shore, according to SSU's associate vice president of academic affairs Florence Pritchard. The new University Gallery is designed to meet the strict conditions required for such shows, especially the air quality and climate conditions, Pritchard said.

An opening reception for the Miro exhibit will be held Monday, September 28, from 3-7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall on the SSU campus. The hours are: Monday and Wednesday 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday 10 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday noon-6 p.m. The gallery is closed on Friday.

The Miro exhibit is on loan from Blair-Murrah Exhibitions of Sibley, MO.

For more information, contact the University Gallery Office at 543-6271 or Public Relations at 543-6030.

Volunteerism Highlighted at COOL Campus Fair

An upcoming community service fair at SSU will link area agencies with a very large, willing and able corps of volunteers. "COOL Connections" is set for Thursday, October 1, from 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The event is being sponsored by a new Salisbury State chapter of COOL, which stands for Campus Outreach Opportunity League. COOL is a national organization dedicated to student volunteerism and community service.

For the students, the opportunity to gain practical experience in the community is becoming increasingly important. In many SSU courses, community service is not only encouraged, it's required. COOL Connections is designed to introduce local agencies—public and private—to campus organizations and faculty, as well as to individual students.

Lisa Smith is one member of COOL for whom community work is already an important part of being a college student. A junior majoring in elementary and special education, Smith was an active volunteer before coming to SSU and was pleased to find an outlet for her talents in the off-campus community.

"You feel good inside when you help others," she noted. "And when you volunteer off campus, it gives you the opportunity to know more about the things in your community that need your help."

In her freshman year, Smith signed on to work with a Booth Street program run by the Salvation Army. She has worked with Habitat for Humanity here and in Baltimore, her hometown.

Smith's most rewarding experience, however, has likely been her work in the LEADS program at Pemberton Elementary. Short for Letting Education and Discipline Succeed, LEADS is a mentoring program linking motivated adults with elementary school children who need someone to take an interest in their progress and to take the time to offer some guidance.

Smith worked with a young girl and found that both of them learned something. The younger student's discipline problems lessened and Smith found herself "staying on my p's and q's, because she notices." The two kept in touch over the summer and Smith is hoping they can continue their relationship this year.

As principal at Pemberton Elementary, Tom Bowman was pleased to have volunteers like Smith and her classmates participate in LEADS. The college students' schedules were suited to the daytime hours the program required. But, more importantly, Bowman has been "impressed with the level of maturity and commitment the SSU students brought to their work."

Parents and teachers agreed. And the elementary school students were especially enthusiastic. Said Bowman, "Attendance, behavior, grades, all showed immense improvement."

Not all student volunteers find they can sign

Palmer Portrays Columbus In Opening of Series

"Columbus the Man," a dramatic portrayal of the explorer, will be the first in a series of presentations at SSU in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The portrayal by Columbus scholar William Palmer of the Modern Languages Department will be held Wednesday, September 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

Following the presentation, SSU History Department professor Dr. Timothy Miller and SSU Philosophy Department professor Dr. James Hatley will present the pros and cons of Columbus' arrival in the Americas to help define some of the controversy surrounding the quincentenary celebration.

Palmer, who lived in Spain for a number of years and taught at the University of Salamancha, became interested in Columbus during that time. He is the author of "The Secret Journal of Christopher Columbus," which he describes as a "speculative account of his first voyage." During the writing of the manuscript, Palmer said he developed "a sort of intimacy with Columbus" that led to his development of a script and costume for his dramatic portrayal.

Palmer has performed at Assateague National Park this summer and will be going on the road later this year to William Paterson University and the University of Southern Utah.

He has received National Endowment for the

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Stop Smoking Seminar

SSU smokers who have finally decided to stop smoking should consider attending an upcoming seminar offered by Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

During the two-session seminar, McBrien will present a step-by-step approach to kicking the smoking habit. It will consist of education, behavioral and visualization experiences which guide participants to stop smoking and maintain their non-smoking status.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on September 15 and 22 from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The second section will take place from 4-5 p.m. on September 16 and 23, also in the Manokin Room.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Housing Supports Hurricane Relief Project

The Department of Housing/Residence Life announces the formation of the Hurricane Relief Project.

The goal of the committee is to lead a campuswide effort to provide relief to Florida International University, a campus just a few miles from Homestead, FL. Andrea Goldblum, a former SSU staff member now working at FIU, reports that the campus was hit hard by Hurricane Andrew, and that any assistance would be welcome. The September 9 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education reports that FIU sustained from $4-5 million in damages.

The most needed form of assistance now is financial support. Donations made to the Florida International University Foundation are being accepted at the Housing Office in Chesapeake Hall. The committee has several fundraisers planned for the semester and encourages any campus organizations that are planning fundraising efforts to consider FIU as a beneficiary.

For more information about how to join in this effort please contact John Webster at 543-6095.

Call For Volunteers: Hurricane Relief Efforts

The Lower Shore Chapter of the American Red Cross urgently needs volunteers to assist in the Hurricane Andrew Relief Efforts.

Help is needed in the office, located on Emerson Avenue, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, 8:30 a.m. -5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

For more information call Betsy Parks at 749-5331.

Education Club To Hold Meeting

The first meeting for the Education Club (SNEA) will be held on Tuesday, September 22, at 3:30 p.m. in room 132, of Caruthers Hall. Bring your ideas and your friends.

Christian Fellowship Held on Tuesdays

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Christian Fellowship each Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome; meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information please call 749-7069.

Outdoor Club

The first Outdoor Club trip for the fall semester will be backpacking and tubing in Harper's Ferry, WV.

The dates for the trip are September 25-27. If interested come to the Monday Outdoor Club meetings beginning September 14, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

For additional information contact Jen Mattson at 546-4591.

Career Planning, Placement Services

Career development counseling, including help choosing a major, and job placement services are provided for SSU students and alumni by the Center for Personal and Professional Development in the Guerrieri University Center, room 263. The CPPD is open from 8 am.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Appointments with career development specialist Terry Clay, and placement services coordinator Linda Benson, or to use SIGI-PLUS, a computerized career guidance system, may be made in person or by calling 543-6075.

25+ Student Union Serves Older Students

The 25 + Student Union is a group which serves the nontraditionally aged students on campus. The main goal of the group is to help students 25 years of age or older achieve their academic, personal and professional goals.

There will be two meetings for interested members on Wednesday, September 23: a brown bag lunch from noon-1 p.m. in Nanticoke Room C and a brown bag dinner from 5-6 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B. Students may attend either meeting. Patti Selig, a counselor from the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will present information on forming a support group.

The group will hold Wednesday brown bag lunches again from noon-1 p.m. on October 21 in Nanticoke Room B, and on November 18 and December 16 in the Pocomoke Room. The topics and/or guest speakers for future meetings will be discussed during the September 23 meeting.

This year the 25 + Student Union is working on a few new programs. The first will be an extensive tour of the Blackwell Library by Kathryn Carson on Saturday, September 19, at 10 a.m. The tour is designed for non-traditional students only.

The first annual Spouse Party sponsored by the 25 + Student Union will be held during this year's Parents/Spouse Weekend on October 23-25.

For more information on the group, call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313 or write to 25+Student Union, SSU Box 3074.

Guerrieri Center Operating Hours

The Guerrieri University Center hours are: Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m.-midnight; and Sunday, noon-midnight.

The game room hours for September 7-December 22 are: Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-10 p.m.; and Sunday, noon-10 p.m.

The information desk hours for September 7-December 22 are: Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; and Sunday, noon-7 p.m.

Computer Lab Hours

Computer lab hours for September 20-October 24: Fulton Hall labs: Sunday, noon-midnight; Monday, 8 a.m.- midnight; Tuesday, 8 a.m.-midnight; Wednesday, 8 a.m.-midnight; Thursday, 8 a.m.-midnight; Friday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m.- midnight.

Devilbiss Lab (DH 242) and Blackwell WP Lab (BL 010/015) will be closed.

Healthy Lifestyle Pamplets Available

Trying to develop a healthier lifestyle? The Personnel Office has pamphlets available on: "A Healthy Heart"; "Cholesterol Control"; "Your Prostate Health"; "The Total Approach to Success Through Fitness"; and "Developing a Low Stress Work Style" that may help University employees make healthier choices in their daily routine.

Stop by Holloway Hall, room 222, and pick up a copy of the pamphlets that is of most interest.

The Personnel Office also has some recipes available that were recommended by the American Heart Association in its "Low-Salt Cookbook" published in 1990.

Safety in Labs Symposium Topic

The Medical Technology Department, which is responsible for teaching clinical laboratory science, and Baxter Scientific Products, Inc. are sponsoring a symposium, "Safety in the Clinical Laboratory," on Friday, October 9, from 1-4 p.m. in the Nanticoke Rooms of the Guerrieri University Center. The symposium will cover recent Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations and general topics of concern with regard to laboratory safety.

Laboratories have always been sites of many hazards. It has only been recently, however, that OSHA has issued several regulations that have directly impacted labs. The Hazard Communication Standard (1987) and the Hazardous Chemicals in Laboratories (1990) require that lab management provide for the employees' "right to know" about workplace hazards. Employees must be informed about the chemicals with which they are working, and safe procedures must be established for chemical procurement, handling, usage and disposal. In 1992, the Bloodborne Pathogens Standard set forth requirements for handling human blood and body fluids. Laboratories need now as never before to establish a coherent safety program, and the symposium is designed to give guidance in this effort. Small operations, such as physicians' offices and academic labs, are particularly in need of guidance in safety matters since their needs are different and they may have received less attention from compliance officers than large hospitals, laboratories and clinics. The regulations, however, are no different for smaller operations even though ways in which compliance may be achieved could be substantially different. The symposium will be an ideal opportunity for staff in academic labs and physicians' offices to gather information on how to implement their own chemical and biohazard safety programs within their own budgetary and personnel constraints.

Ron LeClair, chief of consultation services for the Maryland Department of Occupational Safety and Health (MOSH) will speak on OSHA standards dealing with hazardous chemicals in laboratories and bloodborne pathogens. LeClair holds a master's degree and is a certified industrial hygienist and certified safety professional. The symposium will provide an opportunity to participants to ask questions regarding their own situations directly of a MOSH official. MOSH is the regulatory body in Maryland which is responsible for enforcing all OSHA regulations.

Diane Hayes, clinical coordinator of the Medical Technology Department at SSU, will speak on laboratory safety issues of general concern. There are numerous safety practices not directly specified by OSHA which are of great value in most laboratories. Hayes recently completed doctoral coursework in clinical laboratory safety and is the author of "Overview of Safety in Clinical Laboratory," published by Educational Materials for Health Professionals.

The intended audience of the symposium is physicians, allied health professionals, laboratory scientists, science students and science teachers. The cost is $10 for the general public. For additional information or a registration flyer, please contact the Medical Technology Department at 543-6365.

United Charity Theme: 'It All Depends On Us'

Many people in our communities are suffering. Homelessness and AIDS are on the rise. The number of families needing quality child and adult daycare is increasing rapidly. Rampant substance abuse is no longer confined to inner cities. The environment is perishing before our eyes. And the once-employed are not desperately searching for food to feed their families.

A stronger community may be just a pledge away. United Charity Campaign agencies are working every day to solve the crucial issues facing Marylanders today. It is only though state employees' support that they can continue to provide their much needed services.

Since 1984, the United Charity Campaign has been the single largest volunteer effort among Maryland state employees and retirees to support over 600 health and human service programs. The United Charity Campaign provides an opportunity to designate an agency of choice, ensuring that money goes directly to those services that employees care about. Payroll deduction is a painless way to give a lot, a little at a time.

During the week of October 5-9, each agency will have its own personalized campaign kickoff, instilling a spirit of goodwill and togetherness. Through the combined efforts of employees, retirees and volunteers this year's campaign can be a success.

Now, more than ever, everyone's neighbors need help. Get involved with SSU's kickoff and make a pledge to make a difference. This year's theme says it all: "Working For Our State, Caring For Our Neighbors. It All Depends On Us."

Retirement Seminars Slated for Employees

Employees within three years of retirement age and who have not attended a seminar within the last two years may wish to sign up to attend one of several being held in the next few months.

Call the Personnel Office (548-4755) to receive an application form. Attendance is permitted based on receipt of completed applications—first processed, first accepted.

On November 5 and 6, December 3 and 4, and March 4 and 5 there will be seminars held at the Department of Agriculture in Annapolis.

On April 8 and 9 there will be one held at the Eastern Shore Hospital Center in Cambridge.

No spouses are permitted to attend—only the state employee. Each seminar is two days in duration.

It is not too early to send in applications for the April seminar.

Nature Walk At Furnace Town

Furnace Town's series of guided nature walks continues on Sunday, September 13, after a two-month summer recess. Beginning at 2 p.m. at The Company Store in Furnace Town, the two-hour walk will be led by Sharon Himes and Kathy Fisher and will focus on signs of autumn.

The nature walk is included in Furnace Town's regular site admission fee of $2 for adults and $1 for children. Furnace Town Historic Site is 16 miles south of Salisbury and five miles north of Snow Hill off MD Rt. 12. For details call 632-2032.

Classical WSCL Goes 'Country'

Classical music's rich international traditions and a healthy dose of double entendre team up as classical WSCL 89.5 unveils a new advertising campaign this month, "Country Music."

With immediately recognizable scenes from European countries, 12 foot x 25 foot billboards tout classical WSCL's own brand of "Country Music." The majestic spires of Russia's St. Basil's Cathedral immediately bring to mind the familiar strains of Tchaikovsky and Prokofiev. The turrets of a Bavarian castle remind listeners of Germany and the melodies of Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

The campaign, created by J. Malsh and Company, was designed to prompt a double take, a smile and cause the viewer to think twice about classical WSCL.

"Is this a different perspective on classical music," said Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL. "You bet it is—a fun, refreshing perspective. The same excitement felt in discovering the cultural treasures of other lands can be experienced in discovering the wealth of the world's great music.

"Today, more and more residents in the WSCL listening area are discovering the excitement and sophistication of classical WSCL," said Marino. During 1991, WSCL reached its largest audience ever. Membership in WSCL is also at an all time high, an important benchmark for listener supported public radio."

Harvard Prof Discusses 'World of Columbus'

"The World of Columbus" will be part of a series of presentations at SSU in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture, by Dr. Eric McGeer of Harvard University's Department of History, will be held Monday, September 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

McGeer, a Canadian citizen, received his doctorate from the Universite de Montreal in 1990 and is presently teaching Byzantine history at Harvard. Previously, he held the position of research associate at the Dumbarton Oaks Center in Washington, D.C. His main area of research is currently in Byzantine military history.

A presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the fall series includes lectures plus a poetry reading and performance of flamenco dance and music. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Credit Union More Efficient

The State Employees Credit Union is mailing all members information this month. It is changing to a more efficient computer program and, after everything is in operation and the snags are corrected, employees should enjoy speedier service and less paperwork.

Employees should read what they receive. Complete whatever forms are necessary to keep accounts in good order. Some members will be receiving a new CUE card. It will not be operational until October 1. Current CUE cards are to be used through September 30. The Credit Union is asking for patience while it works its way through the changeover.

Research Center Receives Historic Manuscript Collection

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture has recently received a large manuscript collection of records (approximately 131,000) hand-written pages) dealing with families of Old Somerset County, MD, from the family of Leslie Powell Dryden.

Dryden, who retired a number of years ago from the Biochemistry Department of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, had spent more than 57 years of his leisure time researching the records of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties in Maryland. The result of his laborious efforts was the compilation of records tracing more than 3,000 Eastern Shore families from the 17th century to the 20th century. In some cases, Dryden's notes on certain Eastern Shore families stretched to several loose leaf binders, each with several hundred pages of information which he had carefully abstracted from the original records of the Eastern Shore.

Dyrden was known nationally for his work on the founding families of the Eastern Shore. He was never too busy to answer correspondence from individuals searching for their own Somerset or Worcester county roots. Although Dryden was not a genealogist, genealogy was his life-long hobby. He was meticulous and thorough in his research, which included first-hand searches in all the existing public records and documents at the National Archives, the Library of Congress, and the Hall of Records in Annapolis, MD, as well as the county court houses of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties on the Eastern Shore.

In addition, he familiarized himself with the records of Sussex County, DE, and Northampton and Accomack counties on Virginia's Eastern Shore. He seemed to leave no stone unturned in trying to unravel the often intricate family relationships of early Eastern Shore inhabitants.

Although many people might search through wills and deeds to try to find hidden family members, Dryden did not stop there. He exhausted the original sources, using both existing state and local records, examining a wide variety of available probate records, tax lists, census records, bible records, church records, judicial records, orphans court records, land records and military records. In addition to these public records, Dryden also carried on a voluminous correspondence with serious researchers throughout the country. All these materials were carefully filed in loose leaf ring binder notebooks by family.

Each source citation is clearly identified for future reference. Anyone wishing to do local history or genealogical research will find Dryden's collection indispensable. The Dryden Collection is housed in the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture on east campus at Salisbury State.

The Wayne and Power Street facility is open 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Friday, during the academic year. The center follows the University schedule for holidays and vacations.

For more information call the Research Center at 543-6312.

Swiss Experience Memorable for Ference

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history, served during the summer as a faculty member teaching world geopolitics at the Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth (CTY).

The three-week session took place at the College du Leman in Geneva, Switzerland, where Ference instructed students who came from the United States, Greece, Australia, Singapore and India. The mission of CTY is to provide a variety of rigorous courses in the traditional liberal arts disciplines for highly motivated and talented precollegiate youths in a college atmosphere.

The world geopolitics course met five hours daily, five days a week for a total of 105 contact hours with the discipline. The class aimed to give students an understanding of the problems of the developing world and its relationship to technologically advanced nations. Through an analysis of religious, historical, political and geophysical factors, students learned to identify the central problems facing developing countries and the difficulties involved in any resolution of the problems.

Regional studies provided students with the conceptual tools necessary for understanding and analyzing not only academic problems, but also current events. Lectures, discussions, films, student presentations, group simulations and map work were all elements of the multifaceted approach to this challenging subject matter. Also, the class visited the headquarters of the International Red Cross—Red Crescent, the United Nations and the U.N.'s predecessor, the League of Nations, in an attempt to better understand international cooperation.

Prior to teaching the CTY Program, Ference was an associate of the University of Illinois Summer Research Laboratory on Russia and Eastern Europe. He spent two weeks in Urbana-Champaign with visiting faculty status at the University of Illinois on this program supported by the U.S. Department of State, the U.S. Department of Education, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities where he conducted research for his continuing work on Czechoslovakia.

Personnel Office Offers Employees Reminders

To University Employees:

- If you have children in college, be sure to complete a student certification form. These need to be processed for each semester that the child is a full-time student in order for medical bills to be honored.
- Adding or deleting family members on your health insurance policy must be done through the Personnel Office.
- Changes in beneficiaries for your retirement program are processed in the Personnel Office.
- Address changes must be done through the Personnel Office in addition to notifying your department secretary.
- Tax-deferred savings programs are available to you. Enrollment can begin at any time.
- Tuition waivers should be processed a month or so prior to the beginning of the semester. Don't wait until the last minute if at all possible.

Forms and information on any of the above subjects are available in the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, room 222, or by calling 548-4755 or 543-6035.

Fusaro Conducts Session At Science Society Meeting

Dr. Ben Fusaro of the Mathematics Department organized a session on "Values, Systems & the Environment" for the international Society for Systems Science at its annual meeting in Denver in July. He also presented a paper at the meeting on "The Structure of Value."

In August he gave a workshop on "Environmental Mathematics" for college undergraduates. The workshop was held at Miami University of Ohio. It was jointly sponsored by Pi Mu Epsilon, a college honor society, and the Mathematical Association of America (MAA), an organization for college mathematics teachers. Fusaro chairs the MAA Committee on Environmental Mathematics. The MAA is the largest college mathematics organization in the world.

Fusaro also attended a five-day "Differential Equations" National Science Foundation workshop at the Claremont Colleges, CA, and organized a "Math Contest in Modeling" session at the annual meeting of the Society for Industrial and Applied Math at Los Angeles in August.

Senkbeil Presents Chemistry Paper

Dr. Edward Senkbeil, professor of chemistry in the Henson School of Science and Technology, presented a paper titled "Laboratory Safety Course in the Chemistry Curriculum" at the 204th national meeting of the American Chemical Society. The meeting was held August 23-28 in Washington, D.C. and is the largest annual scientific meeting held in the world.

The paper discussed the objectives, content and evaluation of Senkbeil's recently developed laboratory safety course which is part of the chemistry curriculum at SSU. According to Senkbeil, "Although safety training is considered an important component of chemical education, only 6 percent of all colleges and universities in the U.S. offer a laboratory safety course."

The presentation stressed the benefits of offering a safety course as part of the chemistry curriculum and was intended to provide information for other science faculty considering the development of similar courses. Senkbeil has also been involved in several workshops over the past five years promoting safety training in the sciences.

Pre-Nursing Students Application Deadline Set

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for the spring semester is October 9. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts, for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing, room 217, Power Building and must be submitted no later than October 9. Applications received after October 9 will be considered on a space available basis.

Football Guest Coach Program

Head Coach Joe Rotellini invites interested faculty or staff personnel to participate as football guest coaches during this season. The guest coach will become a member of the football staff for a complete week, taking part in staff meetings, strategy sessions, film breakdown and field practices.

No previous coaching or football experience is necessary. If you are interested in participating in this unique behind-the-scenes activity, contact Rotellini (543-6356) or Associate Athletics Director Dr. Mike Vienna (543-6343).

This opportunity is available with other fall sports as well, including field hockey, soccer, volleyball and cross country.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The Sea Gull football faithful couldn't have asked for a more exciting 15 seconds to begin the 1992 season last Saturday as they watched junior Charlie Whalen return the opening kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown. Unfortunately, the early lead didn't stand up for the Gulls as they eventually fell to C.W. Post, 53-25. Whalen finished the day with three of Salisbury's four touchdowns, adding scoring receptions of 13 and two yards to his kickoff return. Sophomore RB Ron Stump, making his first collegiate start, paced the rushing attack with 108 yards and one touchdown. SSU takes to the road for its next three games, beginning this Saturday at Methodist College in Fayetteville, NC. The Gulls return to Sea Gull Stadium on October 10 against Rowan College (formerly Glassboro State).

The men's and women's cross country teams opened the '92 season at the Lebanon Valley Invitational last Saturday, with both squads finishing in the middle of the pack. The SSU men, paced by Tim Smith's 34th place finish among 212 runners, was 16th overall out of 31 teams. Mary Puderbough was Salisbury's top female runner, also placing 34th among a field of 208 runners. The SSU women finished 13th out of 31 teams.

The soccer team lost its season-opener to Randolph-Macon College last Sunday, falling 2-0 to the Yellow Jackets. RMC scored once in each half to claim the win. SSU now plays three straight on the road before returning home on September 23 to host Johns Hopkins.

The volleyball team advanced to the semifinal round of the Gettysburg College Tournament last weekend and finished with a third-place tie in its first tournament of the season. The Gulls finished 2-2 overall, notching wins over Gordon College and Pittsburgh-Johnstown before falling to host Gettysburg and Western Maryland. The Gulls play next in the Mary Washington College Invitational on Saturday.

With their original season-opener against Catholic rained out last week, the field hockey team will make its home debut this Saturday and Sunday in the annual Sunfest Tournament. The seven-team field includes Mary Washington, Wesley, College of Wooster, Gettysburg, Lebanon Valley and Oneonta. The round-robin schedule begins at 9 a.m. on Saturday and continues through Sunday afternoon.

SSPB Seeks PR Chairperson

The Salisbury State Program Board is looking for a creative student with artistic talents to fill the position of PR/graphic design chairperson.

The person will be responsible for designing posters, flyers, etc. to advertise the SSPB events. The Program Board is responsible for planning a variety of social and educational events including movies, concerts, comedians, variety acts and multicultural events.

Applications and a complete position description are available in the Guerrieri University Center at the Dean of Students Office, Student Activities Office, SSPB Office and information desk. Applications must be returned to the Student Activities Office by Wednesday, September 23.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Keillor Returns to Lake Wobegon

Fall is homecoming season in Minnesota—especially for Garrison Keillor and his "American Radio Company." After three years in New York and on the road, Keillor's nationally broadcast variety show which is broadcast on WSCL-FM 89.5, SSU's public radio station, will set up permanent residence in The World Theater in St. Paul, former home of Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion."

The fourth season of "American Radio Company" begins October 10 at The World Theater. Keillor will be joined on stage by music director Rob Fisher, The Coffee Club Orchestra and members of The Broadway Local Radio Theater. While Keillor's weekly monologues, "The News from Lake Wobegon," is the centerpiece of the live, two-hour show, fans can also expect to hear musical features, comic sketches and hilarious commercials for such mythical products as "Guy's Shoes" and everyone's favorite radio restaurant, "The Cafe Boeuf."

Keillor is joined each week by special guests as diverse as Victor Borge, Bobby McFerrin, Emmy Lou Harris and Allen Ginsberg. It is not unusual for listeners to hear the unexpected from "American Radio Company" guests—a bagpiper recently performed Bruce Springsteen's "Born in The USA" at Keillor's request, and Paula Poundstone played the heroine in an episode of "The Lonesome Radio Theater." Familiar voices are promised a well, when Keillor welcomes back perennial favorites Robin and Linda Williams, Kate MacKenzie and Pete Ostroushko.

Keillor and company plan to offer 32 new shows this season, with 16 performances at The World Theater, eight shows in New York and eight tour broadcasts. Two special touring shows have already been announced: On December 19, Keillor will broadcast a Christmas special from Washington, D.C.; and March 27 will be the date for the annual "Prairie Home Hymnsing" from Concordia College in Moorhead, MN.

Looking forward to the fourth season, Keillor said, "It will be great to come back to The World Theater, a great old theater down on Exchange and Wabasha in St. Paul. The reason to come back is simply because we belong here. Scripture says that we have no home in this world, that we're all just passengers, travelling through. And in that case, Minnesota is my bus, and I'm glad I get to have the chance to get back on it on the same ticket."

on for a full semester. But Dave Duitscher, meet director for the Maryland Wheelchair Games, has found that those that turn out to help with the three-day competition each year have earned SSU a solid reputation with wheelchair athletes.

The University has hosted the Games for the past 11 years and student volunteers have become critical to the event. According to Duitscher, "it would be impossible to run the Games without them."

Duitscher, who is also a data processing supervisor of computer services at SSU, points out that through the games, which mirror Olympic competition, student volunteers have fun and also get an education. "The students learn to respect these people a little more," he said. "They're going to be in the real world together, after all."

With the athletes, the student volunteers have scored some points for being ready to help—when asked. "The students basically treat them as human beings and they appreciate that," said Duitscher.

Representatives of the LEADS program and the Maryland Wheelchair Games are among the nearly 50 who have signed up to recruit volunteers through COOL Connections. Barry M. King, associate dean of students, is helping students organize the fair. He reports that public and private agencies, from the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center to the Wicomico County Health Department will be represented. At the fair, those organizations will have the opportunity to make contact with individual students, fraternities, sororities and other student groups and faculty members, all scouting out volunteerism options.

King explains that COOL Connections grew out of student interest in enhancing community service opportunities and making local organizations more accessible to students interested in getting some hands-on experience. SSU students have long been involved in volunteerism, on and off campus; but this will be the first time they have invited community service agencies on campus to recruit volunteers.

The new school year brings 21 new faculty and six new members to the administrative staff.

At the Perdue School of Business, Drs. David Laband, Hindupur Ramakrishna and Kenneth Smith have joined the faculty. Laband, who chairs the Department of Economics and Finance, holds a Ph.D. and an M.A. from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. An associate professor of management information systems, Ramakrishna has his Ph.D. from Georgia State University. Smith, an accounting professor, earned his D.B.A. at George Washington University and his M.B.A. at Loyola College.

In addition, four new lecturers are joining the Perdue School faculty. Carol Kaufman earned her M.B.A. at Salisbury State University. Dr. Mahua Barari has her Ph.D. from Iowa State University. Dr. Dan Berry's Ph.D. is from Auburn University. And Dr. John Painter has a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin.

New to the History Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts are Drs. Sarah Sharbach and Jeanne Whitney. Sharbach, an assistant professor, has her Ph.D. and M.A. from the University of Washington. Assistant Professor Whitney's Ph.D. is from the University of Delaware. She earned her M.A. at the College of William and Mary. Claudia Hannon and Tara Taylor both hold M.A.s from Salisbury State University and have joined the history faculty as lecturers.

Also new to the Fulton School are Lawrence Blasco and Michael McCabe, lecturers in the English Department. Blasco has two M.A.'s, from the University of Chicago and from the State University of New York at Buffalo. McCabe's M.A. is from the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Joining the faculty as lecturers elsewhere in the Fulton School are Dr. Timothy Eddy, psychology, who earned his Ph.D. at the State University of New York at Albany, and Paul Falcon, communication arts. Falcon's M.A. is from Catholic University.

Dr. John Bezjak is joining the faculty of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences. An assistant professor of nursing, Bezjak has his Ph.D. from Loma Linda University and his B.S.N. from Cornell University.

There are two newcomers to the School of Education and Professional Studies. Dr. Patricia Richards, who earned her Ed.D. from Lehigh University and her M.Ed. from Kutztown University, is an assistant professor of education. Mary Troy, whose M.F.A. is from the University of California, Irvine, will join the Department of Physical Education as a lecturer. At the Henson School of Science and Technology, Dr. Steven Hetzler joins the faculty. Hetzler is an assistant professor of mathematical and computer

The Salisbury State Program Board is looking for a creative student with artistic talents to fill the position of PR/graphic design chairperson.

The person will be responsible for designing posters, flyers, etc. to advertise the SSPB events. The Program Board is responsible for planning a variety of social and educational events including movies, concerts, comedians, variety acts and multicultural events.

Applications and a complete position description are available in the Guerrieri University Center at the Dean of Students Office, Student Activities Office, SSPB Office and information desk. Applications must be returned to the Student Activities Office by Wednesday, September 23.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Counseling

Personal counseling is provided for SSU students by the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CCPD), located on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center.

The CPPD is open from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Appointments with any of the three counselors, Dr. Bob McBrien, Kathryn Reading or Patti Selig, may be made in person or by calling 543-6070.

Walk-in hours, when a counselor is available to see students without appointments, are 1-3 p.m., Monday through Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students.

Housing Supports Hurricane Relief Project

The Department of Housing/Residence Life announces the formation of the Hurricane Relief Project.

The goal of the committee is to lead a campuswide effort to provide relief to Florida International University, a campus just a few miles from Homestead, FL. Andrea Goldblum, a former SSU staff member now working at FIU, reports that the campus was hit hard by Hurricane Andrew, and that any assistance would be welcome. The September 9 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education reports that FIU sustained from $4-5 million in damages.

The most needed form of assistance now is financial support. Donations made to the Florida International University Foundation are being accepted at the Housing Office in Chesapeake Hall. The committee has several fundraisers planned for the semester and encourages any campus organizations that are planning fundraising efforts to consider FIU as a beneficiary.

For more information about how to join in this effort please contact John Webster at 543-6095.

Call For Volunteers: Hurricane Relief Efforts

The Lower Shore Chapter of the American Red Cross urgently needs volunteers to assist in the Hurricane Andrew Relief Efforts.

Help is needed in the office, located on Emerson Avenue, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

For more information call Betsy Parks at 749-5331.

Christian Fellowship Held on Tuesdays

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Christian Fellowship each Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome; meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information please call 749-7069.

Career Planning, Placement Services

Career development counseling, including help choosing a major, and job placement services are provided for SSU students and alumni by the Center for Personal and Professional Development in the Guerrieri University Center, room 263. The CPPD is open from 8 am.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Appointments with career development specialist Terry Clay, and placement services coordinator Linda Benson, or to use SIGI-PLUS, a computerized career guidance system, may be made in person or by calling 543-6075.

Pre-Nursing Students Application Deadline Set

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for the spring semester is October 9. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts, for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing, room 217, Power Building and must be submitted no later than October 9. Applications received after October 9 will be considered on a space available basis.

25+ Student Union Serves Older Students

The 25+ Student Union is a group which serves the nontraditionally aged students on campus. The main goal of the group is to help students 25 years of age or older achieve their academic, personal and professional goals.

There will be two meetings for interested members on Wednesday, September 23: a brown bag lunch from noon-1 p.m. in Nanticoke Room C and a brown bag dinner from 5-6 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B. Students may attend either meeting. Patti Selig, a counselor from the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will present information on forming a support group.

The group will hold Wednesday brown bag lunches again from noon-1 p.m. on October 21 in Nanticoke Room B, and on November 18 and December 16 in the Pocomoke Room. The topics and/or guest speakers for future meetings will be discussed during the September 23 meeting.

This year the 25+ Student Union is working on a few new programs. The first will be an extensive tour of the Blackwell Library by Kathryn Carson on Saturday, September 19, at 10 a.m. The tour is designed for non-traditional students only.

The first annual Spouse Party sponsored by the 25+ Student Union will be held during this year's Parents/Spouse Weekend on October 23-25.

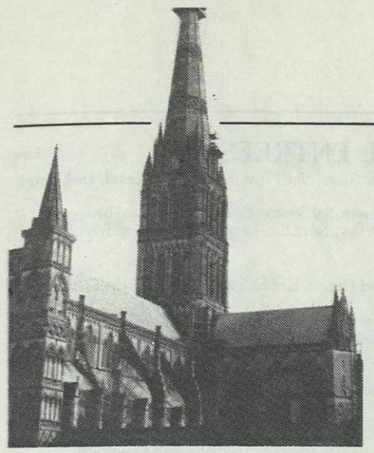
For more information on the group, call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313 or write to 25a Student Union, SSU Box 3074.

Personnel Office Offers Employees Reminders

To University Employees:

- If you have children in college, be sure to complete a student certification form. These need to be processed for each semester that the child is a full-time student in order for medical bills to be honored.
- Adding or deleting family members on your health insurance policy must be done through the Personnel Office.
- Changes in beneficiaries for your retirement program are processed in the Personnel Office.
- Address changes must be done through the Personnel Office in addition to notifying your department secretary.
- Tax-deferred savings programs are available to you. Enrollment can begin at any time.
- Tuition waivers should be processed a month or so prior to the beginning of the semester. Don't wait until the last minute if at all possible.

Forms and information on any of the above subjects are available in the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, room 222, or by calling 548-4755 or 543-6035.



Salisbury Cathedral

English Department Sponsors Trip To London, Dublin

Another year, another trip to Britain, but for January 1993 the English Department's courses abroad will also include Ireland for interested students, adding shamrocks and shillelaghs to the usual itinerary of castles and cathedrals.

Two courses have been proposed by Associate Professor Jim Welsh and Dr. Patricia Killian, an expert in Irish Language and culture. Interest meetings will be held on Thursday, September 24, and Thursday, October 1, at 8:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium on campus.

The two courses are English 490, Field Studies in Britain: Literature, Drama and Culture, and English 300, Celtic Studies, concentrating on Ireland through the Ages. Both courses will involve 15 hours of pre-trip instruction on campus during the fall term to prepare students for the trip.

The proposed trip will leave Salisbury on Monday, January 4, via chartered bus to the departing airport for the flight to London. Upon arrival in England, the group will then travel by coach to the city of Chester on the River Dee and the northern border of Wales to stay overnight.

The next day students will enter Celtic territory, going across the north of Wales for five days and four nights in Dublin. While in Dublin, students will take side trips to the Irish countryside to visit sites of historic and cultural interest and will concentrate on such Irish writers as James Joyce (1882-1941), who left Ireland in 1902 but continued to write about Dublin until his death 40 years later, and Jonathan Swift (1667-1745), who was born in Dublin and educated at Trinity College.

The group will then travel south to Wexford for the last night in Ireland, then complete the Celtic leg of the journey by crossing into south Wales and spending a night in Cardiff, the capital of Wales, which will also feature a Welsh banquet at Cardiff Castle, with appropriate folk music and dancing.

On the way to London the next day, the group will be stopping at the ancient city of Bath to visit the Roman Museum and cathedral there. The group will then spend six nights in London, visiting museums and galleries and attending plays, both English and Irish (such as Brian Friel's hit "Dancing at Laghnasa" in London's West End). While in London students will concentrate further upon the Irish and Celtic contributions to British culture, which may also include a quick trip by rail to Scotland for Killian's course.

Since 1984 Welsh has organized or helped to organize 10 trips to England at bargain rates for Salisbury State students. Killian is a trained linguist who knows Gaelic, has lived in Ireland, and has organized a Celtic Club on the SSU campus. For additional information, those interested may call Welsh at 543-6446 or 749-4190.

Symphony Season Features Holiday Concert, 'West Side Story'

In only six seasons, the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU has grown from a small ensemble of less than 25 musicians to a 63-member full symphony orchestra capable of performing some of the most challenging works from the symphonic repertoire. The orchestra is composed of a mixture of professional Maryland instrumentalists, students and faculty from SSU and high-skilled amateur musicians from throughout the Eastern Shore.

This season's performance will include a traditional holiday concert on Friday, December 4, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, December 5, at 2 p.m. Both performances will be held in Holloway Hall. In March, the orchestra will join the SSU Theatre Department for six performances of "West Side Story."

Savor the Symphony, the Salisbury Symphony's annual fund raiser, will be held on Friday, April 2, in the Guerrieri University Center. The spring concert will be held on Saturday, May 8, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 9, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

Anyone interested in becoming a patron of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra should call the Department of Music at (410) 543-6385. All patrons receive two Gold Passes which admit them to each of the fall and spring performances of the SSO and a discount on the "very hard to get" Savor the Symphony fund-raiser tickets. In addition, all patron names are listed in each SSO concert program. Patrons have commented on the added convenience of having a Gold Pass mailed to their homes.

SSO rehearsals are held Sunday evenings from 7-9 p.m. and open auditions will be held in September. Anyone interested in playing with the SSO should arrange an interview with Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the Department of Music and music director of the Salisbury Symphony. For more information, call 543-6385.

Lecture Series Studies Maya-Aztec Trade

"Destroyed Economies: The Ancient Maya-Aztec Trade" will be part of the Fall Lecture Series in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Dr. Christopher Jones, a research specialist at the University of Pennsylvania's University Museum, will be held Tuesday, October 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The lecture will focus on trade between the Aztec and Mayan civilizations and how the arrival of the Spanish affected it. Jade, chocolate, cotton, feathers and skins were transported from the Maya in Central America to the Aztec in highland Mexico and contributed the Mayan wealth during the Classic Maya Period. When the Spanish arrived in 1519, the Aztec Empire was in the process of forging new trade agreements with the Maya. But the deaths of Motechzoma and Cuauhtemoc had a negative affect on the Mayan economy.

Jones is the author of "Monuments and Inscriptions of Tikal," "Deciphering Maya Hieroglyphics: A Workbook" and many articles. He has excavated for many years with the museum in Guatemala.

A presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the Fall Lecture Series will include a poetry reading and performance of flamenco dance and music. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Russia Trip Interest Meeting

For those who missed the opportunity to find out about the fourth annual SSU study tour to Russia in January, another interest meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 30, at 7:30 p.m. in room Nanticoke C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Those interested can take this opportunity to find out details about the tour which goes to Moscow and St. Petersburg. In Moscow, not only will tour participants be able to see the Kremlin and the Armoury, but also will have the opportunity to visit the religious city of Zagorsk, to enjoy special cultural events and museums, to see the changing of the guard on Red Square at midnight (or some more convenient time) and Lenin (if he's still available), or even to enjoy a Big Mac.

St. Petersburg, the window to the West, is truly a European city, with one of the world's greatest art museums, the Hermitage. Tour participants can see where the Russian Revolution took place, where the tsars (or most of them) are buried, visit the summer palaces of Catherine the Great and of her son Paul and walk along Nevsky Prospect. Big Macs haven't reached St. Petersburg yet, but pizza delivery is available.

All of this plus the chance to visit Prague and to sample its beauties are available this January. The cost is reasonable, $1,600, and includes practically everything, except souvenirs. Come to the meeting and find out more of the details, or stop by Dr. Robert Berry's Office in Holloway Hall, room 372, or call him at 543-6251. The study tour is sponsored by the History Department and is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of the University.

Soup 'n Share Set for October 1

SSU community and friends are invited to a "Soup 'n Share" on Thursday, October 1, from 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at the President's house. Share a cup of soup before or after stopping by "COOL Connections," a community service fair in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. From 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. "COOL SSU" is hosting over 45 agencies in the area who rely on volunteers, providing a grand introduction to Salisbury's social-action scene and an opportunity for the campus community to reach beyond itself by volunteering.

'COOL' is the acronym for the national organization Campus Outreach Opportunity League. 'COOL SSU' is the local affiliate.

Please stop by for a light-fare lunch if you have the time and inclination. RSVP to 543-6011 by September 30.

Guerrieri Center Operating Hours

The Guerrieri University Center hours are: Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m.-midnight; and Sunday, noon-midnight.

The game room hours for September 7-December 22 are: Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-10 p.m.; and Sunday, noon-10 p.m.

The information desk hours for September 7-December 22 are: Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; and Sunday, noon-7 p.m.

Retirement Seminars Slated for Employees

Employees within three years of retirement age and who have not attended a seminar within the last two years may wish to sign up to attend one of several being held in the next few months.

Call the Personnel Office (548-4755) to receive an application form. Attendance is permitted based on receipt of completed applications—first processed, first accepted.

On November 5 and 6, December 3 and 4, and March 4 and 5 there will be seminars held at the Department of Agriculture in Annapolis.

On April 8 and 9 there will be one held at the Eastern Shore Hospital Center in Cambridge.

No spouses are permitted to attend—only the state employee. Each seminar is two days in duration.

It is not too early to send in applications for the April seminar.

Football Guest Coach Program

Head Coach Joe Rotellini invites interested faculty or staff personnel to participate as football guest coaches during this season. The guest coach will become a member of the football staff for a complete week, taking part in staff meetings, strategy sessions, film breakdown and field practices.

No previous coaching or football experience is necessary. If you are interested in participating in this unique behind-the-scenes activity, contact Rotellini (543-6356) or Associate Athletics Director Dr. Mike Vienna (543-6343).

This opportunity is available with other fall sports as well, including field hockey, soccer, volleyball and cross country.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It was a record setting day for the Sea Gull football team last Saturday as it claimed its first victory of the season, beating Methodist 37-14 in Fayetteville, NC. The Gulls (1-1) benefitted from a superb passing afternoon by QB Len Annetta, who completed a school-record 22 passes in 31 attempts for 243 yards and four touchdowns. Three of the scoring passes were caught by freshman WR Shawn Powell, who finished the game with seven receptions for 89 yards. Annetta's four TD passes and Powell's three TD catches were both school records. On the flip side, the Sea Gull defense limited the Monarchs to just 15 yards passing for the game and forced six turnovers.

The field hockey team once again claimed the championship of its annual Sunfest Tournament, posting a 3-0 record in the round-robin play to secure the trophy. The Gulls beat College of Wooster 4-2 in game one, downed Gettysburg 2-0 in their second game, and closed out with a 3-0 blanking of Lebanon Valley. Kristen Guttilla netted four goals in the three games and Cindi Smith was in goal for both shutouts. SSU improved to 3-1 on the year.

The men's soccer team picked up two road victories last weekend, beating Shenandoah 1-0 and Shepherd 4-1 in back-to-back games. Mike Conners tallied the game's only goal with an assist from Chris Hayes to beat Shenandoah, while four different Gulls scored in the victory over Shepherd.

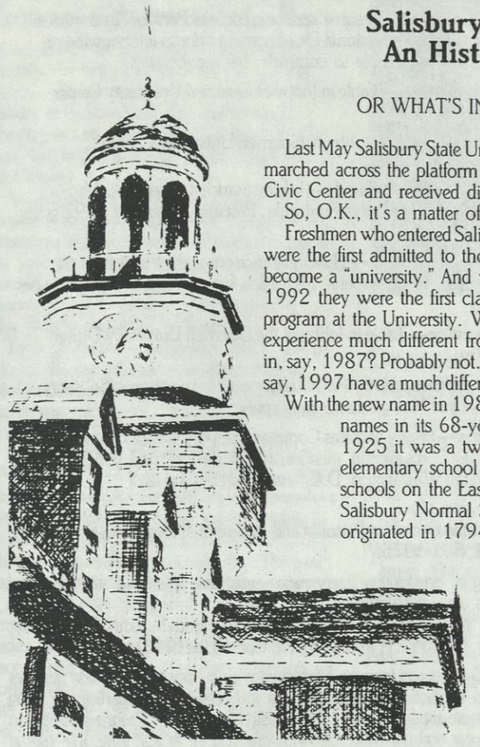
The women's cross country squad won its first race of the year by taking top honors at the Express Invitational last Saturday. Mary Puderbaugh was SSU's top individual finisher in fifth place, followed by Cathy Emerson in seventh. Tim Smith paced the Sea Gull men to a second place team finish with his second place individual finish. Matt Piotrowski was next among the Gull men in seventh place.

The volleyball team will look to rebound from last weekend's 0-4 performance in the Mary Washington Invitational with its own Gull Classic Tournament this weekend. SSU has traditionally played well in its own event, and will look to improve on its season's record of 2-6 overall. Play begins Friday at 4 p.m. and continues through Saturday afternoon in the Maggs Center.

The women's tennis team began its '92 season at the Goucher Tournament in Baltimore last weekend and posted four wins in 12 matches. Notching victories were April Quigley, Kim Higdon, Kris Dodson and Robin Handley. The Gulls will have home matches against UDC and Allentown this Saturday and Sunday.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

SALISBURY STATE...
OR WHAT'S IN A NAME by Sylvia Bradley



Last May Salisbury State University's first graduating class marched across the platform at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and received diplomas.

So, O.K., it's a matter of semantics and counting!

Freshmen who entered Salisbury State in the fall of 1988 were the first admitted to the institution which had just become a "university." And when they graduated in May 1992 they were the first class to complete a four-year program at the University. Was their higher education experience much different from those who had graduated in, say, 1987? Probably not. Will those who graduate in, say, 1997 have a much different experience? Probably so.

With the new name in 1988 Salisbury State has had four names in its 68-year history. At its founding in 1925 it was a two-year school to train public elementary school teachers [all female] for the schools on the Eastern Shore. Its name was Salisbury Normal School. The term "normal" originated in 1794 in France where an Ecole Normale was created to train teachers; the term was adopted in England in the 1830s and from there to the United States.

Nine years later, the name was changed to Salisbury State Teachers College, the curriculum expanded to four years and graduates were awarded a Bachelor of Science degree. In 1962, the curriculum was changed once more, as a liberal arts, non-teaching degree was instituted and the name was changed to Salisbury State College. With the name change to University, the reorganization into schools, and the growth of research and graduate programs, the new look at Salisbury State has been dramatic indeed.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Celebrity Bake Sale Benefits 'Andrew' Victims

The Hurricane Relief Project is sponsoring "A Taste of Fame: The Celebrity Bake Sale." Dignitaries from across the campus have culled through their private recipe files and produced an impressive array of over 75 culinary wonders that will be on sale in the Guerrieri University Center from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Friday, September 25.

Some of the items available for sale include Dr. Carol Williamson's "Healthy Apple Oatmeal Cookies," Dr. Phil Creighton's "Famous Creighton Baklava," Fred Marino's "Radio Bread," Linda Benson's "High Seas Cinnamon Rolls" and a host of others. Donated epicurean delights from other celebrities are still being accepted, so it is not too late to join the ranks of the famous.

All baked goods are being collected at the Guerrieri Center from 8-8:30 a.m. on the day of the sale. For those planning to make purchases, both whole desserts and individual pieces will be sold. All proceeds from the sale will go to the Florida International University Foundation's Hurricane Relief Fund. The foundation has established the fund to provide emergency tuition assistance to students suffering financial hardship as a result of Hurricane Andrew and to provide emergency loans to the 250 faculty and staff of the university who lost their homes as a result of the storm.

Checks should be made out to the Florida International University Foundation, with "Hurricane Relief" noted on the memo line. For more information, please call Dr. Kathy Groutt (543-6040), Jeff Barnes (548-4434) or John Webster (543-6095).

'Career Connections' Promises To Be COOL

The Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) presents "Career Connections" on Thursday, October 1, at the Cool Connections community service fair. Career Connections will provide information to students who are interested in careers in community service, social change or not-for-profit organizations, get advice on how to link community service to a job search and review sample resumes which use volunteer work to exhibit career related experience.

Cool Connections is sponsored by Campus Community Outreach League (COOL) and will be held from 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Approximately 50 local service organizations are registered to participate.

For more information contact Linda Benson of the CPPF at 543-6070 or Barry King of the Office of the Dean of Students at 543-6080.

LEADS Program Needs New Members

Last year more than 60 Salisbury State students participated in the LEADS program at Pemberton Elementary School. It's back again for the 1992-93 school year, bigger and better than ever.

LEADS stands for "Letting Education and Discipline Succeed." The program, only a year old, was originally designed to provide a support network for "at-risk" students. The focal point of the program involves matching each child with an SSU mentor for the purpose of developing self-esteem and increasing academic success. It is a system much like the Big Brother/Big Sister program.

Once again, SSU students are being sought to volunteer for the program. Mentors will be matched with students in Pemberton Elementary or Fruitland Primary and Intermediate Schools, the two newest locations. Each mentor is asked to spend a minimum of one hour per week with his or her student. Whether mentors help with classroom assignments or homework, play a game or simply talk with their students, it is the individual attention and support to which the students respond.

Bluegrass Concert At Furnace Town

A bluegrass concert will take place at Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill on Sunday, September 27, from noon-5 p.m. The concert is underwritten by a grant from Pepsi of Salisbury.

Bill Vollmer of Country Grass has arranged the five-hour concert featuring his group and The Blue Crab Pickers. They will play beneath the bandstand near the Nassawango Iron Furnace. Visitors bring chairs and blankets and sit along the slope up from the furnace.

The $5 per adult and $1 per child Furnace Town special event admission includes the concert, crafts demonstrations, an auction and the standard Furnace Town self-guided tours, gardens and nature trails. For more information call 632-2032.

Art Institute Sponsors Philly Trip

The Art Institute and Gallery will sponsor a trip to the 16th annual Philadelphia Craft Show and the Philadelphia Museum of Art on Saturday, November 7.

The juried exhibition and sale features the work of 175 of the nation's finest craftspeople. The media represented at the show include ceramics, jewelry, glass, wood, furniture, fiber, wearables, baskets, leather, metal, mixed media, handmade paper and objects from the practical to the fantastic.

In addition to the craft show, the trip will include a visit to the Philadelphia Museum of Art where works by Leonardo Da Vinci, Delacroix and Martin Puryear, an American sculptor. Forty-one of Leonardo's finest studies of human anatomy will be on display. A one-hour tour of the museum's permanent collection will also be available to those who are interested. The Philadelphia Museum of Art is the nation's third largest fine art museum.

Cost for the trip is $34 for AI&G members and $40 for non-members. Cost includes the $15 admission charges to the museum and crafts fair. To register for the trip send a check with your name, address and phone numbers, both work and home, to AI&G at 546-4748.

Math Club Invites Members

The Math Club welcomes faculty and students back to school. The club's goal is to promote mathematical awareness and activities on campus. It sponsors social and academic events with the purpose of increasing interaction among students and faculty who are interested in mathematics.

The first official meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 22, at 3:45 p.m. in the Power Building, room 117. At this meeting, there will be a discussion about T-shirt sales and an upcoming trip to San Antonio, TX.

Outdoor Club Schedules Pair of Meetings

The next three Outdoor Club weekend trips for the fall semester are quickly approaching.

On the weekend of October 2 the club will run two separate trips: backpacking and horseback riding in Shenandoah National Park, VA. The third trip will white water canoeing in the Delaware Water Gap, PA, the weekend of October 16. If interested come to the Monday Outdoor Club meetings at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the Guerrieri University Center. For additional information contact Mike Baker, at 546-4550 or Ellen Hughes at 548-7725.

'Habitual Hiker' Gives Slide Lecture

Leonard M. Adkins, also known as "the habitual hiker," will present a slide lecture on Monday, October 5, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Adkins, who has explored more than 14,000 miles on foot throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and the Caribbean, will present "Across the Roof of Canada." The program details a 1989 trip by a seven-person team scouting a route for the proposed Great Divide Trail. Information supplied by trek members, including Adkins, is being compiled to provide a guide for future adventurers in Canada's Rocky Mountains.

The expedition purposely chose a serpentine route to ensure the team would touch upon many of the region's highlights including Banff National Park, Lake Louise, and the pathless Suffleur and White Goat wilderness areas.

Adkins spends the off-season writing guidebooks and publishing photographs and articles based on his travels.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SGA Schedules General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a General Assembly meeting Sunday, October 4, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend. Survey results and solutions for existing problems will be discussed. Help the SGA help students. Voice your opinion and get involved.

Beach Volleyball Tournament Scheduled

On Saturday, September 27, from noon-6 p.m. at St. Martin's Beach there will be a 4-on-4 Coed Beach Volleyball Tournament as a fundraiser for campus recreation. The entry fee is $10 and proceeds will go for new equipment. Deadline for registration is Friday, September 25, at 2 p.m. Sign-up sheets and rules are available in the Student Government Association Office (Guerrieri University Center, room 227) or the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs Gym. Expect food, prizes and fun.

Achieving Peak Performance

In an upcoming seminar, Dr. Bob McBrien, director of SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development, will help participants achieve optimal performance in athletics, studying and other life challenges.

The seminar will utilize the latest findings from sports psychology to helping students develop the positive mental attitudes which can lead to peak performance. The two-session seminar will teach participants to use relaxation techniques, visualization and mental rehearsal skills.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, October 6 and 13, from noon-1 p.m. The second section will take place on Wednesdays, October 7 and 14, from 4-5 p.m. For more information, or to sign up for either section of the seminar, contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, at 543-6070.

Auburn University Honors Heidler

Dr. Jeanne Heidler, associate professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has been chosen as one of 400 of the most outstanding women graduates of Auburn University.

This nomination is part of Auburn University's celebration commemorating the 100th anniversary of the admission of women students.

"Since 1892, thousands of women have attended and received degrees from Auburn University," said Heidler. "I consider it a signal honor to be named one of the 400 most outstanding women graduates of that institution.

"I was completely unaware that I was ever under consideration for this recognition and am especially gratified that it came as a result of my nomination by the faculty of the Department of History of Auburn University," she said. "That the men and women I regarded as my mentors for so many years chose to recognize my achievements in this fashion makes this one of the most meaningful honors I have ever received."

Heidler, who has been teaching at SSU since 1988, received her bachelor's degree from Mercer University and her master's and doctorate degree from Auburn University.

International Miro Exhibit Comes to University Gallery

An art exhibit of international importance—possibly the first of its kind on the Eastern Shore—will be on display at the new University Gallery in Fulton Hall. The collection of lithographs and etchings by Spanish surrealist Joan Miro will be in the gallery from September 28-October 15.

An exhibit of Miro's work is very timely, according to show coordinator Heather Timmons. Interest in Spanish culture is at a peak this year because of the Summer Olympics in Barcelona as well as the upcoming 500th anniversary of Columbus' first voyage to the New World on behalf of Spain.

Through Miro's work, gallery visitors will be able to glimpse art that was influenced by colorful Catalan peasant folk art and the architecture of Antoni Gaudi in his hometown of Barcelona.

Living in Paris in the years after World War I, Miro joined a group of young visionaries that rejected the old masters and called themselves surrealists. While these artists were struggling to break with tradition in order to attain a kind of pristine vision, Miro lived it naturally. The past was an order in which he never believed.

Although Miro is generally described as a surrealist, many art historians find his work eludes categorizing. His mature work holds a place among the few 20th century artists whose work can truly be described as modern. Along with Duchamp, Mondrian, Kandinsky and Klee, Miro created from a void, filling it with ideas that had never been done before.

Composed of 55 prints, the SSU exhibit helps the viewer better understand the attitudes and expressions of one of the most influential artists of this century. Included are several L'Enfance d'Ubu prints as well as many other significant works.

It is the intention of the University to attract other shows of the same calibre to the new gallery. Prior to this exhibit, it was impossible to bring artwork of this sort to the Shore, according to SSU's associate vice president of academic affairs Florence Pritchard. The new University Gallery is designed to meet the strict conditions required for such shows, especially the air quality and climate conditions, Pritchard said.

An opening reception for the Miro exhibit will be held Monday, September 28, from 3-7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall on the SSU campus. The hours are: Monday and Wednesday 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday 10 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday noon-6 p.m. The gallery is closed on Friday.

The Miro exhibit is on loan from Blair-Murrah Exhibitions of Sibley, MO.

For more information, contact the University Gallery Office at 543-6271 or Public Relations at 543-6030.

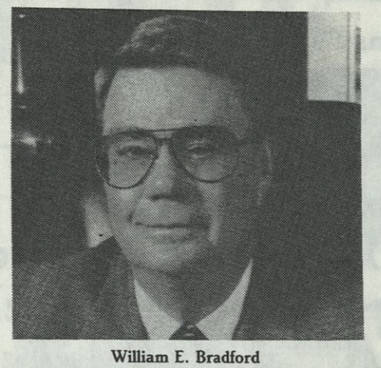
Distinguished UN Ambassador To Speak

Ambassador John W. McDonald will speak on "Peace and Conflict Resolution," on Saturday, October 3, at 10 a.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

A lawyer, diplomat, former international civil servant, development expert and peacemaker concerned about world, social, economic and ethnic problems, McDonald spent 20 years of his career in Western Europe and the Middle East and worked for 16 years on UN affairs.

Currently he is president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C., which focuses on ethnic conflicts. In addition, in February, he was named Distinguished Visiting Professor at George Mason University's Institute for Conflict Analysis and Resolution.

The event is sponsored by The Center for Teaching Peace at SSU. Everyone is invited.



William E. Bradford

Dresser President Is Next Great Leader

The Great Leader Lecture Series resumes Tuesday, October 6, with a presentation by William E. Bradford, president and chief operating officer of Dresser Industries, Inc.

The lecture, sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, will begin at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The program is free and open to the public.

"The Perdue School is pleased to host Mr. Bradford as a Great Leader and to share this educational experience with the community," said Dr. Richard F. Bebee, dean of the Perdue School. "The Great Leader Program is part of the Perdue School's entrepreneurial thrust and emphasis on helping students relate to and interact with the real business world."

Bradford joined Dresser Industries in 1970 as product manager, D.A.T.A. Systems, for the Swaco Division. After advancing to area manager, Mid-Continent Area, for the Oilfield Products Group, he was transferred to England in 1975 to serve as operations manager for Europe, Africa and the Middle East. A year later he was named vice president, U.S. and Canada Operations, for the Security Division, and moved to Houston, TX. Two years later, he was named president of the Oilfield Group where he remained until September 1983, when he was promoted to vice president, Operations, and in 1985, senior vice president, Dresser Industries, Inc. He was appointed president and chief executive officer of Dresser-Rand Co. in Olean, NY, in February 1988.

Bradford holds a B.S. degree in geology from Centenary College and attended the Executive M.B.A. Program at the University of Houston. He is a member of many professional organizations including the President's Council of Manufacturer's Alliance for Productivity and Innovation and serves on the board of directors of the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

English

The Department of English seeks applications for an assistant professor. The anticipated tenure-track position is for fall '93 for a specialist in women in literature with the ability to teach world literature and the novel. It is a 12-hour semester load. Ph.D. with publications record is desirable. Salary is competitive. Send letter and cv to Dr. John Wenke, Chair, Search Committee, by November 9.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Riall Lecture Cancelled

The next Riall Lecture scheduled for November 5 by Elliot Wigginton has been cancelled.

'Women in Business' Symposium Topic

Businesswomen from around the lower Shore will discuss problems that face female entrepreneurs at the Delmarva Business League's "Women in Business Symposium" on Wednesday, September 30. The meeting begins at 7 p.m. at the Holly Center's Massey Activities Building, located on Snow Hill Road. The public is invited.

Women business owners and other entrepreneurs are encouraged to attend to discuss what it's like being a businesswoman on the Eastern Shore. "And even more so, a black businesswoman," said Furahaa Saba, an instructor in the Communication Arts Department at SSU and the symposium's facilitator.

"Although most of our attention will focus on the issues that are affecting black businesswomen," said Saba, "our attendees should find that there are a lot of commonalities that affect businesswomen in general."

An instructor at SSU since 1988, Saba has become proficient in the effective use of culturally diverse curriculum materials, and innovative methods of self-expression as learning instruments.

A five-panel member for the symposium includes: Diana Purnell, co-owner of Blackquentrest in Berlin; Regina Holmes, co-owner of Holmes Trucking located in Eden; Toola Brittingham, co-owner of Pro-Jersey in Salisbury; Geneva Cannon, owner of the Route 50 West Flea Market in Mardela Springs; and Salisbury attorney Shelia Brooks-Tahir.

Established in 1988, DBL's major focus is to bring together African-American and other minority businesspeople, corporations and professionals on the lower Shore.

As an affiliate of the National Business League, the oldest African-American trade organization in the nation, the Delmarva chapter provides resource speakers, briefing and tours, monthly meeting sessions, networking opportunities, community assistance programs as well as technical, financial and management seminars.

Knee Boarding on the Wicomico

Sherry L. Cook, an account clerk in the Financial Services Office, is a winner in the 1992 State Employee Photo Contest.

Cook's color photograph, titled "Kneeboarding on the Wicomico," won first place in the action/sports category. She received a $125 prize, ribbon and certificate of recognition from Gov. William Donald Schaefer in a September 9 ceremony in Annapolis. The winning photos will be on permanent display at the Department of General Services building in Baltimore.

"I was honored and thrilled to have won such a notable prize," said Cook. "And meeting all of the other participants was especially nice as they were supportive and friendly."

The first State Employee Photo Contest was held in 1988 as a means to improve morale among Maryland state employees. While the 1988 contest was limited to photographs that reflected pride in their work, subsequent contests were revamped to include more categories.

Sponsored by the state Department of Transportation and the Maryland You Are Beautiful program, the contest has also gained corporate sponsorship from Ritz Camera Centers, Inc.

Winter Arts Calendar Deadline Approaching

The deadline for Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's quarterly publication, "Accent on the Arts," the winter issue of which will cover the months of November, December and January, is Thursday, October 1. Any organization wishing to have listings or articles included in the upcoming issue should have the information in SWAC's office no later than 5 p.m. on October 1.

Information required for the listings include event name, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and daytime phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included.

"Accent on the Arts" showcases the cultural offerings of a three-county region, encompassing Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties. The Southern Eastern Shore Calendar, the listing of cultural activities in the region, remains the centerpiece of the publication. The listings portion is made possible by a grant from the Department of Economic and Employment Development, through the Wicomico County Department of Convention and Visitors Bureau, and the Wicomico County Council.

"Accent on the Arts" is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 1,000 members and affiliates of the SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information, call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

Affirmative Action Plan For 1991-92 Available

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (Holloway Hall, room 134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or correctons for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 1, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 5

Percentage of Students in SSU Workforce Is Highest in State

What do a gardener and a computer whiz have in common? Not much, by most standards of judgment. But at Salisbury State both of these people are students employed in on-campus jobs through the Work Experience program.

This year, more than 800 SSU students are in the program, filling a need in almost every department. They serve food, wash dishes, paint walls, cut grass, pull weeds, sort mail, monitor the computer lab and reshelve books in the library.

While most colleges and universities hire students to fill part-time jobs on campus, Salisbury State probably hires the highest percentage of students of any university in Maryland, according to John Morris, SSU's work experience director.

The competition is increasing for work experience jobs in these times of rising tuition. Even jobs once considered to be less desirable are filled quickly.

Unlike the federally funded College Work Study Program where students are awarded jobs based on financial need, the only requirements for work experience jobs are a willingness to work and a good attitude.

"We definitely don't take (bad) attitudes here," said Assistant Director of Horticulture Linda Langelo who supervises 19 students this semester. "I try to hire on the basis of reliability. Part of it is just being on time for work."

University students Danny Crumm and Helen Emory inspect plants they grew from seed in the University's greenhouse. Both students work for the Horticulture Department through the Work Experience program.

Often, the campus jobs are the first real employment experiences for students. Their supervisors become responsible not only for training them, but for helping them develop a good work ethic as well. "If they do something wrong, we try to talk about it," said Linda Ziegler, who supervises 47 student workers in the computer lab. "They get an evaluation each semester and they have to earn their raises and promotions. They have to be responsible for their own success here." Langelo agrees. "It should be like the real world. If I'm not hard on them and correct the problems, then they'll never know the difference," she said.

But the bottom line is that these are real jobs and students who slack off or do poor work could end up getting fired, just like in the real world. "But there are very few that come through here that I have to give up on," Ziegler said.

The program benefits the students not only by providing them with a source of income, but, in some cases, giving them work experience they can use after graduation. In the case of the

Stock Market Contest Gives SSU Students Real-time Trading Environment

University students will have a hands-on, risk-free opportunity to experience the excitement of playing the stock market this fall in the fifth annual AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge. Registration is open now.

The event is a nationwide educational stock trading competition that allows students to gain knowledge of the stock market in a real-time trading environment. This year's Challenge begins November 2 with 20,000 college students and educators from all over the country will hit Wall Street armed with a fictional portfolio and lots of ideas. The goal? Apply growing market knowledge to turn that initial stake into the highest portfolio value before the competition closes on February 26.

Every aspect of the challenge simulates real trading. Players start with a fictional $500,000 on account, trade with up-to-the-minute prices (compliments of a satellite feed direct from Wall Street), incur brokerage commissions, buy long, sell short and borrow on margin. In short, students do everything real traders do with real money. They trade over 5,000 stocks on the AMEX, NYSE and NASDAQ exchanges, use toll-free AT&T 800 service to select stocks and to check prices, talk to a staff of real "brokers," receive monthly portfolio statements and follow the competition every week in USA Today and every month in the event's special newsletter.

The competition awards more than $200,000 in cash and merchandise prizes. The top performer will receive a 1993 Pontiac Grand Am GT Coupe (estimated value: $17,000), $8,000 in cash, a trip for two to The Bahamas courtesy of American Airlines and Radisson Resorts, and $1,200 in AT&T long distance certificates. The second through fifth place winners will receive cash awards of $10,000, $7,500, $5,000 and $4,000, respectively, and the sixth through 10th ranked college finishers will receive trips for two to The Bahamas and $500 in cash. The top educator will receive $1,000. Texas Instruments also provides prizes for the most improved performers each month and for the top winners at the end of competition.

In addition to prizes, the Investment Challenge has also offered its past 46,000 participants valuable experience, helping many land jobs based on their Challenge performance and understanding of the financial markets. It's experience that looks great on a resume.

AT&T is the event's title sponsor and Texas Instruments, Pontiac, American Airlines and The Bahamas Ministry of Tourism co-sponsor the competition. USA Today, another co-sponsor, provides weekly press coverage.

"Not only is it an exciting competition, coupled with being fun while you learn, it gives

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SGA Schedules General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a General Assembly meeting Sunday, October 4, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend. Survey results and solutions for existing problems will be discussed. Help the SGA help students. Voice your opinion and get involved.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

English Department Sponsors Trip To London, Dublin

Another year, another trip to Britain, but for January 1993 the English Department's courses abroad will also include Ireland for interested students, adding shamrocks and shillelaghs to the usual itinerary of castles and cathedrals.

Two courses have been proposed by Associate Professor Jim Welsh and Dr. Patricia Killian, an expert in Irish Language and culture. An interest meetings will be held on Thursday, October 1, at 8:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium.

The two courses are English 490, Field Studies in Britain: Literature, Drama and Culture, and English 300, Celtic Studies, concentrating on Ireland through the Ages. Both courses will involve 15 hours of pre-trip instruction on campus during the fall term to prepare students for the trip.

The proposed trip will leave Salisbury on Monday, January 4, via chartered bus to the departing airport for the flight to London.

For additional information, those interested may call Welsh at 543-6446 or 749-4190.

Lecture Series Studies Maya-Aztec Trade

"Destroyed Economies: The Ancient Maya-Aztec Trade" will be part of the Fall Lecture Series in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Dr. Christopher Jones, a research specialist at the University of Pennsylvania's University Museum, will be held Tuesday, October 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Soup 'n Share Set for October 1

SSU community and friends are invited to a "Soup 'n Share" on Thursday, October 1, from 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at the President's house. Share a cup of soup before or after stopping by "COOL Connections," a community service fair in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. From 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. "COOL SSU" is hosting over 45 agencies in the area who rely on volunteers, providing a grand introduction to Salisbury's social-action scene and an opportunity for the campus community to reach beyond itself by volunteering.

'COOL' is the acronym for the national organization Campus Outreach Opportunity League. 'COOL SSU' is the local affiliate.

Please stop by for a light-fare lunch if you have the time and inclination. RSVP to 543-6011 by September 30.

English

The Department of English seeks applications for an assistant professor. The anticipated tenure-track position is for fall '93 for a specialist in women in literature with the ability to teach world literature and the novel. It is a 12-hour semester load. Ph.D. with publications record is desirable. Salary is competitive. Send letter and cv to Dr. John Wenke, Chair, Search Committee, by November 9.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

LEADS Program Needs New Members

Last year more than 60 Salisbury State students participated in the LEADS program at Pemberton Elementary School. It's back again for the 1992-93 school year, bigger and better than ever.

LEADS stands for "Letting Education and Discipline Succeed." The program, only a year old, was originally designed to provide a support network for "at-risk" students. The focal point of the program involves matching each child with an SSU mentor for the purpose of developing self-esteem and increasing academic success. It is a system much like the Big Brother/Big Sister program.

Once again, SSU students are being sought to volunteer for the program. Mentors will be matched with students in Pemberton Elementary or Fruitland Primary and Intermediate Schools, the two newest locations. Each mentor is asked to spend a minimum of one hour per week with his or her student. Whether mentors help with classroom assignments or homework, play a game or simply talk with their students, it is the individual attention and support to which the students respond.

Achieving Peak Performance

In an upcoming seminar, Dr. Bob McBrien, director of SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development, will help participants achieve optimal performance in athletics, studying and other life challenges.

The seminar will utilize the latest findings from sports psychology to helping students develop the positive mental attitudes which can lead to peak performance. The two-session seminar will teach participants to use relaxation techniques, visualization and mental rehearsal skills.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, October 6 and 13, from noon-1 p.m. The second section will take place on Wednesdays, October 7 and 14, from 4-5 p.m. For more information, or to sign up for either section of the seminar, contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, at 543-6070.

Distinguished UN Ambassador To Speak

Ambassador John W. McDonald will speak on "Peace and Conflict Resolution," on Saturday, October 3, at 10 a.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

A lawyer, diplomat, former international civil servant, development expert and peacemaker concerned about world, social, economic and ethnic problems, McDonald spent 20 years of his career in Western Europe and the Middle East and worked for 16 years on UN affairs.

Currently he is president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C., which focuses on ethnic conflicts. In addition, in February, he was named Distinguished Visiting Professor at George Mason University's Institute for Conflict Analysis and Resolution.

The event is sponsored by The Center for Teaching Peace at SSU.

Student Success Strategies Subject of Conference

Dr. Dorothy L. Powell

SSU will host a conference on "Strategies for Creating an Environment for Student Success" on Friday, October 16, from 2:30-7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Designed for high school and college educators, administrators and staff in student services, the conference will provide important information for those interested in fostering the academic success of underprepared students.

The keynote address will be delivered by Dr. Franklyn G. Jenifer, president of Howard University in Washington, D.C. Jenifer came to Howard from a post as chancellor of the Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education, where he had responsibility for 27 public colleges and universities. During his four years in that position, he made "excellence" and "access" the system's watchwords.

From 1979 to 1986 Jenifer served as vice chancellor of the New Jersey Department of Higher Education in Trenton. In this post, his concerns included upgrading the system's research efforts in science and technology and developing a program to increase the number of minorities with doctoral degrees.

He has received numerous honorary degrees and has published in scientific journals on plant viruses and in newspaper commentaries on Afrocentricity, residential schools for at-risk youngsters, black entrepreneurship and the academic preparation of student athletes.

The address in the afternoon will be given by Dr. Dorothy L. Powell, dean of the College of Nursing at Howard. She has served as a consultant for the W.K. Kellog Foundation to Southern Africa (Swaziland), to the National Advisory Council on Nurse Training and to the Howard University Health Institutions Development Project in Malawi, Africa. She also serves a consultant for Salisbury State's Department of Nursing MENTOR program.

Among her honors are being named Outstanding Nurse Leader by Chi Eta Phi Nursing Sorority and Outstanding Educator of America. Powell is a member of Kappa Delta Pi National Honor Society in Education. She received a Minority Nurse Fellowship from the American Nurses Association and the National Research Service Award from the Department of Health and Human Services.

Powell has published in several professional journals on the subjects of registered nurse completion programs, AIDS awareness and sexual practices among junior high school students. She presents papers frequently on the recruitment and retention of nurses, assisting culturally diverse students in nursing programs and adolescent pregnancy.

The conference is being co-sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs and the Department of Nursing. The cost of the workshop is $15, which includes dinner. The registration deadline is Monday, October 5. For further information call Valorie Hailey at 546-4333.

Noted Poet Reads From Work

The Department of English is pleased to announce the first reading in the 1992-93 Writers-on-the-Shore series.

On Thursday, October 1, poet Richard Frost will read from his work at 8 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The presentation is free and the public is invited to attend.

Frost is the recipient of a 1992 Fellowship in Creative Writing from the National Endowment for the Arts. He has also been the recipient of the Gustav Davidson Memorial Award from the Poetry Society of America and three Residency Fellowships from Yaddo.

His books include "The Circus Villains" and "Getting Drunk With the Birds"—both published by Ohio University Press—as well as the more recent "Jazz for Kirby."

His poems have appeared frequently in numerous periodicals including Poetry, Esquire, Harper's, The Kenyon Review, The American Scholar, The Paris Review and The Gettysburg Review.

Professor of English at SUNY-Oneonta, Frost is also a professional drummer. Currently, he plays with a jazz band in upstate New York.

"His will be a particularly enjoyable reading," said Dr. Michael Waters of the English faculty. "His poems are well-crafted, moving and funny."

For more information call 543-6445.

Columbus Poster Exhibit In Atrium Gallery

"Seeds of Change: 500 Years of Encounter and Exchange," a poster exhibit commemorating the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, will be on display October 2-22 in the Atrium Gallery at Salisbury State University.

The exhibit focuses on the exchange of plants, animals and people resulting from Columbus' voyages. Five "seeds"—corn, potatoes, diseases, horses and sugar—form the core of this poster exhibit which tells the story of 500 years of encounter and exchange between Europe and the Americas.

This exhibition is based on "Seeds of Change," a quincentenary exhibition developed by the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. Carolyn Margolis, assistant director of the museum's Quincentenary Programs, will discuss the exhibit at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 20, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The Atrium Gallery is located in the Guerrieri Center. It is open 11 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon-4 p.m., Sunday. The gallery is free and open to the public.

Cleary To Present Lunch-time Talks Oct. 9

There's a new option for lunch this fall, "Lunch-time Art Appreciation" at the Art Institute and Gallery.

Friday lunch-time talks begin October 9 and meet 12:15-1 p.m., ending on October 30.

John Cleary, a fine artist and professor of painting at Salisbury State, will take a non-traditional approach (not the art history route) to art appreciation by explaining what the artist sees in a painting, or other work of fine art.

He will give a "very different perspective to art rather than the typical approach. The presentation used will present the questions that surround art rather than art as a cultural enterprise." After attending these talks viewing art will be much more enjoyable because of deeper understanding.

Cleary has a B.F.A. in painting and drawing from Pennsylvania State University and a master's in painting from Washington University in St. Louis. His work is represented and shown in galleries in Washington, D.C., Baltimore and many other cities in the mid-Atlantic region.

The cost is $15 for members of AI&G and $20 for non-members. The AI&G is at Rt. 50 and Lemmon Hill La. in downtown Salisbury, on the west-bound side of Rt. 50. For more information call 546-4748, or write AI&G Classes, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803.

Nature Walk At Furnace Town

Furnace Town Historic Site and the Nature Conservancy forest trails is the site of guided nature walk on Sunday, October 4. The walk leaves from The Company Store at Furnace Town grounds, into the Pocomoke Forest and the Nassawango Cypress Swamp, arriving back at the historic site by 4 p.m. The focus of this walk, which is limited to the first 25 registrants, is mushrooms and fungi.

Pre-registration for the walk is mandatory. Please call Furnace Town at 632-2032. The walk is included in Furnace Town's regular site admission of $2 for adults and $1 for children. Furnace Town is located near Snow Hill.

Dresser President Is Next Great Leader

The Great Leader Lecture Series resumes Tuesday, October 6, with a presentation by William E. Bradford, president and chief operating officer of Dresser Industries, Inc.

The lecture, sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, will begin at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The program is free and open to the public.

"The Perdue School is pleased to host Mr. Bradford as a Great Leader and to share this educational experience with the community," said Dr. Richard F. Bebee, dean of the Perdue School. "The Great Leader Program is part of the Perdue School's entrepreneurial thrust and emphasis on helping students relate to and interact with the real business world."

Bradford joined Dresser Industries in 1970 as product manager, D.A.T.A. Systems, for the Swaco Division. After advancing to area manager, Mid-Continent Area, for the Oilfield Products Group, he was transferred to England in 1975 to serve as operations manager for Europe, Africa and the Middle East. A year later he was named vice president, U.S. and Canada Operations, for the Security Division, and moved to Houston, TX. Two years later, he was named president of the Oilfield Group where he remained until September 1983, when he was promoted to vice president, Operations, and in 1985, senior vice president, Dresser Industries, Inc. He was appointed president and chief executive officer of Dresser-Rand Co. in Olean, NY, in February 1988.

Bradford holds a B.S. degree in geology from Centenary College and attended the Executive M.B.A. Program at the University of Houston. He is a member of many professional organizations including the President's Council of Manufacturer's Alliance for Productivity and Innovation and serves on the board of directors of the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Affirmative Action Plan For 1991-92 Available

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (Holloway Hall, room 134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or correctons for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

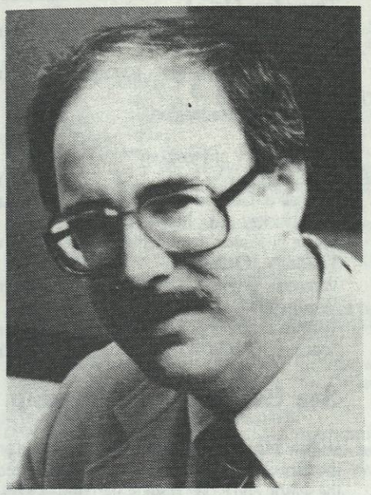
Social work majors, however, may be eligible for advanced standing.

Students interested in attending graduate school next fall should be aware that UMAB has a deadline for completed applications of February 15. Those who cannot attend the session should call Wilson for an appointment at a later date at 226-5330.

Dvorak in New World Subject of Lecture



Dr. John C. Tibbetts

Dr. John C. Tibbetts of the University of Kansas, whose book "Dvorak in America" will be published by the Amadeus Press next year, will give a lecture on "Dvorak Discovers the New World" on Monday, October 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center. Tibbetts also wrote the cover story on Dvorak for the fall 1992 issue of American Record Guide, currently on newsstands.

The composer Antonin Dvorak's arrival in America during the fall of 1892 coincided with the 400th anniversary of Columbus's historic landfall in the New World. Tibbetts writes: "Appropriately, a concert in the composer's honor was titled 'Two New Worlds: The World of Columbus and the New World of Music.' Those words were prophetic; the spirit of discovery was in the air."

From 1892 to 1895 Dvorak served as director of the National Conservatory in New York. "I did not come here to interpret Beethoven or Wagner for the public," he said. "I came to discover what young Americans have in them and to help them express it. The new American school of music must strike its roots deeply into its own soil."

"Dvorak in America" is the first book to examine in detail the circumstances and results of the composer's American sojourn. It follows Dvorak as he wanders the Iowa prairie, visits the Chicago World's Fair and composes some of his greatest music. The Tibbetts anthology includes the world's most distinguished authorities on the composer.

Tibbetts will also lecture of Tuesday, October 13, in the Devilbiss Auditorium at 7 p.m. on the way Hollywood has treated the lives of composers on film.

Tibbetts teaches cinema studies at the University of Kansas and is also the co-author (with Jim Welsh of Salisbury State) of "His Majesty, the American: The Cinema of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr.," but he is mainly known as a radio and television personality in Kansas City.

Tibbetts is a regular contributor to the Christian Science Monitor and is music reporter for the Monitor's broadcasting service. For four years he was senior announcer at KANU-FM, the classical station of the University of Kansas.

In 1985 he produced a 16-part radio series, "The World of Robert Schumann," for KXTR-FM in Kansas City, and in 1988 a 10-part series on Scandinavian music titled "Northern Journey." In 1982 and 1983 Tibbetts was host and announcer for the Kansas City Symphony "Pops" concert season.

He has worked as educator, author, editor and illustrator. For 10 years he edited the magazine American Classic Screen, published by the National Film Society.

His lectures at Salisbury State are free and open to the public. For further information call 543-6100 or 543-6446.

B.F.A. Student Studied in England

Melissa Cullen, wife of Christopher Cullen of Delmar and a senior pursuing her degree in fine arts, recently completed a study in art program in Sunderland, England.

Before departing for England Cullen received a scholarship of $250 from the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts for academic studies abroad. Sunderland University is located in the northern part of England on the east coast of the North Sea.

Her studies included five weeks of Medieval art history and ceramics/sculpture classes. Also included in the studies was weekly drawing sessions and weekend travel which included Edinburgh, Scotland, London, Kent, Dover, York, Durham and Newcastle. These weekends of travel included trips to many historical sites, sculpture gardens, abbeys and numerous castles.

Cullen was instructed by one of England's raku specialists, Christine Constant. Cullen was introduced to tile design, mold making, slip casting and ceramic construction techniques. The Study Art in England program was a co-op through Towson State University under the direction of Tom Supensky.

An informal lecture on her learning experiences will be held in Fulton Hall, room 127, on Monday, October 12, at 11:30 a.m. Anyone interested in attending should call 543-6273.

Fire Prevention Week To Feature Exit Drills

The week of October 5-9 is National Fire Prevention Week. During this week, which is also the anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire, the Public Safety Office would like everyone to be conscious of fire safety.

Fire exit drills will be conducted in all campus buildings. The purpose of the drills is to familiarize everyone with what to do in the event of an actual fire. An emphasis will be placed on the orderly evacuation under proper control rather than on speed. Everyone will become accustomed to the sound of the fire alarm and to the location of the nearest exit.

Proper and timely response to fire emergencies requires preplanning. For this reason, it is important that everyone participate in the drill by leaving the building when the alarm sounds. Prompt and authoritative fire emergency procedures are the best course of action to avoid panic and possible loss of life.

When the alarm sounds, everyone should: close all windows in the room; turn off all electrical equipment; close the door to the room while leaving; and walk to the nearest exit. Do not run and do not use the elevators; if the nearest exit is blocked due to fire or obstruction, proceed to an alternative exit; exit from the building and move a safe distance from the building; and do not re-enter the building until an officer signals that it is safe.

Flamenco Music, Dance Part of Columbus Series

Guadalquivir

Guadalquivir, a flamenco music and dance group, will be part of a series of presentations here in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The Washington, D.C.-based group will perform Thursday, October 15, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The group, which takes its name from the river that runs through Andalucia in the south of Spain, was formed in 1989 by Guillermo Juan Christie (guitar, vocals and electronic keyboards) and Jorge Porta (vocals). The two developed a repertoire that includes traditional flamenco and Spanish styles, as well as Argentine tangos and other Latin American music.

In 1991, the group expanded with the addition of musicians Greg Corbin (percussion and drums) and Hugh McGuire (bass), and dancers Natalia Monteleon and Tatiana Figueroa.

Guadalquivir has performed at the Kennedy Center, Lisner Auditorium and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington., D.C. and at the Museum of Natural History and the Juliard School of Music in New York.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

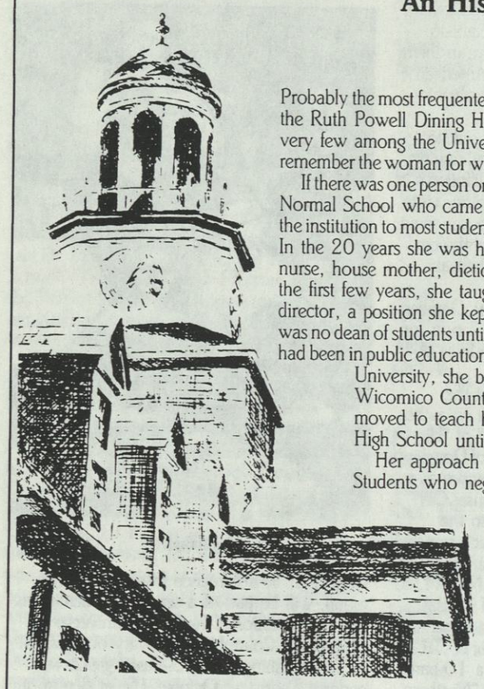
Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"MISS RUTH"
by Sylvia Bradley



Probably the most frequented building on SSU's campus is the Ruth Powell Dining Hall. Today, however, there are very few among the University community who can remember the woman for whom the building was named.

If there was one person on the original faculty of Salisbury Normal School who came to symbolize the real "spirit" of the institution to most students, it was "Miss Ruth" Powell. In the 20 years she was here she was the social director, nurse, house mother, dietician, counselor and friend. For the first few years, she taught science and served as social director, a position she kept until her retirement. [There was no dean of students until recent years.] Her background had been in public education. With a B.S. from Columbia University, she began teaching in 1902 in Wicomico County's one-room schools and later moved to teach home economics in Wicomico High School until she joined the staff of SNS.

Her approach to education was all pervasive. Students who neglected to say good morning to her or showed other signs of being "ill" [in her opinion]n] would find vitamin pills on their lunch tray. Skipping a meal was a sure sign of sickness that called for a mandated trip to the infirmary and a strong dose of castor oil. Campus elementary school students, who ate in the college dining hall, referred to her as "that Ruth woman" who would spank them if they did not eat all their lunch. As a result, more than one little boy was known to smuggle mashed potatoes and peas out of the cafeteria by filling his pants packets with them.

During exam week, every afternoon she provided tea and cookies or tiny sandwiches in the Social Room. In winter, she saw to it that a fire was always blazing in the Social Room fireplace. At least once, when the kitchen staff was unable to get to school because of snow, she commandeered a staff of "volunteer" students, and with her as chief cook, saw to it that 130 students did not miss breakfast or lunch. When young female students were being courted they were allowed to entertain their gentlemen callers in the Social Room; the most popular spots were the darker alcoves on the front side of the room. Miss Ruth, however, regularly patrolled the room when it was being used this way! But students always had warning she was coming their way by the way she thoughtfully jingled the large ring of keys she kept on her belt!

As an avid gardener, it was Miss Ruth who planted a large ring of tulips at the rear of the Social Room and kept it weeded and fertilized.

Years later, even after she retired, Miss Ruth continued to make the newspapers. On the day before her 75th birthday in 1959, she sold her '41 Chevy, saying, "That's what I said some time ago. When I reach 75, I'm not going to drive again.... I did feel attached to the car, but when you get 75, you are too old to operate a car.... Anyway, it will be cheaper to go by taxi. I figured it out."

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Math Club Meeting

The next meeting of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA) will be held on Thursday, October 8, at 3:45 p.m. in the seminar room at the Power Building. MAA members will be voting on the revisions made to the constitution. Members with comments, questions or suggestions must come to the meeting.

There is a copy of the revised constitution on the MAASC bulletin board in the Power Building; anyone who would like a copy should leave a note with the return address in Celeste Jordan's mailbox, also in the Power Building. There will be other upcoming events discussed also. Everyone is welcome to come and refreshments will be served.

Those who cannot make the Math Club meetings and would like to know about its activities should leave a note in one of the officer's mailbox—leave address and, if available, VAX account number.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

With a 3-0 blanking of Kutztown last Saturday, the Sea Gull soccer team improved to 5-1 on the season and is off to its best start since 1970, when the Gulls began the year 6-0. Keith Wehr, Scott Talley and Willie Morris netted goals for SSU while Brian Polczynski made six saves to record his second straight shutout and third of the season. The Gulls were ranked 10th in the South Region last week, and hope to move up in this week's poll based on their 2-0 performance last week that also included a 1-0 shading of Johns Hopkins. SSU has won five straight since an opening-day loss and visits 1990 national champion Rowan College (ex-Glassboro) on Saturday evening.

The volleyball team finished in a tie for third place in its Gull Classic Tournament last weekend, losing to Allentown in the semifinal round. Catholic won the tournament with a championship match victory over Allentown. The Gulls, 7-7 on the season, finished 3-1 in the tournament, having notched wins over Lincoln, Mary Baldwin and Catholic in the round-robin competition.

The men's and women's cross country teams both posted strong performances in last Saturday's Goucher College Invitational. Led by Tim Smith, who won the individual championship with a time of 29:05, the men captured first place in the six-team field. Matt Piotrowski was fourth, Greg Spencer was sixth and Joel Carrier was seventh. The Sea Gull women finished second in their competition, edged out by Catholic. Dorothy Dean was SSU's top finisher in fourth place, while Vicky Crouse was sixth and Penny Davis, 11th.

The field hockey team split a pair of home contests last weekend, blanking Frostburg 3-0 and losing to Ithaca 1-0. Kristen Guttilla, Edie Matthews and Lauren Van Devissor scored against Frostburg. SSU is 5-2 overall.

The football team fell to 1-2 on the year with a 31-14 loss at Frostburg last week. RB Damon Fayall, making his first start, rushed for 95 yards and one touchdown while WR Shawn Powell caught seven passes for 112 yards and one TD to lead the offense. Powell's score came on a perfect 85-yard pass and run hookup with QB Len Annetta. The Gulls visit Guilford this Saturday, looking to avenge last year's 20-0 loss to the Quakers.

Math Department, Club Sponsor Contests

The Math Department and the Mathematical Association of America, student chapter, are sponsoring two contests this semester.

The first is sponsored by Virginia Tech and takes place Saturday, October 31. The last day to sign up for the contest is Saturday, October 3. Please see Dr. Carla Schultes for details. The contest features a cash prize and a chance to receive a graduate assistantship at Virginia Tech.

The Mathematics Department is holding the 53rd annual William Lowell Putnam Mathematical Competition, designed to stimulate students interested in mathematics and to test originality as well as technical competence.

The competition is on Saturday, December 5. For additional information contact Schultes at 543-6148.

Fall Nature Walk At Pemberton Park

On Saturday, October 3, explore Pemberton Historical Park with naturalist and author, John Dennis. Search for signs of the season in the varied habitats of the park. Bring binoculars and wear walking shoes.

All ages are welcome; children must be accompanied by an adult. The walk begins at 10 a.m. in the parking lot at Pemberton Park and lasts one to two hours. Advance reservations are required and a $2 per person fee will be charged (payable at the beginning of the program).

To make reservations or for more information, call the Wicomico County Department of Recreation and Parks at 548-4900.

Math Club Sets Meetings, Picnic

The Math Club hosts its next meeting on Thursday, October 8, in the Power Building, room 117.

Its fall picnic is on Saturday, October 3, at 2 p.m. at Dr. Kathleen Shannon's house. Directions will be posted on the bulletin board in the Power Building. Those needing a ride to the picnic please contact one of the officers.

The MAA Sectional Meeting is Saturday, November 14, in Baltimore. If interested in going please contact Shannon.

If interested in the Putnam Exam, contact Dr. Carla Schultes at 543-6148.

Baptist Student Retreat Scheduled in Baltimore

A "Fall Retreat for College Students" will be held October 9-11 at University Baptist Church in Baltimore.

Sponsored by the SSU Baptist Student Ministries, interested students should bring the $10 registration fee to one of the group's weekly meetings before October 2. Weekly meetings are held each Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Baptist Student Center on 309 W. College Ave.

Total cost of the weekend is $48. For more information call Lynn at 749-7069 or Gretchen at 546-9174.

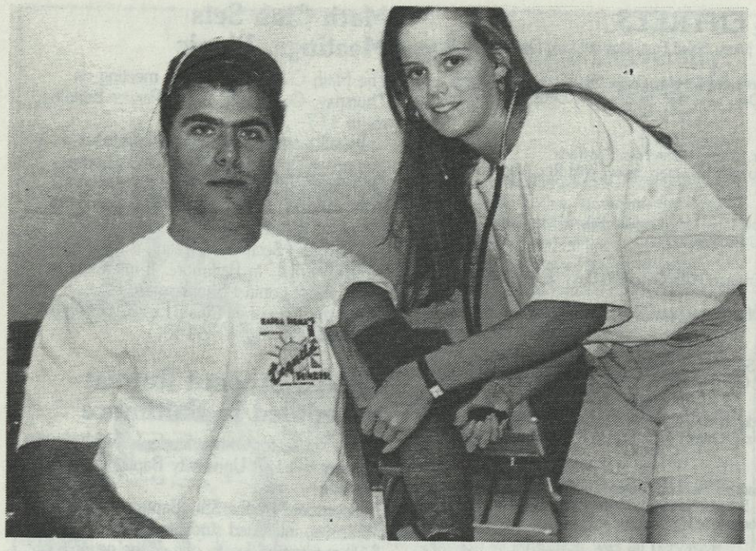
the students the practical experience that they otherwise likely would not receive," said Dr. Kashi Khazeh, associate professor of finance and faculty advisor to the Financial Management Association (FMA) in SSU's Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

The FMA student chapter at SSU and Perdue School along with Peninsula Bank sponsored last year's Investment Challenge to reduce the registration fee to students.

Charlene Elliot, a senior majoring in accounting was SSU's top ranked participant in the 1991-92 AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge. Elliott parlayed a fictional investment of $500,000 into nearly $790,000 worth of stock during a four-month trading period. Her $290,000 profit placed her in the upper 2 percent of 14,000 students nationwide and earned her a free trip to the New York Stock Exchange, American Stock Exchange and The Federal Reserve Bank in New York.

The event was developed by Wall Street Portfolios, a division of Replica Corporation. Replica, no stranger to interactive competitions, produces and manages the CNBC/USA TODAY National Investment Challenge, another investment simulation conducted quarterly. The company also provides investment training for several prominent firms.

Educators and students interested in the fifth annual AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge should call Ken Sylvester, president of FMA, at 548-3911, or Wall Street Portfolios at 1-800-545-1972, ext. 12, for further details about participating. The cost is $49.95 per person. Registrations will be accepted until October 30.



The Physical Education Society will offer free blood-pressure screenings at the American Heart Walk which will begin at 9 a.m., Saturday, October 3, at the Centre of Salisbury. Shown is Kathleen Tirenan, a senior from West River, MD, checking the blood-pressure of Richard Marinucci, a senior from Cherry Hill, NJ. For more information on the Heart Walk call the American Heart Association at 742-4343.

A National Association for Campus Activities 1992 National Entertainment Award nominee, the African American Drama Company is the nation's most extensively toured, privately owned black theatre, with performances in some 46 states from Alaska to Florida, Hawaii to Maine. In its 15th national touring season, AADC is on touring programs for California, South Carolina and the western United States and is listed in the AETNA 1992 "Calendar of African-American History."

"...Brother?" is the company's flagship production combining dance, drama, poetry, storytelling, puppetry, letters, speeches and music to depict a chronology of black leaders. Entertaining, informative and inspirational, the show highlights such extraordinary leaders as Booker T. Washington, W.E.B. DuBois, Frederick Douglass, High John, Malcolm X and Martin Luther King, Jr. to name a few. The show is part of the PBS-TV series "Arts Alive" and a second edition of the play in book form was released last February, published by That New Publishing Company.

The play is performed by Walker, whose acting credits include Francis Ford Coppola's "Peggy Sue Got Married," with Academy Award nominee Kathleen Turner, the Lucus Film Ltd. Movie "Howard the Duck", ABC-TV's "Fortune Dane" with Carl Weathers and the cable TV movie "Nightfeeder." Walker has performed in a national commercial for Metropolitan Life Insurance, in John Cassavettes' CBS-TV film "Flesh & Blood," NBC's "The Duke" with Robert Conrad and the Italian feature film "Save the Last Dance for Me."

With a Loyola University of Chicago B.A. in theatre, a theatre history/criticism M.A. from the University of Illinois-Urbana and a University of California-Davis M.F.A. in acting, he has been on the stages of Kuumba Theatre of Chicago, the Tony Award-winning San Francisco Mime Troupe and the Missouri Summer Repertory Theatre. With some seven years college teaching experience, Walker served as chairman of Fisk University's Dramatics and Speech Department.

Walker was recently appointed to the National Planning Committee for the Association of American Cultures' Leadership 2000 economic independence project and was also selected as a multicultural advisor for the Western Alliance of Arts Administrators' long range planning committee.

"Can I Speak For You Brother?" is directed by Dr. Ethel Pitts Walker, a theatre veteran. Having earned her Ph.D. from the University of Missouri-Columbia, Walker has taught at Lincoln (MO) University, the University of Illinois-Urbana, Southern (LA) University, Laney (CA) College, the University of California at Berkeley and Wayne State University of Detroit; she is now associate theatre professor at San Jose (CA) State University.

Her directing credits include AADC's touring production "High John De Conqueror-the musical" by Obie Award-winning playwright Ed Bullins, "No Exit," Lysistrata," "A Hat Full of Rain," "Take A Giant Step," "Purlie Victorious," "Tales of Blackfolk," "When the Jumbie Bird Calls" premiere and "To Be Young, Gifted and Black." Recently appointed to the California Educational Theatre Association Board, Ethel Walker was a two-term founding president of the Black Theatre Network.

computer lab workers, they can work their way up from a student monitor position to a student consultant and, eventually, to a student manager. By the time they're ready to graduate, they have accumulated on-the-job experience with computers, helping other students and managing some of the less experienced workers. "When they leave here, they're ready for the working world," Ziegler said.

Likewise, students that work for horticulture may start out mowing grass and pulling weeds, but they can end up doing more specialized jobs such as growing plants from cuttings and seed in the greenhouse and balling and burlapping trees, Langelo said.

Generally, students involved in the work experience program have higher grade point averages, according to Morris. "It imposes another discipline on them," he said. "There's often an esprit de corps in the various departments and sometimes the employers become like parents. All of these things contribute."

The arrangement is beneficial to the University as well because the students, unlike full-time adult workers, receive no fringe benefits and that means a 35-percent savings, Morris said. Additionally, hiring students to fill certain jobs, particularly in the dining hall, means the University doesn't have to lay off adult workers in the summer.

The base pay for most jobs is minimum wage, $4.25 an hour, but students are paid according to their experience and can earn up to $7 an hour in some positions. Morris said the University tries to pay above minimum wage in most cases to stay competitive with outside employers.

However, outside employment is not so easy to find these days. A few years ago, fast food restaurants near SSU were competing for high school and college workers, but a lot of those jobs now are filled with adults who have been laid off from other jobs, Morris said.

For most students, though, campus jobs are preferred. "I can work around my classes — that's a major bonus," said Danny Crumm, who's worked three semesters on the horticulture crew. "And it beats the heck out of wrapping hamburgers."

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

Fusaro, Ference Distinguished Faculty Award Recipients

Two faculty members who are blazing new trails in their respective fields have been honored by their colleagues at the University. Dr. Bernard A. (Ben) Fusaro, one of the creators of environmental mathematics, and Dr. Gregory Ference, who is emerging as a leader in the relatively new field of Slavic studies, are the 1992 recipients of the Distinguished Faculty Award.

Each year the honorees are selected by their fellow SSU faculty members for their achievements in three areas: serving students through teaching and advising, serving their academic fields through professional development and contribution, and service to the community.

Dr. C. Phillip Bosserman chaired the awards committee this year and also chaired the Faculty Welfare Committee when the award was instituted in 1986-87. "We wanted to honor colleagues," he explained, "whom we sense have made real accomplishments in carrying out their responsibilities as faculty members."

Bosserman added that, personally, he was pleased to see the honors go this year to a relative newcomer, Ference, and to one of SSU's "elder statesmen," Fusaro.

Although he has been teaching mathematics at SSU for nearly 20 years, Fusaro said, "I don't think of myself as elder or statesman." As he works to raise the environmental consciousness of his fellow mathematicians, he finds himself in the role of rebel, at the same time benefiting from his years of experience with the Mathematical Association of America (MAA). In a field that traditionally has resisted change, Fusaro has earned a reputation as a pioneer. His creation of the Mathematical Contest in Modelling, challenging undergraduates to apply what they have learned to "real world" problems, has won him the gratitude of the

Four Athletes Added To SSU Hall of Fame

SSU inducts its newest members to the Athletics Hall of Fame on Friday, November 6, as part of its Homecoming weekend. The four new inductees are Ron Gore, class of '69, Gene Hawke, class of '76, Linda Ralph Budd class of '79, and Jerry McGinty class of '82.

Gore was a two-sport star, playing both soccer and basketball from 1965 to 1969. In soccer, he was a standout goaltender for Coach Benn Maggs' team, leading the Gulls to the Delaware Valley Conference championship with a 7-2-3 record as a senior. It was as a basketball player that he left his biggest mark, however, standing as SSU's fifth all-time scorer and third all-time rebounder.

Hawke was also a two-sport athlete, although his primary exploits were in track and field. Hawke was a four-time track All-American, and still holds four Sea Gull records: high jump, javelin, pentathlon and decathlon. He also held the triple jump and long jump records at one

Environment Conference Has Array of Speakers

What will we teach the next generation about protecting the environment? How will we teach them?

A day-long conference called "The Environment: Our Common Ground" will examine these and other environmental issues Monday, October 19. The conference is being sponsored by the Nanticoke Watershed Alliance, the Faculty Development Committee and the Academic Vice President's Office. The conference begins at 9 a.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

Drs. Charles E. Cipolla and Bernard A. Fusaro, organizers of "The Environment: Our Common Ground," have planned a series of speakers and video presentations. Representative Wayne Gilchrest and environmental experts from Maryland and Delaware, as well as from the National Park Service and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation are among the featured speakers.

The day will begin with James O'Connor, who will discuss "An Environmental Education Program at SSU." A faculty panel discussion of the same topic will follow.

O'Connor, a professor of economics and sociology and an adjunct professor of environmental studies at the University of California Santa Cruz, plans to stress the importance of an interdisciplinary approach to studying the environment.

"Anyone seriously engaged in environmental studies, from any perspective, should be well grounded in environmental history: in the impact of human beings, specifically through labor, on nature, combined with nature's own economy," he said. "The world is all second nature now: there is very little first nature left, not even in the Rain Forest. You can't talk about the environment without knowing the ecological and sociological processes by which humans change nature and ecological science, which is always changing" through natural phenomenon.

While O'Connor acknowledges that many of his views are controversial — his approach to environmental studies is well thought out and scientific.

The afternoon session, which the public is encouraged to attend, will focus on the Nanticoke Watershed Alliance's concerns and works on the Nanticoke River, with presentations by the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Maryland's Office of Greenways and Resources Planning, the National Park Service and the Delaware Department of Natural Resources.

"The Environment: Our Common Ground" will close with a 7:30 p.m. address by First District Congressman Wayne Gilchrest. The congressman will discuss "Environmental Education and Public Policy." His presentation is open to the public and will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Tom Horton, environmental columnist for the Baltimore Sun, will be the speaker at a dinner for environmental leaders. Anyone interested in attending the dinner should send their reservations and $12.50 to Dot Goetz, 811 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801, prior to October 12.

For additional information contact the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Homecoming Nominations For King and Queen

Nominations for homecoming king and queen will be accepted October 6-9 at the Dining Hall from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and at Caruthers Hall from 1-3 p.m. Nominate your favorite junior or senior to receive this honor. Remember students must have an I.D. to enter a nomination.

SGA Meeting Set

On Sunday, November 18 at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke A Room of the Guerrieri University Center the Student Government Association will hold a meeting. All are welcome to attend.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Columbus Poster Exhibit In Atrium Gallery

"Seeds of Change: 500 Years of Encounter and Exchange," a poster exhibit commemorating the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, will be on display October 2-22 in the Atrium Gallery at Salisbury State University.

The exhibit focuses on the exchange of plants, animals and people resulting from Columbus' voyages. Five "seeds"—corn, potatoes, diseases, horses and sugar—form the core of this poster exhibit which tells the story of 500 years of encounter and exchange between Europe and the Americas.

This exhibition is based on "Seeds of Change," a quincentenary exhibition developed by the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. Carolyn Margolis, assistant director of the museum's Quincentenary Programs, will discuss the exhibit at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 20, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The Atrium Gallery is located in the Guerrieri Center. It is open 11 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon-4 p.m., Sunday. The gallery is free and open to the public.

Graduate School Recruiter For Social Work Here

A representative of the University of Maryland School of Social Work in Baltimore will be on campus to distribute applications and answer questions about the Master's in Social Work degree program.

Nancy Wilson will be in Caruthers Hall, room 272, at 2:20 p.m. on Monday, October 19. She will describe the M.S.W. program in Baltimore and the extension program on the Eastern Shore. The presentation will be of particular interest to social work majors but admission to the M.S.W. program is open to graduates of other majors such as psychology and sociology. Social work majors, however, may be eligible for advanced standing.

Students interested in attending graduate school next fall should be aware that UMAB has a deadline for completed applications of February 15. Those who cannot attend the session should call Wilson for an appointment at a later date at 226-5330.

Shadow Day Needs Volunteers

A child who has never been exposed to a dream can't dream that dream. Shadow Day II is envisioned as a program to bring high school students into contact with adults in various walks of life, showing them that staying in school, developing good skills and habits, and pursuing a career dream are viable options in life.

On Monday, November 9, SSU will join with other state agencies to host Shadow Day II. On this day, area high school students will spend a morning at SSU "shadowing" state employees and learning about their jobs. Each student will be matched one-on-one with an employee.

Those who would like to volunteer to be a mentor on Shadow Day II should contact Linda Benson at 543-6070 by October 8. There will be a briefing on Monday, November 2, to let participants know what to expect and provide helpful hints. Participants will meet their "shadow" at a brief orientation at 8:30 a.m. on November 9, then spend the morning together on the job. Employees and their shadows will cap off the morning with a group lunch.

SSU Staff Named To UMS Advisory Board

In response to a charge given to University of Maryland System Chancellor Donald Langenberg at the June 5 meeting of the Board of Regents, the first Council of University Staff was formed.

The council is to function as an advisory board to the chancellor. Presidents at the UMS institutions were asked to appoint the initial representatives of the council from classified and non- classified staff. SSU representatives are Linda Abresch, Mathematics and Computer Science Department, and Jerry Waldron, associate registrar.

Abresch and Waldron will be meeting monthly as part of the advisory group and would be happy to hear employee concerns. The first order of business for the council will be the pay study's recommendation for redirection of COLA (cost of living adjustment) funds.

Sociological Society Invites New Members

The Sociological Society will hold its first meeting of the year on Thursday, October 15, at 1 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. Suggestions for programs for the semester will be discussed including a panel discussion on a current issue, a career night, a grad school workshop and a newsletter about recent graduates.

The club encourages sociology majors, students taking any sociology courses and anyone with an interest in sociology to attend.

Alcoholics Anonymous meets Sundays at 8:30 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Group consensus determines the format of the open meeting. Anyone with a sincere desire to stop drinking or to learn more about AA is welcome. For more information, please call 543-6309.

SADD Meeting

Students Against Drinking and Driving meets Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 132. Lots of fun and creative activities are in the process of being planned including participation in MADD's Chocolate Festival and National Collegiate Awareness Week programming. Everyone is welcome. For more information, please call 543-6309.

Marketing Association Schedules Meeting

There will be an American Marketing Association meeting on Tuesday, October 13, in Holloway Hall, room 114, at 3:30 p.m. All those interested should attend. All majors are welcome. Questions can be addressed to Tami Perron, AMA president, 546- 4007 or write box 3002.

Biblical Readings, Religious Traditions Subject of Lecture

Dr. Susan Handelman will be here on October 28-29 as a Fulton School Visiting Scholar under the auspices of the Philosophy Department.

As part of Handelman's visit, the public is invited to attend her lecture on Wednesday, October 28, titled "Love, Play, Laughter and Language" at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room (the old Ward Wildfowl Museum) of Holloway Hall. The lecture explores alternative readings of a Biblical passage.

Her lecture would be highly informative for anyone interested in the rich tradition of biblical reading that characterizes Jewish thinking, as well as for those interested in the relevance of religious tradition for contemporary thinking.

Handelman has been acclaimed for her ground breaking work in literary theory. In developing her ideas she has contributed to a contemporary appreciation for the psychological, philosophical, historical and religious dimensions of both sacred and literary texts. Her latest book, "Fragments of Redemption," poses the question of how messianic hope disrupts the violence of war that has been so characteristic of history.

Faculty and students are also invited to meet with Handelman on Thursday, October 29, at 3:30 p.m. in room 119 of Holloway Hall where she will give a talk on how her ideas concerning the reading of literary texts have influenced her notion of pedagogy. She will be particularly interested in developing how the learning situation is a function of an "addressing" of teacher by student and student by teacher.

Lecture Analyzes the Film 'Woyzeck'

An illustrated lecture on Werner Herzog's film "Woyzeck" will be presented by Dr. Victoria M. Stiles at 7 p.m. on Thursday, October 29, in Devilbiss Auditorium.

Herzog based his film on Georg Buchner's 1836 play of the same name which was considered to be the first truly modern play and 50 years ahead of its time. The film version stars Klaus Kinski and will be shown on Tuesday, October 27 at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium.

Reviewing for "Newsweek," Jack Kroll wrote that Herzog's film "is much better than any staged 'Woyzeck' I've ever seen." Vincent Canby of "The New York Times" found it "brilliantly clear and profoundly eerie," claiming "the after-image is even more vivid than the original."

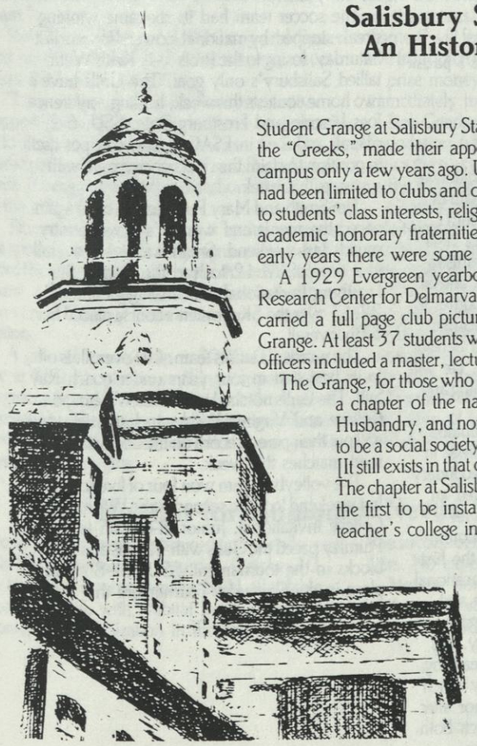
Stiles is an associate professor of German at SUNY Cortland. A native of Hannoversch-Munden, Germany, she earned her Ph.D. from Cornell University. She teaches both German and cinema studies and has published articles on the writer Max Frisch and film directors Fritz Lang and Werner Herzog.

Stiles has published translations, from German to English, of articles on Yugoslav politics. She has been active in the Central New York American Association of Teachers of German. She serves as an officer of the Literature/Film Association and as a contributing editor of "Literature/Film Quarterly" published at SSU.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6100 or 543-6446.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"Student Grange"
by Sylvia Bradley



Student Grange at Salisbury State Sororities and fraternities, the "Greeks," made their appearance on Salisbury State's campus only a few years ago. Until then, social organizations had been limited to clubs and organizations generally related to students' class interests, religion or hobbies, or to national academic honorary fraternities. However, in the school's early years there were some rather unusual organizations.

A 1929 Evergreen yearbook recently donated to the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at SSU carried a full page club picture and article on the Student Grange. At least 37 students were members that year, and officers included a master, lecturer, secretary and treasurer.

The Grange, for those who might not know today, was a chapter of the national group, the Patrons of Husbandry, and normally was and is considered to be a social society for rural, agricultural families. [It still exists in that capacity around the nation.] The chapter at Salisbury State Normal School was the first to be installed in any normal school or teacher's college in the nation.

Since the teachers being trained at SNS were going to teach in rural schools, they felt they "should know about those factors which help toward the ideal country life." Also, according to their own stated mission, the Grange provided the "opportunity for the development of latent talent. The Normal School will long remember the dramatic skill of the cast in 'The Voice of Authority'...." The faculty sponsor of the Student Grange was SNS Principal [President] William Holloway.

Weather Conditions During Columbus' Voyage Discussed in Series

"Weather Luck of Columbus" will be part of a series of presentations in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture, by Dr. Randall S. Cerveny of the Arizona State University's Geography Department, will be held Thursday, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The log of Columbus' first voyage to the New World in September 1492 provides information on the meteorological conditions. The pilots on board the three ships described calms they encountered during the voyage, but Cerveny concludes that Columbus' experience with calm seas is significantly higher than most liberal estimates of calms in the North Atlantic over the past 100 years. Was Columbus lucky to escape bad storms during hurricane season or were other factors involved?

This topic was addressed in a paper Cerveny wrote and presented to the 87th National Meeting of the Association of American Geographers in April as well an article in the February issue of the Bulletin of the American Meteorological Society. An associate professor of geography at Arizona State, Cerveny is the author of numerous articles on meteorology and climatology.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Alcohol, Drug Prevention Services Available on Campus

The Drug and Alcohol Prevention Resource Center is located on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (over the Book Rack).

The center provides a variety of prevention and education services to the campus community in support of academic study and co-curricular activities and to residents of the nine counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland involved in prevention efforts. The Center houses a library of videotapes, prevention curricula, resource guides, pamphlets, reference texts and other materials related to alcohol and other drug use and abuse. These materials are available for loan.

In addition, Center staff provide consultation and technical assistance to develop skills, knowledge and resources for the community, school-based and campus prevention efforts. Specific programs, peer education efforts and guest lectures regarding alcohol/drug issues can be arranged. Resource and referral information regarding local, state and national agencies involved in providing related services is available.

For more information regarding any of the services of the center please call 543-6309.

'Women Empowering Women' Title of Conference

The University of Maryland System Women's Forum has announced its third annual conference, "Women Empowering Women."

Minority Affairs Sponsors 'Gender Issue' Talk

Dr. Spencer Holland, director of The Center for Educating African American Males at Morgan State University, will discuss "Gender Issues in Human Development" on Monday, October 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. His lecture is part of the Visiting Scholars Program of the Office of Minority Affairs at Salisbury State.

Holland's major area of concern and work is in the education and socialization of inner city children, especially African-American males. In 1988 he developed and implemented a unique male role model program, Project 2000, in Washington, D.C. and has since assisted in the implementation of that program in several other urban areas in the nation, including three inner city elementary schools in Baltimore.

The program trains adult male volunteers, particularly African-American men, to serve as teacher assistants in the classrooms of kindergarten through their grade teachers. Also, in collaboration with the Baltimore City Public Schools, he is currently examining the effects of that system's all-male and all-female elementary school classes, taught by same gender teachers, on the academic achievement of inner-city children.

In June 1990, Holland was appointed the founding director of The Center for Educating African American Males. Subsequent to that appointment, he served as the project director for the District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS) African Centered Curriculum Initiative and as the staff director for the DCPS Board of Education's Values Education Curriculum.

Holland began his career as a junior high school science teacher and has held administrative positions in public school systems and at the college/university level. Holland comes to SSU through a special invitation from a former colleague, Dr. Ann Taylor of the SSU School of Education and Professional Studies. He will provide a presentation to Taylor's Learning and Society class.

Holland, a New Jersey native, graduated with honors from Glassboro State College in 1965 with a B. A. in biology and secondary science education. In 1968 he received an M.A. in developmental psychology, with a concentration in early childhood, from Columbia University. In 1976, he became the first African American to earn a Ph.D. in educational psychology from the Human Learning and Cognition Branch of Columbia University's Department of Educational Psychology. His major area of concentration was social learning behavior, which studies the processes by which people imitate and model their behavior after others, and the social contexts in which both formal and informal learning take place.

Further information on Holland's visit can be obtained by calling Vaughn White at 548-4503.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The Sea Gulls recorded their most dramatic football victory in three years with a come-from-behind 14-10 win at Guilford last Saturday. Tim Feerrar caught a seven-yard touchdown pass from Len Annetta with 1:00 remaining in the game for the winner. The Gulls moved 56 yards in nine plays on the winning drive after Guilford had taken a 10-7 lead with just 4:33 left. Tom Keating's 33-yard reception on fourth down was the key play in the drive, moving SSU to the Guilford five-yard line. Annetta hit Feerrar with the winner two plays later. The Gulls (2-2) return home for the first time in four weeks this Saturday for a 1:30 game against Rowan.

The field hockey team can establish itself as a national championship contenter this Thursday when the Gulls host two-time defending NCAA champion Trenton State. SSU is 6-2-1 overall heading into the game, and is coming off a 2-2 tie at Eastern Mennonite College last weekend. Kristen Guttilla leads the squad with nine goals on the year.

The soccer team had its six-game winning streak stopped by national power Rowan last Saturday, losing to the Profs 3-1. Keith Wehr tallied Salisbury's only goal. The Gulls have two home contests this week, hosting conference foes Lincoln and Frostburg State. SSU, 6-2 overall and 1-0 in ESAC games, can put itself in position to claim the conference crown with a sweep this week.

Tim Smith and Mary Puderbaugh once again paced the men's and women's cross country squads last weekend. Smith was 14th overall in a time of 28:12 to lead the men at the Frostburg Invitational. Puderbaugh's time of 22:13 over the 5K women's course placed her 37th overall.

The women's tennis team, 4-0 overall, is off to its best start in four years under coach Ray Still. The Gulls notched wins over Washington College and Virginia Wesleyan last week, and will put their perect record on the line with three road matches this week.

The volleyball team won four of five matches last weekend to place second at the Washington College Invitational. Junior tri-captain Jenean Plumley paced the Gulls with 32 kills and 11 blocks in the tournament. SSU, 11-8 overall, plays in the Gallaudet Tournament this weekend.

The ninth annual Salisbury State Fall Golf Classic will be held Friday, October 16, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. Some 144 golfers are anticipated to participate in the tournament which raises money for the SSU Foundation. Members of the tournament committee are: (back row left to right) Tom White of Team Xerox; Roy Beauchamp of AHM-Long and Foster; and Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation; (front row left to right) Dick Young of Salisbury Brick; Ray Hudson of Mason Paper Company; and Henry Hanna, III, chair of the SSU Foundation.

Xerox Prime Sponsor of Fall Golf Classic

Some 144 golf enthusiasts are expected to tee off at the ninth annual SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 16, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

"It's competitive, it's well run, it's for an excellent cause, but, mostly, it's a real good time," said Tom White, an account executive for the Xerox Corp., who has played in the tournament several times. White, an SSU alumnus, is so impressed with the event that Xerox has agreed to be this year's prime sponsor.

"Xerox is thrilled to be in partnership with such a first class institution as Salisbury State University," said White. "The University makes such an invaluable contribution to the community—economically, socially, culturally—that we at Xerox are proud to be a part of the SSU team."

Roy Beauchamp, of AHM/Long and Foster and co-chair of this year's tournament, anticipates the field to fill quickly.

"I am very pleased with the community support given the tourney last year and expect it to be even better this time, both through participation and sponsorship," said Beauchamp. Dick Young, president of Salisbury Brick Co., is the other co-chair.

The purpose of the event is to raise support for special programs. Some programs that benefit from the event are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, the Salisbury State University Honors House and campus beautification.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $50 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the- round use, a roast beef and chicken buffet that evening and complimentary gifts.

The golfers with the low team score in the scramble format will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Awards will be given to the teams with the lowest scores for four flights, including mixed teams. Cash and merchandize prizes will be awarded for other low teams and to individuals for long drive on various holes and closest ball to the hole on par-3 holes.

The biggest individual prize will go to the golfer who scores a hole-in-one on the par 3 11th hole. Price-Buick will provide the hole-in-one golfer with the choice of a Pontiac Grand Prix or a Buick Regal.

An added competition, now in its second year, will reward players who are most adept on the greens. The "Peninsula's Purest Putter Contest" will feature 36 golfers, one representative from each foursome, vying for over $300 in prize money. The putting contest will immediately precede the regular tournament.

Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation which sponsors the tournament, views the success of the event as a great benefit to the Foundation.

Gearhart said, "Not only does the tournament help to continue our close ties with the community, but it provides needed funds for worthwhile University purposes."

The SSU Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for education, charitable and scientific purposes.

For more information on the Golf Classic call the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Habitat for Humanity Needs Volunteers

Students, teachers, employees and friends, can join SSU volunteers on Saturday, October 10, to help low-income families build affordable homes. Work with Habitat for Humanity, a non- profit organization in the Salisbury area. The success of the program depends on volunteers. No experience is necessary.

Meet in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m. or 1 p.m. For more information call Krissy Monks at 548-1976.

Consortium for Mathematics and Its Applications. Last year, within the MAA, Fusaro established a committee on environmental mathematics.

Fusaro sees many opportunities for mathematicians to become involved in solving environmental problems—undergraduates in a program in "Earth Algebra" currently under way in Georgia study the factors contributing to the build-up of carbon dioxide in the environment, for example. Still, the campaign to bring mathematics to environmental studies seems to be an uphill battle.

Just as his activities on campus spread beyond teaching mathematics, Fusaro's work for the environment extends beyond campus. As a founding member in both the Wicomico Environmental Trust and the Lower Shore Land Trust, he brings his energies to community efforts, as well.

Ference joined the SSU history faculty in 1989 and so was "shocked ... and quite pleased" to learn that he had been chosen to receive the Distinguished Faculty Award. His activities on and off campus led the committee to conclude that, in Bosserman's words, "clearly he had a marvelous year of achievement."

It was a year that culminated in Geneva, Switzerland, where during the summer Ference served as a faculty member teaching world geopolitics at the Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth. Students from the United States, Greece, Australia, Singapore and India gathered at the College du Leman in Geneva for the intense, three-week course.

Earlier in the summer, Ference was an associate of the University of Illinois Summer Research Laboratory on Russia and Eastern Europe. There, as a visiting faculty member, Ference conducted research for his continuing work on Czechoslovakia.

His own Slavic background is only part of the reason for Ference's interest in this area of world history. The fact that "Slavic studies was an area that really wasn't taught in schools much" in the past has made Ference all the more interested in pursuing his research today. A manuscript of his, recently accepted for publication, focuses on the formation of Czechoslovakia and the stories of immigrants to the U.S. from that country.

In addition, Ference was invited to present papers at a number of Slavic studies conferences last year, including the Miami meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies and at the History Forum.

Even as he earns his reputation in the history community for his work in Slavic studies, Ference is making a name on campus at SSU for his work with students. He teaches courses in history and is a popular advisor. Ference works with approximately 30 advisees assigned to him and many more on a less formal basis.

Fusaro and Ference were nominated for the award by other faculty members, then selected from a pool of candidates by a committee of past honorees. Both, according to Bosserman, "have excelled in the three areas of faculty responsibility in a balanced way."

Pay Study COLA Is Addressed

The Council of University System Staff (CUSS) held its first meeting on Wednesday, September 30, at University College in Adelphi, MD.

In addition to organizational issues, the council centered its discussion on the main principles of the Mercer Pay Study. The main issue of concern was the redirection of COLA (cost of living adjustment) funds, as recommended by Mercer to the Board of Regents. The original recommendation stated that the University staff would no longer receive any COLA adjustment and that adjustments in compensation would be based solely on merit, as defined by the Performance Management Process (PMP) evaluations.

The council unanimously approved the following recommendations to University of Maryland System Chancellor Donald Langenberg, which would maintain the disbursement of COLA funds as has been done historically: COLA funds, as provided by the State Legislature, will be distributed as they have been in prior years; and implementation of a proposed pay program will not include any provision for the redirection of COLA funds.

The council will continue to advise the chancellor concerning the position of UMS staff with regard to the proposed pay program.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, October 27. Please contact SSU CUSS representatives, Linda Abresch or Jerry Waldron, to provide input or if you have questions.

time. In addition to his track accomplishments, Hawke was a back on the soccer team and was named the team MVP as a senior.

Budd was a four-year standout in field hockey and lacrosse. She ranks ninth all-time in SSU history with 29 goals and second all-time in assists with 24. Her 53 career points places her eighth all-time. She was a four-time Southeast Region all-star selectee in field hockey, and advanced from the regional all-star team to the national squad four times.

McGinty was a two-time All-American wrestler and a key member of the powerful Sea Gull teams of the late '70s and early '80s that twice finished third in the nation. McGinty advanced to the NCAA National Championships four times, with his best finish coming as a senior when he placed second in the nation at 126 pounds. McGinty was fifth in the nation as a sophomore, and earned All-America accolades both years.

The Hall of Fame was initiated in 1985 to honor outstanding contributors to Salisbury State's athletic heritage. To be eligible for selection, an individual must have graduated from the University at least 10 years earlier. This year's class of four brings the total number of inductees to 39.

Tickets to the induction dinner and ceremony on November 6 cost $25 each and are available through the Alumni Office at (410) 543- 6042. Greg Gaston of WMDT-TV 47 will serve as master of ceremonies for this year's event.

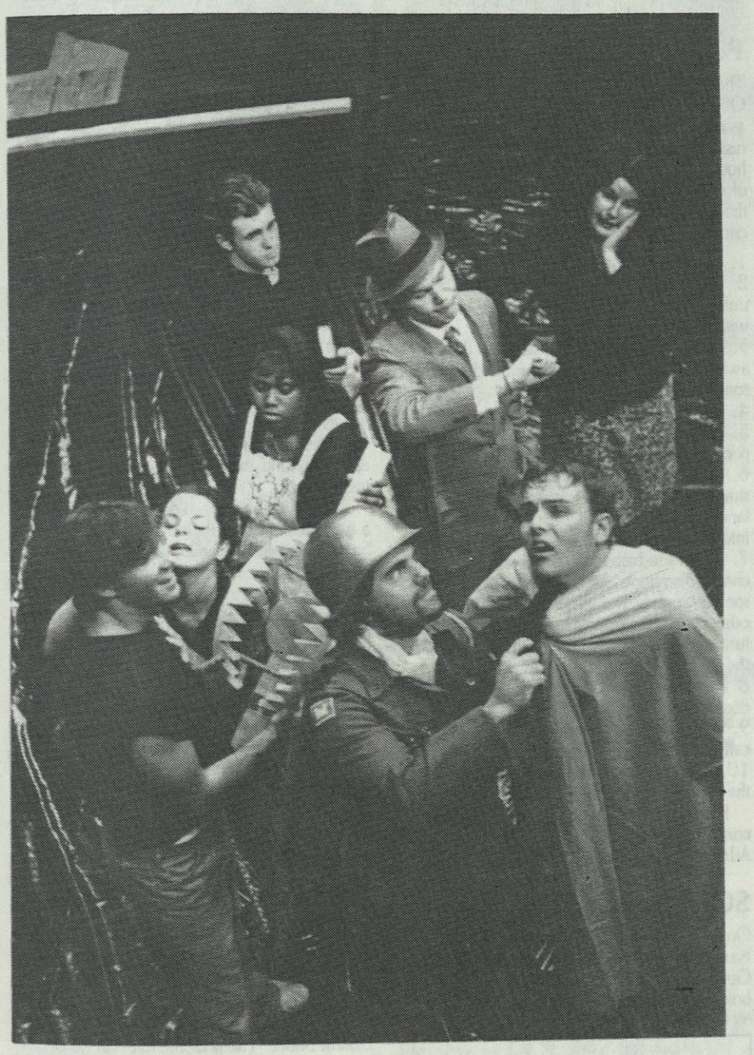
A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 15, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 7



"The Vietnamization of New Jersey," a dark comedy by Christopher Durang, will be the first theater production of the year at SSU. The play opens Friday, October 16, in the Fulton Theatre in Fulton Hall.

Satiric Post-Vietnam War Play Opens SSU Theatre Season

"The Vietnamization of New Jersey," an adult, dark comedy by Christopher Durang, will be the first theater production of the year.

The play was first produced in 1977 by the Yale Repertory Theatre and thereafter by numerous regional theater companies across the country. More than an anti-war play, it has been described as "a wildly comic and bitingly satiric study of post-Vietnam America."

While Durang subtitled the play "An American Tragedy," Dr. Andrew Hepburn, director of the SSU production, prefers to call it "a nightmarish cartoon in the grotesque, dark comedy, absurdist tradition of post World War I and World War II European theater."

In the play, Durang attacks both the pro-war "hawks" and the anti-war "doves," but he also addresses racism, the disintegration of the family and the masks of justice and compassion that people wear. Anti-war plays are evident throughout the history of theater, commencing with the Greek tragedy "The Trojan Women" by Euripides and "Lysistrata" by Aristophanes, the great comic playwright of ancient Greece. According to Hepburn, Durang's sense of the absurd is reminiscent of the outrageous, raunchy humor of Aristophanes as well as the buffoonery of commedia dell'arte.

"The Vietnamization of New Jersey" comes to Salisbury State on the eve of the 25th anniversary of the Tet offensive. It also precedes a major academic conference on the Vietnam War taking place at SSU in November.

"I chose this play because I want to get people thinking about the war before the conference," Hepburn said. "And I like the wild, outrageous comedy of Christopher Durang."

The SSU production stars Stacy Pushkar, David Hyland, David Kilkeary, Diane Jackson, Alex Ulrich, Kate Turner-Walker, Chris

WSCL Seeks Larger 'Country Music' Audience

The signal of Delmarva's public radio station, 89.5 FM, WSCL, covers more of the peninsula than any other radio station and WSCL is working to enlarge its audience.

"The WSCL signal stretches from Chincoteague, VA, to the C & D Canal, and from the Delaware and Maryland beaches to Annapolis," Fred Marino, general manager, said. "That's a larger coverage area than any other station on the Shore, and it imposes a special obligation on us...an obligation to meet the needs of an entire region's residents."

WSCL's schedule of classical music and in-depth news and information is broadcast to the peninsula 24 hours a day.

"We offer the ultimate 'Country Music,'" Marino said, referring to the station's campaign for new listeners, "the 'Country Music' of the world, of Russia and Germany and Italy and, of course, America. Add the reporting of National Public Radio and the worldwide resources of Monitor Radio, and you have a service that has attracted a large and growing audience ever since WSCL signed on in 1987."

That audience apparently approves of what it hears on 89.5 FM. The number of listeners who contribute to the support of WSCL has risen steadily. Marino said the WSCL "Country Music" campaign is designed to introduce 89.5 to new listeners across Delmarva, to attract new contributors and to continue to improve and expand the services of Delmarva's public radio station.

Environment Conference Has Array of Speakers

What will we teach the next generation about protecting the environment? How will we teach them?

A day-long conference called "The Environment: Our Common Ground" will examine these and other environmental issues Monday, October 19. The conference is being sponsored by the Nanticoke Watershed Alliance, the Faculty Development Committee and the Academic Vice President's Office. The conference begins at 9 a.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

Drs. Charles E. Cipolla and Bernard A. Fusaro, organizers of "The Environment: Our Common Ground," have planned a series of speakers and video presentations. Representative Wayne Gilchrest and environmental experts from Maryland and Delaware, as well as from the National Park Service and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation are among the featured speakers.

The day will begin with James O'Connor, who will discuss "An Environmental Education Program at SSU." A faculty panel discussion of the same topic will follow.

The afternoon session, which the public is encouraged to attend, will focus on the Nanticoke Watershed Alliance's concerns and works on the Nanticoke River, with presentations by the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Maryland's Office of Greenways and Resources Planning, the National Park Service and the Delaware Department of Natural Resources.

"The Environment: Our Common Ground" will close with a 7:30 p.m. address by First District Congressman Wayne Gilchrest. The congressman will discuss "Environmental Education and Public Policy." His presentation is open to the public and will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Tom Horton, environmental columnist for the Baltimore Sun, will be the speaker at a dinner for environmental leaders. Anyone interested in attending the dinner should send their reservations and $12.50 to Dot Goetz, 811 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801, prior to October 12.

For additional information contact the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

Alcohol, Drug Prevention Services Available on Campus

The Drug and Alcohol Prevention Resource Center is located on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (over the Book Rack).

The center provides a variety of prevention and education services to the campus community in support of academic study and co-curricular activities and to residents of the nine counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland involved in prevention efforts. The Center houses a library of videotapes, prevention curricula, resource guides, pamphlets, reference texts and other materials related to alcohol and other drug use and abuse. These materials are available for loan.

In addition, Center staff provide consultation and technical assistance to develop skills, knowledge and resources for the community, school-based and campus prevention efforts. Specific programs, peer education efforts and guest lectures regarding alcohol/drug issues can be arranged. Resource and referral information regarding local, state and national agencies involved in providing related services is available.

For more information regarding any of the services of the center please call 543-6309.

AA Meetings

Alcoholics Anonymous meets Sundays at 8:30 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Group consensus determines the format of the open meeting. Anyone with a sincere desire to stop drinking or to learn more about AA is welcome. For more information, please call 543-6309.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SGA Meeting Set

On Sunday, October 18 at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke A Room of the Guerrieri University Center the Student Government Association will hold a meeting. All are welcome to attend.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Tylenol Scholarship Available at Retailers

The Tylenol Brand Scholarship Fund is awarding 10 $10,000 scholarships and 500 $1,000 scholarships. Each scholarship will be awarded to a student based on leadership demonstrated in academics, school activities and/or community activities.

Students can pick up applications at participating retailers. Special in-store displays promote the scholarship offer and provide applications. Scholarship applications must be postmarked no later than November 15.

Columbus Poster Exhibit In Atrium Gallery

"Seeds of Change: 500 Years of Encounter and Exchange," a poster exhibit commemorating the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, is on display through October 22 in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center.

The exhibit focuses on the exchange of plants, animals and people resulting from Columbus' voyages. Five "seeds"—corn, potatoes, diseases, horses and sugar—form the core of this poster exhibit which tells the story of 500 years of encounter and exchange between Europe and the Americas.

The exhibition is based on "Seeds of Change," a quincentenary exhibition developed by the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. Carolyn Margolis, assistant director of the museum's quincentenary programs, will discuss the exhibit at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 20, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

The Atrium Gallery is open 11 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon-4 p.m., Sunday. The gallery is free and open to the public.

Graduate School Recruiter For Social Work Here

A representative of the University of Maryland School of Social Work in Baltimore will be on campus to distribute applications and answer questions about the Master's in Social Work degree program.

Nancy Wilson will be in Caruthers Hall, room 272, at 2:20 p.m. on Monday, October 19. She will describe the M.S.W. program in Baltimore and the extension program on the Eastern Shore. The presentation will be of particular interest to social work majors but admission to the M.S.W. program is open to graduates of other majors such as psychology and sociology. Social work majors, however, may be eligible for advanced standing.

Students interested in attending graduate school next fall should be aware that UMAB has a deadline for completed applications of February 15. Those who cannot attend the session should call Wilson for an appointment at a later date at 226-5330.

Sociological Society Invites New Members

The Sociological Society will hold its first meeting of the year on Thursday, October 15, at 1 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. Suggestions for programs for the semester will be discussed including a panel discussion on a current issue, a career night, a grad school workshop and a newsletter about recent graduates.

The club encourages sociology majors, students taking any sociology courses and anyone with an interest in sociology to attend.

Spring Student Teaching Orientation Meeting Set

Education majors who wish to student teach during the spring semester and have completed or are in the process of completing their professional education (methods) classes are requested to attend an orientation meeting on Friday, October 23, from 10 a.m.-noon in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by November 2. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Math Club Meeting

The Math Club holds its next meeting on Tuesday, October 20, in the Power Professional Building, room 117, at 3:30 p.m. There will be a student talk with the meeting following.

The MAA Sectional Meeting is on Saturday, November 14, in Baltimore. If interested in going please contact Dr. Kathleen Shannon.

Homecoming Elections

Cast your vote in the final elections for Homecoming king and queen on November 3-6 at the Dining Hall from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and at Caruthers Hall from 1-3 p.m. Students must have their ID to vote.

Spanish Club Meeting

El Circulo Quijote, the SSU Spanish Club, is having a meeting on Thursday, October 22, at 4 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome. No Spanish experience is necessary.

Contact Eileen Anderer at 548-5887 for more information.

German Club Sponsors International Flag Project

The German Club together with the Office of the Dean of Students would like to introduce the International Flag Project to the SSU community.

The IFP will take the form of a bulletin board on the first floor of the Guerrieri University Center. Each interested person will be represented by his or her country's flag, and a plaque including name, country of origin and year of residency at SSU.

The project is designed to honor the diversity of nationalities and promote the variety of cultures on campus. All individuals are encouraged to participate.

For more information, please contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313, Office of Student Activities and Organizations, by October 16.

Halloween Costume Dance Benefits Florida International

SSU and Pepsi, Inc. are proud to announce the fourth annual Halloween Costume Dance on Saturday, October 31.

All proceeds from the event are donated to Florida International University for hurricane relief. The event is open to all students, employees and administrators.

Prizes will be awarded to the funniest, ugliest, scariest and best group costumes. There will be a contest for the best carved pumpkin and best drawn on pumpkin. All awards have been donated by local Salisbury merchants.

"SSU and Pepsi are proud to work together to help those faculty and staff of FIU restore their community," said members of the residence life staff.

'RFD' Returns; Third Anniversary October 17

"RFD-Radio Free Delmarva," the award-winning music/variety show produced at public radio station WSCL returns to the stage for its third anniversary on Saturday, October 17. The program continues to offer the widest variety of music and art available in any broadcast medium anywhere on the Delmarva Peninsula and features talent from the local area.

This month's live show features cowboy/western swing trio Fiddlestix, cabaret theme show Class Acts II, political folksinger Don Singleton and filmmaker Tara Moore. Also appearing will be regular features with horticulturalist Jean Scott, the RFD Jazz Quintet and the RFD Players with Animal Stories from Beyond the News, the story of Raisin Detra and more. The show is hosted by WSCL News Director Van Williamson.

The live show will be staged in Caruthers Auditorium from 8-10:30 p.m. The 30-minute segments taped that night will be broadcast beginning October 31. Admission to the show is $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Two goals by Eric Strumsky and one by Anthony Menegatti lifted the soccer team past Frostburg State, 3-0, last Saturday. The win improved the Gulls to 8-2 overall and 3-0 in conference games. SSU has one game remaining in the conference season, a matchup with Allentown on Saturday. A victory would clinch Salisbury's first Eastern States Athletic Conference crown since 1987.

The women's tennis team, 5-2 through last Saturday, will cap off its season with the ESAC Tournament at home on Friday and Saturday. The Gulls opened their season with four straight victories, and split a pair of conference matches on the road last weekend, beating Shenandoah and losing to Frostburg. Nikki Lee, Kris Dodson and Kathy Castelli each notched singles wins against both opponents.

The cross country teams compete at home for the first time this season when they host the Tidewater Invitational at City Park on Saturday. The men's team finished 11th of 16 squads at last week's Maryland State Championships, while the women placed eighth. Tim Smith and Mary Puderbaugh were Salisbury's top individual finishers last weekend.

The field hockey team (7-3-1) rebounded from last Thursday's narrow 1-0 loss against Trenton State with a 2-1 victory at Kutztown on Saturday. Kristen Guttilla scored her team-leading 10th of the season and Edie Matthews added her sixth to lead the Gulls. SSU returns to Pennsylvania this weekend for a game against Shippensburg.

The volleyball team (13-10) split four matches at the Gallaudet Tournament last week. Salisbury posted wins over Washington College and Maryville (TN), but fell to host Gallaudet and Methodist.

Several records went by the wayside in last Saturday's football game against Rowan, although the Gulls lost the game 43-18. Wide receiver Charlie Whalen set a single-game school record with 11 receptions, and finished the day with 196 all-purpose yards. QB Len Annetta broke his own school-records for completions and attempts, connecting on 30 of 56 passes for 274 yards. The Sea Gulls have an open date in the schedule this weekend, but return to action on October 24 with a home date against Montclair State.

McBrien Presents Super Learning Seminar

In an upcoming two-session seminar, Dr. Bob McBrien, director of SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), will teach students to use more of their brain power when studying. Participants will learn to use quick stress releasing methods to get "centered" for studying, develop a positive mindset for study concentration and utilize super learning music while studying.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, October 27 and November 3, from noon-1 p.m. The second section will take place on Wednesdays, October 28 and November 4, from 4-5 p.m. For more information, or to sign up for either section of the seminar, contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or at 543-6070.

Biblical Readings, Religious Traditions Subject of Lecture

Dr. Susan Handelman will be here on October 28-29 as a Fulton School Visiting Scholar under the auspices of the Philosophy Department.

As part of Handelman's visit, the public is invited to attend her lecture on Wednesday, October 28, titled "Love, Play, Laughter and Language" at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room (the old Ward Wildfowl Museum) of Holloway Hall. The lecture explores alternative readings of a Biblical passage.

Her lecture would be highly informative for anyone interested in the rich tradition of biblical reading that characterizes Jewish thinking, as well as for those interested in the relevance of religious tradition for contemporary thinking.

Handelman has been acclaimed for her ground breaking work in literary theory. In developing her ideas she has contributed to a contemporary appreciation for the psychological, philosophical, historical and religious dimensions of both sacred and literary texts. Her latest book, "Fragments of Redemption," poses the question of how messianic hope disrupts the violence of war that has been so characteristic of history.

Faculty and students are also invited to meet with Handelman on Thursday, October 29, at 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A and B of the Guerrieri University Center where she will give a talk on how her ideas concerning the reading of literary texts have influenced her notion of pedagogy. She will be particularly interested in developing how the learning situation is a function of an "addressing" of teacher by student and student by teacher.

Lecture Room Changed

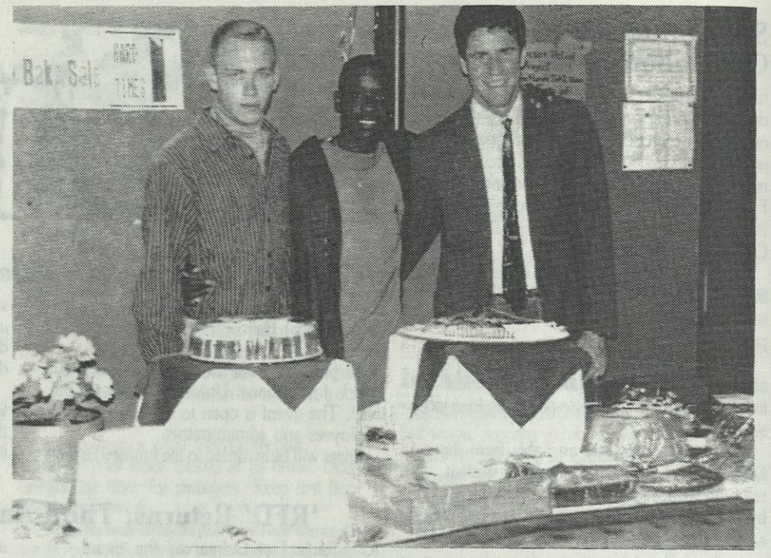
The lecture by Dr. Susan Handelman scheduled on Wednesday, October 28, has been moved to the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room A and B. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Lecture Analyzes The Film 'Woyzeck'

An illustrated lecture on Werner Herzog's film "Woyzeck" will be presented by Dr. Victoria M. Stiles at 7 p.m. on Thursday, October 29, in Devilbiss Auditorium.

Herzog based his film on Georg Buchner's 1836 play of the same name which was considered to be the first truly modern play and 50 years ahead of its time. The film version stars Klaus Kinski and will be shown on Tuesday, October 27 at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6100 or 543-6446.



Raised Dough For Hurricane Victims—The Department of Housing and Residence Life recently raised $1,200 during a celebrity bake sale which will be sent to hurricane stricken Florida International University. The baked sale goods were donated by the campus community. Teaching Assistantships

The English Department anticipates assistantships beginning fall '93 (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing M.A. in English (writing or literature option).

The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program. GRE scores will be required.

For application packets write to: Dr. William Horne, Department of English, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801, or FAX a request to (410) 543-6068. Please specify option. All requests for information must be received by November 2.

Computer Services Academic Analyst

SSU has an immediate opening for an academic analyst in the Computer Services Office.

The primary responsibilities will be to maintain software systems (compilers, SAS, SPSS, Maple, IFPS, VAXnotes, AutoCAD, Mathematica) on a VAX 4300 running VMS and DECstation 5000s running UNIX as well as support users of these systems. These systems are part of an Ethernet network. These systems must be supported in and Ethernet network using DECnet, LAT and TCP/IP protocols and gateways to external networks such as Internet and BITNET.

Secondary responsibilities will involve supporting PC and MAC labs networked using Pathworks. The applicant should be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of technological changes in the computer field. The applicant must be able to work as a team member and possess good communication skills, both oral and written. Bachelor's degree or higher in a computer related field is required. This is a permanent state position with benefits. Starting salary range is $25,000-$27,000.

All applicants must submit a letter of application, resume and a list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of at least three references, not later than November 2 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860.

Service Work Supervisor

The Physical Plant is currently accepting applications (from SSU employees only) for the position of service work supervisor.

This is a classified position with benefits. This person plans, assigns and supervises the work of a group of custodians, assisted by a service work chief, as necessary. In addition to planning, scheduling and inspecting work, this individual is also responsible for establishing and maintaining proper levels of supplies, keeping cleaning equipment operational, maintaining records and preparing reports.

Minimum qualifications include two years as a service work chief or five years experience in the housekeeping, caretaking or cleaning business, at least two years of which must have been as a supervisor. This position involves night, weekend and holiday work as needed. Starting salary is $16,562.

Interested persons should complete and turn in an application by October 26 to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Golf Classic Tees Off—The ninth annual Salisbury State Fall Golf Classic will be held Friday, October 16, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. PROJECT READ Needs Volunteers

PROJECT READ is looking for volunteers to help adults in Wicomico County learn to read or improve their reading skills. The fall workshop for training tutors will be held at the Wicomico County Free Library on Monday, October 26, Wednesday, October 28, and Wednesday, November 4. Sessions are from 6:45-9 p.m. Anyone interested in becoming a tutor is welcome to attend.

Tutors meet with students a few hours each week. Each tutor sets his or her own schedule, and may chose to work during the day, during the evening or on weekends. Most tutors and students meet at the library. The only requirements for being a tutor are that the person knows how to read and sincerely wants to help another person learn.

Approximately one out of five adults on the Eastern Shore is functionally illiterate. Right now, there are adults waiting for a tutor to help them learn.

Pre-registration for the tutor training is required. To register, or to request additional information, contact the PROJECT READ office at 749-3612 or stop by the library.

High School Teachers Attend Science Institute

The Science Weekend Institute, a continuation of the Middle School enhancement program for science teachers, is underway at Salisbury State.

Area middle school science teachers worked hard this summer learning the newest techniques, methods and hands-on learning experiences for teaching at-risk students. Now those teachers spend Saturdays learning more about designing field-based programs to further help improve the chances for at-risk students to fulfill their potential.

The teachers have received in-service workshop credits through the Maryland State Department of Education for participating in the program. On Friday and Saturday, October 2 and 3, some of the teachers attended the Johns Hopkins Space Grant Consortium Statewide conference where Dr. Ann Taylor made a presentation on the model developed for middle school science teachers. Taylor, assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies, is the project director for the program, which is funded through an Eisenhower Math and Science Grant from the Maryland Higher Education Commission.

Minority Affairs Sponsors 'Gender Issue' Talk

Dr. Spencer Holland, director of The Center for Educating African American Males at Morgan State University, will discuss "Gender Issues in Human Development" on Monday, October 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. His lecture is part of the Visiting Scholars Program of the Office of Minority Affairs at Salisbury State.

Holland's major area of concern and work is in the education and socialization of inner city children, especially African-American males. In 1988 he developed and implemented a unique male role model program, Project 2000, in Washington, D.C. and has since assisted in the implementation of that program in several other urban areas in the nation, including three inner city elementary schools in Baltimore.

The program trains adult male volunteers, particularly African-American men, to serve as teacher assistants in the classrooms of kindergarten through their grade teachers. Also, in collaboration with the Baltimore City Public Schools, he is currently examining the effects of that system's all-male and all-female elementary school classes, taught by same gender teachers, on the academic achievement of inner-city children.

"Weather Luck of Columbus" will be part of a series of presentations in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture, by Dr. Randall S. Cerveny of the Arizona State University's Geography Department, will be held Thursday, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Methods Students Attend Puppet Presentation

On Thursday, October 1, SSU methods students attended a puppet presentation conducted by Venita Southworth, a third grade teacher at The Country School in Easton. In addition to presenting ways to construct a variety of puppets, Southworth shared her puppet show version of the "The Paper Bag Princess." Those in attendance had the opportunity to make their own hand puppets and present mini-puppet shows.

Application Deadline For SWAC Grants

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is now accepting grant applications from qualifying organizations seeking financial assistance for arts programs. The required preliminary deadline for grants submission is November 20. Applications for events taking place between January 1-June 30 are eligible.

To be eligible, organizations must be incorporated, not-for-profit agencies. Organizations must show that the activity is in the field of arts, and of community benefit, is fiscally sound, has the potential for self-support in the future and is fully accessible to people with disabilities. For more information and new applications and guidelines contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

The Arts Council has two other grants programs, one of which is Community Outreach Grants. Designed to serve community arts needs in Wicomico County outside of Salisbury, these grants will encourage the development of arts programs in the county. The program has no formal deadlines. For specific information on the program, call 543-ARTS.

Also available are Director's Grants. These mini-grants are for funds of $100 or less and can be submitted at any time—there are no formal deadlines. For an easy one-page grant application contact the Arts Council.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 22, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 8

SSU's Lake Is MCEA Member of the Year

Even if you've only passed him on campus, you've probably guessed that there is more to Edward Lake than meets the eye. And you're right.

The Eastern Shore Area of the Maryland Classified Employees Association (MCEA) agrees; and on October 1 at this year's convention, they named Eddie Lake its Member of the Year. He couldn't be more proud.

The honor is especially important as it represents work he believes in. Lake has worked at SSU for 22 years and has been an MCEA member virtually from the start. In recent years, he has been an active recruiter for the MCEA. According to Area 5 Governor Carol Kelly-Nesbitt, MCEA membership on the Eastern Shore jumped 20-25 percent last year and Eddie Lake contributed considerably to the increase. But just as important is the fact that Lake is "active in the community, an outgoing person who likes to be helpful to people." That may be a description you've heard before, but in this case, it's probably an understatement.

"I just enjoy seeing people feel good," Lake said. And he enjoys it so much, he works to make it happen. On the job, as a service work foreman at SSU, his ready smile reflects not only his disposition, but a personal philosophy:

"If you smile, everybody else will smile," he said. "And if you frown, they will, too. When I get ready to come to work I try to be prepared, make sure I'm rested good and I have a good attitude. The way my mind is the way other people will be."

Lake has seen a lot in his 22 years at SSU. He's watched students go on to become successful in their careers — and return to say hello once in awhile. "And I've loved to see the University grow," he said.

In his personal life, Lake and his wife Jane have enjoyed 30 years of marriage. They have three grown children and three grandchildren. While he is proud of all of them, his face brightens when he talks about his wife. Jane Lake has been a teacher in Somerset County for 31 years. "A good teacher," he added.

And he has long understood the importance of his own work. "My father used to clean," he said. "He was a boxer and he used to clean in Crisfield ... I like what I do and I take pride in seeing the University be Number One (in state evaluations). We always win. You stay on top

Next Gallery Exhibit Features Work by Baltimore Artist

Womangarden*, one of the paintings on view at the University Gallery

The decorative paintings and collages of Baltimore artist Sheila Pritchard will be on display at the University Gallery October 27-November 22.

The Evening Sun described Pritchard as "...exuberantly expansive with her choices of mediums and styles. In addition to freely using oil, watercolor, collage and fabric, she readily shifts from the abstract to the representational."

Pritchard uses abstract swirls of color and Matisse-like bright patterns as backgrounds to her portraits of women. In her landscapes, "Pritchard's abstract softening of the representational world remains true to both what the eye sees and the heart feels," according to The Evening Sun.

Although she has been painting since 1963, Pritchard is a relative newcomer to the Maryland art scene. Her Master of Fine Arts thesis show at Towson State University in 1990 served as the first real showcase of her work. In 1991, she had a one-woman show at the Life of Maryland Gallery in Baltimore. The SSU exhibit will be her third solo exhibit.

An opening reception for the show will be held 4-6 p.m. on Tuesday, October 27. There will be a gallery "walkthrough" with the artist at 5:15 p.m.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. It is closed on Friday.

For more information, call the gallery at 543-6271.

Native Cultures Impact Part of Columbus Series

"Impact On Native Cultures" will be part of a series of presentations in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Joanne Chase, deputy director of the National Commission on American Indian, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian Housing, will be held Monday, November 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

Chase will discuss the impact Columbus' arrival had on Native American people and explain it from their perspective.

A Mandan and Hidasta Indian, Chase was born and raised in the village of Twin Buttes on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota, the daughter of a school teacher mother and rancher and former rodeo champion father.

Her roots as an activist were apparent by fifth grade when she was expelled from school for insisting a baby being drawn in an art class project be colored light brown rather than pink as the teacher instructed. Later while attending high school in Loveland, Chase was elected class president and led an unsuccessful movement to change the school mascot to something other than "Redskins."

Chase graduated from the University of New Mexico School of Law with a special concentration in Indian law. While attending UNM, she served as president of the American Indian Law students Association and was a member of the board of directors of the National Native American Law Students Association.

Longwood Gardens Bus Trip Scheduled

The Guerrieri University Center and the Horticulture Department are jointly sponsoring a bus trip for students, staff and faculty to Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, PA, on Friday, November 6. Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m. on Monday, October 26, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. The cost is $7 and does not include admission ($10). The bus leaves the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 7:30 a.m. on November 6 and returns at approximately 7:30 p.m.

The featured event, "Native Americans: Plants and People," is highlighted by the Chrysanthemum Festival which celebrates America's past with a bounty of plants. This event is showcased indoors in four acres of chrysanthemum-filled conservatories.

No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. A restaurant in the gardens is open to the public. For more information, call 543-6100.

Spring Student Teaching Orientation Meeting Set

Education majors who wish to student teach during the spring semester and have completed or are in the process of completing their professional education (methods) classes are requested to attend an orientation meeting on Friday, October 23, from 10 a.m.-noon in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by November 2. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Spanish Club Meeting

El Circulo Quijote, the SSU Spanish Club, is having a meeting on Thursday, October 22, at 4 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome. No Spanish experience is necessary.

Contact Eileen Anderer at 548-5887 for more information.

Halloween Costume Dance Benefits Florida International

SSU and Pepsi, Inc. are proud to announce the fourth annual Halloween Costume Dance on Saturday, October 31.

All proceeds from the event are donated to Florida International University for hurricane relief. The event is open to all students, employees and administrators.

Prizes will be awarded to the funniest, ugliest, scariest and best group costumes. There will be a contest for the best carved pumpkin and best drawn on pumpkin. All awards have been donated by local Salisbury merchants.

"SSU and Pepsi are proud to work together to help those faculty and staff of FIU restore their community," said members of the residence life staff.

Teaching Assistantships

The English Department anticipates assistantships beginning fall '93 (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing M.A. in English (writing or literature option).

The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program. GRE scores will be required.

For application packets write to: Dr. William Horne, Department of English, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801, or FAX a request to (410) 543-6068. Please specify option. All requests for information must be received by November 2.

Computer Services Academic Analyst

SSU has an immediate opening for an academic analyst in the Computer Services Office.

The primary responsibilities will be to maintain software systems (compilers, SAS, SPSS, Maple, IFPS, VAXnotes, AutoCAD, Mathematica) on a VAX 4300 running VMS and DECstation 5000s running UNIX as well as support users of these systems. These systems are part of an Ethernet network. These systems must be supported in and Ethernet network using DECnet, LAT and TCP/IP protocols and gateways to external networks such as Internet and BITNET.

Secondary responsibilities will involve supporting PC and MAC labs networked using Pathworks. The applicant should be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of technological changes in the computer field. The applicant must be able to work as a team member and possess good communication skills, both oral and written. Bachelor's degree or higher in a computer related field is required. This is a permanent state position with benefits. Starting salary range is $25,000-$27,000.

All applicants must submit a letter of application, resume and a list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of at least three references, not later than November 2 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860.

Service Work Supervisor

The Physical Plant is currently accepting applications (from SSU employees only) for the position of service work supervisor.

This is a classified position with benefits. This person plans, assigns and supervises the work of a group of custodians, assisted by a service work chief, as necessary. In addition to planning, scheduling and inspecting work, this individual is also responsible for establishing and maintaining proper levels of supplies, keeping cleaning equipment operational, maintaining records and preparing reports.

Minimum qualifications include two years as a service work chief or five years experience in the housekeeping, caretaking or cleaning business, at least two years of which must have been as a supervisor. This position involves night, weekend and holiday work as needed. Starting salary is $16,562.

Interested persons should complete and turn in an application by October 26 to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a general assembly meeting on Sunday, November 1, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome to attend.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Campus Play Has Many Familiar Performers

Performances of Christopher Durang's dark comedy "The Vietnamization of New Jersey" will continue through October 24 in the Fulton Theatre.

This adult satire of American life after the Vietnam War attacks both the pro-war "hawks" and the anti-war "doves" while also looking at racism and the disintegration of the family.

Directed by Dr. Andrew Hepburn, chair of SSU's Communication Arts Department, the play comes to Salisbury State on the eve of the 25th anniversary of the Tet offensive. It also precedes a major academic conference on the Vietnam War taking place at the University in November.

Included in the cast is Stacy Pushkar in the part of Ozzie Ann. A senior majoring in communication arts, Pushkar has just finished working in "Once Upon a Mattress" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" at a dinner theatre in Rehoboth Beach. She was last seen on the SSU stage in "Delores" and "The Grapes of Wrath."

Another veteran of the SSU stage, David Hyland, plays the part of Harry. He has appeared as Tom Joad in "the Grapes of Wrath," as D'Artagan in "The Three Musketeers," as Benjamin in "Love for Love" and as Stanley in "Brighton Beach Memoirs." Hyland is a senior at SSU.

David Kilkeary plays the part of Et. Also a senior at SSU, he has appeared previously in Salisbury State's "An Evening of One Acts" and "Playboy of the Western World."

Diane Jackson of Ridgely plays the part of Hazel. A sophomore majoring in psychology with a minor in dance, she has appeared in "The Grapes of Wrath" and "The Long Christmas Dinner." She is a former member of the Lady Caroline Players.

Alex Ulrich has appeared in several SSU productions in the past including "The Grapes of Wrath," "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," "Love for Love" and "The Three Musketeers." A senior majoring in communication arts, Ulrich plays the part of David in the current production.

The role of Larry is played by Chris Nazarian, a senior communication arts major who is minoring in pre-law.

Freshmen Kate Turner-Walker and Robb Keller make their SSU theater debuts in "The Vietnamization of New Jersey." Turner- Walker plays the role of Liat and Keller plays Father McGillicutty.

The repo men are played by Jim Waltz, Chuck Sabia, Greg Jewell, Marcus Henderson, Joseph Hopkins and Dave Shuhy.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday, October 16, and Saturday, October 17, and Wednesday through Saturday, October 21-24. There will be a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday, October 18. All performances are in the Fulton Theater in Fulton Hall.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and non- SSU students. Students, faculty and staff are admitted free with an I.D.

For more information, call the box office at 543-6228.

Art Exhibit, Sale in Atrium Gallery

Marson Galleries, Ltd. of Baltimore will host an art exhibition and sale on Friday, October 23, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday, October 24, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Marson Galleries which specializes in exhibits for sale has a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of approximately 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in this unique collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth, Renoir, Manet, Cassatt, Cezanne and others. A group of Civil War period prints from "Harper's Pictorial History" and a fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts are included.

There is a large group of works by such renown distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebgi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima, Saito, Cassigneul, Bourrier, Vasarely, Fanch Ledan, Quilici, Laporte and others.

Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of the Uikyo-E prints, a fine selection of reproduction posters and African-American art is also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection, answer questions about the works, the artists and the various techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited to browse through the collection.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the United States.

For more information on the sale or exhibit call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Wolinski and Meekins At Reading Conference

Drs. John Wolinski and Amy Meekins of the School of Education and Professional Studies attended the 20th annual convention of the Diamond State Reading Associated held October 9-10 at Rudder Towne in Dewey Beach, DE.

At the "Links for Literary" convention, Wolinski and Meekins presented, "Teeny Tiny Ideas for a Big Book," highlighting the use of a popular children's book, "Teeny Tiny," by Jill Bennett and Tomie dePaola. The aloud-along-alone procedure for using big bucks was reviewed. Participants were then shown a five-day plan for using "Teeny Tiny" in the classroom.

Marketing Association Has Many Activities

The SSU chapter of the American Marketing Association has great plans in the works. It is currently preparing for such events as "Professor of the Month," a coupon book, participation in Oktoberfest, annual poinsettia sales and numerous guest speakers, including Frank Perdue.

There is a meeting Tuesday, October 27, in Holloway Hall, room 114, 3:30 p.m. All those interested should attend. All majors are welcome. Questions can be addressed to Tami Perron, AMA president, at 546-4007 or write Box 3002.

Join the executive council meetings. The next one is November 2 at Perron's house (call for directions).

Columbus Series Continues, Impact on Africa Studied

"Christopher Columbus and the Impact of the Discovery on Africa and the Americas" will be part of a series of presentations in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Dr. Franklin W. Knight, director of Latin American Studies at Johns Hopkins University, will be held Tuesday, November 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

A native of Jamaica, Knight has written and edited several books including "Slave Society in Cuba During the Nineteenth Century," "The African Dimension of Latin American Societies" and "Slave Societies of the Caribbean." His analyses of Latin American and Caribbean problems have been aired on National Public Radio, the Voice of America, the British Broadcasting Corporation, "The McNeil/Lehrer Report" and many local television and radio programs. Additionally, he served as academic consultant to the television series "Columbus and the Age of Discovery: The Buried Mirror" and "Americas."

Knight is currently writing a monograph on "Spanish American Creole Society in Cuba, 1740-1840 and the Rise of American Nationalism" and editing volume III of the "UNESCO General History of the Caribbean."

A graduate of the University College of the West Indies- London, he gained both his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He joined the Johns Hopkins faculty in 1973.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Pre-Game Party

The Student Government Association will be sponsoring its first annual Homecoming pre-game party on Friday, November 6. The event takes place in Maggs Gym from 8-10 p.m. Come out and show support for the SSU football team and cheer the Gulls onto a victory.

McBrien Presents Super Learning Seminar

In an upcoming two-session seminar, Dr. Bob McBrien, director of SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), will teach students to use more of their brain power when studying. Participants will learn to use quick stress releasing methods to get "centered" for studying, develop a positive mindset for study concentration and utilize super learning music while studying.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, October 27 and November 3, from noon-1 p.m. The second section will take place on Wednesdays, October 28 and November 4, from 4-5 p.m. For more information, or to sign up for either section of the seminar, contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or at 543-6070.

Assistant Professor Philosophy Department

SSU seeks an assistant professor (instructor if A.B.D.) for an anticipated tenure-track position in the Philosophy Department, beginning next fall. Applicants will teach four courses, three preparations per semester at the undergraduate level. A small, energetic department open to a diversity of philosophical approaches, a person is sought with wide-ranging philosophical (and intellectual) interests who is an enthusiastic and deeply committed undergraduate teacher. The successful candidate will be encouraged to develop innovative courses in her/his areas of interest.

AOS is open but not political philosophy, philosophy of religion or aesthetics. In addition to a broad background in the history of philosophy, candidate's AOC should include some of the following: philosophy of the social sciences, feminist thought, non-Western philosophies, applied ethics, logic, critical thinking and the phenomenological tradition. Salary is competitive.

Non-teaching responsibilities include helping with the student philosophical society. In addition to complete dossier, please send syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and any upper level course the applicant would enjoy teaching; include, if available, a brief description of philosophical perspective. Writing sample is optional.

Candidates wishing to be considered for pre-arranged interview at eastern division meeting should have application in by December 14. Deadline for applications is January 1. Address applications to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Health Risk Assessment Set for November 17

On Tuesday, November 17, University employees will have an opportunity to again participate in a "Health Risk Assessment" on campus.

Employees can obtain a personal computer generated assessment of their lifestyle including: most important health risks; blood cholesterol level; blood pressure; value health age; strategies for improving one's lifestyle; and personal health score.

There will be two levels of screenings available. Option A (cost - $39.85) includes blood pressure screening; blood lipid profile (measures good, bad and total cholesterol levels); health risk assessment; and height/weight skeletal frame assessment. Option B (cost - $33.45) screens blood pressure and lipid profiles only.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield preferred provider members get a preferred rate of only $6.45 for Option A, and Option B is free.

For appointment times and pre-screening instructions, contact Shirley King at 548-4755.

Catering Manager

SSU seeks a catering manager to provide marketing and sales of catering services; to develop special events; and to provide creative concepts of food service. The individual generates special menus and recipes for catered events; functions as a member of the University Dining Services management team; is responsible for P&L reporting; provides overall supervision and training of catering department; and is computer literate. The successful candidate will possess a bachelor's degree or a degree from an accredited culinary school and a minimum of two years experience in quality catering.

Salary is in the mid-20s with an excellent employee benefit package including health care, dental, vision and tuition remission. Screening will begin November 2, and continue until the position is filled. Send resume to Personnel Director, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Continues Civic Duties

Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity has been a part of SSU for 15 years. During that time the brothers of SAE have been at the forefront of the organizations involved in community services.

Cleaning the streets and yards of Newtown, helping to build a park in Newtown, maintaining SSU grounds, helping with running various school events, adopting a stretch of Route 50 and aiding with a triathalon each year are just examples of Sigma Alpha Epsilon's desire to help the community. This Halloween marks the start of SAE's 15th year of service in the community. Sigma Alpha Epsilon will be conducting its fifth annual UNICEF fund drive. Any contributions to UNICEF will be greatly appreciated.

For more information or for any suggestions of more activities SAE can do for the community, please contact Brian Kalamar at 548-4058.

Esther Phillips of Loyola Federal Savings Bank presents a check for $1,200 to Dr. Robert Tardiff (center), chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department, and Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology. Loyola Federal is this year's sponsor of the SSU High School Math Contest scheduled for November 12.

Loyola Federal Sponsors High School Math Contest

Loyola Federal Savings Bank is this year's sponsor for SSU's High School Mathematics Contest scheduled for November 12. Esther Phillips, Loyola's assistant vice president and Salisbury banking center manager, recently presented a $1,200 check to Dr. Robert Tardiff, chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department, and Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology.

The Math Contest, designed to enhance mathematical activity in the secondary schools on the Eastern Shore, originated in 1984 and has been held continuously each year since that time. Last year's contest attracted 42 students from 14 high schools representing six counties in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.

The goals of the contest are to give high school math teachers and their students an opportunity to test their skills against each other, to allow students to become acquainted with the SSU campus, particularly the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, and to make the latest developments in math available to both students and teachers.

Four separate experiences are provided during the contest: students take an exam designed to challenge their mathematical abilities; teachers are invited to attend a mini-workshop in which new and stimulating ideas are presented; students and teachers attend a presentation by an SSU faculty member on a current math topic; and accomplishments of students and teachers are formally recognized during the awards luncheon.

Ference at Symposium on Czech Immigrants to U.S.

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently attended an international symposium on "The History of Czech Immigrants in the United States."

The three-day symposium covered all aspects of Czech, as well as Slovak, immigration to the U.S. and life in America (including reasons for immigration), literature and language maintenance, the role in the Czechoslovak liberation movement during World War I, Czechoslovak Jewish immigration; assimilation; and archives in the United States and abroad housing materials on the immigration of Czechs and Slovaks.

Among the American participants were authorities in their respective fields from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, Bucknell University, the College of St. Thomas, Texas A&M University and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Also participating were five scholars from Czechoslovakia representing the Ibero-American Institute of the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences, the Departments of History and Ethnology at Charles University in Prague, the Institute of Czechoslovak Army and the Naprstek Museum in Prague.

Ference gave two talks. The first presentation centered on reasons for Slovak immigration to America as compared to those of the Czechs. The Slovaks, who came to America almost exclusively for employment with the hope of returning to Slovakia to buy land, were less educated, poorer and ethnically less conscious than their Czech counterparts who arrived due to economic and political constraints with the intention of permanent settlement.

Ference's second discussion dealt with sources for the study of the Slovak diaspora focusing on the strengths and weaknesses of several major research libraries and archives in Czechoslovakia. Among those present for the conference were former U.S. Senator from Nebraska, Roman Hruska, a recognized supporter of Czech traditions, and the Archbishop of Prague, Cardinal Vlk.

The conference, including scholars from a number of countries, took place at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln and was sponsored by the Czech Heritage Collection, Archives of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln; the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Department of History; the University of Nebraska Foundation; and the Belousek Fund, a private foundation for the study of Czechs in America.

Ference was recently honored in Slovensko, a multicultural journal focusing on the European Slovaks and their relations with Overseas Slovak communities. Ference was cited as one of 26 Americans doing significant research and publication in the field of Slovak immigration. Ference appeared in the May/June 1992 issue of this journal, published in the Slovak language in Martin, Czechoslovakia, by the Matica Slovenska, a cultural institution that studies Slovaks abroad.

Fall Fund Drive In Gear at WSCL

Fred Marino, general manager of 89.5 FM, WSCL, has announced that WSCL started its annual fall fund drive on October 12. "This fall we are hoping to raise $30,000 from first-time contributors," Marino said.

"We hope to make our goal within a few days. None of us wants to interrupt WSCL's programming, but we have found that this is an important way to generate needed operational funds and at the same time involve our community in the situation," he said. Marino emphasized the importance of community support of public broadcasting, not only from the standpoint of financial support from local businesses but also individual listener support which will be vital during the fund drive.

WSCL needs to raise funds because it depends heavily on listener support. Continued classical music programming and in- depth news reporting relying increasingly on income from listeners. "Members are the lifeblood of this situation," said Marino. He explained that WSCL needs a growing membership in order to provide the services that listeners have come to expect from the regional public radio service.

The station's broadcast fundraising announcements will explain WSCL's five-tier membership system, ranging from $45 to $500, and will ask new listeners for support. In addition to the finest music and public affairs programming on Delmarva, membership benefits include a subscription to WSCL's program guide, participation in WSCL's special events, opportunities to attend receptions at WSCL and tours of the station.

Study Abroad For SSU Students

The University College of the University of Maryland has recently initiated a new program at Schwäbisch Gmünd in Germany. The program offers academic concentrations in four areas: business and managment, computer studies, contemporary German/European studies, and international studies. (Instruction is in English).

Each year two SSU students will be granted scholarships to attend for the academic year. The scholarship covers the difference between SSU tuition and Schwäbish Gmünd tuition and also covers air fare to and from Germany.

An informational meeting has been scheduled for those students interested in spending a year aborad at the Schwäbish Gmünd campus (or in other arrangements).

As part of the yearly Octoberfest program at SSU, Dr. Richard Shreck of the Office of International Programs of University College will be on campus on Thursday, October 29, from 6:30-8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, to talk to interested students and to answer questions regarding the Schwäbish Gmünd progam. His talk is co-sponsored by the German Club and the Political Science Club. Refreshments will be served.

Prep Meeting For Putnam Exam

The next Putnam practice session will be on Tuesday, October 27. Participants will be working on problem B4 from the 1982 test and problems A2 and A4 from last year's test. For more information about the Putnam Exam (to be given December 5) contact Dr. Carla Schultes or one of the Math Club officers.

Russia Study-Tour

In the middle of January Russia seems to be a cold, forbidding place, at least on the surface. But underneath it is a warm, exciting and friendly country to visit. SSU's study-tour to Russia will depart for Moscow on January 18 and return home on January 29. In Moscow participants will see the Kremlin, Red Square, Zagorsk, and take in cultural programs and museums.

In addition to visiting Moscow participants will take an overnight train ride to St. Petersburg where you'll see the Hermitage, St. Isaac's Cathedral, the Peter and Paul Fortress, Pushkin and Pavlovsk, the summer palaces of Catherine the Great and her son Paul, walk along Nevsky Prospect and attend the ballet or opera.

The tour will conclude with a full day of free time in Prague where participants will be able to visit any number of marvelous sites.

The cost of the tour, which includes travel, hotels, meals and excursions, is approximately $1,600. For more information contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6251. The study- tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU.

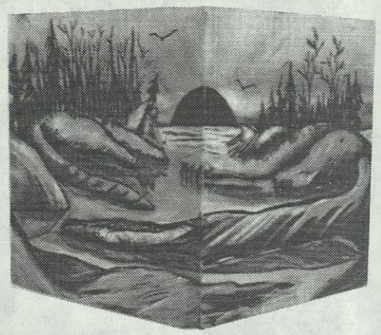
Image Transfer Workshops

Gordon Grow of the Polaroid Corporation will be conducting a pair of Polaroid Image Transfer workshops on Monday, November 2. One will be at 2:20 p.m. and a second will be at 4:30 p.m. in room 208 of Fulton Hall.

Polaroid image transfers involves exposing Polaroid film and prior to its full development, transferring the latent image to watercolor paper. Grow will demonstrate various ways the transferred image can be manipulated including the addition of pencils and paint. Polaroid image transfers have been successfully used in fine art and commercial images. Many artists consider image transfer a combination of photography, painting and drawing.

This will be a hands-on workshop. Attendants are encouraged to bring images (color slides or black and white negatives) that they would like to experiment with. Polaroid representatives will be available to answer questions on this or other Polaroid processes.

The public is invited. If interested please contact the Art Department at 543-6270 before Thursday, October 29, to reserve a spot. Attendance is limited.



Edee Brown's two-sided oil painting entitled "Let Sleeping Cats Lie." The piece won first place in the AI&G's second annual juried show.

AI&G Juried Show Artists Are Announced

Twenty-six artists from Maryland, Delaware and Virginia were selected to participate in the Art Institute and Gallery's second annual juried show, "Land, Sea & Sky."

On exhibit through November 13, the show commemorates the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. Two dimensional works in oil, acrylic, watercolor, drawing and original prints as well as three-dimensional sculpture are represented in the show. Abstract, impressionist and realistic styles can be seen.

Subject matter ranges from realistic ocean and marsh scenes to realistic and semi-realistic city scapes, and maritime instruments.

The Art Institute & Gallery, located at Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in downtown Salisbury, is open noon-4 p.m., Monday-Saturday, year round, except major holidays. A non-profit fine arts center, the AI&G produces changing exhibits and sales of original fine art by regional artists, in a wide variety of media, style and subject matter. There is also a gift shop of unique, fine arts gifts, art books, cards and stationery and jewelry. Classes for adults and children are held year round. Members receive a monthly newsletter and enjoy bus trips, opening receptions and other special events.

Pastel Drawing Workshop

A Pastel Workshop at the Art Institute and Gallery begins November 4 and meets Wednesdays from 9 a.m.-noon until November 17. Learn more about the use of color, shading and blending with instructor Gloria Young Smith.

The class is as diverse as each individual can make it. Young is also comfortable with realistic or abstract styles.

The cost is $30 for members of AI&G and $35 for non-members. For more information call 546-4748 or write: AI&G Classes, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803.

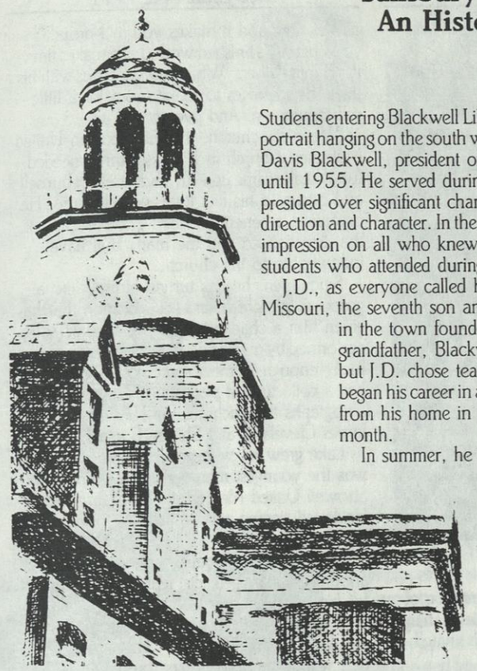
Homecoming Final Elections

Students can cast their votes in the final elections for Homecoming king and queen on November 3-6 at the Dining Hall from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and at Caruthers Hall from 1-3 p.m.

Finalists for Homecoming king are Dameon Ross, Marcus Harley, Chuck Sabia and Hugh Lamoureux. Finalists for homecoming queen are Kristen Smith, Marcia Castrence, Candace VanDyke and Tracie Kreiner. Students must have I.D.s to vote.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"J.D. Blackwell"
by Sylvia Bradley



Students entering Blackwell Library might take notice of the portrait hanging on the south wall. It is President Jefferson Davis Blackwell, president of Salisbury State from 1935 until 1955. He served during some turbulent years and presided over significant changes in the college's mission, direction and character. In the process he made an indelible impression on all who knew him, and especially on the students who attended during his tenure.

J.D., as everyone called him, was born and raised in Missouri, the seventh son and 11th child of 14 children, in the town founded by and named for his grandfather, Blackwell. His father was a judge, but J.D. chose teaching as his profession and began his career in a one-room school three miles from his home in 1906; his salary was $40 a month.

In summer, he repaired boxcars to earn expenses so that he could enter the State Teachers College at Cape Girardeau in 1908. He had earned the right to teach by passing an examination for a license and later said of that experience, "I never enjoyed anything so much as my little red school, firebuilding, sweeping, and all...." Later he taught in a city school, teaching fourth and fifth grades for $50 a month, and paying $12 for board. Later he earned a B.S. in agriculture from the University of Missouri, taught at State Teachers College in Warrensburg, MO, and moved to the Pennsylvania school system, and in 1923 became director of vocational education in Maryland. A Ph.D. from Columbia University came in 1929. When he came to take the helm at Salisbury he was expected to move the college to a four-year curriculum, to expand from that of an elementary teacher training institution, and to increase enrollment by recruiting more male students.

He did all those things. He also acquired a reputation among the students. He knew every student on a first-name basis and personally approved each and every schedule card at registration. An exceptionally moral man, he neither smoked nor drank and attended church regularly. Students respected and admired him, yet they also occasionally delighted in some good-natured teasing. In the "spring rites" tradition the men students would come to serenade the young ladies late at night; Blackwell would be waiting, give chase, usually into the peach orchard on the south campus or into the shrubbery. Sometimes Blackwell and the dean of men would literally beat the bushes with chains, sometimes give chase in Blackwell's car; but seldom were the boys caught. While alcohol was absolutely forbidden on campus, it was much more difficult to enforce such a rule. Practically every Monday morning Blackwell could be found making his round of the grounds collecting all the empty beer bottles in sight.

Take another look at the portrait the next time you pass by. Behind the very dignified face of a college president, you might see just a twinkle in the eye.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

A 3-0 victory at Allentown last Saturday clinched the Eastern States Athletic Conference championship for the men's soccer team, giving the Gulls their first title since 1987. Matt Gaines, Chris Hayes and Keith Wehr tallied goals to lead the Sea Gulls to their 10th win of the season, tying the school-record set in 1984 and 1985. Coach Gerry DiBartolo's team finished a perfect 4-0 in ESAC games, and outscored its four opponents 11-0. It marked the first time an ESAC team has finished the conference season unscored upon. The Gulls are 10-2 overall, and finish the regular season with four non-conference games. Currently ranked eighth in the South Region, SSU needs to move into the top four to advance to the NCAA postseason tournament.

Kristen Guttilla's three-goal, two assist afternoon propelled the field hockey team past Shippensburg 5-2 last Saturday, upping SSU's mark to 8-3-1 on the season. Jen Stone and Nicki Houghton also scored for the Sea Gulls. Salisbury continues to hold the top spot in the South Region rankings as it pushes for its ninth straight trip to the NCAA postseason tournament.

The volleyball team, 16-11 overall, will look to defend its five-time ESAC championship this week in the conference tournament at Allentown. The Gulls have dominated the ESAC Championship since 1987. Salisbury prepped for the conference tournament by winnng three of four matches last weekend in the North-South
Classic at Western Maryland College.

The men's and women's cross country squads finished second and fourth, respectively, in last Saturday's SSU Tidewater Invitational Meet. Division I foe George Mason University swept both titles. Top finishers among the Gulls included Tim Smith, Matt Piotrowski and Rob Freshwater for the men and Cathy Emerson, Mary Puderbaugh and Dorothy Dean for the women.

For the second straight year, the women's tennis team fell just short of winning the ESAC Championship, losing to Frostburg State by 2.5 points in the team standings. Three Sea Gulls captured individual singles titles however, with Nikki Lee, Kris Dodson and Kathy Castelli doing the honors. The Gulls also won two of the three doubles titles.

Following a week off, the football team (2-3) returns to action at home this Saturday against Montclair State. Through five contests, the Gulls are averaging 21.6 points per game, almost a touchdown better than 1991's 15.7 final average. The revamped offense has produced nine new records thus far in '92, including new marks for pass attempts and completions, receptions in a game and TD catches, and most rushes in a game. During ceremonies at this Saturday's game, Salisbury State will honor the 1972 Sea Gull football team, the first in school history.

Christian Fellowship Held on Tuesdays

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Christian Fellowship each Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome; meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information please call 749-7069.

UM System Forum On Tuition Increases

The finance committee of the University of Maryland System (UMS) Board of Regents is holding a series of four public forums around the state to gather citizen input on tuition at the 11 UMS degree-granting institutions. The meetings will be at sites on the Eastern Shore, in western Maryland, in the Baltimore area and in the Washington, D.C. suburban area.

The first forum is on Thursday, October 29, from 7-9 p.m. in the Wicomico County Board of Education Building, 101 Long Avenue in Salisbury.

The forums will focus on the need for the System to have an explicit, broadly-supported tuition policy, and the nature of such a policy. Present at the Eastern Shore gathering will be members of the Board of Regents, Chancellor Donald Langenberg and other members of the System and institutional leadership team. In addition to the general session, there will be small discussion groups so that each person in attendance will have the opportunity to share thoughts and observations.

Based on the public discussions and related information, Langenberg will present his recommendations on tuition policy to the Board of Regents at the conclusion of all four meetings.

For additional information, call (301) 853-3740.

Reduce Test-Taking Workshop

Students who experience stress associated with test-taking should consider attending a two-session workshop offered by Dr. Bob McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development. Participants will learn effective methods to reduce test-taking stress, including how to replace feelings of anxiety with feelings of calmness and clear thinking.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, November 10 and 17, from noon-1 p.m. The second session will be offered on Wednesdays, November 11 and 18, from 4-5 p.m. For more information or to sign up for either section of the seminar contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6070.

Health Insurance Update

The Open Enrollment period will be held during the month of November this year. University employees will have an opportunity to make changes to their insurance policies at that time.

Anyone currently enrolled in the health care or dependent care spending accounts must re-enroll if they wish to continue in those programs during 1992. This is a federal regulation. Employees should contact the Personnel Office in November and process this vital paperwork to avoid being dropped from the spending account program.

Representatives of the various insurance companies will be on campus Monday, November 16, (11 a.m.-2 p.m.) in the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room, to answer questions. There will be detailed information available about the new mental health insurance coverage to which employees should pay particular attention as well as about changes to the basic insurance programs.

The hours for the Blackwell lab (room 010/015) are: Sunday, closed; Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; and Saturday, closed.

all the time and it makes you feel proud."

When he's finished work, Lake makes time for helping others. While he's generous with his time, he manages to make room for a little self-indulgence. And everyone wins.

When his church, the Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Princess Anne, needed funds, Lake came up with a way to treat himself and others to his first love: gospel music. He organized a benefit concert. The proceeds of that first concert and the many that have followed go to the church.

Since then, he has turned himself into a gospel music promoter, an avocation that has given him a chance to hear his favorite songs performed by his favorite singers. He's also been lucky enough to meet some gospel greats and has a collection of personal photographs and autographs that includes the Hawkins family, James Cleveland and Shirley Caesar.

Lake grew up with gospel music: at 14, he was the youngest member of the choir at the Showell United Methodist Church in Crisfield. He loved singing and traveling with the older choir members.

It may have been that experience that inspired another of Lake's projects: retirement luncheons for his fellow workers.

"I used to see older people retire and they would just leave," he said. "That was it. They had worked hard for years, but on their last day, they just went home." Lake decided that these folks, many of whom he had loved working with, deserved a better send-off. He started organizing employee retirement luncheons, complete with a guest speaker and a special plaque for the retiree. The attention, the extraordinary "Thank You" brings smiles, and sometimes even tears, to the face of the guest of honor.

And when he sees that, Eddie Lake just lights right up.

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212.

Students, faculty, staff, or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration. Criteria for nominations for each of the awards are described on the nomination form. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than November 1.

Famed Russian Pianist Performs Here Nov. 8

Critically acclaimed Russian-born pianist Oleg Volkov will perform selected works by Beethoven, Schubert and Chopin in a recital here on Sunday, November 8.

The recital will begin at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Called "a magician as well as a keyboard technician" by The Washington Post, Volkov has received critical and popular acclaim since settling in the United States.

A graduate of the Moscow Tchaikovsky Conservatory, Volkov came to the United States in 1990 to compete in the University of Maryland William Kapell International Piano Competition. After taking third prize in the competition, Volkov launched a nationwide tour with Vladimir Horowitz's Steinway grand piano.

He is currently under a recording contract with Music Corporation of America (MCA). His first compact disk, released in January 1991, includes works of Beethoven, Liszt, Prokoviev and Shostakovich. A second CD, released in November 1991, features work by Haydn, Beethoven and Rachmaninoff.

Volkov and his wife, Svetlana, currently live in the Washington, D.C. area.

During the 1992-93 concert season, Volkov will play at the Kennedy Center in Washington. He will debut in Boston, Baltimore, Richmond, VA, and Salt Lake City, with tours in Oklahoma, Arizona, Iowa, Michigan and Massachusetts.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

United Charity Campaign Kicks Off

Pledge cards will be mailed to all University State employees for a voluntary contribution to the 1992 United Charity Campaign on Wednesday, November 4. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, also will be mailed to all state employees.

The agency listing is helpful for those who wish to designate a specific agency to receive contributions or require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a VCR; employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. Also, University Dining Services has donated free passes to the annual Christmas dinner, Wednesday, December 16, and the Book Rack has donated some items. The drawing for the VCR and the other prizes will take place on Monday, November 23. The winners will be contacted immediately.

When considering whether to contribute please consider that the agencies which receive funds from the United Charity depends on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered. Also, employees can make contribution to the SSU Foundation this year. "Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said Gains Hawkins, director of public relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

UAS Speaker Analyzes Black Leaders' Struggles

Dr. Lenworth Gunther, professor of history at Essex County College, NJ, will discuss "In Remembrance of Struggle: Marcus, Muhammad and Malcolm" on Thursday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. His lecture is part of the Union of African-American Students Leadership Lecture Series.

Of Jamaican roots, Gunther is a product of New York's public schools including the prestigious Stuyvesant High School. He is his family's first college graduate. Columbia University awarded him four degrees: a B.A., M.A., Master of Philosophy and a Ph.D. in American history with a concentration in Afro-American, West African and Russian studies.

A former Woodrow Wilson and Ford Foundation Doctoral Fellow, Gunther is a nationally honored teacher, scholar, educational consultant and lecturer who has excited audiences throughout the country. He assisted in the preparation and teaching of Columbia University's first Afro-American history course. Gunther has taught African, Caribbean and African-American history at Ramapo College, Drew University, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Rutgers University and the New Jersey Institute of Technology.

Acknowledged for his editorial contributions to more than a dozen books since 1969, his own writings include 10 articles and cover stories in Encore and The Crisis magazines from 1973 to 1980, and an edited collection, "Black Image" (1978). He is the co-author of an African-American history curriculum guide to be published by the New Jersey Historical Commission for high school teachers. Gunther is preparing three books for publication, including a biography of Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., a study of modern American racism, and a collection of his speeches and lectures.

His topic of the evening, "In Remembrance of Struggle: Marcus, Muhammad and Malcolm," is one which is very timely considering the resurgence of interest in Malcolm X by the general public. A comparison of the struggles of these famous black leaders gives the youth of today a realistic view of their philosophies and how they are interrelated.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a general assembly meeting on Sunday, November 11, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome to attend.

SGA Pre-Game Party

The Student Government Association will be sponsoring its first annual Homecoming pre-game party on Friday, November 6. The event takes place in Maggs Gym from 8-10 p.m. Come out and show support for the SSU football team and cheer the Gulls onto a victory.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Health Risk Assessment Set for November 17

On Tuesday, November 17, University employees will have an opportunity to again participate in a "Health Risk Assessment" on campus.

Employees can obtain a personal computer generated assessment of their lifestyle including: most important health risks; blood cholesterol level; blood pressure; value health age; strategies for improving one's lifestyle; and personal health score.

There will be two levels of screenings available. Option A (cost - $39.85) includes blood pressure screening; blood lipid profile (measures good, bad and total cholesterol levels); health risk assessment; and height/weight skeletal frame assessment. Option B (cost - $33.45) screens blood pressure and lipid profiles only.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield preferred provider members get a preferred rate of only $6.45 for Option A, and Option B is free.

For appointment times and pre-screening instructions, contact Shirley King at 548-4755.

Study Abroad For SSU Students

The University College of the University of Maryland has recently initiated a new program at Schwäbisch Gmünd in Germany. The program offers academic concentrations in four areas: business and managment, computer studies, contemporary German/European studies, and international studies. (Instruction is in English).

Each year two SSU students will be granted scholarships to attend for the academic year. The scholarship covers the difference between SSU tuition and Schwäbish Gmünd tuition and also covers air fare to and from Germany.

An informational meeting has been scheduled for those students interested in spending a year aborad at the Schwäbish Gmünd campus (or in other arrangements).

As part of the yearly Octoberfest program at SSU, Dr. Richard Shreck of the Office of International Programs of University College will be on campus on Thursday, October 29, from 6:30-8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, to talk to interested students and to answer questions regarding the Schwäbish Gmünd progam. His talk is co-sponsored by the German Club and the Political Science Club. Refreshments will be served.

Russia Study-tour

In the middle of January Russia seems to be a cold, forbidding place, at least on the surface. But underneath it is a warm, exciting and friendly country to visit. SSU's study-tour to Russia will depart for Moscow on January 18 and return home on January 29. In Moscow participants will see the Kremlin, Red Square, Zagorsk, and take in cultural programs and museums.

In addition to visiting Moscow participants will take an overnight train ride to St. Petersburg where you'll see the Hermitage, St. Isaac's Cathedral, the Peter and Paul Fortress, Pushkin and Pavlovsk, the summer palaces of Catherine the Great and her son Paul, walk along Nevsky Prospect and attend the ballet or opera.

The tour will conclude with a full day of free time in Prague where participants will be able to visit any number of marvelous sites.

The cost of the tour, which includes travel, hotels, meals and excursions, is approximately $1,600. For more information contact Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6251. The study- tour is open to all students, faculty, staff and friends of SSU.

UM System Forum On Tuition Increases

The finance committee of the University of Maryland System (UMS) Board of Regents is holding a series of four public forums around the state to gather citizen input on tuition at the 11 UMS degree-granting institutions. The meetings will be at sites on the Eastern Shore, in western Maryland, in the Baltimore area and in the Washington, D.C. suburban area.

The first forum is on Thursday, October 29, from 7-9 p.m. in the Wicomico County Board of Education Building, 101 Long Avenue in Salisbury.

The forums will focus on the need for the System to have an explicit, broadly-supported tuition policy, and the nature of such a policy. Present at the Eastern Shore gathering will be members of the Board of Regents, Chancellor Donald Langenberg and other members of the System and institutional leadership team. In addition to the general session, there will be small discussion groups so that each person in attendance will have the opportunity to share thoughts and observations.

Based on the public discussions and related information, Langenberg will present his recommendations on tuition policy to the Board of Regents at the conclusion of all four meetings.

For additional information, call (301) 853-3740.

Test-Taking Stress Reduction Workshop

Students who experience stress associated with test-taking should consider attending a two-session workshop offered by Dr. Bob McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development. Participants will learn effective methods to reduce test-taking stress, including how to replace feelings of anxiety with feelings of calmness and clear thinking.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, November 10 and 17, from noon-1 p.m. The second session will be offered on Wednesdays, November 11 and 18, from 4-5 p.m. For more information or to sign up for either section of the seminar contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6070.

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Students, faculty, staff, or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his own name for consideration. Criteria for niminations for each of the awards are described on the nomination form. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than November 1.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Poet Barbara Helfgott Hyett

America's Discovery Analyzed by Poet

Renowned poet Barbara Helfgott Hyett will be part of a series of presentations here in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

Hyett will give a reading of her poems from her latest book "The Double Reckoning of Christopher Columbus," on Monday, November 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

Intrigued by the mystery that still surrounds Columbus, Hyett has written 47 poems that enlarge on the entries in the journal he presented to Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain. She does not celebrate the discovery, but explores the meaning and ethical paradox of the encounter between Europeans and the natives.

Her impressions are based on two recent translations of Columbus's diary, her studies of medieval science and of all the books Columbus read, and on her own investigative trips to Spain, Portugal and the Canary Islands.

A preceptor of English at Boston University, Hyett is also director of the Professional Poetry Workshops. Her poems have appeared in publications including "The Nation," "The New Republic," and "The Massachusetts Review," as well as numerous anthologies and collections.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee at SSU. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Native Cultures Impact Part of Columbus Series

"Impact On Native Cultures" will be part of a series of presentations in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Joanne Chase, deputy director of the National Commission on American Indian, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian Housing, will be held Monday, November 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Motivational Speaker Visiting Lecturer Here

Dr. Pamela T. Felder, educator and motivational speaker at Winston Salem University, will be the guest of the Office of Minority Affairs and Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics on Wednesday, November 11, as a visiting lecturer.

Felder will spend the day with faculty and students in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics as lecturer and workshop facilitator. Her major topic will be "I've Got to Change My Attitude." She is author of "Dream but Dream Big—Positive Thinking Can Make a Difference," which identifies the keys to positive thinking and high self-esteem.

In the evening, Felder will make a special presentation titled "Molding Our Future: It Rests in Your Hands" to the Union of African-American students in recognition of its Leadership Week activities at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

The joint effort of the Office of Minority Affairs and the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics is a continuing cooperative effort to provide extracurricular activities and speakers to the campus.

For more information, call Vaughn White at 548-4503.

Theatre Bus Trip To D.C. Organized

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a theatre bus trip to see "The Way of the World" by William Congreve at the Arena Stage Theatre in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, November 10. The trip is open to students, staff and faculty, and their friends.

"The Way of the World" is considered one of the finest comedies in the English language. The Restoration comedy shows the conflict between "worldliness" and decency. The action is driven by the jealousies, mistaken identities, discovered plots and, ultimately, the triumph of good over evil.

Sign-up for full-time SSU students begins at 8 a.m. on Monday, November 2, at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center. The cost is $12. An SSU I.D. is required to sign up. Part-time students, staff and friends may sign up beginning Wednesday, November 4. The cost is $16.

There will be no refunds for cancellations unless the seat is filled. The bus will leave the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 2:30 p.m.; there will be time for dinner in Washington before the 7:30 p.m. curtain. The bus will return to the Guerrieri Center directly after the performance.

For additional information, call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.

Dance Showcase Has Variety of Styles

The Dance Company presents its third annual "Student Dance Showcase" on Wednesday November 11, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Two performances are scheduled at 7 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

The concert features a variety of dance styles including modern, jazz and hip-hop. All nine works are choreographed by members of the Dance Company.

General admission tickets are $2. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free with an I.D. Tickets will be sold at the door. A bake sale will be held in the lobby with proceeds to benefit the Dance Company.

For further information, contact Mary Troy, Dance Company director, at 543-6353.

Biblical Reading, Religious Traditions Subject of Lecture

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts announces that Dr. Susan Handelman will visit the campus October 28-29 as a Fulton School Visiting Scholar.

Handelman, a professor of English at the University of Maryland College Park (UMCP), is a renowned thinker whose work has been influential in literary, religious and philosophic circles. Handelman is also interested in the historical and psychological implications of religious texts and the ways one goes about reading them. The interdisciplinary nature of her work makes her an especially appropriate visitor to the University community.

As part of her visit, all are invited to attend a lecture for the general public on Wednesday, October 28, in the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room A and B. The lecture is titled "Love, Play, Laughter and Language." In it, Handelman will discuss notions of biblical interpretation within the Jewish tradition in order to raise a series of questions concerning the way one reads a literary or sacred text. On Thursday, October 29, Handelman will also give a presentation for faculty and students at 3:30 p.m. in room 119 of Holloway Hall. Handelman, who has been three times honored at UMCP as an outstanding teacher, will share her reflections on the pedagogical implications of her research. She is particularly interested in how the learning situation is a function of an "addressing" of a teacher by student and student by teacher.

Students, colleagues and friends in the community are encouraged to attend. Handelman has lectured widely both within the United States and internationally. She is an accomplished and articulate speaker. For more information concerning Handelman's visit, please call Dr. Jim Hatley at 543-6454 or 742-1741.

Watercolor Landscapes Is Next Atrium Exhibit

An exhibit of watercolors by Cambridge resident Peter Loonam will be on display October 29 through November 24 in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center.

The exhibit will feature landscapes reminiscent of the Eastern Shore, but not literal renderings of specific places. Loonam's work captures the beauty of the quiet backroads and the areas where marsh and woodlands merge. Often the mood is set with an overcast sky or a moment right after a sudden rain shower. People are rarely seen in Loonam's work. "When people are painted into a scene, the viewer acts as a voyeur, observing the person and what he is doing," he said. "I invite the viewer to actually enter into the scene by imagining walking the country road after a rain. This way he may come back to my paintings time and again and each time have a different and unique experience."

Loonam has lived on the Shore for only five years. He and his wife moved to Cambridge from Bridgehampton, Long Island, NY, where they owned The Peter S. Loonam Gallery Ltd. Prior to running the gallery, he worked for 20 years with the advertising agency McCann Erickson creating television commercials for major corporations such as Nabisco, Coca Cola and Exxon.

The Atrium Gallery is open 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-4 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Signed posters by Loonam will be on sale in the gallery. For more information, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6100.

SSU has an immediate opening for an academic analyst in the Computer Services Office.

The primary responsibilities will be to maintain software systems (compilers, SAS, SPSS, Maple, IFPS, VAXnotes, AutoCAD, Mathematica) on a VAX 4300 running VMS and DECstation 5000s running UNIX as well as support users of these systems. These systems are part of an Ethernet network and must be supported in and Ethernet network using DECnet, LAT and TCP/IP protocols and gateways to external networks such as Internet and BITNET.

Secondary responsibilities will involve supporting PC and MAC labs networked using Pathworks. The applicant should be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of technological changes in the computer field. The applicant must be able to work as a team member and possess good communication skills, both oral and written. Bachelor's degree or higher in a computer related field is required. This is a permanent state position with benefits. Starting salary range is $25,000-$27,000.

All applicants must submit a letter of application, resume and a list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of at least three references, not later than November 2 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860.

Assistant Professor Philosophy Department

SSU seeks an assistant professor (instructor if A.B.D.) for an anticipated tenure-track position in the Philosophy Department, beginning next fall. Applicants will teach four courses, three preparations per semester at the undergraduate level. A small, energetic department open to a diversity of philosophical approaches, a person is sought with wide-ranging philosophical (and intellectual) interests who is an enthusiastic and deeply committed undergraduate teacher. The successful candidate will be encouraged to develop innovative courses in her/his areas of interest.

AOS is open but not political philosophy, philosophy of religion or aesthetics. In addition to a broad background in the history of philosophy, candidate's AOC should include some of the following: philosophy of the social sciences, feminist thought, non-Western philosophies, applied ethics, logic, critical thinking and the phenomenological tradition. Salary is competitive.

Non-teaching responsibilities include helping with the student philosophical society. In addition to complete dossier, please send syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and any upper level course the applicant would enjoy teaching; include, if available, a brief description of philosophical perspective. Writing sample is optional.

Candidates wishing to be considered for pre-arranged interview at eastern division meeting should have application in by December 14. Deadline for applications is January 1. Address applications to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Catering Manager

SSU seeks a catering manager to provide marketing and sales of catering services; to develop special events; and to provide creative concepts of food service. The individual generates special menus and recipes for catered events; functions as a member of the University Dining Services management team; is responsible for P&L reporting; provides overall supervision and training of catering department; and is computer literate. The successful candidate will possess a bachelor's degree or a degree from an accredited culinary school and a minimum of two years experience in quality catering.

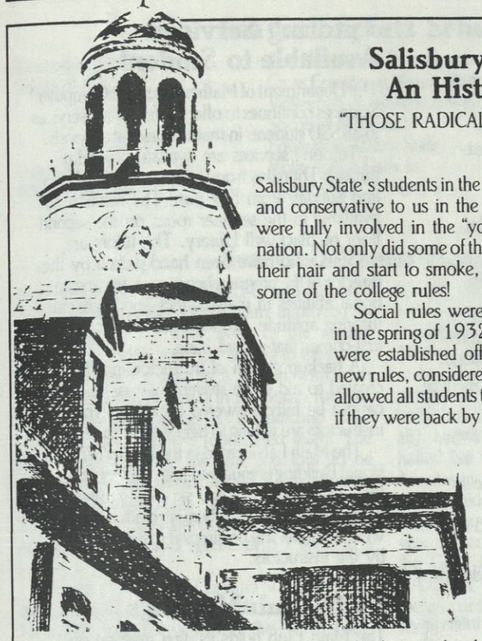
Salary is in the mid-20s with an excellent employee benefit package including health care, dental, vision and tuition remission. Screening will begin November 2, and continue until the position is filled. Send resume to Personnel Director, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Teaching Assistantships

The English Department anticipates assistantships beginning fall '93 (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing M.A. in English (writing or literature option).

The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Teaching assistants will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program. GRE scores will be required.

For application packets write to: Dr. William Horne, Department of English, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801, or FAX a request to (410) 543-6068. Please specify option. All requests for information must be received by November 2.



Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"THOSE RADICAL STUDENTS OF THE '30s!"
by Sylvia Bradley

Salisbury State's students in the 1930s might seem reserved and conservative to us in the '90s, but in their day they were fully involved in the "youth rebellion" sweeping the nation. Not only did some of the young ladies actually "bob" their hair and start to smoke, but they dared to question some of the college rules!

Social rules were revised and given a trial run in the spring of 1932, and after some modifications, were established officially in January 1933. The new rules, considered liberal by the administration, allowed all students to "go out" on Sunday nights if they were back by 9:50 p.m. Freshman could go on Friday or Saturday until 10:45 p.m. and two week nights (not in the same week) per month could stay out until 9:50 p.m. Juniors were allowed the same privileges as freshmen plus both Friday and Saturday and one night every week. (There were no sophomores; the curriculum was designed to be completed in three years.) To "go out" meant not only leaving the building or campus, but entertaining visitors in the building as well.

Also more clearly defined in the new rules were "light cuts." These permitted freshmen who didn't want to "go out" on Friday or Saturday to study on either of those nights until 11:00 p.m. Juniors could use those two nights as they wished with the limitations that they could study both nights until 11:00, study one night until 11:00 and go out one night until 10:45, or go out both nights until 10:45, and could study one night per week until 11:00. Seniors privileges were identical to juniors', but also included unlimited light cuts for study until 11:00 while practice teaching if the supervisor of teaching so recommended and the principal (president) approved.

Even then, there were still some problems. In January 1934, for example, a notice on the bulletin board to all students announced that, "It has been brought to the attention of the principal, that the following persons were absent from Carol Singing on the morning of December 20, 1933. Students were excused from classes to attend this event. It is therefore necessary that every absentee submit to the principal a written excuse for his or her absence...!"

One has to wonder what the principal would think today about Thursday nights at Salisbury State.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Gallery Exhibit Features Work by Baltimore Artist

The decorative paintings and collages of Baltimore artist Sheila Pritchard will be on display at the University Gallery October 27-November 22.

The Evening Sun described Pritchard as "...exuberantly expansive with her choices of mediums and styles. In addition to freely using oil, watercolor, collage and fabric, she readily shifts from the abstract to the representational."

Pritchard uses abstract swirls of color and Matisse-like bright patterns as backgrounds to her portraits of women. In her landscapes, "Pritchard's abstract softening of the representational world remains true to both what the eye sees and the heart feels," according to The Evening Sun.

Although she has been painting since 1963, Pritchard is a relative newcomer to the Maryland art scene. Her Master of Fine Arts thesis show at Towson State University in 1990 served as the first real showcase of her work. In 1991, she had a one-woman show at the Life of Maryland Gallery in Baltimore. The SSU exhibit will be her third solo exhibit.

An opening reception for the show will be held 4-6 p.m. on Tuesday, October 27. There will be a gallery "walkthrough" with the artist at 5:15 p.m.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. It is closed on Friday.

For more information, call the gallery at 543-6271.

Furnace Town Has Halloween Celebration

Furnace Town, the 19th century historic site in the heart of the Pocomoke Forest and cypress swamp, is preparing a special family Halloween celebration. On Saturday, October 31, a Haunted Furnace Town, an event which was noted in the October issue of Walking Magazine, will be ready to greet visitors from 6-8 p.m.

Spooks and specters will abound throughout the forest and swamp; strange and unusual noises and sounds will reach for the ears of the brave visitors. Hay rides through the haunted forest and ghoul walks through the swamp will send shivers up unwary spines.

With only the light of the moon and lanterns, costumed interpreters will be making witches brooms in the broom-house. Trick-or-treats will be handed out to those brave enough to venture near this 19th century building. Adding to the adventure will be games such as bobbing for apples and tactile experiences guaranteed to delight the squeamish. The Snow Hill Soroptomists will be selling refreshments to benefit The 19th Century Women's Museum.

The Halloween adventure is directed toward children 12 years of age and under, who should be accompanied by an adult. It will provide a safe and supervised activity for families to enjoy. More than 100 haunters and volunteers help to make the evening possible including the Snow Hill High School Museum Support Club, Rotary International of Snow Hill, the Snow Hill Soroptomists and volunteers of Furnace Town Foundation. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Parking is in the new parking area across from the pavilion. Please enter through the pavilion gate.

While Worcester County is building a better bridge on Old Furnace Road, please use detour signs provided by the county. From Salisbury turn right on Millville Road. Millville Road is the old stage route to Furnace Town and has been newly lined by the county for this detour. For more information please call 632-2032.

School System Expo Has Job Opportunities

The Center for Personal and Professional Development in coordination with the Kappa Delta Pi education honor society is holding a School System Expo on Tuesday, November 10. The expo is from 5-7 p.m. in Nanticoke A and B Rooms in the Guerrieri University Center.

School systems represented are Somerset County, Prince George's County, Worcester County, Baltimore City and Cape Henlopen, DE. Each district's representative will give a presentation on what that system has to offer future teachers. At the end of the presentations, students will have time to speak informally with the representatives. Refreshments will be served.

The expo will be an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in the field of education to become aware of job opportunities and the outlook for teaching.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, contact Linda Benson at 543-6075.

Small at Conference

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended the 77th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History in Kansas City, MO.

The membership of the association consists of persons interested in the study of Afro-American, African, Caribbean and Latin American life and history. The association prepares information about and leads in the celebration of Black History Month; organizes tours of Africa and Latin America; and works closely with local branches in major cities in promoting the study, teaching, researching, writing, collecting of manuscripts, preserving of historic sites and instituting other programs related to Afro-American life and history.

The conference focused on African-American heritage in general and specifically in the West. Some of the panels centered on the "Negro Baseball League," "Buffalo Soldiers," "Tuskegee Airmen," "Black Basketball Players" and "Kansas Jazz Musicians." While at the conference, Small met the last of the Buffalo Soldiers, the Tuskegee Airmen and one of the presidential candidates, Gov. Bill Clinton.

Tutoring Services Available to Students

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Sciences continues to offer the following services to all SSU students in math courses at all levels.

Tutoring services are available Monday through Thursday from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., and Sunday from 5-9 p.m. The services are available in the seminar room on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The tutors are students who have been hand-picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring aptitude. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis.

A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. The instructors are willing to help with all questions.

The Math Lab located in the Power Professional Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Students will be directed to the Math Lab by the instructors.

Math Club Meetings

The Math Club holds its next meeting on Thursday, November 5, in room 117 at the Power Professional Building.

The Virginia Tech Exam will be held on Saturday, October 31, in Power Professional Building at 9 a.m. Please bring a pencil, but no calculators. Good luck to the participants.

The Math Club is holding a Holiday Social on Friday, November 6, at the Honors House at 7 p.m. Members will bring covered dishes and play games. New members are welcome. Contact Dr. Kathleen Shannon at 543-6476 for directions.

The Baltimore-Coppin State trip is on Saturday, November 14. Members will leave campus at 5:30 a.m. from the Guerrieri University Center parking lot.

Homecoming Final Elections

Students can cast their votes in the final elections for Homecoming king and queen on November 3-6 at the Dining Hall from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and at Caruthers Hall from 1-3 p.m.

Finalists for Homecoming king are Dameon Ross, Marcus Harley, Chuck Sabia and Hugh Lamoureux. Finalists for homecoming queen are Kristen Smith, Marcia Castrence, Candace VanDyke and Tracie Kreiner. Students must have I.D.s to vote.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

There will be no change of majors through the Liberal Studies Department during the two weeks of preregistration (November 9-20). Appointments will be made during this period for advisees only. Advisees should see their appropriate advisor during the preregistration period.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Saturday. Oct. 29	Cross Country at Mason-Dixon Meet	10 a.m.
	Volleyball vs. Marymount & UMES (HOME)	11 a.m.
	Soccer at Methodist	1 p.m.
	Football at Albany State	1 p.m.
Tuesday, Nov. 3	Volleyball at Catholic	6 p.m.
Wednesday, Nov. 4	Swimming at St. Mary's	7 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

With wins over Holy Family, 5-0, and Catholic, 3-1, last week, the soccer team improved to 12-2 entering the final week of the regular season. The Gulls, who are adding to their new school record for wins in a season with each victory, are ranked eighth in the South Region. Salisbury's final game is a matchup with Methodist, the region's top-ranked team. The Gulls need to move into the top four to be assured of a bid when the NCAA postseason tournament selections are announced on November 1. SSU needs three more goals to also break the school record of 39 goals in a season.

Despite a 2-0 loss to Cortland State last Saturday, the field hockey team still has high hopes for a ninth straight invitation to the NCAA Tournament. The Gulls are 9-4-1 entering the final week of October, and face key games against Mary Washington and Rowan to close the year. Invitations to the 16-team postseason tournament will be announced on Monday, November 2.

The football team (2-4) makes its final road trip of the season this Saturday as the Gulls visit Albany (NY) State. Salisbury fell to Montclair, 21-12, at home last week and looks to snap a two-game losing skid. The Gulls will also be looking to avenge last year's 20-18 loss to Albany.

For the first time since 1986, Salisbury State is not the Eastern States Athletic Conference's volleyball champions. The Gulls (18-12 overall) had their string of five consecutive titles halted last weekend as they finished second to Allentown in the ESAC tournament. On the positive side, Gull freshman Jen Bowman was named the conference's Player of the Year and was also co-MVP of the tournament. She leads the Gulls in assists this year with 756. SSU tri-captain Jenean Plumley was also named to the all-conference squad and the all-tournament team.

The men's and women's cross country teams raced in the ESAC Championship Meet in Salisbury last weekend. The women placed second while the men finished third. Three individual runners did earn all-conference honors by finishing among the top seven. Tim Smith was fifth on the men's side, while Cathy Emerson was third and Mary Puderbaugh fifth for the women. Frostburg State swept both team titles.

Open Enrollment for Health Benefits

Information packets for the Health Benefits Open Enrollment period will be arriving at state employee's homes on or about November 10. Employees will have until November 30 to make any changes to their coverage for calendar year 1993. Employees are encouraged to bring completed forms to the Personnel Office prior to the Thanksgiving break.

If employees intend to keep the health insurance programs they currently have, they will not need to complete any forms. Only those wishing to drop or add a benefit or make changes to their dependents are required to submit forms. Spending account participants, however, are required by federal law to re-enroll every year.

The mental health portion of all health programs is changing. A special letter and form will be sent to employees explaining the changes and details about who will or will not need to complete the "transition" form. Employees are strongly urged to take the time to read all the information so they will not experience any difficulties when using health insurance programs next year.

A Health Benefits Fair will be held Monday, November 16, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. At that time, employees will have an opportunity to talk with insurance representatives from OMH (the new Mental Health Plan), PCS (the Prescription Program), Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Delmarva Health Plan and the MD IPA Health Plan. Also in attendance will be a representative from United Optical, the Club Wellness Program and the Department of Personnel Health Benefits Unit. "Mini" health screenings will be available at no charge.

Call the Personnel Office at 548-4755 for more information about the Open Enrollment process. Also, please return unused health insurance packets to the Personnel Office.

Beardsley Selected for Dietician's Post

Karla S. Beardsley has joined the University Dining Services as a registered dietician. Beardsley holds a master's degree in nutrition from the University of Maryland and a bachelor's in foods and nutrition from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Her experience includes working as a community health nutritionist, clinical and consulting dietician, coordinator for diabetes education and weight control instructor as well as serving as an SSU faculty member providing clinical instruction for anatomy and physiology and general nutrition.

The dietician will be available to assist with meal card holder's specific dietary problems as well as promote awareness of wellness and nutrition throughout the campus community.

Beardsley has lived in the Salisbury area for the past 10 years with her husband, Earl. They have three daughters ages 6, 7 and 8.

Business School To Study OC Financial Report

In a joint venture with the accounting firm of Faw, Casson & Company, the Town of Ocean City is donating 80 copies of its 1992 Comprehensive Annual Financial Report to the Perdue School of Business.

According to Dr. R. Michael Garner, associate professor of accounting, the copies of the report will enable advanced accounting students to obtain a much better mastery of the complex subject area of governmental accounting, a recently required subject of all accounting graduates. "Due to severe cutbacks in University budgets, it would be virtually impossible for the school to have otherwise obtained these books," said Garner. "The Ocean City Report is specifically important because it contains almost 'textbook' examples of the various funds, accounts and transactions that the students have been studying. Many cities do not make their reports available to those outside the city government, and other cities issue reports which are extremely difficult for even professional accountants to decipher. We at SSU genuinely appreciate this special support from the Town of Ocean City and Faw, Casson & Company and congratulate the Ocean City Finance Department on producing such an excellent, understandable document."

The Town of Ocean City's Finance Department, under the direction of Martha Bennett, has been awarded a certificate of achievement for its annual report every year since 1988. According to the Government Finance Officers Association, which issues the award, the certificate is the highest form of recognition in governmental accounting and financial reporting, an its attainment represents a significant accomplishment by a government and its management.

Faw, Casson & Company, which performs the city's yearly audit, offered to assume the cost of printing copies of the 200- page report. Tim King, a partner in the accounting firm, and office manager Dea Groves, are both graduates of the SSU Perdue School of Business.

Presentation of the reports was made to Dr. Robert F. Dombrowski, director of SSU's Accounting & Legal Studies Department, by King, Groves and city representatives at the October 19 City Council meeting.

Perdue Faculty Publish in Journals

Several faculty members of the Perdue School of Business have recently completed articles and papers on business-related issues.

Dr. Frank M. Shipper, professor of management and marketing, has written "Self Management Without Formal Teams: The Organization as Team." It will be a chapter in the forthcoming book "Business Without Bosses" by Charles Manz and Henry P. Sims Jr.

Dr. Kenneth J. Smith, an accounting professor, wrote "How Bookkeepers Can Manage On-The-Job Stress" for the summer 1992 issue of The Journal of Professional Bookkeeping and Management.

Dr. Dogan Tirtiroglu, professor of economics and finance, has written "Positive Feedback Trading and Diffusion of Asset Price Changes: Evidence from Housing Transactions" for an upcoming issue of the Journal of Economic Behavior and Organization.

Dr. Zakri Bello, professor of economics and finance, has submitted his paper, "Earnings Yield and Firm Size Effects in Regulated Industries," to the Eastern Finance Association for possible presentation at its annual meeting in April. The paper came from Bello's 1992 summer research activities.

Heidlers Present At Alabama Symposium

Last summer the State of Alabama Department of Archives and History invited Drs. David S. Heidler and Jeanne T. Heidler, both assistant professors of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, to present the latest findings of their research at the interdisciplinary Alabama Studies Symposium held in Montgomery (AL).

The three-day conference dealt with such diverse topics as slavery, the role of the home-front during the Civil War, World War I and World War II, and political developments since the Civil War. The Heidlers' work was part of a panel that included the work of Dr. Kathryn E. Holland Braund, world-renowned ethnohistorian of 18th century Creek culture.

In a paper titled "The Allied Creeks and the First Seminole War," the Heidlers explained why some members of the Creek Confederation of Georgia and Alabama continued to aid the United States after their mistreatment at the hands of General Andrew Jackson. The Heidlers found through ethnohistorical as well as conventional research that the United States Allied Creeks were actually attempting to revive the traditional Creek diplomacy of the 18th century in an effort to preserve what little remained of their traditional homelands.

The paper is part of a larger collaborative work the Heidlers are doing on the First Seminole War.

Volunteers Needed To Be Big Brothers

Big Brothers and Big Sisters Program of the lower Eastern Shore is looking for volunteers. The program involves matching children from single-parent families between the ages of six to 14 to adult volunteers who serve as role models.

At present there is a lack of male volunteers which has caused little brothers to be on a waiting list. These children have no contact from the absent parent and, therefore, they need an adult friend to talk to, to teach them and to enhance their self-esteem. For more information please contact Gigi Suntum at 543-BIGS.

Chamber Choir Sets Pair of Performances

"A Choral Thanksgiving" with the Salisbury Choral Society and the Salisbury State University Chamber Choir at St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church on Riverside Drive will be held on Sunday, November 22,, at 4 p.m.

Tickets are $7 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens.

The program features choral compositions by Randall Thompson and Verdi with guest accompanist Scot Hawkins on piano. Dr. Duane R. Karna is the conductor. Karna is on the music faculty at SSU.

"A Day for Dancing" with the Chamber Choir and guest instrumentalists will be in Guerrieri University Center's Wicomico Room on Sunday, December 6, and Monday, December 7, both at 8 p.m.

The performance is free and open to the public.

The program features choral music for the holiday season by Lloyd Pfautsch and John Rutter. Karna will conduct.

For further information contact Karna at 543-6385.

Kraft Paper Looks at Slavic Investments

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, recently presented his paper, "Soft- Budget Subsidies and Investment Finance in Yugoslavia: A Model with Estimates for 1986-87," to the eighth annual workshop on Soviet and East European Economics, sponsored by the Social Science Research Council in Pittsburgh.

The workshop has been an annual event, playing a major role in training scholars in the field of comparative economics. It also has provided unique opportunities for Western and Eastern scholars to meet. This year's workshop included scholars from the United States, Hungary, Poland and Russia.

Kraft's presentation focused on the peculiarities of investment finance in Yugoslavia before the civil war. Using date he gathered in his stay in Yugoslavia in 1990, he showed how the Yugoslav government used the financial system to subsidize investment projects. His findings contradict the conventional wisdom that Yugoslavia's economy functioned on market principles. They reinforce a growing literature that sees Yugoslavia as a state-run economy controlled by a highly decentralized, but nonetheless powerful set of republic and local governments.

Kraft's paper, "How Soft Is the Budget Constraint on Yugoslav Firms," was published in the September issue of The Journal of Comparative Economics. The paper, written with co- author Dr. Milan Vodopivec of the World Bank, explores the byzantine economic world of Yugoslavia before the civil war. Using a comprehensive data set never before examined by Western researchers, the accounts for all of Yugoslavia's industrial enterprises in 1986, the authors show the myriad ways that the Yugoslav government took from richer enterprises to pay poorer enterprises, using special tax breaks, loan write-offs and low interest rates.

The authors conclude that while redistribution did help weaker enterprises and regions, it enabled Yugoslav enterprises postpone the inevitable restructuring needed to cope with changes in the world economy, and strained relations within the already-frayed Yugoslav federation.

Fleming Conducts 50-Voice Choir

Dr. Jessie L. Fleming, professor of music in Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently conducted a 50-voice choir to provide music for three services at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C.

The occasion was the biannual pilgrimage to the shrine of members of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Wilmington. An estimated 1,500 persons attended from all parts of the Delmarva Peninsula. The final and major service was the mass at 3 p.m., presided over by the bishop of the diocese, with 14 priests assisting.

The choir is comprised of singers from churches in Seaford, Rehoboth and Bethany Beaches in Delaware, Ocean City and several churches in Salisbury including St. Francis de Sales, Asbury Methodist, St. Alban's Episcoipal and Allen Memorial Baptist. The organist was Dr. William Wharton of St. Mark's Methodist Church in Easton. Rehearsals for the occasion began in early September. The choir will reconvene in early 1993 to prepare music for two diocesan services during Lent.

The shrine, recently named a basilica, is the fourth largest among 27 of the world's great churches, and is so marked in the center aisle of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Ference Attends Central Slavic Conference

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently attended the 31st annual Central Slavic Conference in St. Charles, MO.

The Central Slavic Conference is one of the oldest continuously meeting regional Slavic associations in the United States. The largest gathering of American Slavicists in the heartland of America this year featured presentations by international scholars.

Ference participated in a panel on East European scholar- librarians where he compared and contrasted the emergence of librarianship in Russia and Poland. The key players, Jozef Grycz I.V. Got'e, and A.N. Olenin, put their individual stamps upon the profession in each country, so much so that Grycz today is considered the "Father of Polish Librarianship."

In addition, Ference discussed how librarianship in these two countries was in many respects more advanced than their Western counterparts. Also serving on the panel were representatives of the University of Kansas, Indiana University and the University of Illinois.

Ference was recently elected to a four-year term as the secretary-treasurer of the Czechoslovak History Conference. The society promotes and fosters interdisciplinary scholarly research, publication and teaching related to the history of the lands, people and culture of Czechoslovakia, and sponsors panels and sessions at national and international conferences. Initially founded in 1975 as an American organization, the membership now includes scholars from 10 countries from North America, Europe and Asia.

Patron Campaign Set for Symphony Season

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University has begun its annual Gold Pass Patron campaign. All patrons receive two "Gold Passes" to each of the fall and spring performances of the SSO, a subscription to the group's semiannual newsletter, advance notice as well as a discount price for tickets to the annual "Savor the Symphony" fund raiser, and a listing of their names in each SSO concert program. Patrons also enjoy the added convenience of having their "Gold Pass" mailed to their homes.

This season, as with last year's performances, both the fall and spring concerts will be extended to two performances, one evening and one afternoon, in response to audience demand. The afternoon concert has opened up performances to senior citizens and children who might not otherwise be able to attend.

The fall concert will be held on Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m., December 4 and 5, in Holloway Hall Auditorium at SSU. The performance will include Haydn's "Symphony No. 104" ("The London Symphony"), Mozart's "Piano Concerto #17," featuring Scot Hawkins on piano, and traditional holiday music and "sing-a-long" carols. The spring concert will be held on Saturday at 8 p.m. and

First C. W. Amos & Co. Professorship: Ken Smith

Partnership with the business community has brought a new faculty member to the Perdue School of Business.

Dr. Ken Smith joins the accounting faculty as the first holder of the C.W. Amos and Company Professorship.

Tom Trice, who is a partner with C.W. Amos and Company and runs its Eastern Shore offices, says that his firm is pleased to enhance its relationship with the Perdue School. "We rely on SSU heavily for recruiting new staff," he said. "And we want to assist the University in hiring the best qualified faculty and staff."

Perdue School Dean Dr. Richard F. Bebee says that the new professorship "demonstrates the kind of partnerships we plan to develop within the business community." As the school moves toward accreditation with the prestigious American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, and as more graduates go on to work for area firms, Bebee says word is spreading about the high quality work going on at the Perdue School.

"I don't think people give away money," Bebee pointed out, "they invest in a good thing."

Careers Panel Discussion Page 6

Career Day Emphasizes Importance of Networking

Very often getting the job is a matter of whom you know as much as what you know. A network of contacts in business can become as critical as a solid resume.

SSU students will have a chance to begin building their career networks at the University's upcoming Career Day, Wednesday afternoon, November 18.

The event, sponsored by the SSU Alumni Office, is designed to give students a chance to hear about successfully making the transition from school to work from panelists in a wide array of fields. It's a transition these professionals have experience with, as all are SSU alumni.

Paul Rendine, who chairs Career Day V, is senior vice-president of W.H. Newbold's Son & Company Inc. and a 1974 graduate of Salisbury State. He says that he and his committee members are fortunate in finding eager Career Day participants among their fellow SSU grads. His reason for leading the group is one he has in common with all the Career Day panelists. "I got a good education at Salisbury State," he said. "This is a good way to give something back."

Having benefited personally from networking in his own career, education panelist Mark Bowen is eager to help students discover how to best market their own skills and make contacts that will help them in their job search. In today's economy, he says, those skills are especially vital.

"I want to let them know that even though people talk about the bleak job situation," he said, "if they market themselves and do the right things, they will succeed."

His local contacts played an important role in helping Bowen land his first teaching job: he points out that he won out over 115 other applicants. Today, at 27, he is vice-principal of Wicomico Middle School.

Career Day panelists will represent five major areas of study: education, business, liberal arts, and social and natural science. The professions they represent vary widely, from law to entomology, from television news anchor to systems administrator for a U.S. Senator.

As SSU's Assistant Director of Personal and Professional Development Terry Clay puts it, this is an opportunity for a student to interact "with a real life careerperson." She says that the juniors and seniors who attend get a preview of the "real world" while they still have time to plan ahead. The focus is on careers, not jobs.

"Students get a better sense of whether a career is for them," Clay said. "It's like reality testing: students might change their minds or might want that career more than ever. "Many of these students do library work, researching the field that interests them, but that's nothing like talking to someone who is actually in it."

Like Rendine, Salisbury attorney Edgar A. Baker, Jr. has participated in Career Day since it began. He says that while many students who attend seem to be focused, many are unaware of what is really involved in the career they hope to pursue. What's more, he said, "many don't realize how much of a sales job they have to do on themselves."

For those students, the event offers a chance to test their self-marketing skills before a job is on the line. And in some cases, the payoff is almost immediate. Several panelists say that they have seen Career Day conversations lead to job leads for some students. For more information call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Famed Russian Pianist Performs Here Nov. 8

Critically acclaimed Russian-born pianist Oleg Volkov will perform selected works by Beethoven, Schubert and Chopin in a recital here on Sunday, November 8.

The recital will begin at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Called "a magician as well as a keyboard technician" by The Washington Post, Volkov has received critical and popular acclaim since settling in the United States.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

United Charity Campaign Underway

Pledge cards were mailed to all University State employees for a voluntary contribution to the 1992 United Charity Campaign on Wednesday, November 4. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, also was mailed to all state employees.

The agency listing is helpful for those who wish to designate a specific agency to receive contributions or require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a VCR; employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. Also, University Dining Services has donated free passes to the annual Christmas dinner, Wednesday, December 16, and the Book Rack has donated some items. The drawing for the VCR and the other prizes will take place on Monday, November 23. The winners will be contacted immediately.

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

UAS Speaker Analyzes Black Leaders' Struggles

Dr. Lenworth Gunther, professor of history at Essex County College, NJ, will discuss "In Remembrance of Struggle: Marcus, Muhammad and Malcolm" on Thursday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. His lecture is part of the Union of African-American Students Leadership Lecture Series.

A former Woodrow Wilson and Ford Foundation Doctoral Fellow, Gunther is a nationally honored teacher, scholar, educational consultant and lecturer who has excited audiences throughout the country. He assisted in the preparation and teaching of Columbia University's first Afro-American history course. Gunther has taught African, Caribbean and African-American history at Ramapo College, Drew University, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Rutgers University and the New Jersey Institute of Technology.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

There will be no change of majors through the Liberal Studies Department during the two weeks of preregistration (November 9-20). Appointments will be made during this period for advisees only. Advisees should see their appropriate advisor during the preregistration period.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a general assembly meeting on Sunday, November 11, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome to attend.

SGA Pre-Game Party

The Student Government Association will be sponsoring its first annual Homecoming pregame party on Friday, November 6. The event takes place in Maggs Gym from 8-10 p.m. Come out and show support for the SSU football team and cheer the Gulls onto a victory.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Test-Taking Stress Reduction Workshop

Students who experience stress associated with test-taking should consider attending a two-session workshop offered by Dr. Bob McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development. Participants will learn effective methods to reduce test-taking stress, including how to replace feelings of anxiety with feelings of calmness and clear thinking.

There will be two separate sections of the seminar. One will be offered on Tuesdays, November 10 and 17, from noon-1 p.m. The second session will be offered on Wednesdays, November 11 and 18, from 4-5 p.m. For more information or to sign up for either section of the seminar contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6070.

Health Risk Assessment Set for November 17

On Tuesday, November 17, University employees will have an opportunity to again participate in a "Health Risk Assessment" on campus.

Employees can obtain a personal computer generated assessment of their lifestyle including: most important health risks; blood cholesterol level; blood pressure; value health age; strategies for improving one's lifestyle; and personal health score.

There will be two levels of screenings available. Option A (cost - $39.85) includes blood pressure screening; blood lipid profile (measures good, bad and total cholesterol levels); health risk assessment; and height/weight skeletal frame assessment. Option B (cost - $33.45) screens blood pressure and lipid profiles only.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield preferred provider members get a preferred rate of only $6.45 for Option A, and Option B is free.

For appointment times and pre-screening instructions, contact Shirley King at 548-4755.

Study Abroad For SSU Students

The University College of the University of Maryland has recently initiated a new program at Schwäbisch Gmünd in Germany. The program offers academic concentrations in four areas: business and managment, computer studies, contemporary German/European studies, and international studies. (Instruction is in English).

Each year two SSU students will be granted scholarships to attend for the academic year. The scholarship covers the difference between SSU tuition and Schwäbish Gmünd tuition and also covers air fare to and from Germany.

An informational meeting has been scheduled for those students interested in spending a year aborad at the Schwäbish Gmünd campus (or in other arrangements).

As part of the yearly Octoberfest program at SSU, Dr. Richard Shreck of the Office of International Programs of University College will be on campus on Thursday, October 29, from 6:30-8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, to talk to interested students and to answer questions regarding the Schwäbish Gmünd progam. His talk is co-sponsored by the German Club and the Political Science Club. Refreshments will be served.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Math Club Presents Preholiday Social

The Math Club hosts a preholiday social on Friday, November 6, at 7 p.m. in the Honors House (303 W. College Ave.) Even those who have never been to a Math Club meeting are more than welcome to come and bring a friend. The Math Club will provide the turkey and fixings. Anyone who wants to show off their culinary skills or Giant shopping skills, feel free to bring a covered dish.

Anyone who has ideas or wants to help in setting up should come to the Math Club meeting on Thursday, November 5, or just come to the Honors House a little early. For more information about the social or other Math Club events, check the bulletin board in the Guerrieri University Center or the Power Professional Building (beside room 117) or contact Dr. Kathleen Shannon or one of the officers (Surai Thaneemit, Melissa Pegg, Michele Mills, Celeste Jordan or Gail Johnson—all have mailboxes in the Power Building, room 117.

Math Club Holds Preregistration Social

On Tuesday, November 10, at 3:30 p.m., the Math Club will hold its once a semester preregistration social. This semester club members invite non-math majors to attend as well.

There are no professors allowed in the seminar room in Power Professional Building (room 117) at the time of the meeting—only students. So to get the scoop on which math course to take and for an idea on what the professors are really like, stop by. Also some of the professors will be in the building if visitors have more specific questions about a class.

Volunteers Needed For Habitat for Humanity

Join SSU's volunteers on Saturday, November 7, to help low-income families build affordable homes through Habitat for Humanity, a non-profit organization in the Salisbury area. The success of the program depends on volunteers. No experience is necessary. The last workday this semester for SSU volunteers is on December 5.

Meet in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m. or 1 p.m. For more information call Krissy Monks at 548-1976.

Nuts! Nuts! Nuts!

Black walnuts and pecan halves are for sale. Black walnuts are $6.25/lb. bag; pecans are $6/lb. bag. The sale benefits the Mardela High School Booster Club. Contact Debbie Bailey in the Physical Plant at 543-6201.

Bowl for Epilepsy

The 12th annual bowl-a-thon to benefit the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore will be conducted Sunday, November 22, from 2-6 p.m. at Ocean Lanes in Ocean City.

Prizes will be awarded to bowlers based on actual scoring and top pledge commitments obtained.

Bowlers gain pledges on a per pin knocked down basis. Participants bowl three-game sets and multiply the number of pins knocked down by their total sponsored amount.

Sponsor sheets are available at OC-104, Ocean Lanes in Ocean City and the EAES, Salisbury office. For more information call 543-0665.

'Choral Thanksgiving' Features Chamber Choir

The Salisbury Choral Society will present "A Choral Thanksgiving" on Sunday, November 22, at 4 p.m. at St. Frances de Sales Catholic Church. The program will also include the SSU Chamber Choir and SSU graduate Scot Hawkins on piano. Tickets are available at the door the evening of the performance, at the St. Frances de Sales church office, at the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council and from any Salisbury Choral Society singer. Adult tickets are $7 and students and senior citizens are $4.

The concert will feature the choral music of Randall Thompson—"Alleluia,„ "Mass of the Holy Spirit" and "Nowel." The combined choirs will present Verdi's "Stabat Mater" sung in Latin. The "Mass of the Holy Spirit" will be sung in English.

For further information, contact the SSU Department of Music at (410) 543-6385. Singers interested in participating in the Salisbury Choral Society during the spring season should contact Dr. Duane R. Karna, music director and conductor, as soon as possible to schedule an interview and audition. The Choral Society particularly encourages men interested in singing fine choral music to contact either Karna or Alan Selser, president of the SCS (749-2442). The spring season will include the choral music of Ralph Vaughan Williams, Benjamin Britten and William Walton.

Join the singers as the Salisbury Choral Society ushers in the holiday season with "A Choral Thanksgiving."

Voice, Choral Courses for Spring Available

Students interested in the vocal/choral program here for the spring semester are encouraged to contact Dr. Duane R. Karna, director of choral activities, for further information. Karna can be reached at 543-6385 (or 6386) in the Department of Music; his office is in Fulton Hall, room 240.

A sign-up sheet for private lessons is located on the bulletin board outside the choral rehearsal hall (Fulton Hall, room 130). Non-music majors are encouraged to enroll in MUSA 390-005, applied voice—Directed Independent Study. One credit equals a weekly half-hour lesson while two credits entitles a student to an hour voice lesson each week. An applied music fee of $150 per credit is charged.

Other options for students interested in improving their voice are: Class Voice II-MUSA 209, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 2-3 p.m., two credits, no applied fee; University Chorale-MUSA 100, Tuesdays, 7:30-9:30 p.m., one credit, students sing with the Salisbury Choral Society, music is purchased by each singer; SSU Chamber Choir-MUSA 106, Mondays, 4-5 p.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays, 3:30-5 p.m., one credit, by audition only; and Singer's Diction II (Italian) - MUSA 214, Thursdays, 12:30-1:30 p.m., one credit, students must be concurrently registered in private voice study. These courses listed have certain prerequisites and permission of the instructor is required.

During preregistration, students should contact Karna if they are interested in participating in one of the courses.

Franco-American Business Immersion Program Set

The Perdue School of Business and the Fulton School of Liberal Arts will be offering an intensive four-week program in January to study the Franco-American business environment and to practice French language skills in a business context.

Students will receive three hours credit under BUAD 494 (business students) or IDIS 479 (other students) for the business component, and three hours credit under IDIS 478 for the French language component. The courses must be taken together during the 1993 winter term, though the term program will end on Friday, January 29, rather than on February 3, as will the regular winter term. The prerequisites of the program are junior or senior standing or permission of the instructors, and French language competency at the French 102 level or equivalent.

The course will be team-taught by four professors. Dr. Gerry St. Martin and Dr. Arlene White will represent the Modern Language Department. They will provide some language review and class drills during the first two weeks; afterward they will conduct classes increasingly in French, including role playing exercises and class discussions of business related articles.

The two business professors, Dr. Memo Diriker and Dr. Benjamin Harrison, will introduce students to the French business environment during the first two weeks, using English language materials. Subsequently they will work with the French professors to explore French language written materials on business and to conduct marketing feasibility studies. All faculty and students will participate in several field trips and video-teleconferences.

The goal of the program is to provide all students with a working knowledge of French as used in a business context and of the French business environment. For language students, the program will provide an opportunity to apply language skills and to gain an exposure to business-related issues. Business students will be able to develop French language skills and study the French cultural and business environments.

There will be an interest meeting to discuss the course on Wednesday, November 4, at 3:30 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. For further information, students may speak to their advisors during registration week or contact any of the professors named above.

McAuliffe Scholarship Applications Are Available

Undergraduate education majors may apply for the Christa McAuliffe Memorial Teacher Education Award. Applicants must be Maryland residents, have 60 credit hours by September 1993, have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 and be full-or part-time.

Awards are available only in shortage areas of chemistry, earth science, foreign language, mathematics, physical science, physics and special education. Recipients must agree to teach full time in designated areas of critical shortage in a public school in Maryland. Applications are in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243. The deadline is December 31.

America's Discovery Analyzed by Poet

Renowned poet Barbara Helfgott Hyett will be part of a series of presentations here in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

Hyett will give a reading of her poems from her latest book "The Double Reckoning of Christopher Columbus," on Monday, November 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee at SSU. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Motivational Speaker Visiting Lecturer Here

Dr. Pamela T. Felder, educator and motivational speaker at Winston Salem University, will be the guest of the Office of Minority Affairs and Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics on Wednesday, November 11, as a visiting lecturer.

Felder will spend the day with faculty and students in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics as lecturer and workshop facilitator. Her major topic will be "I've Got to Change My Attitude." She is author of "Dream but Dream Big—Positive Thinking Can Make a Difference," which identifies the keys to positive thinking and high self-esteem.

In the evening, Felder will make a special presentation titled "Molding Our Future: It Rests in Your Hands" to the Union of African-American students in recognition of its Leadership Week activities at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

The joint effort of the Office of Minority Affairs and the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics is a continuing cooperative effort to provide extracurricular activities and speakers to the campus.

For more information, call Vaughn White at 548-4503.

Theatre Bus Trip To D.C. Organized

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a theatre bus trip to see "The Way of the World" by William Congreve at the Arena Stage Theatre in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, November 10. The trip is open to students, staff and faculty, and their friends.

"The Way of the World" is considered one of the finest comedies in the English language. The Restoration comedy shows the conflict between "worldliness" and decency. The action is driven by the jealousies, mistaken identities, discovered plots and, ultimately, the triumph of good over evil.

Sign up at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center. Tickets are $12 for studnets, $16 for others.

There will be no refunds for cancellations unless the seat is filled. The bus will leave the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 2:30 p.m.; there will be time for dinner in Washington before the 7:30 p.m. curtain. The bus will return to the Guerrieri Center directly after the performance.

For additional information, call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.

Philosophy Professor Discusses Columbus' Discovery

"Visions and Revisions: Ideas of the Americas" will be part of a series of presentations here in celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The lecture by Dr. Robert Ginsberg, a professor of philosophy at Pennsylvania State University, Delaware County Campus, will be held Monday, November 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of this year's Fall Lecture Series: "Columbus the Legacy: What He Brought and What He Took Away."

Ginsberg will offer a philosophical exploration for the discovery of the Americas by tracing the hemispheric experience through the colonial, revolutionary and independent stages.

His work is in the social and political philosophy, aesthetics and value theory, and 18th century thought. Ginsberg is the author of "Welcome To Philosophy!" and "Gustav Vigeland: A Case Study in Art and Culture." He has also edited several books and published 100 studies on people such as Thomas Jefferson, Henry James, and Francis Bacon. Currently, he is editor of "The Journal of Value Inquiry," Value Inquiry Books, and New Studies in Aesthetics.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee at SSU. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Yard Debris Composting Guidelines Cited

The City of Salisbury is extremely interested in reducing the quantity of refuse going to the county landfill. Not only will this save tax dollars but it is also environmentally responsible. Composting of yard debris will help the city reach its goal. However, there are set procedures that must be followed.

Yard debris for composting should include leaves, grass clippings, and small bush or tree trimmings. Debris for composting should not include branches, food wastes, animal or pet litter or other bulky organic wastes. Debris for composting must be bagged for collection. Clear plastic bags are preferable but not mandatory.

Debris for composting must be separated by the resident from the normal household garbage or refuse. Debris for composting must be collected separately as part of the City Wednesday bulk-item pick up. Call Tuesday to arrange for a Wednesday pick up.

The cooperation of the general public is essential to the success of the composting program. Please help conserve tax dollars and keep the city clean.

Perdue School Majors Preregistration Set

Preregistration for spring for Perdue School of Business students is November 9-20. All current degree seeking undergraduates must have their program planning forms approved by their advisors.

Students should sign up for an appointment with their advisor for the first week of advisement to ensure adequate time to go over their schedule, remaining requirements, etc. Sign-up sheets will be posted the week of November 2.

Xerox President Is Executive-in-Residence

Students of the Perdue School of Business were offered a close-up view of life in corporate America recently as seen through the eyes of James H. Lesko, president of the Personal Documents Division of Xerox Corporation.

In his role as SSU Executive-in-Residence, Lesko toured the Perdue School and then served as guest professor in a business management class. After outlining his current responsibilities at Xerox, Lesko opened the floor and responded to students' questions on everything from his personal philosophy of success to Xerox's future market share. Lesko also entertained questions concerning the best way to get a job for college graduates. His advice was practical and realistic. "We were surprised he was so down-to-earth and honest," remarked one business student.

Before joining the students, Lesko was the featured speaker at a breakfast for community business leaders. In his talk, "Management For Results," he shared his experiences in implementing Total Quality concepts at Xerox. Co-sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and the Salisbury State University Foundation, the breakfast provided business leaders an opportunity to hear a practitioner of the philosophy speak on the benefits of Total Quality Management.

The Lower Eastern Shore RTC, established in 1990 by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development to provide greater focus on technology issues, has taken the lead in exploring avenues in which Total Quality concepts could benefit Shore businesses.

Lesko willingly shared his experiences including perspectives on his almost 21-year tenure at Xerox. A veteran manager, Lesko assumed his current position as president of the Personal Documents Division in March of this year. He began working for the corporation in June 1973 in sales and sales management and in 1980 was promoted to district sales manager of Xerox's Greensboro, NC, office.

Serving in that capacity until January 1987, Lesko was named vice president-general manager of supply marketing and sales. In February 1990 he became the director of marketing for the Americas Operations serving for one year until he was named director of organizational architecture in September 1991. Until the early months of this year, he reported directly to the chief executive officer of Xerox and was author of the company's reorganizational structure as announced on March 1.

A graduate of Gettysburg College with a degree in business administration, Lesko resides in Connecticut with his wife and two children.

Read About Columbus At the Book Rack

To help celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, the Book Rack is carrying a selection of appropriate books. In addition to SSU's own William Palmer's "Secret Journal of Christopher Columbus" and other titles about the explorer, the Book Rack also has several titles portraying Native American's views. Please stop in and browse.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It's postseason playoff time again for the SSU field hockey team as the Gulls begin play in the 1992 NCAA Tournament this Saturday. Salisbury, 10-5-1 and seeded second in the South Region, will meet third-seeded Johns Hopkins at 11 a.m. The winner will advance to Sunday's regional championship game at 1:30 p.m. against the winner of Saturday's Franklin & Marshall/Eastern Mennonite contest. The Sea Gulls are making their ninth straight trip to the tournament, and have a 14-7 record in NCAA play since 1984. Their record in first round games is 7-1.

The postseason news wasn't quite as bright for the men's soccer team when bids to the 32-team Division III tournament were announced on Monday. Despite a 13-2-1 record, the best in school history, the Gulls were overlooked in the selection process. Salisbury capped its record-setting season with a 1-1 double-overtime tie at top-ranked Methodist last Saturday. SSU's score against Methodist set a new school-record for goals in a season, with 40. The defense also set a single-season school-record for lowest goals against average, 0.75.

The football team looks to regroup for this Saturday's Homecoming game against Newport News. The Gulls fell to Albany, 48-7, last week. Among the bright spots was the performance of junior WR Charlie Whalen, who established a new single-game record with 12 receptions. SSU is 2-5 with two games remaining.

The women's volleyball team concludes its season this week and tries to add to its five-match winning streak. The Gulls, 21-12, swept a pair of matches against UMES last week and also downed Marymount.

The men's and women's cross country teams have one race remaining in their seasons. The squads will compete in the NCAA Mideast Regional at Allentown, PA, on November 14. The race serves as the qualifier for the NCAA National Championship race the following weekend.

While he is attracted to the pace and lifestyle that the Eastern Shore promises, Smith says that he was most impressed by SSU and its business school. "The school is run in a very professional manner," he said. "There is a real sense of community among the faculty, a considerable respect for one's colleagues."

Smith is also looking forward to continuing a practice he enjoyed in his previous position as accounting professor at Towson State University. "I like to see a dialogue between the professional community and students," he said. "That way, students get to see what's involved, to see what an accountant does on the job."

"And I enjoy steering my best students to the good firms in the area."

Smith earned his doctorate at George Washington University. While pursuing his M.B.A. at Loyola College, he worked as a tax accountant for a Baltimore firm. This is his 16th year in teaching.

He and his wife Betzie and their two children moved to Salisbury this summer from Ellicot City, MD.

Sunday at 2 p.m., May 8 and 9, in Holloway Hall and will feature individual members of the SSO performing concertos.

According to Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, music director and conductor, the 1992-93 campaign goal is to enlist 250 patrons. Season brochures about the orchestra and its season will be mailed shortly. To be added to the mailing list or for more information, please call 543-6385.

Women's Basketball Coach

SSU has an opening for an assistant women's basketball coach.

Responsibilities include recruiting qualified student-athletes (a top priority), attending practice and games, and assisting with administrative duties.

The season runs from November 1 through the end of February. Practice times for the first semester are from 3:30-5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Practice is also held on Saturdays where applicable.

Applicants should contact Bridget Benshelter at 543-6003 if interested. Leave name and home phone number. A stipend is available.

Assistant Professor Philosophy Department

SSU seeks an assistant professor (instructor if A.B.D.) for an anticipated tenure-track position in the Philosophy Department, beginning next fall. Applicants will teach four courses, three preparations per semester at the undergraduate level. A small, energetic department open to a diversity of philosophical approaches, a person is sought with wide-ranging philosophical (and intellectual) interests who is an enthusiastic and deeply committed undergraduate teacher. The successful candidate will be encouraged to develop innovative courses in her/his areas of interest.

AOS is open but not political philosophy, philosophy of religion or aesthetics. In addition to a broad background in the history of philosophy, candidate's AOC should include some of the following: philosophy of the social sciences, feminist thought, non-Western philosophies, applied ethics, logic, critical thinking and the phenomenological tradition. Salary is competitive.

Non-teaching responsibilities include helping with the student philosophical society. In addition to complete dossier, please send syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and any upper level course the applicant would enjoy teaching; include, if available, a brief description of philosophical perspective. Writing sample is optional.

Candidates wishing to be considered for pre-arranged interview at eastern division meeting should have application in by December 14. Deadline for applications is January 1. Address applications to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Service Work Supervisor

The Physical Plant is currently accepting applications for the position of service work supervisor. This will be a classified position with benefits. The successful applicant plans, assigns and supervises the work of a group of custodians, assisted by a service work chief, as necessary. In addition to planning, scheduling and inspecting work, this individual is also responsible for establishing and maintaining proper levels of supplies, keeping cleaning equipment operational, maintaining records and preparing reports.

Minimum qualifications include two years as a service work chief or five years experience in housekeeping, caretaking or cleaning, at least two years of which must have been as a supervisor. The position will be on the night shift, and may require weekend and holiday work, as needed. Starting salary is $15,704 to $16,562. Interested persons should complete and turn in an application by November 6 to the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Residence Hall Association Room Decorating Contest

The Residence Hall Association will be holding its second annual Room Decorating Contest on Tuesday, November 10, at 7 p.m. The RHA would like to thank all the residents who are participating this semester.

Remember the Winter Storage Trailer project last year? The RHA is offering on-campus storage, for a nominal cost, again this year during the winter term. Help is needed in planning and implementing the project. RHA's next meeting is on Tuesday, November 10, at 8:30 p.m. in the fireside lounge (next to the Gull's Nest) in the Guerrieri University Center.

For more information write to RHA, Box 3041, or call Leatrice Jay at 546-4380.

Dance Showcase Has Variety of Styles

The Dance Company presents its third annual "Student Dance Showcase" on Wednesday November 11, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Two performances are scheduled at 7 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

The concert features a variety of dance styles including modern, jazz and hip-hop. All nine works are choreographed by members of the Dance Company.

General admission tickets are $2. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free with an I.D. Tickets will be sold at the door. A bake sale will be held in the lobby with proceeds to benefit the Dance Company.

For further information, contact Mary Troy, Dance Company director, at 543-6353.

Watercolor Landscapes Is Next Atrium Exhibit

An exhibit of watercolors by Cambridge resident Peter Loonam is on display through November 24 in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center.

The exhibit will feature landscapes reminiscent of the Eastern Shore, but not literal renderings of specific places. Loonam's work captures the beauty of the quiet backroads and the areas where marsh and woodlands merge. Often the mood is set with an overcast sky or a moment right after a sudden rain shower. People are rarely seen in Loonam's work.

The Atrium Gallery is open 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-4 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Signed posters by Loonam will be on sale in the gallery. For more information, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6100.

School System Expo Has Job Opportunities

The Center for Personal and Professional Development in coordination with the Kappa Delta Pi education honor society is holding a School System Expo on Tuesday, November 10. The expo is from 5-7 p.m. in Nanticoke A and B Rooms in the Guerrieri University Center.

School systems represented are Somerset County, Prince George's County, Worcester County, Baltimore City and Cape Henlopen, DE. Each district's representative will give a presentation on what that system has to offer future teachers. At the end of the presentations, students will have time to speak informally with the representatives. Refreshments will be served.

The expo will be an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in the field of education to become aware of job opportunities and the outlook for teaching.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, contact Linda Benson at 543-6075.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

Careers in Marketing Panel Discussion Set

On Tuesday, November 17, the Center for Personal and Professional Development and the Perdue School of Business will be conducting a panel presentation titled "Careers in Marketing."

The panel is designed to inform students interested in careers in marketing of the range of opportunities open to them after graduation. Representatives from a variety of organizations will be on hand to discuss marketing opportunities. Organizations to be represented include Perdue Farms, Inc., Salisbury Pepsi-Cola, DuPont, the Direct Marketing Association and the Marketing Research Association. Each panelist will be given 10 to 15 minutes to address relevant issues, and then a question and answer period will follow. In addition, literature on marketing careers, employers and internships will be available.

The panel discussion will take place in room 114 of the Perdue School of Business. For more information contact Terry Clay in the CPPD at 543-6070.

Tutoring Services Available to Students

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Sciences continues to offer the following services to all SSU students in math courses at all levels.

Tutoring services are available Monday through Thursday from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., and Sunday from 5-9 p.m. The services are available in the seminar room on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The tutors are students who have been hand-picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring aptitude. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis.

A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. The instructors are willing to help with all questions.

The Math Lab located in the Power Professional Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Students will be directed to the Math Lab by the instructors.

Vietnam Conference Brings Leading Scholars, Journalists to Campus

It happened almost 25 years ago, yet the Tet Offensive and its impact on the conflict in Southeast Asia continues to shape American lives. In anticipation of the 25th anniversary of Tet, considered the turning point in the war, Salisbury State is assembling some of the country's most outstanding scholars on the war in Vietnam and its impact then, now and on our future for "Remembering Tet, 1968: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War."

Speakers at the conference will be bringing a depth of personal experience and scholarship from both sides of the conflict. R.W. Apple, Jr., currently the Washington, D.C. Bureau Chief for the New York Times, was a war reporter in Vietnam from 1965 to 1968. Bui Diem, South Vietnam's ambassador to the United States from 1967 to 1972, is currently associated with the Pacific Basin Research Institute and the author of "In the Jaws of History." A filmmaker, poet and journalist who wrote about the war from the perspective of the common soldier in the North Vietnamese Army,

Time Magazine Lauds Book, Author Coming To Vietnam Conference

Jeff Stein spent four years researching "A Murder in Wartime" and it would seem to have paid off. Time magazine has called it "a tautly written volume . . . 'The Caine Mutiny' of the Vietnam War." Stein will be discussing the book and its implications for military intelligence at an upcoming conference hosted by SSU.

"Remembering Tet, 1968: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War" is scheduled for November 18-21 on campus. Stein will be one of more than 80 authors and scholars to examine the Vietnam War and its continuing impact on America.

Stein's topic will be that of his critically acclaimed book. He'll discuss "The End of Innocence: The Green Beret Murder Case of 1969." The case is one that at the time was second in notoriety only to the My Lai killings. The moral implications continue to reverberate.

Vietnamese, U.S. Poets Read from Their Work at Vietnam Conference

Poets Bruce Weigl and Pham Tien Duat have nothing—and everything—in common. They entered the Vietnam conflict form opposing sides. They left it having been changed utterly by an experience that continues to inform their writing. Both will read from their work (English translations will be read for Duat) on Thursday, November 19, at 3:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center. It is free and open to the public. The readings are in conjunction with the "Remembering TET, 1968: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War," held November 18-21 at SSU.

Born in 1942 in the Vinh Phu Province of northern Vietnam, Duat enlisted in the People's Army of Vietnam (PAVN) on the eve of the Gulf of Tonkin incident in 1964. He was assigned to the Group 559 Logistics Division, which built and maintained the Ho Chi Minh Trail. His poems and essays, published from the front, were well received, earning for Duat the title People's Artist and reassignment as a journalist.

Duat's name is a household word in Vietnam even today. As a special correspondent, he was given privileged access to every active fighting theatre and to the highly secret communist southern headquarters.

This assignment to write for the People's Army apparently carried few restrictions on Duat's writing. Unlike many of his contemporaries, he steers clear of politics and propaganda. Duat writes from the perspective of the average soldier fighting on his native soil. Some of his poems could have been written from either side of the conflict.

One such poem, included in an English-language volume of Vietnamese literature that spans the 10th through 20th centuries, is "Drivers of Lorries without Windscreens." It ends:

the trucks coming from where bombs are falling return in convoys
when we pass friends along the trail we shake hands through broken windscreens

no windscreen, no headlights either no tarpaulin, floorboards falling to bits
the truck keeps rolling South—ahead:
if there's a heart in the truck, it's enough.

Another of Duat's poems might be a love song—or a requiem for Vietnam. It begins:

you and I, let us hang our hammocks in the same mountain jungle
we two—at the two ends of the long chain the road to the front is so beautiful in this season
the Eastern Chain longs so for the Western one single mountain, two colours of clouds there sun, here rain, the sky too is different that's how it is with you and me and South and North
that's how it is with two slopes of one long single forest

Voice, Choral Courses for Spring Available

Students interested in the vocal/choral program here for the spring semester are encouraged to contact Dr. Duane R. Karna, director of choral activities, for further information. Karna can be reached at 543-6385 (or 6386) in the Department of Music; his office is in Fulton Hall, room 240.

A sign-up sheet for private lessons is located on the bulletin board outside the choral rehearsal hall (Fulton Hall, room 130). Non-music majors are encouraged to enroll in MUSA 390-005, applied voice—Directed Independent Study. One credit equals a weekly half-hour lesson while two credits entitles a student to an hour voice lesson each week. An applied music fee of $150 per credit is charged.

Other options for students interested in improving their voice are: Class Voice II-MUSA 209, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 2-3 p.m., two credits, no applied fee; University Chorale-MUSA 100, Tuesdays, 7:30-9:30 p.m., one credit, students sing with the Salisbury Choral Society, music is purchased by each singer; SSU Chamber Choir-MUSA 106, Mondays, 4-5 p.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays, 3:30-5 p.m., one credit, by audition only; and Singer's Diction II (Italian) - MUSA 214, Thursdays, 12:30-1:30 p.m., one credit, students must be concurrently registered in private voice study. These courses listed have certain prerequisites and permission of the instructor is required.

During preregistration, students should contact Karna if they are interested in participating in one of the courses.

In Memoriam: Mary W. Chapman

Mary Wheeler Chapman, wife of professor emeritus, Dr. Oscar J. Chapman, Sr., died October 31 at Peninsula Regional Medical Center, shortly after a massive stroke.

Born in Elkridge, MD, she was the daughter of Lelar Conaway Hooker and the late Randolph Wheeler.

Chapman was a graduate of the Baltimore Public School System and Morgan State University. She also did graduate work at New York University and was an English teacher at Carver High School in Towson from 1949-51.

She joined Douglas Memorial Community Church in 1953. She moved to Salisbury in 1973. She was a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

In addition to her mother and husband, she is survived by a stepson, Oscar J. Chapman, Jr. of New Castle, DE; one aunt, Novella Conaway Samuel of Washington; and nine cousins.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Japanese Dancer Performs Here Nov. 17

Japanese performer Shizumi will bring her innovative style of dance and theater on Tuesday, November 17, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Shizumi distills 2,000 years of Japanese dance, theater, art and literature in performances that gives Western audiences a window into the heart of the Japanese aesthetic. Her use of material from folk, Kyogen and Noh theater forms along with modern and traditional music, costuming, masks and fans, produces pieces that are always colorful and moving.

A pioneer in her field, Shizumi has made the ancient Kyogen and Noh repertoires fresher and more accessible. She slips from Japanese to English, using traditional Kyogen inflections to deliver the impact of the poetry to an English-speaking audience.

At the age of five, Shizumi began formal study of classical ballet and Japanese modern dance in her hometown of Osaka. She was later exposed to many other aesthetic influences including pottery, puppetry, calligraphy, theater, the Japanese tea ceremony and Zen Buddhism.

From 1975 to 1980, Shizumi continued her studies of ballet and modern dance at the Conservatory of Ballet in San Francisco and Los Angeles, and studied theater at San Francisco State University. She continues to explore dance from other Asian cultures such as the Korean drum dance, Chinese sword dance and dances from Indonesia and Bali.

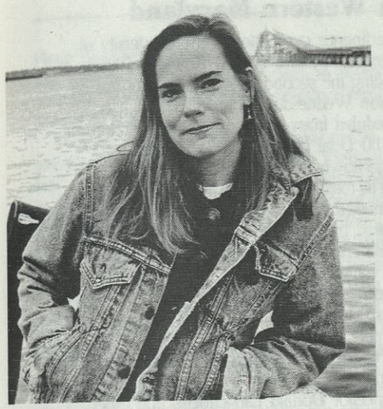
Shizumi has performed throughout the United States and abroad, including several performances at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The performance is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Program Board. It is free and the public is invited to attend. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

McAuliffe Scholarship Applications Are Available

Undergraduate education majors may apply for the Christa McAuliffe Memorial Teacher Education Award. Applicants must be Maryland residents, have 60 credit hours by September 1993, have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 and be full-or part-time.

Awards are available only in shortage areas of chemistry, earth science, foreign language, mathematics, physical science, physics and special education. Recipients must agree to teach full time in designated areas of critical shortage in a public school in Maryland. Applications are in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243. The deadline is December 31.



Barb Schloff Performs Live At Spotlight Cafe

The Salisbury State Program Board's Spotlight Cafe presents Barb Schloff in concert on Friday, November 13, at 8 p.m. in the Gull's Nest at the Guerrieri University Center. The Rhode Island-based singer, songwriter will be appearing at SSU for one night only.

"Armed with only her red guitar, evocative vocal style, tongue-in-cheek-humor and songs which are now garnering critical attention, her live performance is captivating," said one critic. She has made concert appearances with such well-known artists as Suzzanne Vega, Michelle Shocked and Donovan. Many rock bands have developed Schloff into a headliner in her own right.

She has already produced two independent recordings, "Barb Schloff" and "Live at the Underground," and recently completed a tour of Western and Eastern Europe. Don't miss out on this opportunity to listen to some fine music, performed live; there is never a charge at the Spotlight Cafe.

For more information, call Jodie Pelcman at 543-6197.

'Choral Thanksgiving' Features Chamber Choir

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "A Choral Thanksgiving" on Sunday, November 22, at 4 p.m. at St. Frances de Sales Catholic Church in Salisbury.

The program features choral music of the American composer Randall Thompson—"Mass of the Holy Spirit" sung in English, the beautiful and often performed "Alleluia," and, from the Nativity according to St. Luke, the "Nowell." The concert also features graduate Scot Hawkins performing on piano as well as the SSU Chamber Choir. The choirs under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Karna of the music faculty combine to conclude the afternoon performance with Guiseppe Verdi's "Stabat Mater" sung in Latin. The combined choirs of 85 singers bring to conclusion an outstanding afternoon of choral music to usher in the beginning of the holiday season.

Karna, director of choral activities and an assistant professor of music, is currently the college/university representative for the Maryland Choral Educators Association as well as the Maryland ACDA (American Choral Directors Association) state president. As a member of the ACDA as well as NATS (National Association of Teachers of Singing), he is in demand as a clinician, guest conductor and voice teacher.

God and Environment Panel Discussion Topic

The bay is dying. Landfills are closing. Toxins poison the air. Chemicals contaminate food and water. Disease, filth, pollution, extinction—Mother Earth is terminally ill.

But is the Earth our mother? What relationship do we have with this planet and the rest of her inhabitants? Why are we in this mess? How do we get out of it?

The pragmatic aspects of responses to these questions have sparked raging debate in the academic community. Are there also spiritual implications to these responses? Have we ignored a dimension that is critical to our understanding of environmental issues? These questions will be explored during a panel discussion titled, "Earthkeeping: Spiritual Dimensions," on Monday, November 23, at the Guerrieri University Center starting at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room.

The evening will begin with each of the three-person panel giving a 20-minute presentation of his views. A time for discussion will follow, moderated by Dr. Francis Kane of the Philosophy Department. Members of the panel are Dr. Lawrence Adams, director of international and economic policy studies for the Washington, D.C.-based Institute on Religion and Democracy, Dr. Bernard (Ben) Fusaro, local environmental activist and mathematical science professor at SSU, and Richard Pyle, theologian and producer-director for KYW-TV of Philadelphia.

Adams, who is also editor of Anglican Opinion and Policy Studies Network, will address the political/social aspects of differing views of earthkeeping in his presentation, "Mother Earth, Green Gods, Rainbows and the Church." Adams says that the varying environmental views "reflect not only what one thinks about creation, but what one believes about ultimate truth." Adams will explore three world views: man-centered, earth-centered and the God-centered. He will conclude by considering the credibility question, "Which belief system offers the most credible answers to the environmental issues?"

"Humanism, Religion and the Environment" will be Fusaro's topic. Pyle, a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and Reformed Episcopal Seminary, currently directs live newscasts and public affairs programs for a network television station. Pyle will be clarifying the biblical view of the environment and responding to critiques of Christianity as ecologically unfriendly in his presentation, "Global Harming: A View from Above." Pyle said, "It is unwarranted to say that Christianity and the Bible are inherently harmful to the environment. Rightly understood, the Bible is an environmentally-friendly document."

The event is sponsored in cooperation with Campus Crusade for Christ, the SSU Faculty Bible Study and Truthquest. There is no admission fee for the event and the public is invited to attend. For more information contact Dr. Ed Senkbeil in the Chemistry Department at 543-6455 or Brent Wilhelm in the Computer Center at 543-6524.

Jamieson to Lecture on Presidential Campaign

Kathleen Jamieson, professor of communication and dean of the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania, will discuss "The communication of the '92 Campaign" on Wednesday, Novermber 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room at the Guerrieri University Center.

Jamieson has had over 35 articles published, along with six books dealing with many aspects of politics. She has also been invited to give lectures to 80 different universities and colleges, including Harvard and William and Mary, and special interest groups such as the Maryland League of Women Voters and Twentieth Century Fund's Theodore White Seminar on Presidential Debate.

Jamieson also has numerous fellowships and grants to her credit, such as the Knapp and Ford Fellowship, as well as the National Endowment for the Humanities Grant, "East-West Rhetoric," and the Woodrow Wilson Grant, Media Studies Project. Jamieson has also been involved with governmental services. She coordinated the radio office at the Democratic Convention, was presidential appointee to the White House Conference on Aging and participated with the AIDS Taskforce on the Social Marketing of Contraceptives.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Clark Organ Recital At Asbury Church

An organ recital by Music Department faculty member Roy R. Clark will be held Sunday, November 15, at 4 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

The performance is free and open to the public. A reception will follow in the lounge of the Guerrieri University Center at SSU.

In addition to teaching organ, harpsichord and piano at Salisbury State, Clark is the director of music, organist and choir master at St. Michael the Archangel Church in Georgetown, DE.

A native of Bear Creek, PA, Clark received his Master of Music degree in baroque instruments from the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, and a Bachelor of Music in organ and vocal performance from Wilkes University in Wilkes-Barre, PA.

He has given numerous concerts, mostly in Pennsylvania and the Boston area. Clark's performance at Asbury Church is sponsored by the Music Department and the Guerrieri Center.

Asbury Church is located at the intersection of Camden Avenue and Dogwood Drive adjacent to the campus. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

CAREER DAY PLANNERS Career Day on Wednesday, November 18, will bring several alumni back to campus to share their "real life" experiences with current SSU students. Among those planning the event are Paul Rendine (left), Alumni Association president; Nancy Wagner (center), Alumni Association executive director; and Terry Clay, assistant director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

The SSU theatre production of "A Lesson From Aloes," stars, from left, Franz Wise, Jennifer Carlson and Charles Price. Performances will be in the Fulton Theatre in Fulton Hall Wednesday, November 18, through Monday, November 23.

'A Lesson From Aloes' Opens Here November 18

"Lesson From Aloes," a play which addresses relationships and politics in South Africa under the shadow of apartheid, will be presented at the University starting Wednesday, November 18.

The winner of the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for best play of the year in 1991, "A Lesson From Aloes" shows the effect the South African police state has on the native black citizens as well as the Afrikaners, white natives of Dutch descent. More than a political statement, the play is about stress and betrayal in relationships and the loss of friendship.

Written by South African playwright Athol Fugard, the play is set in the house of a liberal Afrikaner couple, Piet and Gladys Bezuidenhout, who are awaiting the arrival of a black family for dinner—something that is forbidden by law in South Africa. Although the family never arrives, the head of the family, Steve Daniels, does. He has just been released from prison and is planning to flee the country. Before he goes, Steve wants to confront Piet who he believes has betrayed him. Since the two will probably never see each other again, Steve wants to leave his relationship with Piet with some sort of resolution.

"There's a political theme, but the play is timeless and relevant because it's so human," said Robert Smith, director of the SSU production. "It's a very rich story about three people deeply committed to each other, but each has had his passion wounded and is trying to find a different way to be."

Smith said he chose the play because of his long interest in Fugard's work. "But I also wanted to work with a play that's more about language and relationships than action," he said.

"A Lesson From Aloes" stars Franz Wise as Piet Bezuidenhout, Jennifer Carlson as Gladys Bezuidenhout and Princess Anne native Charles Price as Steve Daniels. All three will be making their SSU acting debuts in this production.

The play will be presented in the Fulton Theatre in Fulton Hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, November 18-21, and Monday, November 23. A matinee performance will be held at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 22.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and non- SSU students. SSU students, faculty and staff are admitted free with an I.D. For more information, call the box office at (410) 543-6228.

Britain Summer Tour Interest Meeting Set

An interest meeting for a summer 1993 tour of Britain will be held Wednesday, December 2, at 8:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 103. The travel course is being organized by Wayne Ackerson, a faculty member in the History Department, who said, "the response was so great last year we're doing it again."

The itinerary of the tour will include such sites as York, London, Stonehenge, and Tintagle Castle (the legendary home of King Arthur), as well as stops in Wales and many other locales.

The price of the tour, exclusive of tuition, will be around $1,700, and includes airfare, transportation by private motor coach, most meals, and all lodging and admission charges.

Ackerson, who lived in England for several years and who has travelled extensively throughout the Isles, says that the price is one of the strengths of the tour. "For this price," said Ackerson, "you could not get better lodging and experiences."

The trip is scheduled to leave June 7 and return June 18. Call Ackerson at 543-6527 for details.

Employees Many Need New Health Form

Employees (or their family members) currently receiving out-patient treatment from a mental health professional or involved in treatment for substance abuse/alcoholism take note.

Prior to January 1, employees must file a special precertification form which is available by calling 1-800-356-0038. This is a required step for employees during the open enrollment period this year in order to ensure that family members have coverage in 1993.

Calls to the above number are kept strictly confidential. In order to maintain privacy, when completing the precertification form, mail it directly to the new options mental health facility (unlike other health insurance forms which must come to the campus Personnel Office for processing).

The above telephone number is operational 24 hours a day, seven days a week to assist with questions about procedures for obtaining maximum benefit from one's coverage.

Public Tuition Forum In Western Maryland

The finance committee of the University of Maryland System (UMS) Board of Regents is holding the second of four public forums on tuition Wednesday, November 18. It is scheduled from 2-4 p.m. at the Sheraton Inn, 1910 Dual Highway (U.S. 40) in Hagerstown.

The forum, open to the public, will focus on the need for the 11-campus System to have an explicit, broadly-supported tuition policy and on the nature of such a policy. Those who attend will have the opportunity to express their concerns and thoughts about issues the UMS Board of Regents should consider as it develops the policy.

Present at the Hagerstown gathering will be members of the Board of Regents, UMS Chancellor Donald Langenberg, and other members of the System and institutional leadership team.

The finance committee has scheduled the forums in response to new challenges facing higher education generally and the University of Maryland System specifically. Says finance committee Chair Ann Hull: "The University System is committed to offering academic programs of the highest quality possible given available resources. At the same time, we have worked hard to provide broad student access to those programs by keeping tuition at affordable levels.

"As the economic climate and other circumstances lead the System to reexamine these and other priorities, we need to take a closer look at all sources of revenue, including tuition. In particular, we must review our tuition levels and the manner in which they are currently established.

"Attaining input from the citizens of Maryland is a significant part of this review process. Therefore, the Regents encourage widespread public participation in our forums."

Chancellor Langenberg earlier this year recommended that the Board of Regents hold public discussions on tuition as part of his blueprint for enhancing the System, even in difficult economic times. The first forum was held last month in Salisbury for citizens of the Eastern Shore. Other tuition forums will be held at sites in the Baltimore area and the Maryland suburbs of Washington, D.C.

For additional information, call University of Maryland System Administration in Adelphi at (301) 853-3740.

Cats, Kittens Free To Good, Loving Homes

The most beautiful cats and kittens in the world are presently living on campus. They are slightly wild, but with very sweet personalities, in excellent health, with some having had their rabies vaccinations already. Homes must be found for them before the really cold weather sets in. If interested, please call Mia Vye (chair of the SSU feline cat committee) immediately at 543-6012 or stop by Holloway Hall, room 237. Financial help (shots, etc.) may be available if necessary.

P.S. Vye assumes almost all financial responsiblity for these cats. She also feeds and nurtures them every single day, buying all the food they consume. Donations of money, or help with the expenses of shots and neutering/spaying, would help her.

Donations may be made to her in Holloway Hall, room 237, or to Anne Welsh, Holloway Hall, room 260.

Pham Tien Duat's poems and essays about the war were published to great acclaim in North Vietnam. Today, he is one of his country's most popular figures.

Duat will read selections from his war poems, assisted by an interpreter. Poet and Vietnam veteran Bruce Weigl will be featured with Duat in a joint poetry reading. Weigl is a recipient of the Pushcart Prize, American Academy of Poets. Other featured speakers include filmmaker and scholar Peter C. Rollins, on the role of the news media in the conflict, and Marilyn B. Young, author of "The Vietnam Wars, 1945-1990" and co-editor of "Vietnam and America: A Documented History." Dr. Henry J. Kenny, who will address future relations with Vietnam, was the first American to return to Vietnam after the war. He is a Vietnam veteran, has served as deputy staff director of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, and is currently a consultant for government and international affairs.

In addition, SSU is bringing together more than 80 authors and scholars to present and discuss papers on the war as reflected in literature and film, on military history and intelligence, and on the role the conflict played in American politics then and now.

Dr. Harry Basehart, who teaches political science at SSU, says he hopes the conference will deepen our understanding of what the Tet Offensive and the entire war has meant to America. "As a nation, we still have not arrived at a consensus on what Vietnam means to the United States," he said. "Rather than re-fighting the war, I hope we can look to the future."

Basehart and a committee that represents four different University departments have been working on the conference for two years. They acknowledge there has been some resistance from those who would rather forget the war. But as Basehart pointed out, "every time we think we forget it, we are faced with it again: the MIA/POW controversy or questions about Bill Clinton's and Dan Quayle's activities during the war, for example. All of these things show us Vietnam is still with us."

Donald Whaley teaches history at SSU and is on the Tet conference committee. He points out that this anniversary represents not only a time for reflection, but 25 years during which more information has become available to help scholars understand the war. And 25 years during which America has changed its view of itself.

"We have a sort of mythology about ourselves as invincible," he said. "Until Vietnam we believed firmly that Americans could not lose."

Vietnam, and specifically, the Tet Offensive, so dramatically shook that national self-image that it has taken years to recover. Whaley points out that while Hollywood is usually eager to embrace contemporary issues, 10 years passed before a Vietnam movie was attempted. The struggle between the artistic search for truth and the commercial quest for a happy ending led to a new mythology that continues through films from "Apocalypse Now" to "Dances With Wolves."

SSU English faculty member and editor of the Literature/Film Quarterly James Welsh says that there is a generation of Americans who have learned everything they know about Vietnam from films and in the classroom. He says that speakers at the conference will not only examine feature films that focus on Vietnam, but will also question the role of the news media in the way Americans thought about the war as it unfolded in their living rooms.

"Documentary filmmaker Peter Rollins served in Vietnam," Welsh said. "He believes that the media helped us to lose the war. The film he'll present at the start of the conference has a right-wing slant."

"Remembering Tet, 1968: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War" will be held on the SSU campus November 18-21. Presentations by the featured speakers are open to the public at no charge. The featured speakers are scheduled as follows: Peter Rollins will present the film "Television's Vietnam: The Impact of Visual Images" on Wednesday, November 18, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 149. Pham Tien Duat and Bruce Weigl will give a poetry reading on Thursday, November 19, from 3:30-5:45 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. South Vietnam's former ambassador to the United States, Bui Diem, will lecture from 1:15-2:15 p.m. on Friday, November 20, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. New York Times correspondent R.W. Apple, Jr. will speak on Friday, November 20, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Author Marilyn Young will lecture Saturday, November 21, from 1:15-2:30 in Devilbiss Hall, room 149. And Henry J. Kenny will address "Normalization and the Future of Vietnamese Relations" Saturday, November 21, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The conference received funding from the Salisbury State University Foundation, the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, the SSU departments of History and Political Science, and the Guerrieri University Center, and the conference was also supported in part by registration fees.

Anyone wishing to attend the entire conference must register and a fee is required. For more information contact Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030 or Basehart at 543-6242.

A colonel in the Green Beret and seven of his aides were charged with murder in the death of an alleged North Vietnamese double agent whom they believed posed a threat to a top-secret intelligence operation charged with tracking the results of secret U.S. bombing in Cambodia. In the months that followed, the seven were alternately treated as heroes and killers. Ultimately, the charges against them were dropped "for reasons of national security."

The story of the Green Beret murder broke while Stein was serving his Vietnam tour of duty assigned to Army Military Intelligence, an experience he describes as "eye opening, working in clandestine operations and seeing the premises under which they operate." He describes an intelligence system often manipulated by its own South Vietnamese agents, on whom Americans were too heavily dependent. "Rare was the intelligence officer," he said, "who had a real understanding of Vietnam and its history. Anyone who had an inkling didn't stay long enough."

When he returned to the States, Stein determined at first to leave the whole experience behind him. That was until the publication of the Pentagon Papers. Daniel Ellsberg's actions inspired Stein to actively oppose the war and he began working as a journalist, his first columns written about the war.

Finally, Stein returned to the story of the Green Beret murder, a story he felt his experience with military intelligence and his skills as a writer compelled him to pursue.

"In some ways I felt awful about my service in Vietnam," he said. "But it gave me insight into how (military intelligence) works. And this story has its own incredible narrative drama.

"No one had written a saga of the intelligence war. This story asks 'How far will you go in fighting a war before you destroy yourself?'"

In researching the book, he says, Stein became sometimes an interviewer, sometimes more of a detective. Few of the individuals directly involved in the case were easy to locate: once he had tracked down one of the principals, he might get help finding another. Sometimes what Stein learned in an interview helped him to decipher the documents that had been censored before they were released to him. At least one of the interviews offered a note of irony: Daniel Ellsberg, whose actions had inspired Stein's anti-war activism, told the author that the Green Beret murder case was the straw that broke Ellsberg's own camel's back and moved him to publish the Pentagon Papers.

One event since "A Murder in Wartime" was published has given Stein some hope. He has been a guest speaker at a brown bag luncheon hosted by Army Intelligence. This, he says, is indication that even those in the busines understand that "obsession with national security and secrecy can lead to foolish decisions—but almost 25 years later, it still goes on."

Stein will be one of four authorities on the war discussing the "Ending of the Vietnam War and the Homefront" as part of the "Remembering Tet" interdisciplinary conference at SSU. For more information on the conference, contact Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030 or Dr. Harry Basehart in the Political Science Department at 543-6242.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential Personal Information Form on file with the Center for Personal and Professional Development prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the CPPD as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

Tues. Nov. 17

Radio Shack (retail electronics)—business, liberal arts, computer marketing majors accepted. Manager trainees throughout Delmarva.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It's back to the Final Four for Coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team as the Gulls swept through the regional at Johns Hopkins University last weekend. SSU downed Johns Hopkins 2-1 in the opening round and blanked Franklin & Marshall 3-0 in the second round to earn its first trip to the national semifinals since 1988.

Salisbury State won the NCAA Division III national championship in 1986 and finished as the third-place team in 1987 and 1988. Salisbury (12-5-1) will meet William Smith in Friday afternoon's semifinal game to be played in Trenton, NJ. Two-time defending champion Trenton State hosts Messiah in the second semifinal. The winners meet on Saturday at 3:30 p.m. for the national championship. Friday's losing teams will meet in the consolation game at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Senior Kristen Guttilla was the offensive hero last weekend, scoring four of SSU's five goals in the two games, including all three against F. & M. With 20 goals on the year, she becomes the eighth Sea Gull player to reach that milestone in a single-season. Goalie Cindi Smith and the Gull defense, led by Diane Bondulich, Tammy Whelan and Nicki Houghton, recorded their seventh shutout of the season in the regional championship. Salisbury is averaging 2.33 goals/game this year while allowing just 0.88/contest.

The football team closes out its season at home this Saturday against Kean (NJ) in a 1 p.m. contest. Salisbury looks to avenge last year's 37-14 loss to the Cougars. The Gulls also hope to snap a current four-game losing string that includes a 20-14 loss to Newport News Apprentice last weekend.

The women's swim team is off to a 2-0 start after last Saturday's 75-30 victory against Hood College. The Gulls have their first home meet of the season this Saturday against Notre Dame (MD). The first event starts at 1 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Friday, November 13	Field Hockey vs. William Smith at NCAA Tournament	1 p.m.
Saturday, November 14	Cross Country at NCAA Regional	10 a.m.
	Swimming vs. Notre Dame (HOME)	1 p.m.
	Football vs. Kean (HOME)	1 p.m.
Wednesday, November 18	Swimming at Widener	6 p.m.

Nancy Wagner

Wagner Named New Alumni Director

Nancy Wagner of Ocean City has been named director of alumni relations.

The former alumni director at Goucher College, Wagner will be responsible for organizing SSU alumni events as well as overseeing the production of alumni publications such as the SCENE.

This year, the SCENE will take on a new look under Wagner's direction when it changes from a newspaper tabloid to a magazine format starting with the January 1993 issue.

Wagner said she plans to help strengthen ties with SSU alumni and to bring about greater participation in University and alumni events. She also plans to educate current students, or future SSU alumni, about the role of the Alumni relations Office.

"We're very excited that a seasoned professional such as Ms. Wagner has accepted the position as our director of alumni relations and will be sharing her many years of expertise with us," said Robert Gearhart, director of institutional advancement at SSU. "She comes to us from a high-quality alumni program at Goucher and we feel she can make a real contribution at Salisbury State."

Wagner worked at Goucher for 12 years until her retirement in 1991. She moved to Ocean City soon after that and went to work for the Ocean City Convention and Visitors Center.

Prior to working at Goucher, Wagner served as alumnae director at Oldfields and Garrison Forest, two private girls' schools outside Baltimore.

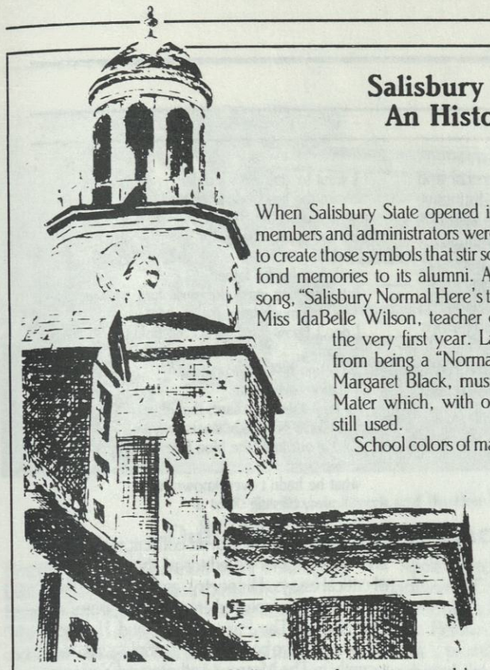
A graduate of Goucher, she is the mother of three grown children.

For information about upcoming alumni events and reunions, or any other alumni-related activities, call the Alumni Relations Office at 543-6042.

Book Signing Set At The Gallery

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) is sponsoring an exhibit, a book signing and sale by photographer/author Frank Van Riper on Wednesday, November 18, at The Gallery in the Court Plaza from 5-7 p.m. Admission is free.

Van Riper's book, "Faces of the Eastern Shore," will be on sale for $19.95. There will also be an exhibit including eight to 12 of Van Riper's original photographs. For more information call SWAC at 543-ARTS.



Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"Symbols and Emblems"
by Sylvia Bradley

When Salisbury State opened its doors in 1925 faculty members and administrators were keenly aware of the need to create those symbols that stir school spirit and bring back fond memories to its alumni. Accordingly, the first school song, "Salisbury Normal Here's to Thee," was composed by Miss IdaBelle Wilson, teacher of history and geography, in the very first year. Later when the school moved from being a "Normal School" to a college, Miss Margaret Black, music teacher, wrote the Alma Mater which, with only a few word changes, is still used.

School colors of maroon and gold were chosen by the faculty also in the school's opening year. The second year, Dr. Wilbur Holloway, the president, decided the school should have a special seal and organized a contest for students in one of the art classes to design one. Of the five designs submitted, the one drawn by Grace Hallam won. It was approved by a faculty committee, and sent to the State Board of Education for its sanction. Hallam's design, used without changes since that spring of 1927, was carefully composed to indicate a uniquely identifiable Salisbury school. As they explained, "The loblolly pine is characteristic of the Eastern Shore; the sail boat represents the fishing industry; the plow and farm demonstrate agricultural interests; the strawberry bed in the lower left foreground represents a leading industry of the Eastern Shore; the sun at its zenith signifies the educational service which it is hoped the school will render; the Maryland shield signifies that the school is a Maryland institution." The school ring design—gold, with the seal in a medallion, with a replica of the clock tower on one side of the seal and the initials SNS and a sprig of holly on the other side—was chosen at the same time.

In the early years interscholastic sports played a minuscule part of college life at Salisbury State. By the late 1940s, however, especially with the big increase of male students returning from World War II and taking advantage of the G.I. Bill, sports became more important. Working through the Men's Athletic Association and in cooperation with Coach Benn Maggs the athletic program was revived and expanded in everything from soccer to gymnastics (but not football). A cheerleading squad was organized in 1948, and as a result of a contest run by the SGA, the men's teams finally were given a new nickname and mascot in 1949—the "Gulls."

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Kraft Writes on Yugoslav Economy

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, has been notified that his chapter, "The Development of Small and Medium Enterprises and the Private Sector in Yugoslavia" will be published in "Capitalist Goals, Socialist Past: The Rise of the Private Sector in Command Economies," edited by Professor Perry L. Patterson of Wake Forest University.

The book explores the experiences of small business and the new private sector in a variety of formerly-Communist countries, including Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. It will be published by Westview Press in 1993.

Kraft's contribution traces the fate of private enterprise under Yugoslav socialism. After a brief experience with collectivization of agriculture, Yugoslavia allowed private farming in 1953. Since then, private farms and businesses have been tolerated, sometimes receiving mild encouragement but often experiencing severe limitations and harassment.

Official policy changed in the 1980s, as Yugoslavia sought to encourage both small public enterprises and small private enterprises.

While this led to some economic improvements, such as the opening of private restaurants and food shops, it did not have the expected impact on employment and output. This was partly due to the continued ambivalence of Yugoslavia's political leadership toward private enterprise.

However, in 1990, Yugoslavia enacted major reforms as part of a program to introduce a market economy. Over 30,000 private businesses sprung up, seemingly overnight, in fields like tourism, banking and retail. While these firms only made a small dent in the country's unemployment problems, and contributed only a small share of national income, they seemed to offer great promise.

Unfortunately, with the chaos of civil war in 1991, the Yugoslav experience with marketization has been badly hindered. However, Kraft concludes, there is hope that the seeds planted in 1990 will flower again when the war ends.

Habitat for Humanity Has Interest Meeting

As a result of a successful interest meeting recently, students decided to form a campus chapter for Habitat for Humanity, which will work directly with the Habitat affiliate on the lower Eastern Shore.

Habitat is a non-profit organization that works with low-income families to build affordable homes. If interested in helping to form a campus chapter, come to a meeting on Wednesday, November 18, at 9 p.m. in Devilbiss hall, room 108/109. Call Krissy Monks at 548-1976 or Pamela Rosen at 860-9220 for more information.

Reminder: Join Habitat volunteers on Saturday, December 5, for the SSU workday. Meet in front of Magg's Gym at 8:45 a.m. or at 1 p.m.

Commencement Tickets

Because of the growing numbers of students graduating from Salisbury State it is necessary to begin distributing tickets to graduates to give their guests who wish to attend commencement. Admission will be by ticket only.

Students who will be graduating in December will be able to request up to 12 tickets each. Tickets will be distributed through the Book Rack on November 18-20 along with caps and gowns. Students who do not need all 12 tickets should return the extra tickets to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students needing more than 12 tickets may come to the information desk beginning November 23 to request additional tickets.

The number of tickets available to graduating students for future commencements will vary depending on the number of students graduating.

Student Presents Paper

David L. Lybarger, a University graduate student in rhetoric and composition, presented a paper recently at the American Folklore Society's annual meeting in Jacksonville, FL.

The paper, "The Private Bulletin Board Service Communities," explored connections between high-technology advances and folk traditions. A grant from the Student Travel and Research Fund and technical support from the University's Computer Services Office made his presentation possible. A graduate of SSU, Lybarger was awarded a bachelor's degree in English and computer science in May 1991.

Small Selected

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has been selected to serve as researcher historian on a major project, with Dr. Antonio F. Holland, project leader, professor of history and chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at Lincoln University in Missouri. The project, which she has already begun, is titled "A Study of the African-American Presence in the Potomac River Valley: A Focus on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, 1820-1940." The project is funded by the National Capital Region, the National Park Service of the United States Department of the Interior, with the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal National Historical Park.

The project is designed to yield accurate historical and archeological facts and information on the African-American in the Potomac Valley. The results will become a part of the interpretative programs at the historical sites of the national parks within the Potomac River Valley.

Those who have met Pham Tien Duat call him "intense" and say there is a "piercing melancholy" about him. Perhaps as a result of having lived through so much destruction, Duat seems to count every moment as very important. Despite his relatively poor command of English (his participation in the conference will be aided by an interpreter), he is quick to introduce himself to the Americans he meets in Hanoi, wasting little time on formalities and getting to the heart of the conversation.

Duat is currently the editor of Van Nghe (Art and Literature) Magazine, which has been called an "outspoken and critical monthly publication at the forefront of the Doi Moi (Renew) movement—the Vietnamese version of Perestroika." He has never left Southeast Asia, but through writers' conferences in Hanoi, Duat has met many other soldier-poets, including Bruce Weigl. Some of Weigl's poems have been published in Duat's magazine.

For the Tet conference, Weigl will read from his book "Song of Napalm," a 1988 collection of his Vietnam poems. His name is well-known in contemporary literature, especially in that of the Vietnam War, but he estimates that only about a third of his work is related to the war.

"It's not that I ever have a choice about my subject," he said. "(The war) was a significant event in all our lives and continues to be for many complex reasons a war that doesn't go away. It had a huge impact on the way we think about our government and about ourselves."

Weigl has always written, since childhood, but his experience in Vietnam "compelled me to be a writer. I was forced to go inside myself for answers that I couldn't find anywhere else." And poetry has been the perfect crucible, taking a huge event and reducing it to its essence.

In his introduction to "Song of Napalm," Robert Stone calls the book "poetry performed in defiance of physical and moral death. . . . Every line carries his distinctive voice; his special sensibility is such a constant presence that he seems to suffer and laugh unsoundly and be amazed right there beside us as we read his impacted, precise verse. He pursues every act and image to its essence, displays it for us and shakes it for meaning, strips it and puts it together again."

In Weigl's "Elegy," the reader rediscovers one of the harsher lessons of Vietnam: that there are fates worse than death.

Into sunlight they marched, into dog day, into no saints day,
and were cut down.
They marched without knowing how the air would be sucked from their lungs,
how their lungs would collapse,
how the world would twist itself, would bend into the cruel angles.

Into the black understanding they marched until the angels came calling their names, until they rose, one by one from the blood.
The light blasted down on them
The bullets sliced through razor grass
so there was not even time to speak.
The words would not let themselves be spoken.
Some of them died.
Some of them were not allowed to.

Not all of Weigl's Vietnam poems talk of soldiers and war—at least not directly. In "Snowy Egret," the speaker is awakened at midnight by his wife. A neighbor's son is outside, tearfully cradling the blood-spattered body of a snowy egret in his arms. The boy says he shot hoping only to spook the bird out of the shadows. He says, "please don't tell."

The poem ends:

I want to grab his shoulders,
Shake the lies loose from his lips but he hurts enough,
he burns with shame for what he's done,
with fear for his father's fists I've seen crash down on him for so much less.
I don't know what to do but hold him.
If I let go he'll fly to pieces
before me.
What a time we share, that can make a good boy steal away, wiping out from the blue face of the pond
what he hadn't even known he loved, blasting such beauty into nothing.

Weigl is the author of six collections of poetry and the editor or co-editor of three collections of critical essays. His poetry, essays, articles and reviews have appeared in such magazines as The Nation, The Paris Review and Harpers. His poems have been widely anthologized, most recently in The Morrow Anthology of Younger American Poets. Weigl has been awarded several prizes and fellowships for his work, including the Pushcart Prize, a prize from the Academy of American Poets and a National Endowment for the Arts Grant for poetry. He teaches in the writing program at Pennsylvania State University and is on the faculty of Warren Wilson College.

Born in Lorain, OH, in 1949, Bruce Weigl served with the First Air Cavalry in Vietnam during 1967-68. In 1985, as a guest of a retired North Vietnamese general, Weigl returned to Vietnam. This December he will make his third postwar trip to Hanoi.

"Even though the subject is often dark," he said, "the gesture (of writing poetry) is an affirmation of life."

For more information on the poetry reading or the Vietnam War conference, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

PERDUE STUDENT VOLUNTEERS Pictured are members of the Institute of Management of Accountants in the Perdue School of Business who are volunteering for the Festival of Trees on Saturday, December 5. "The Jewels of Christmas" is the theme of this year's event which will be held in the former Hess Apparel building in downtown Salisbury. All proceeds will benefit prenatal and newborn care programs at Peninsula Regional Medical Center and the March of Dimes.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Duffy Big Winner at Mac Expo

Heather Duffy, a prebusiness major from Spring Lake Heights, NJ, was just completing her freshman year last spring when she visited the "Mac Expo" on campus. She had seen posters about the event and had used a Macintosh computer where she previously worked as a secretary. She watched some of the demonstrations, tried some of the latest Macintosh computers, entered the drawing and wished she would some day be able to have a Mac of her own.

That must have been a powerful wish—or a very lucky one— because she was the winner of the Mac Expo's grand prize, a Macintosh Classic II computer system. At the beginning of the fall semester, Duffy was awarded the grand prize by Dr. Pamela Alreck, the faculty sponsor for the Apple Computer, Inc. Advanced Academic Marketing Program.

Apple Computer permanently donated two Macintosh LC computers and Stylewriter printers, plus a $2,000 cash grant for software, to the Perdue School of Business. Two of Alreck's promotions management classes conducted the project.

"The students did a superb job," Alreck said. "They organized and promoted the Mac Expo, worked hard at it, showed a lot of initiative and learned a lot about promotion in the real world."

Hundreds of students, faculty and staff visited the expo, and dozens won prizes. But probably none were more pleased or excited than Duffy. Her grand prize was worth over $1,200, but there's another reason for her excitement: May 12, the day she won the drawing was Duffy's birthday. What a birthday present.

Ference Attends Slavic Conference

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently attended the 31st annual Central Slavic Conference in St. Charles, MO.

The Central Slavic Conference is one of the oldest continuously meeting regional Slavic associations in the United States. The largest gathering of American Slavicists in the heartland of America this year featured presentations by international scholars.

Ference participated in a panel on East European scholar-librarians where he compared and contrasted the emergence of librarianship in Russia and Poland. The key players, Jozef Grycz I.V. Got'e, and A.N. Olenin, put their individual stamps upon the profession in each country, so much so that Grycz today is considered the "Father of Polish Librarianship."

In addition, Ference discussed how librarianship in these two countries was in many respects more advanced than their Western counterparts. Also serving on the panel were representatives of the University of Kansas, Indiana University and the University of Illinois.

Ference was recently elected to a four-year term as the secretary-treasurer of the Czechoslovak History Conference. The society promotes and fosters interdisciplinary scholarly research, publication and teaching related to the history of the lands, people and culture of Czechoslovakia, and sponsors panels and sessions at national and international conferences. Initially founded in 1975 as an American organization, the membership now includes scholars from 10 countries from North America, Europe and Asia.

Teaching Assistants

The English Department seeks teaching assistants beginning fall 1993 to teach two freshman English courses while pursuing a two-year M.A. in English. Compensation will cover tuition plus approximately $4,200.

GRE scores are required. For more information call Dr. William Horne 543-6447, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. before November 30.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Perdue School Majors

Preregistration for spring is November 9-20. All current degree seeking undergraduates must have their program planning forms approved by their advisors.

Students should sign up for an appointment with their advisor for the first week of advisement to ensure adequate time to go over their schedule, remaining requirements, etc. Sign-up sheets were posted the week of November 2.

Perdue Executive Talks About Volunteers

Kenny Colbert, Perdue Farms, Inc. manager of human resources, recently spoke to the Perdue School of Business' Institute of Management of Accountants about interviewing skills. He coached students on how to answer questions that may be given during an interview.

Neville Discusses Columbus with DAR

Barry Neville, lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently delivered a lecture to the General Levin Winder, Worcester County Chapter of the Daughters of American Revolution.

The address, "The Significance of 1492 and the Impact of the Columbian Exchange," discussed the historical importance of Christopher Columbus and the economic, social and moral impact his discoveries had on both the Old and New Worlds. Twenty-five people attended the lecture, which was held at the Snow Hill Inn on October 21.

Law Society Seeks Members

Phi Alpha Delta, the largest international law fraternity, is seeking people interested in joining its organization. The SSU chapter is currently being formed.

Founded in 1902, the professional service organization seeks to advance the ideals of equal justice under the law.

Phi Alpha Delta's pre-law program offers the undergraduate the opportunity to gain insight into the various aspects of preparing for law school, choosing a law school and selecting law as a career.

If interested in law, call Karen or Jenn Silvestri at 742-0567.

Pool Tournament Winners

The staff of the Guerrieri University Center game room (also known as Herb's Place) would like to thank all of the participants in the pool tournament on October 21 for a successful night.

Congratulations to Will Wells for walking off with first place. Mary Shipley came in second, and Brandon Nier came in third. All three are freshmen and will be around for a while, so watch out for fireworks at the next tournament.

Winners were awarded pool sticks courtesy of Amusements, Inc., and movie tickets from the Game Room. Check out the game room for upcoming tournaments and dates.

25+ Student Union Has Pair of Meetings

25+ Student Union is going to gather for its monthly meeting on Wednesday, November 18, in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Once again, there will be two meetings that day to accommodate the maximum amount of students: the first is noon-1 p.m., and the second is 5-6 p.m.

The guest speaker is Dr. Carol Williamson, SSU dean of students. Williamson will be available during the first part of each meeting to answer questions and address concerns of non-traditional students.

General Assembly Meeting

On Sunday, November 15, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke A Room of the Guerrieri University Center the Student Government Association will hold a meeting. All are welcome to attend.

Karna Article In Music Journal

Dr. Duane R. Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities, recently had his article, "The Second International Chamber Choir Competition in Marktoberdorf, Germany," published in the October issue of the Maryland Music Educator, the official publication of the Maryland Music Educators Association (MENC).

The article features his observations about the biannual choral competition which was held in May 1991. A Fulton School of Liberal Arts travel grant allowed Karna to participate as an observing conductor and guest during the 1991 competition. The International Chamber Choir Competition in Marktoberdorf is intended to bring together the world's best choirs in order to provide them with the opportunity, not only to compare with each other, but also to discuss choral literature from the individual countries, interpretation, musical styles, voice-training and various choral conducting as well as rehearsal techniques.

Karna was also recently published in the August 1992 issue of the Choral Journal, a national publication of the American Choral Directors Association (ACDA) with membership and circulation of over 15,000 choral conductors and musicians. The listing submitted by Karna of the choirs and their competition literature performed at the second international Chamber Choir Competition was selected by the editorial board of the Choral Journal to begin the new column to be featured in each monthly journal titled "Literature Forum."

RFD-Radio Free Delmarva

Saturday, November 21, public radio station WSCL will present the holiday edition of its award-winning radio variety show, "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva."

The program is in its third year of showcasing local musicians and artists in a combination live performance/broadcast venue. The November show features NPR special correspondent Susan Stamberg (making her third appearance on RFD), pianist Lee Mitchell, country/bluegrass music with Country Grass, The Zeiglerzinger Quartet, bagpiper Paul Grecay, agriculture extension advisor Jean Scott, jazz with the RFD Quintet, and the RFD Players with an as-yet-untitled original musical production that traces the ski resort business in Snow Hill, MD. THe host and producer of RFD is WSCL News Director Van Williamson.

The live audience for the show will see the production of four 30-minute programs, to be broadcast on WSCL beginning Saturday, November 28th, from 5:30 to 6 p.m. This live edition of RFD is in the Holloway Hall auditorium from 8 until 10:30 p.m. Doors open at 7:30 and music starts at 7:35 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Hubble Telescope Designer Speaks Here on Dec. 2

The public is invited to attend a presentation titled, "Scientific Results From the Hubble Space Telescope," on Wednesday, December 2, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The speaker, Dr. Edward J. Weiler, is program scientist for the Hubble Space Telescope and chief of ultraviolet/visible and gravitational astrophysics at NASA Headquarters in Washington, D.C.

NASA's Hubble Space Telescope (HST) was designed to be the first of the great space observatories. It was successfully launched by the Space Shuttle on April 24, 1990. A few months later, a flaw was discovered in the 2.4 meter primary mirror that prevented the HST's optical system from focussing all light onto a tiny point. This flaw prevented the HST, in its present configuration, from reaching its full potential of studying the faintest possible objects. However, other unique and scientifically exciting observations have still been accomplished. Weiler will present and explain the latest scientific results from the HST. Additionally, he will discuss NASA's current plans for correcting the HST's optical flaw. In late 1993, NASA will send a Space Shuttle to rendezvous with the HST and astronauts will install corrective optical devices that should bring the HST up to its originally promised capabilities. The HST has an expected life of about 15 years and was designed to be serviced on a regular basis for instrument changeouts using the Space Shuttle.

The goal of the HST mission is to extend the knowledge of the universe. A space-based telescope has the advantage of being in an environment free of the turbulence and absorption of the Earth's atmosphere. Prior to this mission, the astronomical telescopes in space had been designed to explore new wavelength bands not transmitted through the atmosphere. The HST was the first space telescope designed to overcome the blurring of images caused by the atmosphere. The inherent resolution of a precisely made telescope in proportion to its diameter, and large 2.4-meter mirror of HST promised images 10 times sharper than the best images from the ground.

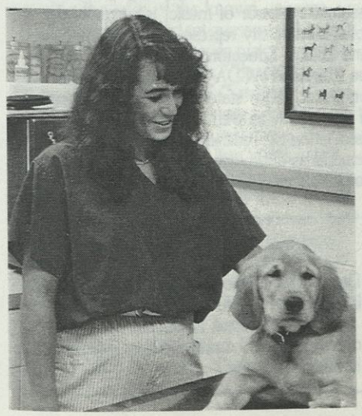
SSU Vet Graduates Value Shore Life

His kiss is cold, wet. She smiles and scratches his nose. Ben has known Dr. Terry Wattay all his life and today, even though she's about to give him another shot, he is happy to see her. But then, puppies are like that.

"Ben" is a golden retriever and one of Wattay's happier patients. Wattay is one of several area veterinarians who were raised on the Eastern Shore, attended college here and have returned to the area to begin their practice. They all agreed that SSU provided them the perfect situation: excellent preparation right here at home for the highly competitive world of veterinary school.



Dr. Terry Wattay examines a patient at the Berlin Animal Hospital. Wattay graduated from Salisbury State University in 1985 and from the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School in 1989.

"Salisbury State did me well," Wattay said. "In my first year of veterinary school (at the University of Pennsylvania) there were some classes I didn't have to take, because I had taken them at SSU. I don't know how the other students managed, who did have to take them."

The pre-veterinary program is just one of the programs in the Henson School of Science and Technology that prepares students to go on in the health professions. Dr. Ellen Lawler, an associate professor of biology, is a member of the School's Pre-Health Professional Committee and is responsible for helping pre-veterinary students complete the requirements for veterinary school.

As Lawler points out, getting in isn't easy. "There is a lot of competition to get into vet schools," she said. "There are fewer of them than there are medical schools, for one thing. A student has to have good grades and experience."

While the students have to work for their own grades, Lawler can help them with the second qualification: experience. The program encourages internships and many SSU students

Trio Make Debut In 'Lesson From Aloes'

Three lower Shore residents make their SSU acting debuts in "A Lesson From Aloes," a play about relationships and politics under the shadow of apartheid in South Africa, opening Wednesday, November 18.

Franz R. Wise, 24, of Marion Station, plays the part of Piet Bezuidenhout, an Afrikaner, or white South African native of Dutch descent. Originally from Baltimore, Wise is the son of Raymond S. Wise and Anne D. Bauer. He is a part-time student at SSU.

Jennifer Carlson, 22, daughter of SSU philosophy professor Dr. James Hatley of Salisbury and Susan Carlson of Missoula, Montana, plays the part of Gladys, Piet's wife. A full-time SSU student, Carlson is majoring in communication arts. She is a graduate of Big Sky High School in Missoula.

Charles E. Price, 26, of Salisbury, plays the part of Steve Daniels, a forbidden black friend

Britain Summer Tour Interest Meeting Set

An interest meeting for a summer 1993 tour of Britain will be held Wednesday, December 2, at 8:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 103. The travel course is being organized by Wayne Ackerson, a faculty member in the History Department, who said, "the response was so great last year we're doing it again."

The itinerary of the tour will include such sites as York, London, Stonehenge, and Tintagle Castle (the legendary home of King Arthur), as well as stops in Wales and many other locales.

The price of the tour, exclusive of tuition, will be around $1,700, and includes airfare, transportation by private motor coach, most meals, and all lodging and admission charges.

Ackerson, who lived in England for several years and who has travelled extensively throughout the Isles, says that the price is one of the strengths of the tour. "For this price," said Ackerson, "you could not get better lodging and experiences."

The trip is scheduled to leave June 7 and return June 18. Call Ackerson at 543-6527 for details.

God and Environment Panel Discussion Topic

The bay is dying. Landfills are closing. Toxins poison the air. Chemicals contaminate food and water. Disease, filth, pollution, extinction—Mother Earth is terminally ill.

But is the Earth our mother? What relationship do we have with this planet and the rest of her inhabitants? Why are we in this mess? How do we get out of it?

The pragmatic aspects of responses to these questions have sparked raging debate in the academic community. Are there also spiritual implications to these responses? Have we ignored a dimension that is critical to our understanding of environmental issues? These questions will be explored during a panel discussion titled, "Earthkeeping: Spiritual Dimensions," on Monday, November 23, at the Guerrieri University Center starting at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room.

The evening will begin with each of the three-person panel giving a 20-minute presentation of his views. A time for discussion will follow, moderated by Dr. Francis Kane of the Philosophy Department. Members of the panel are Dr. Lawrence Adams, director of international and economic policy studies for the Washington, D.C.-based Institute on Religion and Democracy, Dr. Bernard (Ben) Fusaro, local environmental activist and mathematical science professor at SSU, and Richard Pyle, theologian and producer-director for KYW-TV of Philadelphia.

Adams, who is also editor of Anglican Opinion and Policy Studies Network, will address the political/social aspects of differing views of earthkeeping in his presentation, "Mother Earth, Green Gods, Rainbows and the Church." Adams says that the varying environmental views "reflect not only what one thinks about creation, but what one believes about ultimate truth." Adams will explore three world views: man-centered, earth-centered and the God-centered. He will conclude by considering the credibility question, "Which belief system offers the most credible answers to the environmental issues?"

"Humanism, Religion and the Environment" will be Fusaro's topic.

"The Judaic-Christian-Islamic religions, unlike the Buddhist-Hindu, seem to be uncomfortable with environmentalism," said Fusaro. "The JCI response to 'The Judaic-Christian Roots of the Ecological Crisis' has been late and it has been defensive.

"In a way, this is very strange," said Fusaro. "Radical environmentalism ('Deep Ecology,' ontological environmentalism, etc.) is non-materialistic, has a mystic component and postulates intrinsic values. It also shares other characteristics with religions. Environmentalists have been criticized because they espouse their cause as if it were a religion. Radical environmentalism and traditional religions are compatible.

"However, radical environmentalism and 'humanistic' religions are not. Radical environmentalists hold that Humanism—the belief that 'Homo sapiens sapiens'—is the center of the universe, or 'Man is the measure of all things,' is the fundamental cause of our environmental tragedy. There seems to be no limit to the damage that humanistic conceit—as advertised by the Latin name for our species—is willing to inflict on the world of nature. Insofar as religions have become homocentric they are at odds with environmentalism, and probably with themselves."

Pyle, a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and Reformed Episcopal Seminary, currently directs live newscasts and public affairs programs for a network television station. Pyle will be clarifying the biblical view of the environment and responding to critiques of Christianity as ecologically unfriendly in his presentation, "Global Harming: A View from Above." Pyle said, "It is unwarranted to say that Christianity and the Bible are inherently harmful to the environment. Rightly understood, the Bible is an environmentally-friendly document."

The event is sponsored in cooperation with Campus Crusade for Christ, the SSU Faculty Bible Study and Truthquest. There is no admission fee for the event and the public is invited to attend. For more information contact Dr. Ed Senkbeil in the Chemistry Department at 543-6455 or Brent Wilhelm in the Computer Center at 543-6524.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

'Choral Thanksgiving' Features Chamber Choir

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "A Choral Thanksgiving" on Sunday, November 22, at 4 p.m. at St. Frances de Sales Catholic Church in Salisbury.

The program features choral music of the American composer Randall Thompson—"Mass of the Holy Spirit" sung in English, the beautiful and often performed "Alleluia," and, from the Nativity according to St. Luke, the "Nowell." The concert also features graduate Scot Hawkins performing on piano as well as the SSU Chamber Choir. The choirs under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Karna of the music faculty combine to conclude the afternoon performance with Guiseppe Verdi's "Stabat Mater" sung in Latin. The combined choirs of 85 singers bring to conclusion an outstanding afternoon of choral music to usher in the beginning of the holiday season.

Karna, director of choral activities and an assistant professor of music, is currently the college/university representative for the Maryland Choral Educators Association as well as the Maryland ACDA (American Choral Directors Association) state president. As a member of the ACDA as well as NATS (National Association of Teachers of Singing), he is in demand as a clinician, guest conductor and voice teacher.

Dec. 3 Newsletter

Deadline for the December 3 newsletter will be Wednesday, November 25, at 4 p.m.

There will be no newsletter the week of November 23 due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

SSU African-American Students Are Recognized

Four SSU African-American Student Scholars were recognized on Thursday, November 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Their recognition will be part of a program titled "In Remembrance of Struggle: Marcus, Muhammad, and Malcolm" by Dr. Lenworth Gunther, professor of history at Essex (NJ) County College.

The Office of Minority Affairs established an African-American Student Scholars Program in the fall of 1991. The program was designed to recognize students who have demonstrated outstanding leadership and scholastic achievement. Each semester students are recognized and awarded a certificate for their achievement as part of a Visiting Scholars Program.

The students recognized were Stacey Bryant, an accounting major from Oxon Hill, MD; Donovan Harley, a finance major from Clinton, MD; Leon Segears, a communication arts major from Washington, D.C.; and Jason Stanley, an art major from Cambridge. Each student is a senior with full-time student status who has earned a cumulative grade point of a 3.0 or better.

Comm Arts Instructor Publishes 'Space Almanac'

The second edition of the popular reference handbook "Space Almanac," written by Anthony R. Curtis, instructor in communication arts, has been published by Gulf Publishing Company of Houston.

The American Library Association named the first edition one of the Outstanding Academic Books of 1989-90. After receiving excellent reviews in newspapers, magazines and journals and being chosen by four book clubs, it is in the collections of most libraries across the country, including SSU.

"A person interested in space finds remarkably little in newspapers or on TV to satisfy that deep hunger to know what's going on 'Out There.' Unless you're a space agency insider or military brass, most space news just whizzes by overhead. You never hear all the exciting space happenings," Curtis said. "'Space Almanac'" exists because so many developments affecting mankind's future are bursting to be let out of the news box."

"Space Almanac" is about Russian space stations; Japanese moon probes; European space shuttles; satellites from China, Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, India, Israel, Iraq, Korea and many other spacefaring nations; a flotilla of high-tech hobby satellites sent up by radio hams; bricks from moon dust; the X-ray glow surrounding the heart of our galaxy; extending the edge of the known universe through discovery of distant quasars; and more.

The 764-page book's seven major sections—"Astronauts and Cosmonauts," "Space Stations," "Space Shuttles," "Rockets," "Satellites," "Solar System" and "Deep Space,"—are a database of hundreds of stories, facts, figures, names, dates, places, reports, descriptions, lists, tables, maps, calendars, time tables and schedules covering space from Earth to the edge of the Universe. Curtis updates "Space Almanac" every two years.

The author has a B.A. in journalism and M.A. in political science, both from Pennsylvania State University. Curtis has been teaching since 1967. For six years, he was assistant professor in the School of Journalism at Penn State. He also taught political science at Penn State. At Ohio University, Curtis instructed broadcast journalism students. He taught journalism at Hood College and computer science at Frederick Community College.

Curtis, a Marietta, OH, native, has worked 34 years in newspapers, magazines, books, television and radio. He was special-assignment reporter for the Sharon Herald, a Pennsylvania daily paper where he received the C.B. Lartz Award for outstanding news writing. Curtis was a Pennsylvania correspondent to Dow Jones' National Observer newspaper and Harrisburg statehouse reporter for Dow Jones' Ottaway News Service.

He was electronic and photography editor for Popular Mechanics and founding editor of Modern Electronics. Curtis was vice president of Tab Books, now a division of McGraw-Hill. He operated Arcsoft Publishers, producing paperbacks about science, computers, space and electronics.

Curtis has written 68 books in addition to hundreds of articles for magazines including American Education, Sail, Model Railroader, MacUser, Signature, Ham Radio, Chesapeake Bay Magazine and Popular Electronics. He was invited in 1989 by a U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences journal to write an article on the Apollo 20th anniversary. Curtis wrote a 15,000-word history of man in space for the July 1991 Omni Magazine. He edits the newsmonthly Space Today.

Curtis was operations director of commercial broadcast stations in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. For Ohio University's public stations, he produced television public-affairs documentaries and radio dramas. He received the Outstanding Programs Award from the Ohio University College of Communication for radio and TV production. Curtis was editor of a Penn State daily science program broadcast on 100 radio stations. He recently narrated a video documentary for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Curtis also was press secretary and speech writer for a Pennsylvania governor.

"Space Almanac" second edition, international standard book numbers (ISBN) 0-88415-030-5 paperback and 0-88415-039-9 hardcover, is available from Gulf Publishing Company, P.O. Box 2608, Houston, TX 77252, phone (713) 520-4444.

Human Ecology Features Fusaro Lecture

The president of the Society for Human Ecology invited Dr. Ben Fusaro of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department to give a lecture at the society's annual meeting. The international, interdisciplinary organization held its meeting at Salt Lake City last month.

His lecture, "Economics as if Energy Matters - The Concept of Emergy," explored the concept of "emergy" which was invented by H.T. Odum, a systems ecologist who has twice visited Salisbury. "Emergy" takes into account the history it took to develop a unit of energy, such as a BTU, calorie or kilowatt-hour. A calorie in an egg, for example, has more emergy than a calorie of wood, even though a laboratory test would rate them as having equal energy. Likewise, a calorie of a fertilized egg has more emergy than a calorie of a sterile egg. All calories are not equal, some have more value than others, and the market recognizes this to some extent.

Unfortunately, conventional economics falls short of recognizing the contribution of such natural resources as streams or wetlands. The concept of emergy leads to an arithmetic that sets up a dollar-energy equivalence. This equivalence can then be used to assign a more realistic economic value to natural capital.

Share Tea, Topics With Legislators

On Sunday, December 6, members of the University community will have the opportunity to meet with Eastern Shore senators and delegates from the 37th and 38th districts of the Maryland State Legislature. Legislators will be available to discuss upcoming legislation and respond to any questions and concerns participants may have.

The annual Legislative Tea, which is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Wicomico County and the American Association of University Professors of SSU, will be held in the Social Room of Holloway Hall from 3:30-5 p.m.

Small Receives Honor Society Post

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended the 77th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History. The conference was held from October 7-11 at the Westin Crown Center in Kansas City, MO.

The membership of the association consists of persons interested in the study of Afro-American, African, Caribbean and Latin American life and history. The association prepares information about and leads in the celebration of Black History Month; organizes tours of Africa and Latin America; and works closely with local branches in major cities in promoting the study, teaching, researching, writing, collecting of manuscripts, preserving of historic sites and instituting other programs related to Afro-American life and history.

The theme of the conference was "Afro-American Scholars: Leaders, Activists and Writers." The conference focused on African-American heritage in general and specifically in the West. Some of the panels centered on the "Negro Baseball League," "Buffalo Soldiers," "Tuskegee Airmen," "Black Basketball Players" and "Kansas Jazz Musicians." While at the conference, Small met the last of the Buffalo Soldiers, the Tuskegee Airmen and one of the presidential candidates, Gov. Bill Clinton.

Commencement Tickets

Because of the growing numbers of students graduating from Salisbury State it is necessary to begin distributing tickets to graduates to give their guests who wish to attend commencement. Admission will be by ticket only.

Students who will be graduating in December will be able to request up to 12 tickets each. Tickets will be distributed through the Book Rack on November 18-20 along with caps and gowns. Students who do not need all 12 tickets should return the extra tickets to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students needing more than 12 tickets may come to the information desk beginning November 23 to request additional tickets.

The number of tickets available to graduating students for future commencements will vary depending on the number of students graduating.

Law Society Seeks Members

Phi Alpha Delta, the largest international law fraternity, is seeking people interested in joining its organization. The SSU chapter is currently being formed.

Founded in 1902, the professional service organization seeks to advance the ideals of equal justice under the law.

Phi Alpha Delta's pre-law program offers the undergraduate the opportunity to gain insight into the various aspects of preparing for law school, choosing a law school and selecting law as a career.

If interested in law, call Karen or Jenn Silvestri at 742-0567.

RFD-Radio Free Delmarva

Saturday, November 21, public radio station WSCL will present the holiday edition of its award-winning radio variety show, "RFD-Radio Free Delmarva."

The program is in its third year of showcasing local musicians and artists in a combination live performance/broadcast venue. The November show features NPR special correspondent Susan Stamberg (making her third appearance on RFD), pianist Lee Mitchell, country/bluegrass music with Country Grass, The Zeiglerzinger Quartet, bagpiper Paul Grecay, agriculture extension advisor Jean Scott, jazz with the RFD Quintet, and the RFD Players with an as-yet-untitled original musical production that traces the ski resort business in Snow Hill, MD. THe host and producer of RFD is WSCL News Director Van Williamson.

The live audience for the show will see the production of four 30-minute programs, to be broadcast on WSCL beginning Saturday, November 28th, from 5:30 to 6 p.m. This live edition of RFD is in the Holloway Hall auditorium from 8 until 10:30 p.m. Doors open at 7:30 and music starts at 7:35 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Cats, Kittens Free To Good, Loving Homes

The most beautiful cats and kittens in the world are presently living on campus. They are slightly wild, but with very sweet personalities, in excellent health, with some having had their rabies vaccinations already. Homes must be found for them before the really cold weather sets in. If interested, please call Mia Vye (chair of the SSU cat committee) immediately at 543-6012 or stop by Holloway Hall, room 237. Financial help (shots, etc.) may be available if necessary.

P.S. Vye assumes almost all financial responsibility for these cats. She also feeds and nurtures them every single day, buying all the food they consume. Donations of money, or help with the expenses of shots and neutering/spaying, would help her.

Donations may be made to her in Holloway Hall, room 237, or to Anne Welsh, Holloway Hall, room 260.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Dance Company And Chamber Choir Perform 'A Day For Dancing'

"A Day For Dancing," a program of Christmas and Hanukkah music and dance, will be presented by the Salisbury State Chamber Choir with members of the SSU Dance Company on Sunday, December 6, and Monday, December 7.

Both performances begin at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. They are free and open to the public.

"A Day For Dancing" is a collection of nine carols arranged by Lloyd Pfautsch, the retired choral conductor from Southern Methodist University. The work is intended to be danced interpretively.

Other Christmas music will include carols arranged by John Rutter and a Christmas novelty set featuring "Carol of the Bells," "Jingle Bells Scherzo" and "Deck the Halls" in 7/8.

The concert also will include choral music for Hanukkah sung in Hebrew.

This collaboration between the choir and the Dance Company will feature student instrumentalists: Lauren Weis, oboe; Brenda Toney, flute; and Chris Reavis, percussion. Assisting will be Ellen Oberholtzer, bassoon, and Scot Hawkins, piano.

The conductor of the Chamber Choir is Dr. Duane R. Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities. Mary Troy is director of the Dance Company.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Posters Designed To Curb Alcohol Use

"The Best Things in Life are Free of Alcohol" is the slogan of the Preventive Action Coordination Team's latest phase of its underage drinking public awareness effort.

Bright yellow, black and pink posters and billboards are appearing throughout Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties carrying PACT's message by youth to youth. Local young people are featured in the black and white action photos promoting fun and accessible pursuits such as sports, music or just talking to a friend.

"We feel that by utilizing local youth in this campaign, the message is more believable and meaningful," said Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at SSU.

The campaign is part of a tri-county effort that was launched last spring known as KEYS (Kids Enjoying Youth Straight) in order to address the problems of underage drinking. Alcohol continues to dominate the party experience for many young people particularly in rural communities. Peers promoting positive alternatives to drinking is an effective strategy for changing attitudes regarding the use of alcohol.

The project is a collaborative effort partially funded through the Maryland State Highway Administration's highway safety programs division through local highway safety and prevention programs. PACT was founded through the initiatives of the prevention offices and highway safety programs in Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties, along with Salisbury State. Additional support was provided through the generosity of Revere National Corporation and Omega Outdoor Advertising. Cleary Design provided development of the concept and project designs.

To obtain posters or further information about the campaign, please contact the county prevention coordinator, highway safety specialist or Berkman at 543-6309.

Teaching Assistants

The English Department seeks teaching assistants beginning fall 1993 to teach two freshman English courses while pursuing a two-year M.A. in English. Compensation will cover tuition plus approximately $4,200.

GRE scores are required. For more information call Dr. William Horne 543-6447, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. before November 30.

Montreal Ski Trip With Outdoor Club Set

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country skiing. Trip dates are January 24-February 5.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Mont Garceau, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

The trip this year features 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 24 and return on February 5. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada is approximately $260. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($43 Canadian per day at the McGill House), rental fees for downhill ski, or lift tickets (about $20-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

To guarantee a spot on the trip provide a non-refundable deposit of $75 to the club treasurer, Cheryl Rogers, at the meeting on November 30 or December 7. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. The balance is due by January 6.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"Candlelighting an Old Tradition at Salisbury State"
by Sylvia Bradley

Every school encourages the development of traditions and one of the earliest at Salisbury was the candlelighting service at Christmas. This was another of Miss Ruth Powell's ideas in 1925. She had participated in a similar ceremony when she had been a student at Columbia University, and decided such a service would be an appropriate celebration for Salisbury's first Christmas. The president, Dr. William Holloway agreed, and she set about planning and organizing the affair.

A large three-foot red candle was purchased from a firm in New York then famous as the creators of the candle sent to Italy to burn at the foot of opera star Enrico Caruso's tomb. On the night before students left school for the holidays, all the girls, carefully instructed, slowly descended the stairs from the dorm to the Social Room in the north wing. That would be the present-day Perdue School wing of Holloway Hall. Dorm rooms were on the third floor, and the Social Room was on the first floor where faculty offices are now located. The girls, walking in pairs, each carried a small unlighted candle and sang Christmas carols. As they entered the assembly room, each student lighted her candle from the large one, and then placed it on a table at the side of the room. The girls sat on pillows scattered around the room, listened to a reading of Dickens' "Christmas Story," sang more carols, and recited "Twas the Night Before Christmas" in unison. After that part of the program, each girl was given a huge candy cane. Under the Christmas tree, at one side of the room, were several stockings filled by students with gifts for children under the care of the Wicomico County Welfare Association. The Wicomico County health nurse was present and officially received the stocking and gifts.

The ceremony was an impressive one, and basic rituals remained for many years. The entrance procession, each student lighting a candle from the large one, singing carols and giving gifts to needy children, continued well into the 1960s. In 1933, when the south wing was completed, it was moved to the Social Room, and that year was combined with a December Homecoming so the alumni could watch again that moment from their own student days. When the student body became too large to permit everyone to light candles, it was limited to the College Chorus. In the 1950s, students would sit in the dining room [the large room just vacated by the Ward Wildfowl Museum] while chorus members lined the gallery space above and led the singing.

A problem had developed the second year when Miss Ruth removed the large candle from its storage closet. It had been too warm for the candle which was supposed to last 25 years: all the red color had faded out. Undaunted, she painted it, and from 1927 to 1951 it was used annually with that coat of red paint. When it occasionally broke, she stapled it back together. Finally, in 1951, with only a few inches of it left, the College purchased a new large candle. Appropriately that Christmas, Miss Ruth, who had retired in 1946 but still presided over candlelighting, opened the ceremonies by lighting the new candle from the remnant of the old one.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Cockey at Conference

Linda Cockey, assistant professor of music in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently participated in the National Conference on Piano Pedagogy, held October 21-24, in Schaumburg, IL, and attended by more than 900 pianists from around the world.

A paper authored by Cockey, "The Old and the New: Developing a Piano Pedagogy Program for the Next Century," was accepted for publication in the proceedings of the convention. Additionally, Cockey was selected a seminar leader for the committee on medical problems, and was a seminar reporter for the committee on doctoral programs in the United States in piano.

Cockey, a candidate for the Doctor of Musical Arts degree at the Catholic University of America, holds a master's degree from Temple University and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Lebanon Valley College. She teaches applied piano, class piano and music history at SSU.

New Greek Life Advisor On Campus

The staff of the Student Activities and Organizations Office is proud to introduce its graduate intern, Stacy Murdock. Murdock, a recent graduate from Frostburg State University, has joined the office as Greek life advisor.

Her duties include providing guide lines for all Greek organizations on campus, assisting with various projects and being the official liaison between these groups and administration. Murdock can be reached at 543-6125 (Student Activities and Organizations Office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center) at the following times: Mondays, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.; Tuesdays, 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.; Wednesdays, 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.; Thursdays, 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.; and Fridays, 11:30 a.m.- 4:30 p.m.

All members of Greek organizations, interested students or faculty and staff willing to advise the Greeks are welcome to stop by with questions, suggestions or problems.

Grad Assistant Needed

The Center for Personal and Professional Development is seeking a graduate assistant to coordinate various aspects of the career planning and placement services. The candidate must be working toward a master's degree at SSU. Related coursework, training or experience in counseling, guidance, teaching, student life or human resources is desirable. Applicants must possess excellent communication skills. Knowledge of Wordperfect is desirable.

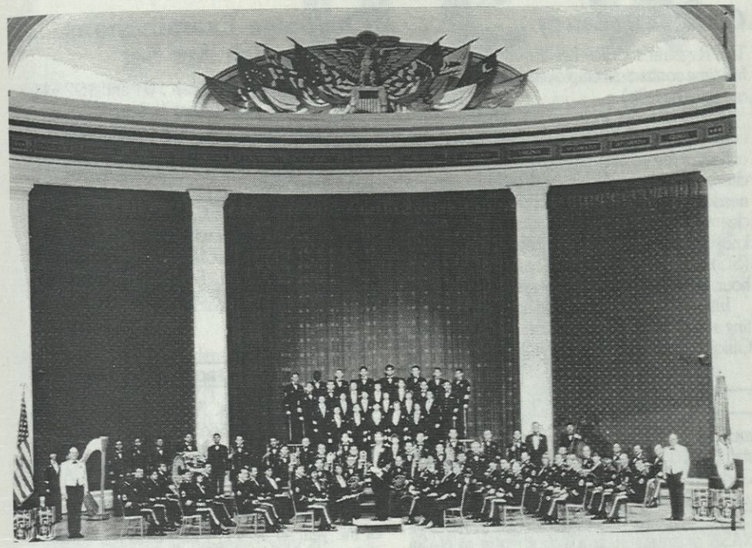
The G.A. will work 20 hours per week during the fall and spring semesters and receive a tuition waiver for nine credit hours and a stipend of $1,900 per semester.

Interested candidates should submit a resume to the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263.

Contractual Employees Health Insurance Info

Contractual employees (non-student) are eligible to enroll in the same health insurance programs as regular employees but at full cost (no state subsidy).

Those contractual employees who did not take advantage of this opportunity when they were hired can do so now during the current open enrollment period which ends November 30. Contact the Personnel Office (Holloway Hall, room 222, or 548-4755) for additional information and/or enrollment forms.



U.S. Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus

Army Field Band Performs Holiday Concert

The internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus performs on Thursday, December 10, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the band has performed throughout Europe, the Far East, and Central and South Americas as well as all 50 states.

Although admission to the concert is free a donation to the Maryland Food Bank of canned food goods will be appreciated. The food goods will be distributed to the needy of the community.

Unique among military bands, the Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

The Field Band has a distinguished history. It has performed in the Royal Festival Hall in London, Luxembourg Gardens in Paris, the Olympia Stadium in Berlin, the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., the Hollywood Bowl and New York's Carnegie Hall, where it was the first military band to present a full-dress concert.

Traveling thousands of miles every year, band members have a reputation as being among the best touring musicians in the country.

Tickets to the concert are available beginning Tuesday, December 1, at Salisbury State's Guerrieri University Center information desk, the SSU ROTC Detachment, the Salisbury Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Center at the Twilley Shopping Center.

The event is co-sponsored by the Salisbury Daily Times, SSU and the Salisbury State ROTC Detachment. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Employees May Need New Health Form

Employees (or their family members) currently receiving out-patient treatment from a mental health professional or involved in treatment for substance abuse/alcoholism take note.

Prior to January 1, employees must file a special precertification form which is available by calling 1-800-356-0038. This is a required step for employees during the open enrollment period this year in order to ensure that family members have coverage in 1993.

Calls to the above number are kept strictly confidential. In order to maintain privacy, when completing the precertification form, mail it directly to the new options mental health facility (unlike other health insurance forms which must come to the campus Personnel Office for processing).

The above telephone number is operational 24 hours a day, seven days a week to assist with questions about procedures for obtaining maximum benefit from one's coverage.

Marketing Association Is Sponsoring Workshops

The American Marketing Association will sponsor a self- marketing workshop from 3:30-8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, December 1, in Devilbiss Hall, room 230.

The workshop will be conducted by Sal Devita. The advance registration cost is $15 for members and $20 for non-members. Registration at the door is $20 for members and $25 for non- members.

The AMA is also planning a six-night trip to Panama City, FL, during spring break, April 3-10. The trip costs $134 per person, or $224 with transportation.

Gerard DiBartolo has been named the AMA's Professor of the Month for November. Members are reminded to place their votes for December.

For information about the self-marketing workshop or the spring break trip, call Tami Perron at 546-4007 or Lisa Dewling at 548-7736.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's and women's basketball teams inaugurate their '92-93 campaigns with season-opening tournament action this week. The Sea Gull men, coming off a 28-2 season last year, meet Frances Marion College in the Friday's first-round of the Methodist College Tournament in Fayetteville, NC. Guilford plays the host school in the other opening-round contest, with the winners meeting Saturday at 8 p.m. for the championship. Salisbury has seven lettermen and three starters back from last year's record-setting squad, including seniors Bret Grebowsky and Kevin Cromer and junior Dameon Ross.

The women's team meets Immaculata in Friday's first-round of the Notre Dame (MD) College Tournament in Baltimore. Notre Dame hosts Western Maryland in the other game, with the championship and consolation games scheduled for Saturday afternoon. Senior guard Jen Boone heads a group of three starters back from last year's 9-15 team.

Two overtime losses saw the Sea Gull field hockey team return with a fourth-place finish from last weekend's NCAA Division III Final Four in Trenton, NJ. The Gulls fell 2-1 in single OT to eventual champion William Smith in the national semifinals, then lost a 1-0 decision in double OT to Messiah in the consolation game. Seniors Kristen Guttilla and Nicki Houghton were named to the all-tournament team. SSU finished 12-7-1 for the season.

The football team suffered a disappointing 70-6 defeat in its season-finale against Kean on Saturday. The Gulls set school records for most points allowed and largest margin of defeat. Junior receiver Charlie Whalen was one of the team's few bright spots, making eight catches in the game to finish the year with a school-record 63. The Sea Gulls finished 2-7.

The cross country squads capped their '92 seasons at last week's NCAA Mideast Regional in Allentown, PA. Senior Tim Smith was the top Gull runner, placing 52nd overall, while Cathy Emerson led the women with a 67th place finish. Matt Piotrowski (86th) was named to the regional's all-freshman team. Both SSU squads finished 19th in a field of 33 teams.

The women's swim team continued its fast start, improving to 4-0 on the season with a 132-77 victory over Notre Dame last week. Eileen Messenger paced the Gulls with three individual first places, while Cindy Sotaski, Lisa Kidd and Amy Van Driessche each added two firsts. SSU won 13 of 14 events in the meet.

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All December graduating students borrowing under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program, on or after July 1, 1987, are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that those students attend one of the following sessions:

December 9 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri University Center, or, December 10 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri Center.

If students choose not to attend their school records and diploma will be held. Those students on an internship, working or student teaching you must make arrangements to attend.

Clerical Vacancy

The Registrar's Office has an opening for a full-time contractual employee (40-hour week, no state benefits).

Responsibilities include responding to students' questions in person and by phone, collecting/processing change of major and change of address forms, and assisting, as needed, with registration, records and degree clearance. High school diploma and working knowledge of the IA Student Information System (SIS) is preferred. Salary will be $7-$7.25 per hour, depending on experience and qualifications.

Interested applicants should apply by submitting a resume and an application in the Personnel Office not later than Friday, December 4.

Challenge Examinations For English Are Set

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Monday, February 8, from 4-7 p.m.

If interested in taking either one of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, December 11. In January a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

earn credit working for area veterinarians, at the Salisbury Zoo or at the University of Maryland's Animal Research Center in Salisbury. And, as with other SSU internships, good work often turns the intern into an employee.

Like Wattay, Dr. Alfred Rayne returned not only to the Shore, but to the practice where he had worked while a student at SSU. But his work at the Ocean City Animal Hospital is a little different. Rayne grew up on a farm and has always been around horses. Today, in addition to caring for small companion animals, he does much of his veterinary work at Delmarva Downs, where he examines and treats the standardbred horses.

Rayne still keeps in touch with one of his SSU classmates. He and Dr. Daryl Layfield-Insley met in a pretty unlikely place: scuba-diving class. They went on from SSU to attend the Virginia Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and are both veterinarians now.

The practical experience Insley gained through SSU's cooperative program with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore continues to serve him today, he said. "That program gave me exposure to veterinary practice," he noted.

When he thinks back, Insley says that he knew even as early as elementary school that he wanted to be a veterinarian. But when he finished veterinary school, he didn't know where he wanted to go into practice. A job offer from Salisbury Animal Hospital has brought him home to his grandparents' farm in Princess Anne. And he often sees old friends and former classmates in the course of a work day.

Rayne sees another of their SSU alumni friends on a more regular basis. Dr. Will Watson, a veterinarian at the Ocean City Animal Hospital, received his bachelor's degree at SSU and went on to the same veterinary school as Rayne and Insley. Like Wattay, Watson was able to skip some first year courses, thanks to the foundation he built for himself at SSU.

"The biology courses were probably the biggest help to me," he recalled. "The way they were taught prepared me for vet school. And I had lots of one-on-one time with my professors at SSU; they were always available to give me guidance."

While all four veterinarians feel fortunate to have been able to come home to set up shop, they also note that it is probably beneficial to their respective employers to have a home-grown staff.

"I know the way people think and do things here," said Insley. "And they sure didn't have to sell me on living here."

member of the Princeton University research staff from 1976-1978, he was located at the Goddard Space Flight Center as director of science operations of the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory—COPERNICUS. He joined the NASA organization as a staff scientist at NASA Headquarters in 1978. In 1980 he was appointed program scientist for the Hubble Space Telescope and chief of ultraviolet/visible gravitational astrophysics at NASA. Weiler has published over 20 papers in scientific journals. Born in Chicago, he currently resides in Annapolis, MD.

Weiler will be introduced by Warren Keller, current director of the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council. Keller was the original program manager for the Hubble Space Telescope while working at NASA Headquarters. The event, which is free and open to the public, is being co-sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and the Henson School of Science and Technology.

of the Bezuidenhouts. A 1984 graduate of Washington High School, he is the son of Julia L. Boone of Princess Anne.

Written by South African playwright Athol Fugard, the play was the winner of the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for best play of the year in 1991. More than a political statement, the play is about stress and betrayal in relationships and the loss of friendship. The SSU production is directed by Robert Smith.

The play will be presented in the Fulton Theatre in Fulton Hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, November 18-21, and Monday, November 23. A matinee performance will be held at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 22.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and non-SSU students. Students, faculty and staff are admitted free with an I.D.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

DECEMBER 3, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 13

Marietta Chief Operating Officer Is Commencement Speaker

A. Thomas Young, president and chief operating officer of Martin Marietta Corporation headquartered in Bethesda, MD, will be the speaker at fall commencement on December 20.

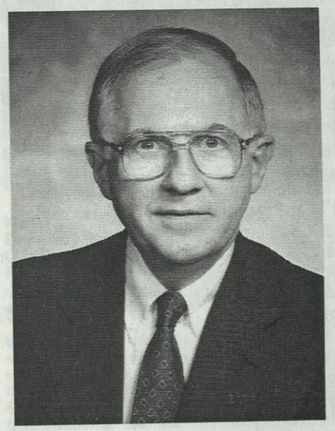
Approximately 400 SSU students are expected to receive bachelor's and master's degrees during the ceremony which will be held at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center.

Young also will be presented with an honorary Doctor of Science degree during the ceremony.

Born in Wachapreague, VA, Young received bachelor's degrees in aeronautical engineering and mechanical engineering from the University of Virginia. He holds a Master of Management degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he was a Sloan Fellow.

Before assuming his present position in 1990, Young was executive vice president. Earlier, he was senior vice president of Martin Marietta Corporation and president of Martin Marietta Electronic and Missiles Group at Orlando, FL. He joined Martin Marietta in 1982 as vice president of aerospace research and engineering.

Prior to joining Martin Marietta, Young was director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland from 1980 to 1982. During a 21-year career with NASA, he served also as deputy director of the Ames Research Center in California, director of the Planetary Program in the Office of Space Science at NASA headquarters in Washington, D.C., and as mission director of the Project Viking Mars landing program at Langley Research Center in Virginia.



A. Thomas Young

Young has received several honors and awards for his contributions to the nation's space program including NASA's highest award, the Distinguished Service Medal, for his role in the Viking Project. He also received the Outstanding Leadership Medal for his contributions to the Voyager program, the Meritorius Executive Presidential Rank Award and the Distinguished Executive Award.

Salisbury Symphony Orchestra Performs Seasonal Concert

Music of the season, from popular Christmas tunes to Mozart, will be highlighted in the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra's Holiday Concert set for Friday, December 4, and Saturday, December 5.

This year's concert will feature pianist Scot Hawkins of Salisbury as the guest soloist for Mozart's "Piano Concerto #17." Hawkins has played background piano with the SSO before, but the Holiday Concert will mark his first solo performance with the orchestra.

Hawkins first started performing with the choir at Wicomico Senior High School and at Oak Ridge Baptist Church where his father, the Rev. Gary Hawkins, was pastor. "It showed me how much fun it could be," Hawkins said. "I really liked the audience response."

Over the years, Hawkins has studied locally with Taylor Harvey, Mary Graham and Linda Cockey. Currently, he teaches piano at Salisbury Music and is organist and choirmaster at St. Phillip's Episcopal Church in Quantico.

In addition to Hawkins' solo, the orchestra will perform "Christmas Concerto" by Corelli and three medleys of popular holiday tunes as well as pieces by Hayden, Rimsky-Korsakov and Bach-Stokowski.

Now in its seventh full season, the SSO is under the direction of Dr. Thomas G. Elliot. The 63 orchestra members include students, lawyers, teachers, homemakers, doctors and professional musicians. They come from all over the Delmarva Peninsula.

Friday's performance will begin at 8 p.m. and Saturday's, at 2 p.m. Both performances will be in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for non-SSU students and senior citizens. Call the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council at 543-ARTS for ticket information.

Biology Enrollment Booms, Interest in Environment Soars

There's been a small explosion at the Henson School of Science and Technology, and administrators at the University are actually happy about it. The boom is coming from the Biological Sciences Department. In the past six years the number of majors has more than doubled, making biology not only the largest department in the Henson School, but the fastest growing as well.

In 1987, there were 169 students majoring in biology. This semester, there are 350. Henson School faculty attribute the rapid growth to a combination of factors, but an increased interest in the environment seems to account for a large portion.

Salisbury State met the demand for more courses in environmental science three years ago by starting a dual-degree program in cooperation with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. Students in the program take courses at both institutions and work toward two Bachelor of Science degrees—one in biology from SSU and another in environmental science from UMES.

The response to the dual-degree program has been gratifying. When it started there was only a handful of students, but now there are 70, according to Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School.

"The program has really expanded," Creighton said. The number of Salisbury State students is straining the class size at UMES, but it's a nice problem to have."

SSU senior Brian Sturgis of Snow Hill is one of the original dual-degree students. "We get a lot of hands-on experience that makes it almost like a graduate-level program," he said. "I think that makes us more employable than majors with only a biology degree."

Career opportunities for biology majors are increasing as rapidly as the number of students in the department. State and federal environmental agencies are in need of research technicians and administrators. Private corporations and local government planning departments also are in need of people who can conduct environmental impact studies.

"There's a multitude of positions out there for people with a B.S. or a M.S.," said Dr. Thomas Jones, coordinator of the dual-degree program. "You don't need a Ph.D. in order to get a job."

But not all career-oriented biology majors are focusing on the environment. Many are enrolled in the pre-professional medical studies program at SSU with the idea of furthering their educations in medicine, dentistry, optometry or podiatry. Creighton said there has been a significant increase in the number of those

On Sunday, December 6, members of the University community will have the opportunity to meet with Eastern Shore senators and delegates from the 37th and 38th districts of the Maryland State Legislature. Legislators will be available to discuss upcoming legislation and respond to any questions and concerns participants may have.

The annual Legislative Tea, which is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Wicomico County and the American Association of University Professors of SSU, will be held in the Social Room of Holloway Hall from 3:30-5 p.m.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Montreal Ski Trip With Outdoor Club Set

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country skiing. Trip dates are January 24-February 5.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Mont Garceau, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

The trip this year features 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 24 and return on February 5. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada is approximately $260. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($43 Canadian per day at the McGill House), rental fees for downhill ski, or lift tickets (about $20-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

To guarantee a spot on the trip provide a non-refundable deposit of $75 to the club treasurer, Cheryl Rogers, at the meeting on November 30 or December 7. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. The balance is due by January 6.

Army Field Band Performs Holiday Concert

The internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus performs on Thursday, December 10, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the band has performed throughout Europe, the Far East, and Central and South Americas as well as all 50 states.

Although admission to the concert is free a donation to the Maryland Food Bank of canned food goods will be appreciated. The food goods will be distributed to the needy of the community.

Unique among military bands, the Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

The Field Band has a distinguished history. It has performed in the Royal Festival Hall in London, Luxembourg Gardens in Paris, the Olympia Stadium in Berlin, the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., the Hollywood Bowl and New York's Carnegie Hall, where it was the first military band to present a full-dress concert.

Traveling thousands of miles every year, band members have a reputation as being among the best touring musicians in the country.

Tickets to the concert are available beginning Tuesday, December 1, at Salisbury State's Guerrieri University Center information desk, the SSU ROTC Detachment, the Salisbury Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Center at the Twilley Shopping Center.

The event is co-sponsored by the Salisbury Daily Times, SSU and the Salisbury State ROTC Detachment. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Commencement Tickets

Because of the growing numbers of students graduating from Salisbury State it is necessary to begin distributing tickets to graduates to give their guests who wish to attend commencement. Admission will be by ticket only.

Students who will be graduating in December will be able to request up to 12 tickets each. Tickets will be distributed through the Book Rack on November 18-20 along with caps and gowns. Students who do not need all 12 tickets should return the extra tickets to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students needing more than 12 tickets may come to the information desk beginning November 23 to request additional tickets.

The number of tickets available to graduating students for future commencements will vary depending on the number of students graduating.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Dance Company and Chamber Choir Perform 'A Day For Dancing'

"A Day For Dancing," a program of Christmas and Hanukkah music and dance, will be presented by the Salisbury State Chamber Choir with members of the SSU Dance Company on Sunday, December 6, and Monday, December 7.

Both performances begin at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. They are free and open to the public.

"A Day For Dancing" is a collection of nine carols arranged by Lloyd Pfautsch, the retired choral conductor from Southern Methodist University. The work is intended to be danced interpretively.

Other Christmas music will include carols arranged by John Rutter and a Christmas novelty set featuring "Carol of the Bells," "Jingle Bells Scherzo" and "Deck the Halls" in 7/8.

The concert also will include choral music for Hanukkah sung in Hebrew.

This collaboration between the choir and the Dance Company will feature student instrumentalists: Lauren Weis, oboe; Brenda Toney, flute; and Chris Reavis, percussion. Assisting will be Ellen Oberholtzer, bassoon, and Scot Hawkins, piano.

The conductor of the Chamber Choir is Dr. Duane R. Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities. Mary Troy is director of the Dance Company.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543- 6030.

Challenge Examinations For English Are Set

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Monday, February 8, from 4-7 p.m.

If interested in taking either one of the exams, a $20 non- refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, December 11. In January a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

Ackerson Publishes On Air Mail Act

Wayne Ackerson, lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has recently had accepted for publication an article in a reference series to be published by Academic International Press (AIP).

Ackerson's article deals with the Air Mail Act (1930), more commonly called the McNary-Watres Act. The act authorized a change in compensation procedure for airmail carriers also allowed the Postmaster General to solicit competitive bids for airmail routes. Though seemingly straightforward, the act elicited controversy when the law was stretched to considerable limits by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown during the Hoover Administration. Though subsequently superseded, the McNary-Watres Act was an important stage in the development of commercial aviation.

AIP's as yet unpublished compendium includes pieces from some of the nation's top scholars, and is expected to be released next year.

Ackerson has also been selected as part of a team of researchers by MacMillan Publishers to work on a new world civilizations text. Chosen in a national search, Ackerson has already begun working with colleagues on completing chapters of the text.

Erskine, Quinn Present Paper

Dr. Thomas Erskine, professor of English in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, and Dr. Edna Quinn, professor of nursing in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, recently presented a paper at the National Issues in Higher Education: Quality in Off-Campus Credit Programs Conference in San Antonio, TX. Their paper, "Quality in Travel Courses," was based on several winter term courses that the couple have conducted in England and in Australia and New Zealand.

Erskine and Quinn discussed the importance of advance planning, on-site contacts and qualitative evaluations. United States colleges and universities have expanded their overseas offerings significantly in recent years. The SSU travel courses offer students a relatively inexpensive opportunity to complement their on-campus courses and enhance their appreciation of other cultures.

Moazzam Presents Paper

Dr. Mohammad Moazzam of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Sciences in the Henson School of Science and Technology recently presented a paper at the eighth annual Colloquium on Assisting Underprepared Students at Goldey-Beacom College in Wilmington, DE.

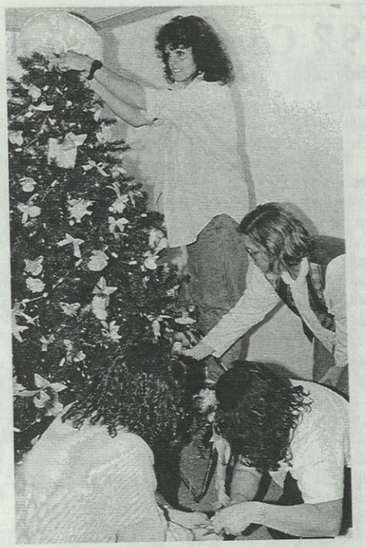
In the paper, "Reducing Math Anxiety by Close Individual Contacts," the author describes how close contacts, such as office hours, tutoring and participation in students' social activities, creates a friendly climate and helps reduce math anxiety. Simple applications of math in the real world encourage students to regard math as fun.

The paper was well received at the conference, since underachievement in mathematics is a condition at almost every college and university in the nation.

Connolly Receives First Place Art Award

Karl Connolly, a 1992 graduate, recently received the $1,500 first-place award at the Chrysler Museum's Irene Leache Memorial Exhibition, located in Norfolk, VA. His oil on canvas painting, "Enigma: War," was among 82 works on view which were chosen from 763 entries. The jury for the exhibition was headed by Thomas Sokolowski of New York University.

Connolly is attending the Maryland Institute College of Art on a partial scholarship and a graduate teaching assistantship.



Marie Cavallaro, top right, a professor in the Art Department, places a ceramic bird atop a Christmas tree she helped design for this year's Festival of Trees while students in her ceramics class look on. Cavallaro and her students chose an Eastern Shore theme for the tree, called "Pearls of the Sea," and designed the ornaments in the shapes of seashells, fish, birds, beach vegetation and nautical objects. The tree will be on display at the former Hess Apparel store on the Downtown Plaza November 27-December 6. Proceeds from the Festival of Trees benefits the March of Dimes and Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

Holiday Art Workshop For Children at AI&G

On two Saturdays, December 5 and 12, children in grades one through six can participate in a Holiday Art Workshop at the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury.

Children will develop drawing, composition and design skills while using fine arts media to create their own original holiday creations. Tree ornaments, greeting cards, gift wrap, jointed dolls, beautiful art objects and scenes within eggs will be designed by the children.

Cost for the workshop is $25 for AI&G family members and $30 for non-members, which includes supplies. For more information or to register call 546-4748.

Victorian Christmas At Snow Hill Museum

The Julia A. Purnell Museum celebrates the Christmas season with its annual Victorian Christmas Celebration on Saturday, December 12, and Sunday, December 13.

The museum is open from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday and from 1-4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults and 50 cents for young people under 18. The museum is located at 208 West Market Street in Snow Hill.

Flu Shots Available At the Health Center

The Health Center has a limited quantity of flu vaccine. As in the past the center will provide the flu shot at a cost of $7 to faculty and staff who desire it. There is no charge to students.

Call the Health Center at 543-6262 before coming in order to decrease waiting time.

The Health Center hours for the semester are Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

Prescription Cards Valid Through 1994

Employees with prescription cards take note—be sure to keep your PCS card. New cards will not be issued for the new year. Current cards will be useable for 1993 and on into 1994.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The annual men's and women's Gull Classic basketball tournament takes center stage this weekend as hoops action fills the Maggs Center on Friday and Saturday. Two men's and two women's games are scheduled for each day, with the SSU women scheduled to play Friday at 7 p.m. followed by the SSU men at 9 p.m. Saturday's games begin at 2 p.m. with the women's consolation contest, followed by the men's consolation, the women's championship and the men's championship.

The Sea Gull women, 3-0 entering the tournament, host St. Mary's in Friday's opening round. Christopher Newport and Wilmington (DE) meet in the other first round contest. The SSU men welcome Greensboro (NC) in Friday's 9 p.m. game, with Walsh (OH) playing Manhattanville (NY) in the 5 p.m. contest.

The SSU women, off to their best start in three seasons under Coach Bridget Benshetler, are coming off an 81-74 win at Christopher Newport in their last outing, two days prior to Thanksgiving. Senior guard Jen Boone tallied 29 points and added five assists to lead SSU, while forwards Gail Lindenstroth and Amy Fenzel added 18 and 10 points, respectively. Sophomore Kim Roth cleaned the glass for 15 rebounds while also adding eight points.

It was a balanced scoring attack that helped the Sea Gull men outgun St. Mary's 89-72 last week. Four starters tallied double-figures, led by 23 from Dameon Ross and a season-best 21 by Kevin Cromer. Ed Farrell added 17 and Bret Grebowsky had 10 as the Maroon and Gold won its second straight after a season-opening loss.

Coach Ward Lambert's crew faces a final pre-Classic test on Wednesday, December 2, against Virginia Wesleyan. The Gulls will be making their home debut in a game that also features the return of longtime SSU assistant Andy Sachs, now an assistant for the Blue Marlins.

The women's swim team has its final home meet of the season on Saturday against Coppin State, starting at 2 p.m. The Gulls fell to 4-2 on the year with a 118-83 loss to Washington on November 24. On the bright side, two school records were established. Eileen Messenger bettered her own record with a time of 1:13.24 in winning the 100 backstroke, while Lisa Kidd shaved four seconds off the old record in the 800 freestyle with a time of 10:33.8. The men's club team also lost to Washington, falling 131-72.

Golf Club Meeting

The SSU Golf Club will meet Tuesday, December 8, at 3:30 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center to finalize plans for spring semester events at Nutter's Crossing (Salisbury), Eagle's Landing (Ocean City), Nassawango (Snow Hill), Hog's Neck (Easton) and Caroline (Denton).

Membership is free and open to SSU students, faculty and staff. Membership forms are available at the Office of the Dean of Students (room 212, GUC) and should be returned to that office by December 7 to be put on the mailing list for the club's activities.

December 1992 Commencement Information

General Information and Directions (Please read carefully)

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 20, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be A. Thomas Young, president and chief operating officer of Martin Marietta Corporation.

3. Physically Disabled Guests—Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired—Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 18. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Saturday, December 19, from 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack. Students will be limited to 12 tickets each. If you do not need all 12 tickets you should return extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

6. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked by Dr. Bellavance to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

7. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

8. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

9. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, December 14. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

10. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

11. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

12. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. in Fulton Hall Auditorium on Wednesday, December 23, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter K (Michael Rene Krauch and Michael Lawrence Kraus) will report to Drs. Stewart and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Edward Kucharski through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

15. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through L, Robert Livermore, will report to Drs. Austin and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Sandra Mackay through the letter Z, will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

16. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidate (Ruth O'Mara) will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

18. All Master's candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to a faculty marshall in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Connie White. You will line up according to her direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

M. Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will also sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

19. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by President Bellavance and/or your faculty marshal.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshalls will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

20. Graduation Decorum

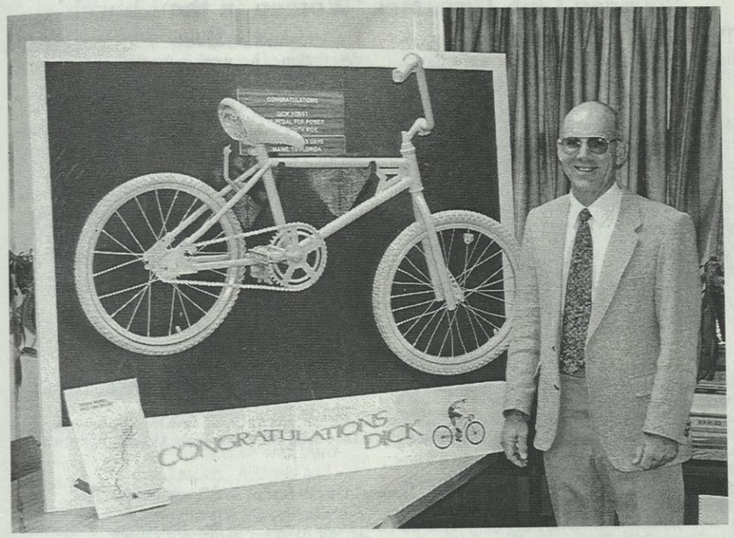
Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).



Salisbury Wheelman Richard Yobst, administrative services director, recently completed a 16,310 mile bicycle trip from Portland, ME, to Orlando, FL. The designated route traversed a total of 14 states in 23 days. The 43 riders that participated in the north-south fund raiser were able to generate over $150,000 for the League of American Wheelman and the local charity chosen by each rider. Two riders raised over $11,000 each, while two others raised $6,000 plus each. Yobst was fifth among the group of 43. Thanks to the campus community, he reached his personal goal of over $5,000.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential Personal Information Form on file with the Center for Personal and Professional Development prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the CPPD as soon as possible to complete this requirement.

Tues. Dec. 8 — Northwestern Mutual Life (Life insurance company)—Sales associate in the Baltimore metropolitan area.

Wed. Dec. 9 — AAA Mid-Atlantic—(Insurance and travel specialists) Sales representatives in Salisbury, Arnold, Columbia, Frederick, Haggerstown, Bel Air, Baltimore and Westminster areas. All majors, past or December '92 graduates, may apply.

All recruiting requires sign-ups. Contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

Interview Skills: A must for every senior, this one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing applicants for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, and interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested. Monday, December 7, from 3-4:30 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

General Information

Connexion—A new service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country, the service is free to current students.
Kinexus—A national employment database, registration is free to current students.
More information is available from the CPPD.

Upcoming Career Events

Operation Native Talent—On Monday, December 28, and Tuesday, December 29, students can meet with employers wanting to hire people in over 100 fields at the Adams Mark Hotel in Philadelphia from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. both days. Call (215) 972-3980 for more information.

New Jersey Collegiate Career Day—On Friday, January 8, Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey at New Brunswick, will host this event from 9:30 a.m - 4 p.m. to offer seniors and graduates the opportunity to meet New Jersey employers who are seeking entry level candidates. Brochures are available at CPPD.

Minority Teacher Candidates Day—On Thursday, February 4, Calvert County public schools is hosting this event from 9 a.m. - 1:45 p.m. to give students the opportunity to learn about employment in Calvert County, MD. Registration materials are available at CPPD.

International Recruiting Fair (K-12 Education)—On February 5-7 Ohio State University is the site of this ninth annual fair which offers the opportunity to learn about the variety of overseas teaching, counseling and administrative openings, plus how to obtain them. Registration information is available at CPPD.

Habitat for Humanity Needs Volunteers

Join SSU's volunteers on Saturday, December 5, to help low-income families build affordable homes. They will be working with Habitat for Humanity, a non-profit organization in the Salisbury area. The success of the program depends on volunteers. No experience is necessary. This is the last workday this semester.

Meet in front of Maggs Gym at 8:45 a.m. or 1 p.m. For more information call Krissy Monks at 548-1976.

Book Donations Sought by Library

Are your bookshelves crammed with stuff you never look at or don't need any more? Do you have books stored in boxes, in the attic, or on the floor? Why not get them out of your way and donate them to Blackwell Library?

The library will sort through them for you, looking for useful things for its collection. The library will provide a statement of estimated value for items that it selects. Things that the library can't use will be "recycled" at its annual "Monster Book Sale."

Everyone benefits and your books will find a home. Call 543-6367 for arrangements.

General Assembly Meeting

As the fall semester comes to an end, the Student Government Association thanks its supporters and friends. On Sunday, December 6, the SGA will convene for the last time this semester to vote for the SGA Executive Board. All are welcome to attend and give support to the candidates.

Blue Cross Plan Requires Hospital Call

Any employee enrolled in Blue Cross/Blue Shield for 1993 should be sure to remember to call (800) 443-5434 prior to being admitted to the hospital (except in an emergency situation). If employees forget to call, then benefits will be reduced by 20 percent for that hospital stay.

This pre-authorization phone call is required even if a second opinion has already been obtained.

The program is named Utilization Control Program Plus (UCP+) and is designed to help control medical costs by shielding members from unnecessary medical care.

Nursing STARS Do Blood Pressure Screening

The STARS (Students Taking Action and Responsibility on the Shore) nursing students participated in a blood pressure screening project at Bethany Lutheran Church on Saturday, November 7.

The freshmen nursing students took blood pressures on more than 100 people. Students participating in the community service project were Tasha Williams of Upper Marlboro, Toya Cole of Temple Hills, Kelly Flint of Rockville, Kelly Lewers of Pocomoke, Lisa Cox of Huntington, Wendy Hruska of Crownsville and Sarah Capello of Woodcliff Lake (NJ). The students were supervised by senior nursing major Tracy Dold of Cockeysville and instructor Lisa Seldomridge.

STARS nursing student Jill Phlipot of Mardela assisted in a flu vaccination clinic held in conjunction with Peninsula Regional Medical Center. Jennifer Shelton of New Church, VA, another STARS nursing student and CPR instructor, is conducting a CPR certification class. The STARS nursing students are fulfilling their community service aspect of the summer New Student Seminar.

Student Monitor Employment

The Department of Computer Services is accepting applications for the position of student monitor for the spring semester. Any student who has successfully completed either COSC 112, COSC 120 or ISMN 111 may apply.

The application procedure is as follows: all students must complete a job application with the Work Experience Office and receive a referral card; and students must complete the Department of Computer Services student monitor job application. These applications can be obtained at the student monitor's desk in Fulton Hall, room 149, beginning Tuesday, December 1. Students should complete the application and attach the work experience referral card to the application. All applications must be returned to the Department of Computer Services receptionist to be dated. Students will be contacted by the academic coordinator for interviews.

Students will not be considered if they have not completed the application, do not have a referral card or the application is not dated.

Employees May Need New Health Form

Employees (or their family members) currently receiving out-patient treatment from a mental health professional or involved in treatment for substance abuse/alcoholism take note.

Prior to January 1, employees must file a special precertification form which is available by calling 1-800-356-0038. This is a required step for employees during the open enrollment period this year in order to ensure that family members have coverage in 1993.

Calls to the above number are kept strictly confidential. In order to maintain privacy, when completing the precertification form, mail it directly to the new options mental health facility (unlike other health insurance forms which must come to the campus Personnel Office for processing).

The above telephone number is operational 24 hours a day, seven days a week to assist with questions about procedures for obtaining maximum benefit from one's coverage.

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All December graduating students borrowing under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program, on or after July 1, 1987, are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that those students attend one of the following sessions: December 9 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri University Center, or, December 10 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri Center.

If students choose not to attend their school records and diploma will be held. Those students on an internship, working or student teaching you must make arrangements to attend.

Clerical Vacancy

The Registrar's Office has an opening for a full-time contractual employee (40-hour week, no state benefits).

Responsibilities include responding to students' questions in person and by phone, collecting/processing change of major and change of address forms, and assisting, as needed, with registration, records and degree clearance. High school diploma and working knowledge of the IA Student Information System (SIS) is preferred. Salary will be $7-$7.25 per hour, depending on experience and qualifications.

Interested applicants should apply by submitting a resume and an application in the Personnel Office not later than Friday, December 4.

Newman Club Discusses 'Women in the Church'

The Newman Club (Catholic students' association) of Salisbury State will sponsor a panel discussion on the role of women in the church.

The discussion will focus on the role of women in the Catholic Church, but will not exclude consideration of women as ministers and priests in the Protestant denominations. Dr. Timothy Miller of the History Department will outline the historical evidence for the existence of deaconesses in the early Christian Church and will also comment on the role of female religious (nuns) in the Middle Ages.

Sister Betty Pflieger, RSM, principal of St. Francis School in Salisbury, will present a brief description of her work in the Catholic Church. Barry Neville, also of the History Department, will discuss the issue of women's ordination in the Episcopal Church, and several other participants will explain the present Catholic Church position on women in Holy Orders.

The discussion is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Monday, December 7, in the Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center. All are invited to attend. Direct any questions to Miller at 543-6243.

Small Receives Honor Society Post

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended the 77th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History. The conference was held from October 7-11 at the Westin Crown Center in Kansas City, MO.

The membership of the association consists of persons interested in the study of Afro-American, African, Caribbean and Latin American life and history. The association prepares information about and leads in the celebration of Black History Month; organizes tours of Africa and Latin America; and works closely with local branches in major cities in promoting the study, teaching, researching, writing, collecting of manuscripts, preserving of historic sites and instituting other programs related to Afro-American life and history.

The theme of the conference was "Afro-American Scholars: Leaders, Activists and Writers." The conference focused on African-American heritage in general and specifically in the West. Some of the panels centered on the "Negro Baseball League," "Buffalo Soldiers," "Tuskegee Airmen," "Black Basketball Players" and "Kansas Jazz Musicians." While at the conference, Small met the last of the Buffalo Soldiers, the Tuskegee Airmen and one of the presidential candidates, Gov. Bill Clinton.

"There's going to be an even larger demand for health care professionals in the near future as the baby-boom generation starts to face old age," he said.

Salisbury State offers an accelerated professional degree program that allows qualified students to earn a professional degree in seven years. The first three years are in residence at SSU and then the student applies for admission to professional school. This dual-degree program has been negotiated with the University of Maryland Dental School, the Pennsylvania College of Optometry and the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine.

Although admission to graduate programs in the health sciences is competitive, eight SSU senior biology majors went on to professional schools last year. Creighton attributes that high number not only to the excellence of the Biology Department, but also to the intelligence of the students in the program.

"We're attracting a lot of high-quality students because of the scholarships made possible by the Richard Henson endowment," he said.

In 1988, Richard A. Henson, chairman and chief executive officer of Henson Aviation Inc., headquartered in Salisbury, endowed the School of Science and Technology with a $2.5 million gift. The endowment included a major scholarship recruitment drive to attract highly motivated students interested in biology as well as the other science programs offered at SSU. Henson Scholars on average scored 149 points higher on the Scholastic Aptitude Test than the average SAT score for freshmen entering the University.

A large percentage of biology majors at SSU are not only bright, but female as well, according to Jones. As more high schools are encouraging girls to excel in math and science, more female students are choosing those subjects as their majors in college. Jones said approximately 70 percent of his students today are female as opposed to 40 percent when he started teaching at the University 15 years ago.

With an increased number of students interested in environmental studies and health sciences, as well as new job opportunities opening up in those fields, "this really is an exciting time to be a biologist," Creighton said.

Dolores Powell Paintings On Exhibit at Library

The Wicomico County Free Library is sponsoring the ninth annual watercolor exhibit by Dolores Powell through December 31. At "Meet the Artist," Powell will demonstrate her technique of painting as an educational exhibit in the lobby of the library on Saturday, December 5, from 1-4 p.m.

Through the years, Powell has been capturing the life on the Chesapeake Bay with paintings of landscapes, waterfowl and the vanishing sailing vessels known as skipjacks, whose crews are often made up of third generation watermen. Whether her subject is the Eastern Shore, the Outer Banks of North Carolina, lighthouses of the East Coast or white sands of Pensacola, FL, her perspective is usually from the water which sets the stage for her paintings. The Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia Elks Association map of the area and lodges was painted by Powell and prints have been successfully shown to and purchased by the lodges and Elks members throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

Having attended Salisbury State University and studied art, Powell discovered a hidden talent for capturing a place and mood in the media of watercolor. By its very nature, watercolor demands a quick response to the scene, capturing the mood, and the play of light and shadows. Her paintings are fresh and uniquely light-filled creating harmony of sky and water with soft edges, yet providing a detailed portrayal of her chosen subject. She is constantly studying art and refining her technique and whenever possible enrolling in workshops and educational activities.

Some of her most rewarding experiences have been the wonderful expressions on the faces of viewers when they see a painting that reminds them of their childhood or a happy event.

Powell is the administrative aide in the Office of the Dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology. Works in the exhibit area are for sale. For more information call 543-6425 or 546-2836.

Neville Discusses 'Loyalism' with DAR

Barry Neville, lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently delivered a lecture to the Samuel Chase Wicomico Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The address, "Efforts of the Revolutionary Government of Maryland To Suppress Loyalism on the Eastern Shore," discussed the causes of Loyalism on the Delmarva Peninsula, identified the various groups labeled as being disloyal and discussed the actions taken by the Annapolis government to prevent these disaffected groups from disrupting the war effort of the state of Maryland. Thirty people attended the lecture, which was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Korff of Salisbury.

Total Quality Process Topic of Recent Forum

"Problem Solving Techniques - A Total Quality Process" was the subject of a recent regional forum co-sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and the University of Maryland Engineering Research Center's Technology Extension Service (TES).

Jack Heath, operations manager, Film Converting Group, a division of American Mirrex Corporation, and Carol Stratton, process engineer and plant quality coordinator at the American Mirrex plant in Salisbury, led the forum. They introduced several Problem Solving Decision Making (PSDM) techniques: creative problem solving, deviation analysis, decision making, and planning and anticipating. The impact of these techniques on the Film and Converting Group was discussed as well as future applications.

The Film and Converting Group of American Mirrex, producer of solid color, printed and/or embossed vinyl, began implementing Total Quality Management in 1988. The process began with training. By April 1989, all associates had received training in the Deming philosophy as well as basic Statistical Quality Control and brainstorming techniques. Quality Improvement Teams and improved quality communication closely followed. In 1990, additional training in Problem Solving Decision Making was conducted.

Heath emphasized that the three rules for Total Quality success are: "Patience! Patience! Patience! It is a process of continuous improvement."

A group exercise was performed to demonstrate the application of the Decision Making Matrix. Once a problem has been defined and brainstorming sessions have taken place with "key players" to determine how to solve the problem, the decision-making matrix helps to select the optimal solution using a system of numerical weights. According to Heath, PSDM provides "creative new ideas to get you where you want to be."

After graduating from Newark College of Engineering with a chemical engineering major, Heath taught at the high school level for four years. Since then he has worked in manufacturing as a development engineer, quality control manager, production manager, technical manager, plant manager and operations manager. He is currently the operations manager of the Salisbury Film and Converting Group, a division of American Mirrex.

Stratton attended the University of Maryland College Park, graduating with a Bachelor of Science in chemistry. She worked as a chemist with the U.S. Government for two years, first with the Bureau of Mines and then with the National Institutes of Health. In 1987, she began working at Occidental Chemical (now American Mirrex) as a raw material chemist, then became plant chemist. Stratton now wears two hats, one as process engineer, the other as plant quality coordinator.

The forum was held in the Guerrieri University Center at Salisbury State University. Fifty-eight representatives from area businesses, higher education and economic development offices were in attendance. Given widespread interest in the Problem Solving Decision Making Process another regional forum is being planned to discuss deviation analysis.

The Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council, operating from the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at SSU, serves Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties. The council was established in 1990 by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development to provide greater focus on the technology issues faced by businesses in the lower Shore region.

Super Saturday Set For 7th and 8th Grades

SSU will offer a program for academically interested seventh and eighth graders from public and private schools. Super Saturday, which won an award from the Maryland Association of Higher Education in 1982, was discontinued in 1983 after Dr. Thomas L. Erskine, professor of English, a co-founder of the program, became dean of liberal arts. According to Dr. Raymond A. Whall, professor of English, and the other co-founder, Super Saturday will be conducted on the SSU campus for 10 Saturday mornings beginning in February 1993.

Two 90-minute classes will be offered. Whall and Erskine will again teach the etymology course, which deals with vocabulary and word-attack skills. Students learn how Latin and Greek roots, suffixes and prefixes form many contemporary English words. Erskine believes that the course will help students with vocabulary and reading.

"One of the primary problems students have with the verbal SAT exam is inadequate vocabulary," said Erskine. "This course, while no substitute for Latin and Greek classes, will help students recognize attack words derived from Romance languages and Greek."

Claire Katz, instructor of philosophy at SSU, who has also taught philosophy to elementary school students, will teach the "Critical Thinking" course, which will help students analyze readings to determine an argument's assumptions and validity. Students will discuss the readings and write their own reasoned responses to the reading material.

Erskine and Whall selected these courses because they did not want to duplicate the content courses offered in school. For Whall, the Super Saturday courses supplement academic offerings and complement efforts to improve students' reading and writing.

The cost for each course is $125 plus a modest charge for textbooks. Although the textbooks for the courses are designed as supplementary texts for first-year college students, they are appropriate for Super Saturday students. "We've used them before in the program. We just slow the pace and make sure the students understand what they're reading," said Whall.

Brochures, applications and teacher recommendations forms will be distributed to interested seventh and eighth graders on the lower Shore. Parents desiring additional information should contact their schools. Erskine and Whall also welcome calls at 543-6371 or 548-7037.

Wenke Is Published

Dr. John Wenke, associate professor of English, has recently published two essays on 19th century American novelist Herman Melville.

Wenke's "Moby Dick and the Impress of Melville's Learning" has been included in Critical Essays on Melville's Moby Dick, edited by Brian Higgins and Hershel Parker and published by G.K. Hall. Another essay titled "Melville" has been included in American Literary Scholarship: An Annual 1990, edited by Louis Owens and published by Duke University Press.

In addition to the essays, Wenke lectured on "The Subversive Politics of American Humor: Comedy as Chaos in Popular and Unpopular Culture" at the University of North Florida in Jacksonville on November 4.

Learn About Booze Consumption and Effects

Come see how alcohol really effects a person's ability to function. Residence life and peer educators will demonstrate various ways alcohol can alter one's perceptions and reactions to situations (especially driving).

The program is on Thursday, December 3, from 7-10 p.m. in the Gull's Nest in the Guerrieri University Center. Pre-chosen subjects will be given field sobriety tests to show the changes in their motor skills after consuming several alcoholic beverages. These subjects will also be monitored on preliminary breathalizer tests (PBT) to display the differences in their normal blood-alcohol content to their blood-alcohol content after a few drinks.

Tuition Forum At UMBC Dec. 16

The finance committee of the University of Maryland System Board of Regents invites everyone to attend its third public forum on tuition. It is scheduled from 7-9 p.m. on Wednesday, December 16, in the Faculty/Staff Dining Hall at the University of Maryland Baltimore County.

Public forums focus on the need for the System to have an explicit, broadly-supported tuition policy and the nature of such a policy. Present at the Baltimore area gathering will be members of the Board of Regents, Chancellor Donald Langenberg and other members of the System institutional leadership team. Based on the public discussions and related information, Langenberg will present his recommendations on tuition policy to the Board of Regents.

For additional information, call (301) 853-3740.

Horne Invited To Election Debriefing At Annenburg School

As a result of Dr. Kathleen Jamieson's visit here, Dr. Janet Horne of the Communication Arts Department has been invited to attend an election debriefing, sponsored by the Annenburg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania.

The debriefing is by initiation only.

Sessions will be held on the following: "The Debates," with Carol Simpson, ABC News, a moderator of the second presidential debate; and Ed Fouhy, member of the Presidential Debates Commission and producer of the presidential debates. "Accountability: The Problems Posed By Ross Perot," with Lesley Stahl, of CBS's "60 Minutes"; and Lisa Meyers, NBC. "Media Bias/Candidate Access," with David Broder, Washington Post and "Meet the Press"; Andrea Mitchell, ABC News; and Jeff Birnbaum, Wall Street Journal. "Case Studies—The Links Between 1988 and 1992," with Eric Engberg, CBS News. "Did Advertising Function Differently in the 1988 Presidential Campaign," with Bob Squier, senior partner in Squier-Eskew-Knapp, commentator on the "Today Show" and advisor to Vice President Elect Al Gore; Alex Castellanos, member of the Bush-Quayle ad team; and Mandy Grunwald, member of the Clinton ad team. "The Hillary Factor," with Maggie Williams, Hillary Clinton's press secretary; Eleanor Clift, Newsweek; and Gwen Ifill, New York Times.

Don Singleton of the Communication Arts Department will also be attending.

Summer Britain Trip Interest Meeting Set

During the summer of 1993, students and other interested individuals have the opportunity to travel through Britain. Organized by history faculty member Wayne Ackerson, the tour covers England and Wales by private motor coach.

Some of the noteworthy sites to be visited include York, several stops in Wales, and also some days in London. Ackerson said, "We'll also visit Castle Tintagel, the legendary home of King Arthur."

Ackerson lived in England for five years and has since returned several times. "There is something there for everyone," said Ackerson "from historical locations and natural beauty to literary sites."

The cost of the trip, exclusive of tuition, is around $1,700, practically the same price as last year. The cost includes airfare, all transportation, lodging in four-star hotels and most meals. Admission charges into the many fascinating sites is also included. The trip is scheduled to leave June 7 and return June 18.

An interest meeting will be held on Thursday, December 10, at 8:30 p.m in Caruthers Hall, room 104, or call Ackerson at 543-6527 during the day for more information.

SGA Nominations

Nominations for positions in the Student Government Association will be accepted December 1-4 at the dining hall from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and at Caruthers Hall from 1-3 p.m. Students can nominate a senator who will support their concerns. Remember, a student I.D. is required to enter a nomination.

SSU Professor Writes Christian Musical

Dean Defino, an assistant professor in the Math/Computer Science Department has written a full-length Christian musical titled, "The First Martyr," which will be presented December 18-20 at 7 p.m. at the Parkway Church of God on Rt. 50 in Salisbury. He has also started an interdenominational Christian theatre group called "Power Production Ministries," which is committed to presenting quality Christian drama for churches throughout the area.

"The First Martyr" deals with one man's struggle for faith after losing his son, and it blends both the Christmas and Easter story into a unique plot. It consists of 10 original musical presentations written by Defino, Alice Wigfield and Jack Stone.

In addition to writing some of the songs, Wigfield, a well-known musical director and soloist in the area, has arranged all the music. She is also directing the production. Defino, who is a main character in the play, said, "much money, time and effort has gone into this musical, but I feel that it is an exciting, dramatic presentation that will be a blessing and I hope the SSU community will be able to attend."

Admission is free and open to the public.

Exhibit, Sale Benefits Art Scholarship Fund

Looking for the perfect, but reasonably priced gift for the person who already has too many slipper socks and waffle irons? Your search may be over starting December 12 when SSU opens its ninth annual Arts & Crafts Exhibition and Sale to benefit the Art Scholarship Fund.

Unusual handmade items by SSU art students as well as artists with regional and international reputations will be on sale. Many of the items will be available for only a few dollars.

The sale runs Saturday, December 12, and Monday-Thursday, December 14-17, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. each day, or by appointment to groups. It will be held in the Atrium Gallery of the Guerrieri University Center.

Since its beginning, the art sale has attracted hundreds of people. "It really brings area artists and art lovers together," said show organizer and associate professor of art Marie Cavallaro. "And, more importantly, it supports the Art Scholarship Fund." The Art Department offers a limited number of scholarships each year based on merit. Incoming full-time freshmen intending to major in art are invited to apply. The amount of the scholarships varies from $300 to $500 and may be renewed the following year. "Only three scholarships have been awarded since the sale started none years ago, but the goal is to increase the amount in the future," said Cavallaro.

The majority of the artists contributing work to this year's sale live and work on the Eastern Shore. Among them are: Sandy Lawless, John Cleary, Jane Hiddleson, Angela Herbert Hodges, Karen Brown, Beth Fusaro, Melissa Cullen, Marie Cavallaro, Dorothy Truitt, Vesna Dovis, Jose Dovis, Paula Hepburn, Rhonda Heinecke, Dan Heinecke, Ron Artman, Ruth O'Mara, Dolores Powell, Mary Rehak, Jim Rehak, C. Anne Colonna, Gary Weber, Marge Violetta, Nancy Mysak, Gloria Young-Smith, Clytie Taylor, Trish Vonick, Tom McCabe, Jill Olsen, John White, Dot Truitt and Tim Galligan.

For more information on the sale, the scholarship or the art major, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Men's Tennis Coach Receives USTA Award

Associate professor and head tennis coach, Dean Burroughs, was the recipient of the 1992 Outstanding Service of the Year Award presented recently at the USTA/Mid-Atlantic Tennis Association awards luncheon in Richmond, VA.

Along with the recognition and awards plaque, the prestigious award carries a lifetime membership in the United States Tennis Association. In presenting the award, Rod Dulany, president of the USTA/Mid-Atlantic Tennis Association, cited Burroughs' contributions to the association as director of the Film/Tape Library, coach of the Davis Cup and Corish Cup teams and service on college and junior tennis committees.

Burroughs continues to serve as the Film/Tape Library director and this past year directed two sanctioned tournaments and served as head coach of the USTA Cross Sectional Training Camp for 16 year old players. SSU was the host site for the training camp.

In receiving the award, Burroughs said: "I'm very happy to be able to contribute to USTA and mid-Atlantic tennis activities. I have thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity to serve and I look forward to continued service. I'm most appreciative of this recognition and I'm very honored."

Former Hecht's GM Named to Perdue Post

Most voters in the November election identified the country's ailing economy as the most important issue facing the Presidency. While Americans can cite economic conditions as critical, most readily admit a lack of understanding of basic economic concepts.

The Perdue School of Business hopes to remedy the situation, at least on the Eastern Shore, by appointing a new director and expanding the services of its Center for Economic Education. Tom McCarthy, veteran businessman with a 35-year association with Hecht's, has been named to fill the top position.

"We feel fortunate in attracting Tom to the center," said Dr. Richard Bebee, Perdue School dean. "He blends a strong interest in quality economic education with practical experience."

As past president of the Chamber of Commerce and active member of the Greater Salisbury Committee, McCarthy's appointment signals continued effort by the Perdue School to recruit seasoned business professionals to work in community outreach programs. "His 17-year tenure as general manager and vice president at the Salisbury Hecht's adds an extra dimension of credibility to the program," said Bebee.

The center was established in 1989 and is intended to serve lower Shore counties including Dorchester. Under the sponsorship of the Maryland Council on Economic Education, the center utilizes the professional knowledge of Perdue School faculty from the Economics and Finance Department led by its chair, Dr. David LaBand.

As part of a larger national network whose mission is to help communities and schools improve the quantity and quality of economic education, the center will focus on teachers and students from kindergarten through high school. Community business interests will also be involved according to LaBand.

"This is an innovative approach; what we're looking for is a tripartite relationship between the University, business and schools that will benefit the whole community," said LaBand.

By strongly integrating economics in the curricula of the lower Shore school systems, McCarthy sees the center's role in the community as having far-reaching implications.

"This election year has brought our economy to the forefront," he said. "The challenge is inward, we can't begin to deal with our problems until they're understood."

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Ward Museum Sale

Recognizing a time honored tradition at the Ward Museum, we are again offering a special 25 percent off shopping day on Friday, December 11 for all faculty, staff and students of SSU.

The sale on all nonconsignment items (10 percent maximum on art supplies) will be open to the public on Saturday and Sunday. Hours are: 10 a.m.-5 p.m, Monday-Saturday and noon-5 p.m., Sunday.

Admission to gift shop is free.

Montreal Ski Trip With Outdoor Club Set

Again this year the Outdoor Club is sponsoring a winter term trip to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country skiing. Trip dates are January 24-February 5.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne, Mont Garceau, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sight-seeing and skiing.

The trip this year features 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 24 and return on February 5. Cost including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner while in Canada is approximately $260. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canadian per day at the McGill House), rental fees for downhill ski, or lift tickets (about $20-$30 Canadian per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

To guarantee a spot on the trip provide a non-refundable deposit of $75 to the club treasurer, Cheryl Rogers, at the meeting on November 30 or December 7. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. The balance is due by January 6.

Commencement Tickets

Because of the growing numbers of students graduating from Salisbury State it is necessary to begin distributing tickets to graduates to give their guests who wish to attend commencement. Admission will be by ticket only.

Students who will be graduating in December will be able to request up to 12 tickets each. Tickets will be distributed through the Book Rack on November 18-20 along with caps and gowns. Students who do not need all 12 tickets should return the extra tickets to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students needing more than 12 tickets may come to the information desk beginning November 23 to request additional tickets.

The number of tickets available to graduating students for future commencements will vary depending on the number of students graduating.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 20, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Challenge Examinations For English Are Set

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Monday, February 8, from 4-7 p.m.

If interested in taking either one of the exams, a $20 non- refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, December 11. In January a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

Flu Shots Available At the Health Center

The Health Center has a limited quantity of flu vaccine. As in the past the center will provide the flu shot at a cost of $7 to faculty and staff who desire it. There is no charge to students.

Call the Health Center at 543-6262 before coming in order to decrease waiting time.

The Health Center hours for the semester are Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

Prescription Cards Valid Through 1994

Employees with prescription cards take note—be sure to keep your PCS card. New cards will not be issued for the new year. Current cards will be useable for 1993 and on into 1994.

Book Donations Sought by Library

Are your bookshelves crammed with stuff you never look at or don't need any more? Do you have books stored in boxes, in the attic, or on the floor? Why not get them out of your way and donate them to Blackwell Library?

The library will sort through them for you, looking for useful things for its collection. The library will provide a statement of estimated value for items that it selects. Things that the library can't use will be "recycled" at its annual "Monster Book Sale."

Everyone benefits and your books will find a home. Call 543-6367 for arrangements.

Blue Cross Plan Requires Hospital Call

Any employee enrolled in Blue Cross/Blue Shield for 1993 should be sure to remember to call (800) 443-5434 prior to being admitted to the hospital (except in an emergency situation). If employees forget to call, then benefits will be reduced by 20 percent for that hospital stay.

This pre-authorization phone call is required even if a second opinion has already been obtained.

The program is named Utilization Control Program Plus (UCP+) and is designed to help control medical costs by shielding members from unnecessary medical care.

Employees May Need New Health Form

Employees (or their family members) currently receiving out-patient treatment from a mental health professional or involved in treatment for substance abuse/alcoholism take note.

Prior to January 1, employees must file a special precertification form which is available by calling 1-800-356-0038. This is a required step for employees during the open enrollment period this year in order to ensure that family members have coverage in 1993.

Calls to the above number are kept strictly confidential. In order to maintain privacy, when completing the precertification form, mail it directly to the new options mental health facility (unlike other health insurance forms which must come to the campus Personnel Office for processing).

The above telephone number is operational 24 hours a day, seven days a week to assist with questions about procedures for obtaining maximum benefit from one's coverage.

Third Variety Show Upcoming; Needs Performers

By Tony Broadbent

They stood in line for hours. Ticket scalpers were out in droves. The ushers were caught taking bribes from SSU students, so they could be let in. That was just what happened at the first and second annual Variety Shows. Who knows what will happen at this year's Variety Show. Maybe dig tunnels under the Holloway Hall Auditorium to get in.

You might think I'm slightly embellishing the truth of what has happened the last two years. Well, O.K. slightly, but it could happen this year. This is the first "Official Notice" about the third annual Salisbury State Variety Show. The show is produced by the Auditoria Services Department. The show will be held in the Holloway Hall Auditorium on Friday, April 16, and Saturday, April 17. Like the shows before, the variety will show the talent that is part of Salisbury State.

We are starting the pre-show publicity so more people can get involved. This year we are going to create a few committees to help with the show. We are going to have auditions and a publicity and ticket sales committee. There will also be room for students that are taking independent study classes to be involved. There will be room for a couple student slides shows along with any other performing talent that might exist on the campus. The show will feature three mistresses and three masters of ceremonies.

Tentative dates for the M.C. auditions are March 29 and 30. The talent auditions are tentatively on March 31 and April 1. The acts and show order will be posted April 2. Exact times and locations will be announced next semester.

The Auditoria Services Department hopes that everyone has a great holiday season and that your secret bearer of gifts brings you a guitar, a pair of dancing shows or a dozen bowling balls to juggle. If you have any questions before next semester, please call 548-4597. Keep an eye out for future announcements in the Flyer, the SSU News and campus bulletin boards.

'West Side Story' Auditions Are Set

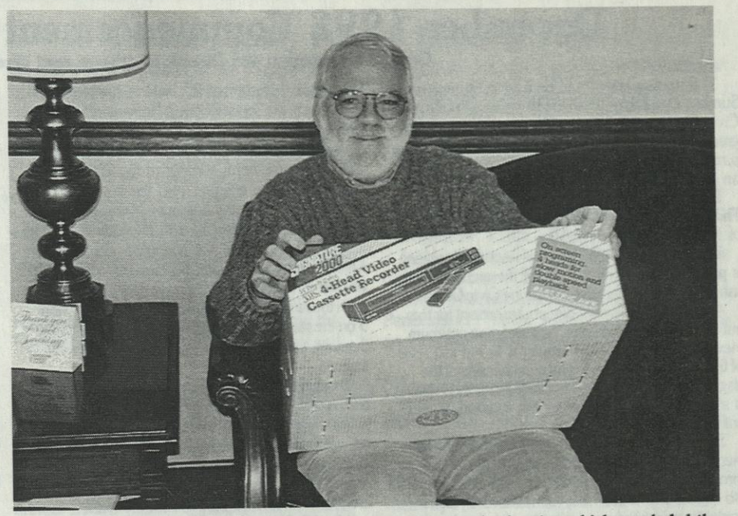
Auditions for Salisbury State Theatre's production of "West Side Story" will take place December 9-11 in Fulton Hall's theatre from 7-10 p.m. Dr. Paul Pfieffer, director of theatre at SSU, requests that those auditioning have one prepared song to sing at auditions.

"West Side Story," a contemporary adaptation on Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," premiered on Broadway September 26, 1957. From there, playwright Arthur Laurents witnessed the production receive various awards for direction, musical score and choreography.

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU will accompany the cast in playing Leonard Bernstein's musical score and a guest artist will choreograph the production dances. The production requires a young cast, but will also rely on several older males to fill roles.

Rehearsals will begin in February, working up until an opening on March 5 continuing on March 6-7 and 10-13.

For more information contact the Communication Arts Department at 543-6229.



Jim Welsh of the English faculty was the grand-prize winner at the drawing which concluded the year's campus United Charity campaign. Welsh won a Signature VCR donated by the SSU Foundation. This year's campaign raised $9,102 for charitable organizations in the region and state. Some 15 percent of eligible University employees participated, the second lowest level of campus participation since the first campaign in 1982. Other prize winners were: Bob Spery, Donna Test, Debbie Barnes, Joanne Keys, Joe Rotellini and Dave Ganoe, SSU mug; Carol Bosserman, dining hall Christmas dinner pass; and Mary Kane, Christmas dinner pass.

Opera Performance Broadcast on WSCL

Gaetano Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera house on Saturday, December 12, at 1 p.m. on WSCL-FM 89.5.

June Anderson will sing the title role, with Richard Leech as Edgardo, Juan Pons as Enrico, Paul Plishka as Raimondo and Marcello Panni conducting. This season's new production, which had its first performance last month, is Francesca Zambello. The announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

In the first intermission Nimet Habachy, host of New York radio station WQXR's "New York at Night," will discuss insanity as a theme of opera. The panelists for "Texaco's Opera Quiz," during the second intermission, will be: Alison James, vice president for artists and repertory for Deutsche Grammophon; Thor Eckert, Jr., the North American editor of Classic CD Magazine; and Alfred Hubay, a consultant to the Metropolitan Opera. The quizmaster will be Edward Downes.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Thursday, Dec. 10	Men's Basketball vs. UMES (at Civic Center), 8 p.m.
Saturday, Dec. 12	Swimming at Marymount, 1 p.m.
	Women's Basketball vs. Widener (HOME), 5:30 p.m.
	Men's Basketball at Christopher Newport, 7:30 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The second annual Eastern Shore Basketball Classic tips off at 8 p.m. on Thursday as the Sea Gull men meet University of Maryland Eastern Shore at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. The Gulls routed UMES 111-74 last year. Tickets will be available at the door, with prices set at $8 for adults and $3 for students with a current ID. WBOC-TV 16 will also televise the game live.

Salisbury State enters Thursday's game sporting a 3-3 record, including an 80-69 loss to Walsh (OH) College in last Saturday's Gull Classic Tournament championship. Despite overcoming an early 14-1 deficit to tie the game at 22, SSU never led as they fell to the undefeated Cavaliers. Salisbury had beaten Greensboro 77-75 on Friday evening to advance to the championship contest.

Dameon Ross, who scored 28 points in both games, represented SSU on the all-tournament squad. Ross was also named the ECAC South Region Player of the Week on December 7 for his efforts.

Like the men's team, the SSU women also settled for second place in the Gull Classic. Salisbury lost its first game of the year after starting 4-0 as Wilmington won the title with a 103-94 victory. Jen Boone (27 points in two games) and Kim Roth (33 points, 28 rebounds) were named to the all-tournament team for Salisbury. The Gulls dropped St. Mary's 95-61 in the tournament's opening round Friday night.

The women host Widener at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday in their final game prior to the semester break. SSU doesn't play again until January 7.

The women's swim team closes out its 1992 season on Saturday with a 1 p.m. meet at Marymount. Salisbury improved to 6-2 with a 91-36 drubbing of Coppin State last weekend. One record was broken and one tied by the Sea Gulls. Eileen Messenger broke her own record in the 50 backstroke, improving the time from 34.16 to 34.09. Mary Van Driesche tied Mary Jo Tantalo's 1990 record in the 50 breaststroke with a time of 38.46.

SSU Lacrosse Star To Hold Book Signing on Campus

Jim Huelskamp, former Sea Gull lacrosse All-American and author of "Indoor Lacrosse: The Story of the Major Indoor Lacrosse League," will be at the SSU Book Rack on Thursday, December 10 from 4-6 p.m. for a book signing appearance. Huelskamp, a 1984 graduate, is a six-year veteran of the MILL, currently playing for the Pittsburgh Bulls. League stars Rick Sowel of the Baltimore Thunder and Lou Delligatti of the Bulls will join Huelskamp at Thursday's Book Rack appearance. Copies of the book, priced at $12, will also be available.

December 1992 Commencement Information

General Information and Directions (Please read carefully)

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 20, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be A. Thomas Young, president and chief operating officer of Martin Marietta Corporation.

3. Physically Disabled Guests—Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired—Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 18. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Saturday, December 19, from 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack. Students will be limited to 12 tickets each. If you do not need all 12 tickets you should return extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

6. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked by Dr. Bellavance to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

7. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

8. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

9. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, December 14. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

10. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

11. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

12. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. in Fulton Hall Auditorium on Wednesday, December 23, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter K (Michael Rene Krauch and Michael Lawrence Kraus) will report to Drs. Stewart and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Edward Kucharski through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

15. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through L, Robert Livermore, will report to Drs. Austin and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Sandra Mackay through the letter Z, will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

16. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidate (Ruth O'Mara) will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

18. All Master's candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to a faculty marshall in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Connie White. You will line up according to her direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

M. Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will also sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

19. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by President Bellavance and/or your faculty marshal.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshalls will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

20. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Dial-In Access Lines to VICTOR

Everyone can now access VICTOR, Blackwell Library's online catalog, through remote dial-in telephone lines.

For those wishing to access VICTOR from an on-campus or off-campus site, there are two local telephone numbers and an 800 number available. Although these numbers will connect the user to a port at McKeldin Library at the University of Maryland College Park, the user will still be able to access Blackwell Library's database. Requirements include a computer, a modem and a software communications package, such as ProComm, Crosstalk or Kermit.

The following telephone numbers should be used when dialing from an on-campus site: 9,543-4394, 9,543-2312 and 9,1800-245-3553.

When dialing from an off-campus site within the local calling area use these numbers: 543-4394, 543-2312 and 1-800-245-3553. When a connection is made, a menu will appear that asks for a terminal identification. If the terminal being used is not listed, answer "HARDCOPY." To access VICTOR follow the instructions on the computer screen. To logoff VICTOR use the following command: //EXIT.

Perdue Faculty Publish Research Papers

Several faculty members of the Perdue School of Business have recently completed articles and papers on business-related issues.

Dr. Pamela Alreck and Dr. Robert B. Settle have written "Courting Trendsetters or Existing Customers," book reviews for an upcoming edition of Marketing Educator.

Dr. Robert Dombrowski's article, "Auditing Students: A Way To Get Meaningful Practical Experience," will be published in an upcoming edition of Issues In Accounting Education.

Dr. Benjamin Harrison and Dr. Jean Hanebury are the authors of "Integrating the New Perspective on Total Quality Control and Productivity into the Teaching of Productions/ Operations Management." It will appear in Production and Inventory Management.

Dr. David Laband has written "Is There Sex Discrimination in the Legal Profession?" for the upcoming edition of Journal of Resources.

Dr. Frank Shipper's article, "W.L. Gore & Associates, Inc. - 1991," is included in Strategic Management, fourth edition.

In November, Dr. Zakri Bello presented his paper, "An Empirical Study of the Correlation Between Mutual Funds' Selectivity and Timing Performance," at the International Conference on Financial Management in Boston.

Kraft Presents Paper on Slavic Independence

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, presented his paper, "First Steps Towards Economic Independence: The Case of Slovenia," to the 24th annual Convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies in Phoenix, AZ, on November 21.

The AAASS brings together American and foreign specialists on Russia, the ex-Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. Kraft's paper, co-authored with Dr. Milan Vodopivec and Milan Cvikl of the World Bank, examined the experiences of the newly independent county of Slovenia.

Once Yugoslavia's richest republic, Slovenia declared independence in June 1991 and fought off a brief attack by the Yugoslav Army. Slovenia then became the first newly independent post-communist country to introduce a new currency (named the tolar) in October 1991. Since then, it has largely tamed the runaway inflation it inherited from Yugoslavia.

According to Kraft, "The tasks ahead of Slovenia are difficult indeed, as unemployment has soared from a mere 1.5 percent in 1987 to 11 percent today, and many large Slovenian firms are on the verge of bankruptcy." Although Slovenia's first year of independence has been very difficult, Kraft and his collaborators pointed to the success of the new currency and Slovenia's ability to redirect much of its trade from the other Yugoslav republics to Western Europe as signs of the country's ultimate economic viability.

Small at Forum, Slavery Is Topic

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended the sixth Colonial Williamsburg History Forum from November 5-7. The topic discussed at the forum was "Slavery and Freedom: An American Paradox."

The conference focused on the African-American presence in Williamsburg and in the nation, slavery's impact on American history and the concept of freedom. Some of the guest speakers were professors: Sheila Walker, the University of Texas; Molefi K. Asante, Temple University; Cary Carson, vice president of the research division at Colonial Williamsburg; Michael Nicholls, Utah State University; and Barbara Reynolds, columnist and editorial board member of USA Today. Their respective topics were "Africans in the New World," "African Diaspora," "Slavery, Freedom, and Society in Williamsburg," "Free Blacks and the Conflict of Identity," and "Race and Freedom in the United States Today."

Small was one of the 200 educators, researchers and writers who attended the forum and participated in the open discussions about slavery and its impact upon society.

Brennan, Ann Taylor Access Transportation and Health

A co-authored paper of Dr. Brennan Taylor and Dr. Ann Taylor of SSU was recently presented by Brennan Taylor at the Transportation Research Board's Mobility in Tampa, FL. The purpose of the conference was to consolidate the national and international rehabilitation movements, analyze the value of mobility and transportation toward people's health and to assert mobility as a human right within the American With Disabilities Act.

"Although mobility remains the most important dictator of independence and good health," said Brennan Taylor, "there was a consensus that the federal government has not appropriated sufficient resources to address the concerns of diverse disabled persons. Advocacy continues to seek the appropriate funding."

A community of international transportation experts presented services and technologies relevant toward rendering disabled persons life more accessible in 40 workshops. In that context, Dr. David Lewis was designated as the first recipient of the William C. Bell Award for distinguished services. Lewis received his doctorate in economics from the London School of Economics. His mettles lie in designing transit systems based on effective scales of economies that maximize use of human and other resources. Lewis' contribution to transportation and rehabilitation is laudable by any standard," said Brennan Taylor.

During the conference Brennan Taylor presented "Wayfinding Crisis-Intervention Theory and Practice With The Severe Mentally Ill Transportation Handicapped." The research formulated a theory of human-environment transactions that results in outpatient psychiatric clients becoming geographically lost and moving into a crisis state. A service delivery model was articulated to resolve the crisis. The session was well attended.

Conference participants' feedback suggested that servicing this population represents the last frontier in international rehabilitation. This is supported by the literature which indicates that about 15 studies exist worldwide on the subject. The paper is published in the conference proceedings. Ten of those papers will be selected for publication in the Transportation Research Record Journal within the new year.

"In essence, public transportation remains a vital indicator of public health," said Brennan Taylor "The tasks associated with travel and mobility is not easily mastered by psychiatric or normal populations."

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All December graduating students borrowing under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program, on or after July 1, 1987, are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that those students attend one of the following sessions: December 9 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri University Center, or, December 10 at 4:30 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri Center.

If students choose not to attend their school records and diploma will be held. Those students on an internship, working or student teaching you must make arrangements to attend.

Summer Britain Trip Interest Meeting Set

During the summer of 1993, students and other interested individuals have the opportunity to travel through Britain. Organized by history faculty member Wayne Ackerson, the tour covers England and Wales by private motor coach.

Some of the noteworthy sites to be visited include York, several stops in Wales, and also some days in London. Ackerson said, "We'll also visit Castle Tintagel, the legendary home of King Arthur."

Ackerson lived in England for five years and has since returned several times. "There is something there for everyone," said Ackerson "from historical locations and natural beauty to literary sites."

The cost of the trip, exclusive of tuition, is around $1,700, practically the same price as last year. The cost includes airfare, all transportation, lodging in four-star hotels and most meals. Admission charges into the many fascinating sites is also included. The trip is scheduled to leave June 7 and return June 18.

An interest meeting will be held on Thursday, December 10, at 8:30 p.m in Caruthers Hall, room 104, or call Ackerson at 543-6527 during the day for more information.

Math Club Elections

The Math Club will hold elections for the offices of secretary and vice president on Tuesday, December 15, at 3:30 p.m. Nominations are open up until the time of elections.

Students who would like to nominate someone or be nominated contact either Dr. Kathleen Shannon or one of the officers (Surai Thaneemit, Melissa Pegg, Michele Mills, Celeste Jordan or Gail Johnson). In order to vote at the meeting, students must have attended at least two Math Club meetings.

Honors Association Sponsors Food Drive

The Honors Student Association has been revitalized thanks to Stephanie Havenner and Dr. Tony Whall. It is now sponsoring a food drive for its newly adopted family. The campus community is requested to leave food donations in the collection box just inside the front door of the Honors House on College Ave. Food collection will take place throughout the holiday season.

Everyone is welcome to join honors students at a nearby nursing home on Wednesday, December 16. Anyone interested should meet at the Honors House at 6:30 p.m.; caroling will be from 7-8 p.m.

Future HSA plans include movie nights, trips, seasonal socials and other community service activities.

Phi Kappa Phi Eligibility Outlined

The Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi is preparing for its annual initiation of new members. The society is interdisciplinary, drawing from all departments within the University.

The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. The society hopes that by recognizing and honoring those persons who have excelled in scholarship in all fields, it will stimulate others to strive for excellence.

Members are elected from the top 5 percent of the senior class, and all candidates who are seniors must have a GPA of at least 3.6. Juniors with GPAs of at least 3.85 are also eligible for consideration for membership by the society.

Those students interested in being considered for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should contact Dr. George Whitehead in the Psychology Department, Holloway Hall, room 341, 543-6369 by December 23.

Spring Arts Calendar Deadline Is Approaching

The deadline for Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's quarterly publication, Accent on Arts, the spring issue which covers the months of February, March and April, is Monday, January 4. Any organization wishing to have listings or articles included in the upcoming issue should have the information to SWAC no later than 5 p.m. on January 4.

Information required for the listings includes event name, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and daytime phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included. Accent on the Arts showcases the cultural offerings of a three-county region, encompassing Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties. The Southern Eastern Shore Calendar, the listing of cultural activities in the region, remains the centerpiece of the publication. The listings portion is made possible by a grant from the Department of Economic and Employment Development, through the Wicomico County Department of Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Wicomico County Council.

Accent on the Arts is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 1,000 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

DECEMBER 17, 1992 VOL. IX NO. 15

'In Memoriam' Dr. Peter Kernaghan, Biology Professor

Biology professor Dr. Roy Peter Kernaghan, 59, died of cancer on Saturday, December 12, at Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

"Dr. Kernaghan was a professional of the first water," said Dr. Bellavance. "An excellent teacher, a sensitive advisor to students and an accomplished scholar, he was always in the vanguard of those who sought to improve the educational quality of the University. The campus has lost one of its most loyal and respected colleagues."

Dr. Kernaghan came to Salisbury State in 1975 to assume the chairmanship of the Biological Sciences Department. He served as chair until 1979 when he became director of the Division of the Allied Health Sciences. In that capacity he helped establish the undergraduate programs in medical technology and respiratory therapy at the University. From 1983-86 he was special assistant to the vice president of academic affairs. During that time his duties included research and development in the area of feasibility studies concerning new graduate programs at SSU. He resumed his position as a full-time member of the biology faculty in 1987.

Specializing in genetics and cell biology, Kernaghan also was well-known locally as a cancer expert. Over the years, he addressed numerous area civic groups and organizations on cancer as it relates to lifestyle.

Prior to working at SSU, he served as chairman of the Biology Department at Bates College in Lewiston, ME from 1972 to 1975, and as an assistant professor at the State University of New York at Stony Brook from 1965 to 1972.

Born March 26, 1933, in Schenectady, NY, Dr. Kernaghan received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Dartmouth College where he was a Hitchcock Fellow. After earning a Ph.D.

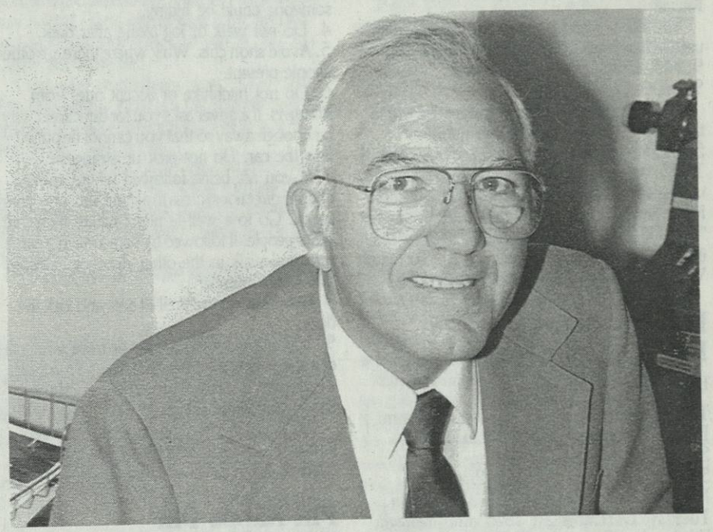
Alumni Appreciation Award Goes to Dr. Goldy Tyler



Dr. S. Goldsborough Tyler

Few people have ties to an alma mater as strong as Goldy Tyler's. Having been associated with the school nearly 50 years, Tyler calls Salisbury State "my second home."

Clearly, the admiration is mutual. In fact, the man known more formally as Dr. S. Goldsborough Tyler will be awarded the SSU Alumni Appreciation Award at the University's commencement December 20 at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Tyler is not only an alumnus, he retired from the Education Department in 1980 and has been the executive director of the Athletics Hall of Fame since 1988. Recalling Tyler's years of service as a faculty member, Dr. Bellavance described him as "very dedicated." Tyler has chaired the Department of Education and has advised countless undergraduate and graduate students.

What's more, Bellavance said, Tyler is "a very gracious, kind and thoughtful gentleman. He is always warm and pleasant—very outgoing."

That personality won Tyler many SSU friends over the years. For him, a walk across campus brings back a flood of memories of colleagues whose names students now associate with the library or the gymnasium. Tyler was introduced to SSU when Dr. Jefferson D. Blackwell, the president of what was then called State Teachers College, visited his classroom at Cambridge High School. As Tyler trained to become a teacher, it was Benn Maggs who sparked his interest in physical education.

Tyler still remembers the day he first saw Blackwell. "It was in the late '30s," he said. "Teachers were scarce then and because of the

Soon-to-be Graduate is NASA Researcher

The environment is a hot topic on college campuses—but at least one SSU student has already begun to make a significant contribution.

As soon as Karen Patterson graduates this month, she hopes to return to her position with a team of research scientists working at NASA. Patterson is a senior in the Henson School of Science and Technology and a Henson scholar from Finksburg, MD.

Her role in the project began last summer. The University of Maryland Remote Sensing of the Ocean program hopes to find the cause of an atmospheric anomaly. In this country, tropospheric ozone, or "smog," is considered an environmental consequence of the cars we drive. But there are not enough cars to explain the seasonal occurrence of smog that scientists find in the atmosphere over southern Africa. Since tropospheric ozone can damage agricultural crops, it has become important to find the source.

"My part of the program," Patterson said, "was to automate and improve upon the techniques being used to analyze the air movement patterns with respect to fires and high ozone levels over southern Africa." In addition, she improved the method for graphic display of the data in preparation for the TRACE-A (Transport and Atmospheric Chemistry Experi-

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Education Department's Clark Earns Doctorate

Good teachers can be taught. That's a simplified version of the conclusion reached by Sharon Clark in her doctoral dissertation. Clark, who teaches and directs field experiences for the Education Department, has been awarded her Ed.D. degree by the University of Maryland College Park.

Clark approaches teaching as a practice. She says that, like doctors, teachers must continually study and improve their own methods for reaching their students.

"I was curious to know whether the subject background of a teacher influenced his or her willingness to do that research," Clark explained. Having studied and taught science—Clark taught at Bennett Middle School until 1989—she initially suspected that a teacher whose field involved research would be more open to studying his or her own classroom performance. Happily, she was proven wrong.

"I found that training was the key," she said. "That lets us know we can accomplish that with good teacher training."

As chair of the Education Department, Dr. Geraldine N. Rossi has already seen that Clark's own research "has enhanced her work here. You want reflective teachers, who examine how they deal with the stimuli in their own classrooms and use that information to decide whether to continue their current teaching strategies."

Rossi said that Clark applies the lessons of her research in her SSU classes. "She has the students keep journals so that they'll write to reflect on their teaching," she said.

If her latest work has benefited the department, Clark's previous work had already become an asset. Her years in Wicomico County classrooms and work with the Maryland State Department of Education have helped Clark in her role as director of field experiences for the Education Department. "She has been able to add a dimension that was not there before," said Rossi. "We have been hoping to build on this cooperation." And any edge would have helped. Field placements have jumped from 800 the year Clark arrived at SSU to 1,100 this semester.

"I see a lot of challenge now," Clark said. "The relationship between the schools and the University is growing rapidly. There is a wonderfully open feeling."

While she plans to continue working with teacher candidates at SSU, Clark confessed that the notion of once again teaching science to middle school students still lingers in the back of her mind.

"I don't think there's any better job," she said.

Ackerson Writes About Aviation Pioneer

Wayne Ackerson, lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has recently had accepted for publication an article in a reference series to be published by Academic International Press (AIP).

Ackerson's article deals with the Air Mail Act (1930), more commonly called the McNary-Watres Act. The act authorized a change in compensation procedure for airmail carriers also allowed the Postmaster General to solicit competitive bids for airmail routes. Though seemingly straightforward , the act elicited controversy when the law was stretched to considerable limits by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown during the Hoover Administration. Though subsequently superseded, the McNary- Watres Act was an important stage in the development of commercial aviation.

AIP's as yet unpublished compendium includes pieces from some of the nation's top scholars, and is expected to be released next year.

Ackerson has also been selected as part of a team of researchers by MacMillan Publishers to work on a new world civilizations text. Chosen in a national search, Ackerson has already begun working with colleagues on completing chapters of the text.

'Radio Free Delmarva' At the Ward Museum

WSCL-FM offers a special two-for-one treat: an entertainment-packed radio production in an art-packed museum on Saturday, December 19.

"RFD-Radio Free Delmarva" ventures out of its home base at SSU to present a live show at the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art in Salisbury. For the single ticket, theater-goers can tour the museum, and then sit in the spacious lobby overlooking Schumaker Pond while host Van Williamson and the RFD guests and regulars tape four 30-minute radio shows, to be broadcast on Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. beginning December 26.

This month's program features Eastern Shore writer Helen Chappell, musicians Porter and Whittemore (two musical guys with a 12th-night surprise), classical guitarist Linda Winchurch and the bluegrass band Rekindled. The RFD regulars will be there too: the RFD Quintet, agricultural extension office advisor Jean Scott and the RFD Players, with the return of "Bif Delmar—Detective at Sea."

Doors to the museum open at 7 p.m., music starts at 7:30 and the show begins at 8. Liquid refreshments will be sold during the intermission. Admission is $6 for adults and $2 for children under 12. The Ward Museum is located at 909 South Schumaker Drive at Beaglin Park Drive. Tickets are available in advance by calling the museum at 742-4988. Seating is limited.

Red Ribbon Campaign Urges Sober Driving

The Office of Public Safety, the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center and the Guerrieri University Center are co-sponsoring the MADD Red Ribbon Campaign on campus. Sgt. Carlton "Toby" Tobias and Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, are working together to establish the campaign throughout the SSU community. Dave Ganoe, Guerrieri University Center director, is providing an evergreen tree in the University Center lounge where red ribbons will hang to symbolize students, faculty and staff who have pledged not to drink and drive this holiday season.

A red ribbon on a vehicle symbolizes a commitment to drive free of alcohol and other drugs, and also serves as a reminder to others to keep this a safe and sober holiday season.

The Office of Public Safety, in cooperation with the motor pool, will have red ribbons placed on University vehicles. The Red Ribbon Campaign will be part of campus efforts sponsored during National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, December 14-18.

"We hope everyone will help make this a red ribbon holiday and a safe break through a commitment to sober and clean driving," said Berkman.

Anyone interested in obtaining additional ribbons can call the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

Financial Aid Changes Effect Many Students

The following is an overview of the numerous changes related to financial aid the Reauthorization Act of 1992 has introduced.

The definition of an independent student has been drastically altered for the 1993-94 school year. The federal government defines an independent student as one who meets one or more of the following circumstances: born before January 1, 1970; a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces; a ward of the court or both parents are deceased; have legal dependents (other than a spouse); or a married student or graduate/professional student.

Those who do not meet at least one of the above definitions will be considered a dependent student. Many students who were independent in the past will no longer be classified as an independent student in the future.

The federal government will continue with the federal Stafford Student (subsidized) Loan program in which the government pays interest that accrues while students are in school. In addition to the subsidized loan the government has created a federal Stafford Student (unsubsidized) Loan program in which students pay interest that accrues while in school. Borrowers may receive both subsidized and unsubsidized loans totaling up to the applicable Stafford limit. Unsubsidized loans are open to students who do not qualify for the basic Stafford loan or who are not eligible for the full Stafford loan.

Effective July 1, Student Stafford Loan limits for undergraduates will change to the following: $2,625 for the first year (0-29 credits); $3,500 for the second year (30-59 credits); and $5,500 per year for the remainder of a student's undergraduate education, up to a maximum of $23,000.

Prior borrowers (first disbursement made before October 1, 1992) will have an interest rate of 8 percent for their first four years of repayment then 10 percent for the remaining six years. New borrowers (first disbursement made on or after October 1, 1992) will have a variable interest rate, reset annually, based on the 91-day Treasury Bill plus 3.1 percent capped at 9 percent.

The PLUS program (Parent Loan for Undergraduate Students), which provides loans at a variable interest rate, is reset annually, with a cap of 10 percent. Parents may be eligible to borrow up to the cost of attendance.

The SLS program (Supplemental Loan for Students), which provides loans at a variable interest rate, is reset annually, with a cap of 11 percent. Independent undergraduates may be eligible to borrow $4,000 for the first and second year (0-59 credits); and $5,000 for the remainder of undergraduate education, up to a maximum of $23,000.

Rubin Scholarship For Maryland Women

The Central Scholarship Bureau will administer the Mary Rubin and Benjamin M. Rubin Scholarship Fund. Recipients must be Maryland residents, and female, have a of 3.0 GPA and meet family income requirements. The application deadline is March 1.

December 1992 Commencement Information

General Information and Directions (Please read carefully)

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 20, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be A. Thomas Young, president and chief operating officer of Martin Marietta Corporation.

3. Physically Disabled Guests—Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired—Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning November 18. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Saturday, December 19, from 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 4 p.m. on that date.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack. Students will be limited to 12 tickets each. If you do not need all 12 tickets you should return extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

6. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked by Dr. Bellavance to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

7. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

8. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

9. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, December 14. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

10. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

11. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

12. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. in Fulton Hall Auditorium on Wednesday, December 23, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter K (Michael Rene Krauch and Michael Lawrence Kraus) will report to Drs. Stewart and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with K, Edward Kucharski through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the side aisle.

15. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through L, Robert Livermore, will report to Drs. Austin and Basehart at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Sandra Mackay through the letter Z, will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

16. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidate (Ruth O'Mara) will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up according to White's direction and will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

17. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

18. All Master's candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park), and report to a faculty marshall in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Connie White. You will line up according to her direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle.

M. Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will also sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

19. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by President Bellavance and/or your faculty marshal.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshalls will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Market South/Specialists in Graduate and Event Photography. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

20. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Benefits Statement Due to Employees Soon

All employees should be receiving a benefits confirmation statement (from the Health Benefits Unit in Baltimore) within the next week.

Please check it promptly and carefully to ensure the information is accurate. If there is an error, it will be necessary to file new forms to get the information corrected. If it is accurate, no action is needed. An employee wishing to make changes, or having questions, may call Baltimore for assistance at (410) 225-4775, 4765 or 4768. Employees also have the option of waiting until January 4 and coming to the campus Personnel Office (Holloway Hall, room 222) for assistance. The Personnel Office will be closed from December 24-January 4.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

As the Sea Gull basketball teams head into their traditional semester break, which will sideline both clubs until January 7, many around campus may be surprised to see where each team stands heading into the nearly four-week hiatus.

Other than close followers of the women's team, most people may not realize that Coach Bridget Benshetler's squad stands at 5-1. The Gulls dropped Widener, 76-40, in their final pre- Christmas contest on Saturday, and did so without last year's leading scorer Jen Boone in the lineup. Despite Boone's absence— she missed her first game in two years due to bronchitis—the Sea Gulls breezed past Widener as the starting frontline combined for 49 points and 32 rebounds.

Junior transfer Gail Lindenstroth led the barrage with a game- high 22 points, while also adding 10 rebounds and five steals. Sophomore center Kim Roth continued her solid early-season play with 16 points and 16 rebounds, and Amy Fenzel chipped in with 11 points. Six other Gulls also scored as Benshetler had plenty of opportunity to clear her bench early.

While Benshetler has the women off to their best start in at least half a dozen years, the men's team stands at a disappointing 3-5 following its latest setback. The Gulls lost 116-91 at Christopher Newport on Saturday, and face the semester break with a three-game losing streak.

Unfortunately for Coach Ward Lambert, a difficult early schedule has not allowed his team to get untracked. Among the losses, three—Francis Marion, Walsh and UMES—have come at the hands of scholarship granting teams.

Salisbury, the two-time defending conference champions, will try to right itself prior to the start of its Eastern States Athletic Conference schedule in January. Including the contest against North Carolina Wesleyan, originally scheduled for December 19 but now moved to January 7, the Gulls have four non-conference games upon their return before starting the ESAC season.

Meanwhile, the women's swim team capped its season last Saturday against Marymount University. Despite losing 163-99, the Sea Gulls posted their third straight winning campaign, finishing the year 6-3. Sophomore sensation Eileen Messenger captured two firsts for the Gulls and also broke her own school-record in the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:06.71. Nine Gulls posted personal-best times in the meet.

German Society Tuition Scholarship

The German Society of Maryland is offering tuition scholarship aid to students of German ancestry residing in Maryland and enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate program at a four-year college or university in Maryland.

Students must have a 3.0 GPA and have financial need. Students must file the federal student aid application. Contact (410) 685-0450 on Tuesdays or Wednesdays from 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. for applications. The deadline is April 15.

Ward Museum Seeks Volunteers

The Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art is looking for volunteers for the admissions desk during the holidays and semester break.

The admissions desk is an enjoyable place to spend a few hours and greet visitors from all over the country and around the world. Call Joan Clarke at 742-4988 to volunteer.

Wainwright Takes Unique Route to Ph.D.

Any graduate student will tell you that a doctorate is difficult to earn. And the path that Barbara Wainwright chose may have made it even tougher. A statistics instructor at SSU, Wainwright was recently awarded her Ph.D. by the University of Delaware.

"She's something of a success story for this region," said the chair of the Math and Computer Science Department, Dr. Robert M. Tardiff. "She didn't initially plan to attend college—she worked in the meat department in a supermarket after high school. But as doors opened for her, she has stepped up."

Wainwright confirms that she has probably taken the road less traveled. "When I first went back for my bachelor's, I didn't see myself going on for a master's," she recalled. She adds that she is the first in her family to graduate from college.

Wainwright earned her B.S. in math education at SSU in 1982 and continued at the University where she was awarded her M.Ed. in 1984. And, she adds, "it wasn't always easy."

While studying for her doctorate, Wainwright carried a full load as an SSU instructor. With the exception of a one-year sabbatical devoted to writing her dissertation, Wainwright divided her time between SSU and the University of Delaware, to which she commuted two to three times a week as a student.

Along the way, Wainwright has managed to maintain a personal life.

"My husband has been very supportive," she noted. The two share a love of travel and "we like to collect and fool with antiques."

Tardiff summed it up best: "I can't imagine her stamina," he said.

Wainwright has found that she likes SSU and the people she works with on campus. And, according to Tardiff, the feeling is mutual. She has become a valuable member of the Math Department team and, said Tardiff, "the students like her."

Slama Has Article In Jugglers Magazine

Lorraine Slama, an instructor in the Leisure Studies Department, recently gave a presentation with her husband, David, at the 1992 Maryland Association for Nonpublic Special Education Facilities conference.

The topic was teaching juggling to the handicapped. Hands-on instruction was given to each participant so that everyone walked out of the presentation able to juggle three objects. Slama has recently published an article titled, "The Exceptional Jugglers of the Benedictine School," in Jugglers World Magazine.

Prescription Card Use By Employee's Children

Employees with children take note.

Prescription cards (PAS) may be photocopied and the copy given to the student to use while away at school.

Employees may also contact the PAS program directly at 1 (800) 345-9384 and learn the name of the participating pharmacy nearest to the school/college their dependent is attending. PAS has pharmacy affiliations across the United States.

Remember to save the current PAS prescription card for use during 1993 and 1994.

Florida Winter Term Cycling Trip Set

Tour historic St. Augustine. Canoe down a crystal clear spring-fed river in Ocala National Forest. Cycle the lakes around the town of Mt. Dora. Swim side by side with the manatee in the Gulf of Mexico. Join in the fun. After a one-year hiatus, the SSU Cycling Club is sponsoring a winter term cycling tour of Florida from January 22-31.

The cycling tour will cross the middle of Florida from St. Augustine on the Atlantic Ocean to Crystal River on the Gulf of Mexico. Cycle distances will average in length from 60 to 80 miles per day.

The cost of the trip is $175 which includes transportation, all meals in Florida and lodging. To reserve a spot on the trip please provide a $50 non-refundable deposit (checks made out to SSU Cycling Club) to Michael Boolukos in the Registrar's Office by December 21. Balance is due by January 10. Reservations are on a first come, first serve basis with a limit of 16 participants.

The Cycling Club holds meetings every Monday at 8 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center annex. All are welcome.

25+ Student Union Has Pair of Meetings

The 25+ Student Union is going to gather for its monthly meeting on Wednesday, December 16, in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. As usual, there will be two meetings that day, from noon-1 p.m. and from 5-6 p.m. This will be the last meeting for the fall.

Depression, few families could afford to pay for college. Until that day, I thought I would go to the Naval Academy; but I went home that afternoon and told my mother 'Mom, I'm going to Salisbury.'"

Like many of today's students, Tyler worked on campus to earn money for tuition: $325 per year back then. ("In those days," he pointed out, "you could get a car for $600.")

A member of the class of 1941, Tyler has been a teacher ever since, with the exception of four years of service in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He has been an elementary school teacher, a high school principal, a college professor and a coach. In 1985 Tyler was among the first inductees into the SSU Hall of Fame.

There have been many changes in the meantime: Salisbury State University has grown ("When I was a student, there was only Holloway Hall," he recalled. "The rest of the grounds were peach orchards.") Tyler himself has become a husband, father and grandfather. Through it all, he said, there has been one constant.

"Salisbury State has been a real steady place in my life," he mused. "It has been one of the most influential factors, outside my family. "And it really has been like a second home to me," he added. "It's hard to get away from."

Naturally, SSU hasn't been the only beneficiary of Tyler's generous spirit. A former officer of the Allen Memorial Baptist Church in Salisbury, he continues to serve as a substitute teacher in the Sunday School program.

Alumni Affairs Director Nancy Wagner said that Tyler is a natural choice for the Alumni Appreciation Award, which is presented for a lifetime of outstanding achievement in the recipient's field and for community service.

"He's a terrific person," she said. "He's beloved by many an alumnus."

from the University of Connecticut, he received a National Institutes of Health Postdoctoral Fellowship at Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The author of numerous articles, Dr. Kernaghan belonged to several professional societies including the Genetics Society of America, the American Genetic Association and the American Association for Advancement of Science.

According to Dr. Thomas Jones, chair of the Biology Department from 1984-91 and a colleague of Dr. Kernaghan's for 15 years, "Pete was an extraordinary classroom instructor who touched the lives of countless students, many of whom have gone on to important careers in science.

"He was greatly admired and respected by all of his colleagues in the sciences and throughout the campus community," said Dr. Jones. "He will be deeply missed."

Dr. Kernaghan is survived by his wife, Gloria, a secretary in the Art Department.

A memorial service for Dr. Kernaghan will be held on Thursday, Decemnber 17 at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

ment—Atlantic) experiment the scientists conducted earlier this fall.

With Patterson's help, the team is confirming its theory that fires set in southern Africa to control overgrowth of vegetation, to clear land and as part of tribal rituals, are generating the smog.

"Karen did excellent, vital work which is being used in our NASA aircraft mission and which eventually will be published," said Dr. Anne Thompson, the NASA chemist who supervised the study.

This report came as no surprise to those at SSU who recommended Patterson for the project. She was one of only four students throughout the U.S. selected to participate in the program and the first ever from SSU.

"She's one of the best students we have," beamed Dr. Phillip D. Creighton, dean of the Henson School. "Karen does the extra step all the time.

"She has a quiet assurance with an excellent mind and a clear way of thinking."

Dr. Robert A. Rosing of the SSU geography faculty agreed: "Students like Karen bring out the best in our department: blending the concept courses with the methodology courses," the theoretical with the practical.

For her part, Patterson modestly credits her professors at SSU with preparing her for the NASA program challenge. At SSU she has grown from a dual math/geography major interested in some day teaching high school to a research assistant capable of holding her own in a team of highly educated scientists and graduate students.

And Thompson hopes to see more of Karen Patterson—and other qualified SSU students. If the program is awarded the necessary grant money, Patterson will delay graduate school for a semester to return to the team.

In the meantime, Thompson has made plans to visit SSU to speak to Henson School students about the opportunities available to the next Karen Patterson.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 4, 1993 VOL. IX NO. 16

Experimental Photography Next Gallery Exhibit

"Untitled"

A traveling exhibit of experimental work by 21 Maryland and Washington, D.C. photographers will be in the University Gallery from February 11-March 4.

Titled "Photography On the Edge," the exhibit showcases a wide range of work from nudes and landscapes to conceptual and surreal images. Although sometimes vastly different in their approaches, each of the artists in the show was selected because of their ability to push the limits of the medium.

Some of the photographers, such as Matthew Gray and Penny Harris, address social issues. Others, like Marie Ringwald, couple photography with another medium—in Ringwald's case, color Xerox and watercolor.

Assembled by Maryland Art Place in Baltimore, "Photography On the Edge" was juried by Douglas Davis, an artist, writer, performer and critic who has worked intensively in video, printmaking, collages, sculpture, photography and film. His work can be seen in many public and private collections including the Guggenheim Museum and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, both in New York, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art and the Centre Pompidou in Paris.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall. It is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday, and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed on Friday.

For more information, contact the University Gallery Office at 543-6271.

Black History Month Features Myriad Events

The Black History Month celebration for SSU begins on Friday, February 12, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium with a music and dance presentation by Kjana Wiseman of Houston. Wiseman is an accomplished dancer, musician and storyteller.

The keynote lecturer for the series is Dr. James Newton, professor and director of black American studies at the University of Delaware. Newton will focus on the theme, "African-American Scholars: Leaders, Activists and Writers." His presentation is on Monday, February 15, 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

On Saturday, February 20, the Morgan State Choir is in concert at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The concert has traditionally been one of the most popular Black History Month events.

On Monday, February 22, Peter Pippin of the Smithsonian Institution presents "Kente Weaving and Interpretation of Patterns" at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri Center. This is a return engagement for Pippin. Kente cloth has become popular all across the United States.

The Faculty Lecture Series for Black History Month is headed by a presentation on Thursday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium by Dr. Alfred K. Talbot of the Department of Sociology. Talbot's topic is "The Historic and Sociological Development of the Virginia Teachers Association."

On Thursday, March 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium, Dr. Wavie Gibson of the Department of English presents "Black English: Myths and Truths."

On Tuesday, March 16, Dr. Shielda Rodgers of the Department of Nursing speaks on "Minority Student Success on the Predominantly White Campus" at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Rounding out the program is jazz musician Keith Marks, who performs at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 26, in the Gull's Nest of the Guerrieri Center.

Please call 548-4503 for additional information.

Jazz Ambassadors Perform Free Concert

The Jazz Ambassadors of the world-travelled U.S. Army Field Band will present a free concert on Thursday, February 11, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Co-sponsors for the event are the Salisbury Daily Times, Salisbury State and the University's ROTC detachment.

The Jazz Ambassadors from Washington, D.C. is a select group of military musicians who use their talents to bring the Army image to the American public.

Although admission to the concert is free, patrons are asked to bring a donation of nonperishable food for distribution to the area's needy by the Maryland Food Bank, Salisbury chapter.

Created in 1969, the Jazz Ambassadors is a component of the United States Army Field Band. Each year this elite big band travels thousands of miles throughout the nation to perform free concerts.

The musicians of the Jazz Ambassadors have earned widespread acclaim with their distinctive musical styling. They show remarkable versatility in their handling of tunes ranging from the swing sounds of the '30s to the popular songs of today's youth.

Many of these performers are also adept composers and arrangers. Their original compositions are sprinkled throughout each program. This arranging dexterity helps to give the band its unique sound.

All the members of the Jazz Ambassadors are chosen by competitive audition. They come from the country's leading universities such as North Texas State, California at Berkeley, Towson State and Miami. These performers have achieved national recognition through the superior standard of musicianship they maintain during hundreds of concerts before the public and on radio and television.

Audiences and critics alike have praised this organization as one of the finest performing groups in America. The Jazz Ambassadors present the music of yesterday and today in a program that young and old alike will enjoy.

Free tickets were available Monday, February 1, at the Daily Times office on Carroll Street, the Salisbury branch of the Army Recruiting Center located on Mt. Hermon Road in the Twilley Shopping Centre, and at the information desk in the Salisbury State Guerrieri University Center located on Dogwood Drive. Because of the concert's popularity there is a limit of four tickets per individual.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy.

Students maintain the right to consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. Salisbury State will assume the right, under the provisions of this act, to provide student directory information found in a students's educational record without prior consent of the student.

For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in room 212 of the Guerrieri University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the SSU policy can be obtained in the Dean of Students Office.

Student Handbook Published By Dean of Students Office

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1992-93 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1992-93 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Health Center Encourages Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at Salisbury State.

Staff in the Health Center recommend that students have health insurance coverage by obtaining coverage on parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

Video Terminal Workshop Is Upcoming

Four separate workshops titled "Working Safely with Video Display Terminals" will be conducted in Salisbury for the benefit of state employees. Dates are March 11 and June 24. There will be morning and afternoon sessions each day.

If interested in attending a workshop, call the Personnel Office at 548-4755 and request an enrollment form. Registration is required and applications must be in Baltimore no later than three weeks prior to the session of your choice.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Coast Guard Offers Basic Boating Course

The United States Coast Guard Flotilla is offering a basic boating course February 3-May 12 at the American Legion on Route 50 west of Salisbury, across from the armory. The course begins at 7 p.m.

The course meets the state law requirement mandating any person born on or after July 1, 1972 to obtain a Certificate of Boating Safety Education prior to operating a numbered or documented vessel for pleasure on Maryland waters.

Topics for the course include boat handling, legal requirements, navigation and safety rules, and other special topics. Cost of the course is $15 which includes texts and workbooks.

For more information or to preregister for the course call Dale D. Dechert at 742-1243 or James Ruark at 742-7388.

Men's Tennis Team Seeks New Members

There will be a meeting on Wednesday, February 10, at 3:30 p.m. in Maggs 204 for all those desiring to play on the men's varsity tennis team this spring.

Call 543-6344 for details.

Wellness Champs Cited, New Program to Begin

The Wellness Program resumes February 10. Reigning champions are: Wanda Wagner, computer services; Joanne Keys, computer services; Gerald St. Martin, modern languages; Jim Brown, physical plant; B.J. Keefer, housing; and Raymond Whall, Honors Program.

Honorable mention recipients are: Andy Geshan, athletics; William Horne, English; Michael Boolukos, Registrar's Office; and Thomas Stitcher, physical education.

Auto Loans Refinanced For as Low as 6.5%

If you have an auto loan with a financial institution other than the State Employees Credit Union of Maryland (SECU), you might be able to save money and/or reduce your monthly payment by refinancing the loan at SECU now through March 31. A variety of low rates and terms are available starting at 6.5 percent for a 36-month loan on a 1992 or 1993 model auto.

In addition to the loan rates, the Credit Union's refinancing special offers two conveniences to make refinancing easier: no additional down payment or inspection certificates are required; and if you work for a state agency or one of SECU's special payroll groups, you can repay your loan through payroll deductions.

SECU's auto loan refinancing rates and term follow. Model year 1992 or 1993: 6.5 percent, 36 months; 6.95 percent, 48 months; 7.5 percent, 60 months; or 7.75 percent 72 months (17,500 minimum loan amount). Model year 1990 or 1991: 7.95 percent, 36 months; or 8.25 percent, 48 months. Model year 1989-1987: 7.95 percent, 36 months.

If you visit a SECU branch to refinance, be sure to bring along a payoff statement, title to your vehicle and a recent paystub. You will also need a $20 MVA lien fee unless you plan to finance this amount. (Also, please bring your current auto loan coupon payment book.)

For more information, visit an SECU branch or call (410) 296-SECU or 1-800-TRY-SECU.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Faculty Position In Molecular Genetics

Applications for a 10-month, tenure track appointment as assistant professor of biology at Salisbury State beginning August 15 are now being accepted. A Ph.D. in biological sciences with a demonstrated expertise in molecular genetics is required.

Those candidates who can stimulate undergraduate research in biology will be given special consideration. Responsibilities include teaching introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors and upper division courses for majors. Although undergraduate teaching is the prime focus, candidates are expected to actively pursue scholarly activities. Salary and benefits are competitive and commensurate with experience.

Applications containing a current curriculum vitae, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work and three letters of recommendation should be sent to Dr. Thomas W. Jones, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6837. Review of applications will begin on March 1 and continue until the position is filled.

Graduate Intern In Athletic Training

Salisbury State is seeking a graduate intern in athletic training. Desirable applicants should possess or be eligible for NATA certification. In addition, C.P.R. instructor and first aid instructor certification is preferred. This is a two-year appointment. Salary/stipend will be $7,000-$7,500 for the year.

The athletic training program is an internship program with a concentration in athletic training within the physical education curriculum. It furnishes services to 17 varsity sports, 32 intramural activities and nine club teams. Salisbury State is a member of the NCAA Division III.

To apply send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Athletic Trainer Search, Salisbury State University, Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Screening will begin immediately and applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The anticipated starting date is August 15.

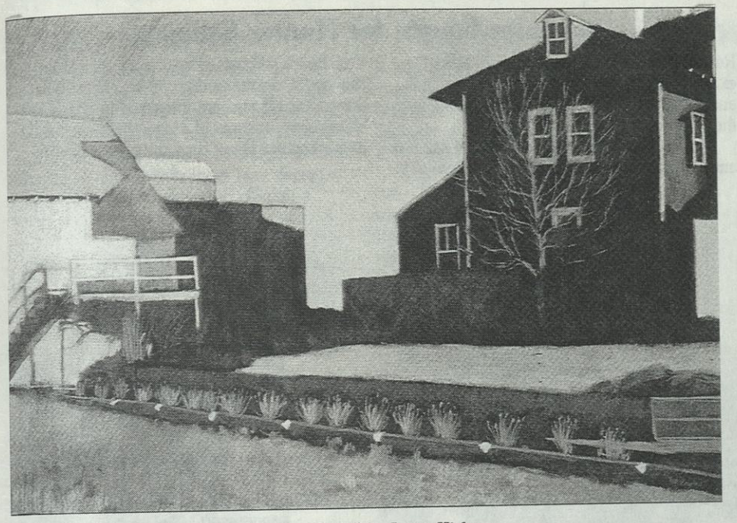
Management, Marketing Professor Sought

Nominations and applications are invited for an anticipated management faculty position in the Department of Management and Marketing in the Perdue School of Business for the fall.

Candidates will be expected to have earned doctorates. The optimal candidate will be prepared to teach in two of the following areas: strategic management, international management or entrepreneurship. Rank and salary, which are AACSB competitive, are open and commensurate with experience and record of scholarship.

The principal programs of the Perdue School include an M.B.A. program of approximately 100 students and an undergraduate student body of approximately 1,200 students pursuing degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and management information systems. The faculty of the Management and Marketing Department teach approximately 200 undergraduate students with declared concentrations in management and marketing.

The position will remain open until filled. Please send nominations and applications to Dr. Wayne Decker, Chair, Department of Management and Marketing, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.



"Morning Light" by Laura Hickman

Architecture Subject of New Atrium Exhibit

The Atrium Gallery, located in the Guerrieri University Center, opens its spring season with an exhibit titled, "Architecture; Three Artistic Approaches."

The exhibit, which runs February 10-25, features two artists from the region, Laura Hickman from Bethany Beach, DE, and Marcy Shear Wolpe from Ocean City and one, Richard Niewerth, from Severna Park, MD.

All three artists deal with architectural themes and find light the primary element of interest. Although they did not know one another before the exhibit was organized, their statements concerning light are remarkably similar. Phrases like "magical quality of light" and "spiritual and psychological presence through the manipulation of light" are common to all three artists. They strive for the expression of feeling through the use of light, but they approach the problem in unique ways due to the different mediums they have chose to use: oils, pastels and serigraphs.

Wolpe works in serigraph, a multicolor printmaking process. She is personally responsible for all phases of the process: hand drawing the master, creating separate stencils, mixing transparent printing inks of her own formulas and hand-painting every color. She will overlay as many as 40 separate stencils to create a single limited edition print. Her prints are devoid of people but possess an emotional quality with color and light. Scenes of comfortable chairs on 19th century farmhouse porches and cozy rooms with fluttering curtains at an open window invite the viewer to reflect upon memories of their own. Wolpe earned a Master of Fine Arts in design/printing from George Washington University. Her art is included in such prestigious collections as the Pushkin Museum. She is currently teaching an advanced printmaking course at Salisbury State.

Niewerth has been teaching art at Anne Arundel Community College for 21 years. With a full teaching schedule he still manages to frequently exhibit his own work, primarily in the Baltimore/Washington, D.C. area. As with Wolpe, Niewerth uses the manipulation of light in his oil paintings to empower his subjects with a spiritual and psychological presence. His subject matter, resort cottages from the Victorian era, row houses and other traditional architectural dwellings, are all without human occupants. Niewerth said, "My current work is about escape and retreat. My paintings are romantic visions that transport the viewer to another place and time... an urge to get the spiritual ghosts that lurk behind the facade of a place ...and through the manipulation of light, my subjects are revealed."

Hickman rounds out the trio of artists in the exhibit. This is the second Atrium Gallery exhibit that has featured her work. In 1990 her one-person exhibit was well received and she returns by "public demand." Working with pastels on black Arches paper, she builds up layer upon layer of color to achieve luminosity in her large architectural pastels of old dwellings. Good design utilizing geometric shapes of shadows and positive and negative spaces, as well as the use of light, enhance the feeling of mystery and magic in her paintings. Hickman is currently a full-time working artist and has taught art in the past at the college level. She recently returned from a successful show in Hochheim, Germany.

The gallery is open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m., and noon-4 p.m. on Sundays. An opening reception to meet and talk with the artists will be held Wednesday, February 10, from 4-6 p.m.

For more information about the artists' reception and the exhibit call the Guerrieri University Center information desk at 543-6100.

Volunteer Awards Program Set by Governor's Office

Nominations are now being accepted for individuals and groups whose volunteer service during 1992 contributed significantly to a public, non-profit or private agency or institution. Recognition for those individuals and groups judged outstanding will occur at an awards presentation in April.

Nominations may be made in any of the following categories of service: arts and culture, education and literacy, environment, health care, public safety, recreation, seniors, social services, special event, and students and workplace. Nomination forms are available in the Office of the Dean of Students.

The deadline for filing nomination materials with the Governor's Office on Volunteerism is February 12. Contact Barry King at 543-6080 for more information.

In Memoriam: Dr. Earl T. Willis, Pedro Carlos Harispe

Dr. Earl T. Willis, who had been dean of the college at Salisbury State from 1956-1968 under President Wilbur Devilbiss, died in Florida on December 5 of a stroke. Dr. Willis came to SSC from Towson State, where he had served as chairman of the History Department. Mrs. Willis is living in Florida.

Mr. Pedro Carlos Harispe died at age 91 on Friday, December 18, at Peninsula Regional Medical Center. He had been an assistant professor of Spanish from September 1963 until he retired on July 1, 1974. He was promoted to associate professor upon retirement. He is survived by his wife, Mary M. Harispe, who lives in Salisbury.

Pi Gamma Mu Accepts Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in the social sciences, is accepting nominations for initiation into the prestigious society. The requirements for membership are as follows: is a junior, senior or graduate student in the upper 35 percent of the class; has at least 21 semester hours in one or more of the five core areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations); is in some other social science disciplines such as social psychology, criminal justice or human geography; and has a grade point average of "B" or better.

Students who meet those qualifications please contact Dr. Greg Ference, Dr. Clara Small or the History Department Office by February 19.

History Honor Society Seeks Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, is seeking nominations for its 1993 initiation.

Qualifications include junior or senior class standing with at least 12 hours of history classes beyond History 101 and 102, with a minimum of a 3.0 in these classes and an overall GPA of 3.0.

For more information and/or nominations contact Dr. Greg Ference at 543-6129, Dr. Clara Small or Dr. Jeanne Whitney at 543-6523, or the History Department at 543-6245 by February 19.

Summer Britain Trip Interest Meeting Set

Everyone is invited to travel through Britain in the summer with history faculty member Wayne Ackerson. Board a private motor coach and see England and Wales firsthand.

York, Cambridge, Chester, Bath, Caernarfon Castle and London are all on the itinerary, as well as many other exciting locales. Ackerson said, "The variety and the price are really the major strengths of this travel course."

The cost of the trip, exclusive of tuition, is $1,675 and includes airfare, transportation, lodging, most meals and all admission costs.

Ackerson, who lived in England for five years, has since returned several times and led a successful tour through the Isles last summer.

The group leaves June 7 and returns June 18. Interest meetings will be held Monday, February 15, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 111, and Tuesday, February 23, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 116. For more information contact Ackerson at 543-6527.

Brent Scholarships Offered to Students

Applications are now being accepted for the 1993-94 Herbert D. Brent Scholarships, which are offered to high school seniors or current college students who show promise in the arts, either visual, performing, media, communication or written. Deadline for application receipt is 5 p.m., Friday, March 5.

Up to $1,500 in scholarships will be awarded. Decisions are based on written applications, personal interviews, and either a portfolio or audition before a panel of professional artists.

The Brent Scholarship Fund was established by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in 1982 in memory of local arts patron Herbert D. Brent. Fiscal management of the fund is now under the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, and the scholarships are awarded by SWAC.

To be eligible for the award, a student must be a legal resident of Worcester, Wicomico or Somerset county who will be attending an accredited college in 1993-94 or else be a freshman, sophomore, or junior currently enrolled at Salisbury State or the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

For a copy of the guidelines and an application form, students may visit the Salisbury Wiciomico Arts Council in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center or call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

SWAC Culinary Fund-Raiser Scheduled

"Eat Your Arts Out!" returns for its third outing as the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's major fund-raising effort on Sunday, February 21, at Webster's 1801. Co-presented by the Delmarva Chefs' Association whose members have donated their time and efforts, Peninsula Bank is returning for a second year as the principal financial sponsor.

Beginning with a silent auction of artistic and culinary items, "Eat Your Arts Out!" then moves to a gourmet six-course dinner with attendant wines. Participating chefs for the program are executive chef Jon DeSormeau and assistant chef Michael Jochynek from SSU who will present the soup; executive chef Kevin O'Donnell, Harrison's Harbor Watch Restaurant, and executive chef George Parrott, Sharks Cove, will present the appetizer.

The salad will be created by executive chef Brent Creeger, Princess Royale, and chef Patrick Benzin, Webster's 1801. The intermeso, created by executive chef Stephen T. Jacques and assistant chef John Barret, Atlantic Hotel will follow.

The entree, roast loins of beef and veal, lobster and prawns garni will be prepared by corporate executive chef Mark Mayers, Harrison Group, and executive chef Tyler Galloway, Reflections Restaurant. The dessert, chocolate sea shells, will be sculpted by executive chef Tony Hilligoss, Bay and Beyond Catering Service, and chef Wesley Overturf.

Following dinner, the services of each chef to prepare another elegant dinner in private homes will be auctioned off.

Music for the event is being provided by Hong Liang from the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU. The event is taking place at Webster's 1801.

Tickets for "Eat Your Arts Out!" are $65 for SWAC members and $75 for non-members. Reservations must be made no later than February 12. For reservations please call 543-ARTS.

Purchaser Sought for Hunter Sailboat

Recently a 1980 25-foot Hunter sailboat in excellent condition with a recently painted hull and a working outboard motor was donated to the University.

Approval has been given to sell the sailboat and use the money to purchase a couple of Club Junior sailboats so that SSU's sailing team can host a regatta and compete against other universities. If you are interested in Salisbury State sailing, or know of a buyer for the sailboat, please contact Dave Brown at 543-6350.

Johnson Published in Music Journal

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies, recently had his article, "A Guiding Philosophy for Performance," in the December issue of the Maryland Music Educators Journal.

The article outlines the present dilemma facing performance ensembles in the public schools and their future as components in the process of aesthetic education. The article is the second in a series of researched articles written specifically for collegiate members of the Music Educators National Association in Maryland. His first article in the series, "Perspectives on our Profession" was published in October 1992, looks at alternative philosophies in self-development and education and their influence on aesthetic training.

Johnson is the Maryland state advisor for the Music Educators National Conference collegiate chapters. He also serves as a representative to the Maryland Council of Higher Education in music. Johnson is a member of the College Band Directors National Association, the International Society for the Promotion and Investigation of Band Music, the International Percy Grainger Society, the International Conductors Guild and the Maryland Music Educators Association. He is eastern representative for the Maryland Band Directors Association.

Johnson is conductor to the Wind Sinfonia and teaches conducting, music theory, instrumental methods, applied low brass and education methods. Johnson maintains an extensive schedule as guest conductor, clinician and adjudicator in Maryland, Delaware, Illinois and Michigan.

Ackerson Writes About Aviation Pioneer

Wayne Ackerson, lecturer of history, has had accepted for publication a chapter on Charles Lindbergh for the text "American Portraits: History Through Biography."

The two-volume American Portraits series will be published by Academic International Press in spring 1993 and is designed as a reader for introductory American history classes. Each volume is divided into 15 sections, each concerned with a particular era or idea, and each containing two biographies of people who typify the age.

Ackerson's chapter, titled "Charles A: Lindbergh," focuses on Lindbergh's direct and indirect influence on late 1920s/early '30s culture, society and technology. Ackerson suggests that Lindbergh's transatlantic flight in 1927 was not as important technologically as it was emotionally for the nation. Much of America was tired of progressivism by the 1920s and many were looking for something new. Lindbergh made an attractive public figure and was that "something" for many people. The aviator also provided a glimpse of a future than many were unsure of. In discussing Lindbergh's post-flight activities, Ackerson highlights the aviator's ongoing involvement in not only aeronautics, but also politics, medicine and environmental projects.

To aid his writing and research, Ackerson utilized the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum's archives and also recently traveled to St. Louis, to delve into the records of the Missouri Historical Society, which owns the second largest collection of Lindbergh documents. The Lindbergh Museum in St. Louis also houses an impressive array of private letters and notes concerning Lindbergh.

The chapter for American Portraits is part of ongoing research Ackerson is conducting on the famed aviator.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Pfeiffer Earns Doctor of Philosophy

T. Paul Pfieffer, director of Salisbury State Theatre and a member of the communication arts faculty, has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in theatre and history and acting from the Union Institute in Cincinnati, OH.

Pfieffer, who earned a B.A. in theatre and English from Salisbury State and an M.A. in directing and theatre history from the University of Maryland College Park, has taught at SSU since 1984. His Ph.D. dissertation at Union Institute involved writing and performing the work, Apology for the Life of an Actor, based on the life and writings of the 18th-century English actor, dramatist and critic, Colley Cibber. He performed the one-man show on SSU's Fulton Hall stage last spring and at the Union Institute during its graduation weekend. He also has been invited to present it next fall at Towson State University and to direct a production of the 18th-century comedy, Beaux Strategem, while there.

Directorial assignments for Pfeiffer at SSU in recent years have included Of Mice and Men, Grapes of Wrath, Equus and School for Scandal, as well as such musical productions as Cabaret, Anything Goes and The Pirates of Penzance. He will stage West Side Story at SSU early in 1993. He also has directed productions of the Community Players of Salisbury, including Arsenic and Old Lace and The Mousetrap.

A long-time resident of the Eastern Shore, Pfeiffer currently resides in Delmar.

African-American Music Performed, Celebrated

Kijana Wiseman will share her celebration of music and pay homage to the African-American contribution to American music on Friday, February 12, in Caruthers Auditorium from 8-9:30 p.m.

"Our music is purely, 100 percent American..." said Wiseman, "It's the first real crossover music. The great thing about black American music is that it mixes into all styles—reggae, rock, showtunes, jazz and the classics—it unifies the multi-mix of cultures in the audiences I serve and helps us realize that, despite our differences, we Americans are all ultimately one people...a new mix...and this is our music."

Wiseman uses slides and on-stage costume changes during her shows; becoming a modern-day "griot" celebrating music. "I do the songs of our heritage, from teaching the audience an African 'click' song to the ageless tunes of Lady Day." A high-point of the show is when she struts her stuff while performing the more risque tunes of vaudeville with her suggestive "I Can't Do Without My Kitchen Man" or comical "You Got the Right Key, but the Wrong Keyhole." "I like to mix it up a bit," she said.

Wiseman has a 3 1/2 octave range. A lyric coloratura, she has performed in America, Africa, Mexico and Europe. She lived in West Africa for six years where she sang and performed with such greats as Hugh Masakela and Mariam Makeba. She taught drama at the American Embassy school and was assistant director of the National Liberian Cultural Troupe. Wiseman sings in seven languages, has hosted international TV entertainment shows and has been a soloist with numerous jazz groups. Classically trained, she has performed with the Conrad Johnson Big Band, the Scott Joplin Orchestra, the Houston Symphony, Orquetra Filarmonica de la Universidad Nationale in Mexico City and SssteaMoga in West Africa.

"I like to surprise my audience," Wiseman said. "I love the expressions on their faces with I soar to a double-high 'A' in Gershwin's 'Summertime' or start throwing clothes at them during the vaudeville scene."

Student Group Gets Governor's Award

A student volunteer escort service at Salisbury State recently received a 1992 Governor's Crime Prevention Award from Gov. William Donald Schaefer.

The group, known as Students for Public Safety and Awareness, was formed to accompany students, faculty and staff who feel uncomfortable walking alone at night. The service operates on campus and to nearby off campus locations, according to Jim Phillips, SSU's director of public safety.

During the past year, SPSA provided hundreds of escorts to students on and off campus using two golf carts and a large passenger van.

"As a whole, the entire campus community has a feeling of added personal security," Phillips said. "This can be attributed in great part to the efforts of these volunteer students."

The Governor's Crime Prevention Awards program recognizes citizens, community groups, law enforcement agencies and law enforcement officers who have made outstanding contributions to crime prevention in their departments or their communities. The awards have been given annually since 1980.

Kappa Delta Pi book donation

Honor Society Donates Children's Books

Members of the Rho Eta chapter of Kappa Delta Pi contributed 30 juvenile books to the children's section of Blackwell Library. The books are intended for the use of Salisbury State students who are majoring in education and plan to be elementary teachers.

Kappa Delta Pi is an international honor society for education majors. Its purpose is to promote excellence in teaching. The book contribution to the library was made possible by a book fair which took place in Caruthers Hall early in December.

PE Society Runs Jump Rope for Heart

In a few weeks, more than 300 area school children will gather to exercise and raise money for the American Heart Association. But don't tell them that. They think they're having fun.

Third through eighth graders from 10 area schools will join in Jump Rope for Heart on Saturday, February 27, from 9 a.m.-noon at the Maggs Center. It's an event that calls on them to do what they do best: play. The students compete first to see which school can raise the most pledge money and then in jump rope contests at the event.

While the students have been out raising contributions for the Heart Association, an SSU student, Todd Custer, has been busy gathering the prizes they will earn. As the president of the Physical Education Majors Society at SSU, Custer is chairman of the event. And although Jump Rope for Heart is designed to help children learn to enjoy and protect their good health, Custer says that they aren't the only ones getting an education.

"For me, this is good experience for becoming a physical education teacher," he said. "It's a little like planning a field day. I was surprised at the extent of work involved: getting prizes donated and lining up volunteers for the event."

If Jump Rope for Heart is good practice for a future teacher, it is even better help to those already in the field.

"I just love it," beamed Prince Street Elementary School teacher Earl Reddish. "We're doing a unit on it now: jumping rope, learning tricks like hopping on one foot or Double Dutch. Kids love to compete and this is something at which the average kid can excel."

Ross Ritter, who teaches at Fruitland Intermediate School, agreed, "The kids want to do it, so we encourage them."

Jump Rope for Heart is coordinated by SSU's Physical Education Society working with the local office of the American Heart Association. Perdue Farms is corporate sponsor for the event.

AHA area director Sharon Cooper says that the goal is to raise $12,000 this year at Jump Rope for Heart. The money will be used to fund research and education programs for the Eastern Shore, including a set of teaching kits now being used in many Wicomico County schools.

Ference Paper Focuses on E. European History

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history, presented a paper at the American Historical Association's annual meeting in December. Ference's paper, "Incorporating East European History into the World/Western Civilizations Course," dealt with strategies for teaching about East Europe in the survey course level.

The juried panel, "Teaching East European History at Small Colleges and Branch Campuses," featured presentations by scholars representing the American University in Bulgaria, Auburn University, Connecticut College, Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne, and the University of Wisconsin at Stevens Point. As a result of his paper Ference has been asked to do a cooperative study with one of the eminent scholars in East European studies, Professor Anna Cienciala of the University of Kansas.

The American Historical Association is the foremost learned organization of the historical profession in North America, and the December conference was held in Washington, D.C. While at the meeting, Ference was one of a handful of scholars to be invited to a reception held at the new Austrian embassy for those engaged in Austrian and Habsburg studies.

Rogers To Perform Trumpet Recital

Jason Rogers performs a trumpet recital on Tuesday, February 16, at 7 p.m. in room 112 of Fulton Hall. Among other works, he will be performing pieces by Eugene Bozza, Alexander Arutunian and Georges Enesco.

Rogers, instructor of trumpet and adjunct faculty member of the Department of Music, has studied with Richard LaCourse, Wayne Cameron and Ed Hoffman. He has a bachelor's degree in music education and a performer's certificate from the Peabody Conservatory of Music. Currently, Rogers plays with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU and teaches at Laurel Middle School in Delaware. He is also available for private lessons at Salisbury Music.

For more information contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Waters Reads, Publishes Poetry

Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English, recently read his poems at the State University of New York at Brockport, Penfield High School, the Livonia Public Library (for the Finger Lakes Reading Series) and Carnegie Mellon University.

Work from his manuscript-in-progress, as yet untitled, has appeared, or is forthcoming, in The American Poetry Review, Poetry, The North American Review and The Gettysburg Review.

His work is also included in the recent anthologies Men of Our Time (University of Georgia Press), A Gathering of Poets (Kent State University Press) and The Practice of Poetry (HarperCollins). A critical appraisal of his work appears in the new volume of the Dictionary of Literary Biography: American Poets Since World War II (Bruccoli Clark Layman/Gale Research).

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 11, 1993 VOL. IX NO. 17

SYSCO CEO Is Next Great Leader

The chairman and chief executive officer of the nation's largest food service marketing and distribution company will share his insights in an upcoming presentation at the University. SYSCO Corporation CEO John F. Woodhouse will speak at 11 a.m. Friday, February 19, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center as part of Great Leader Lecture Series sponsored by the Perdue School of Business. The program is free and open to the public.

Woodhouse's topic will be "Organizational Structure: Paramount or Petty." While management consultants may take opposite sides here, Woodhouse has found that a good organizational structure is essential to business success.

"How and why an organizational structure is created can make it easier to carry out one's perceived goals and objectives," he said. "I don't think we could have accomplished all that we have without it."

That accomplishment is an impressive one. Since its formation in 1969, SYSCO has managed an increase in annual sales from approximately $115 million that first year to nearly $10 billion today. Woodhouse has been with the company from the start.

Locally, Lankford-SYSCO Food Services in Pocomoke is one of the company's 55 principal operations nationwide. The company has earned a reputation in the region not only for its commercial success but for its support of community activities.

John F. Woodhouse

The Great Leader Lecture Series has attracted a number of the country's most accomplished executives to SSU. The program is part of the Perdue School's mission to help students relate to and interact with the real business world, according to Dr. Richard F. Bebee, dean of the Perdue School. This is a philosophy Woodhouse supports.

"In spite of the fact that business schools use a more hands-on approach," Woodhouse noted, "having people who confront problems and know what that is like" is an important part of a business education. The CEO has made similar presentations at other schools, including his alma mater, Harvard Business School, where he earned his M.B.A. in 1955.

From Harvard, Woodhouse went on to Toronto, where he spent four years in investment analysis and marketing research for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. He left there to join the division controller's staff of the Ford Motor Company in 1959.

Having held various financial supervisory positions with Ford, Woodhouse became associated in 1964 with Cooper Industries, Inc.; and in 1967 he was made treasurer.

When he joined SYSCO, Woodhouse was the new corporation's chief financial officer. He was elected executive vice president in 1971, became president and chief operating officer in 1972, was elected chief executive officer the following year, and was made SYSCO's chairman in 1985.

In addition to his duties at SYSCO, Woodhouse sits on the Boards of Directors of Shell Oil and Nationsbank, Texas. He is also an elder of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. Originally from Wilmington, DE, Woodhouse now lives in Houston.

Peabody Students Perform Harp and Flute Concert

A pair of Peabody Conservatory students will perform a joint flute and harp concert on Sunday, February 21, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

Concert selections will range from "Arioso" and "Andante" by Bach to "Danse de la Chevre" by Debussy to variations of "Greensleeves." The concert is free and open to the public.

Sonja Inglefield began studying harp at age three with her harpist-musicologist mother, Dr. Ruth K. Inglefield. After studying in France and Italy, Inglefield completed a bachelor's degree at Bowling Green (OH) State University. She later studied in Romania on a Fulbright grant and has performed throughout Europe and the United States.

At present Inglefield studies with mother at the Peabody Conservatory—she is completing an Artist Diploma—where she was this year's winner of the Yale Gordon Concerto Competition. She teaches harp at the Baltimore School for the Arts, and harp and music for young children at the Peabody Preparatory. She is also a member of the recently formed contemporary chamber music ensemble, POLARIS.

Nancy Andrew is near completion of the doctoral degree in flute at Peabody Conservatory where she studied with Robert Willoughby and served as a teaching assistant in the Theory Department. She is a recipient of the Britton Johnson Memorial Award in flute at Peabody

Morgan State Choir Performs February 20

The world renown Morgan State University Choir, under the direction of Dr. Nathan Carter, presents a concert in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Saturday, February 20, at 7:30 p.m. The 55-member choir has distinguished itself as one of the most active and outstanding musical collegiate choruses in the country.

Most recently, the choir sang with the Philadelphia Orchestra for the annual Martin Luther King Day celebration which was shown on the national C-SPAN network. It has toured both the United States and Europe, recording with the London Symphony and Helsinki Philharmonic.

The choir has become a traditional part of African-American History Month celebrations at SSU. "The positive response of the campus and local community has encouraged the Office of Minority Affairs and Faculty Cultural Events Committee to bring the choir to the Salisbury area again," said Vaughn White, program coordinator.

For additional information concerning activities scheduled for African-American History Month, please call White at the Office of Minority Affairs at 548-4503.

Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy.

Students maintain the right to consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. Salisbury State will assume the right, under the provisions of this act, to provide student directory information found in a students's educational record without prior consent of the student.

For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in room 212 of the Guerrieri University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the SSU policy can be obtained in the Dean of Students Office.

Student Handbook Published By Dean of Students Office

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1992-93 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1992-93 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Health Center Encourages Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at Salisbury State.

Staff in the Health Center recommend that students have health insurance coverage by obtaining coverage on parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

Video Terminal Workshop Is Upcoming

Four separate workshops titled "Working Safely with Video Display Terminals" will be conducted in Salisbury for the benefit of state employees. Dates are March 11 and June 24. There will be morning and afternoon sessions each day.

If interested in attending a workshop, call the Personnel Office at 548-4755 and request an enrollment form. Registration is required and applications must be in Baltimore no later than three weeks prior to the session of your choice.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Faculty Position In Molecular Genetics

Applications for a 10-month, tenure track appointment as assistant professor of biology at Salisbury State beginning August 15 are now being accepted. A Ph.D. in biological sciences with a demonstrated expertise in molecular genetics is required.

Those candidates who can stimulate undergraduate research in biology will be given special consideration. Responsibilities include teaching introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors and upper division courses for majors. Although undergraduate teaching is the prime focus, candidates are expected to actively pursue scholarly activities. Salary and benefits are competitive and commensurate with experience.

Applications containing a current curriculum vitae, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work and three letters of recommendation should be sent to Dr. Thomas W. Jones, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6837. Review of applications will begin on March 1 and continue until the position is filled.

Graduate Intern In Athletic Training

Salisbury State is seeking a graduate intern in athletic training. Desirable applicants should possess or be eligible for NATA certification. In addition, C.P.R. instructor and first aid instructor certification is preferred. This is a two-year appointment. Salary/stipend will be $7,000-$7,500 for the year.

The athletic training program is an internship program with a concentration in athletic training within the physical education curriculum. It furnishes services to 17 varsity sports, 32 intramural activities and nine club teams. Salisbury State is a member of the NCAA Division III.

To apply send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Athletic Trainer Search, Salisbury State University, Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Screening will begin immediately and applications will be accepted until the position is filled. The anticipated starting date is August 15.

Management, Marketing Professor Sought

Nominations and applications are invited for an anticipated management faculty position in the Department of Management and Marketing in the Perdue School of Business for the fall.

Candidates will be expected to have earned doctorates. The optimal candidate will be prepared to teach in two of the following areas: strategic management, international management or entrepreneurship. Rank and salary, which are AACSB competitive, are open and commensurate with experience and record of scholarship.

The principal programs of the Perdue School include an M.B.A. program of approximately 100 students and an undergraduate student body of approximately 1,200 students pursuing degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and management information systems. The faculty of the Management and Marketing Department teach approximately 200 undergraduate students with declared concentrations in management and marketing.

The position will remain open until filled. Please send nominations and applications to Dr. Wayne Decker, Chair, Department of Management and Marketing, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Pi Gamma Mu Accepts Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in the social sciences, is accepting nominations for initiation into the prestigious society. The requirements for membership are as follows: is a junior, senior or graduate student in the upper 35 percent of the class; has at least 21 semester hours in one or more of the five core areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations); is in some other social science disciplines such as social psychology, criminal justice or human geography; and has a grade point average of "B" or better.

Students who meet those qualifications please contact Dr. Greg Ference, Dr. Clara Small or the History Department Office by February 19.

History Honor Society Seeks Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, is seeking nominations for its 1993 initiation.

Qualifications include junior or senior class standing with at least 12 hours of history classes beyond History 101 and 102, with a minimum of a 3.0 in these classes and an overall GPA of 3.0.

For more information and/or nominations contact Dr. Greg Ference at 543-6129, Dr. Clara Small or Dr. Jeanne Whitney at 543-6523, or the History Department at 543-6245 by February 19.

Summer Britain Trip Interest Meeting Set

Everyone is invited to travel through Britain in the summer with history faculty member Wayne Ackerson. Board a private motor coach and see England and Wales firsthand.

York, Cambridge, Chester, Bath, Caernarfon Castle and London are all on the itinerary, as well as many other exciting locales. Ackerson said, "The variety and the price are really the major strengths of this travel course."

The cost of the trip, exclusive of tuition, is $1,675 and includes airfare, transportation, lodging, most meals and all admission costs.

Ackerson, who lived in England for five years, has since returned several times and led a successful tour through the Isles last summer.

The group leaves June 7 and returns June 18. Interest meetings will be held Monday, February 15, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 111, and Tuesday, February 23, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 116. For more information contact Ackerson at 543-6527.

Resident Director Positions Available

The resident director is a full-time graduate student who lives in and supervises one residence hall. One of the major responsibilities is to know the residents living within that hall and to promote a secure living/learning environment. Residence hall experience is desirable. Compensation includes room and board; utilities except telephone; $2,250 per semester; and tuition waiver. Three positions are available.

Application materials are available in the Office of Housing and Residence Life, Chesapeake 1A, beginning February 8 and must be returned by March 8 at 5 p.m.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Although the spring academic semester is just getting underway, the men's and women's basketball teams find themselves winding down the '92-93 season. Coach Ward Lambert's men's team, currently 13-7 overall, has just four regular season games remaining, including just one appearnace before the home folks this Saturday evening. The women's team, 8-8 overall, also has four games left, with two remaining at home.

The men split a pair of conference games on the road last weekend, losing at Frostburg State on Saturday 85-82, but winning at Shenandoah on Sunday, 121-116. Although the loss at Frostburg snapped a nine-game winning streak, the Gulls remain tied for first place in the Eastern States Athletic Conference with a 5-1 record. The defeat was the first for SSU against an ESAC team since January 16, 1991, a span of 25 games.

Individually, guard Dameon Ross is second in the nation in scoring with a 28.6 average. Senior forward Kevin Cromer is adding 16.2 ppg and leads the team in rebounds with 8.3/game. Both Ross and Cromer scored their 1,000th career points last month.

Coach Bridget Benshetler's women's team suffered a pair of losses last weekend, falling to ESAC leader Frostburg 93-65 on Saturday and 64-63 at Shenandoah on Sunday. SSU is 2-4 in conference games. Jen Boone and Kim Roth, first and second on the team in scoring, each tallied 29 points in the two games.

Additionally, Roth is second in the nation in rebounds with a 15.2 average, while Boone achieved a career milestone in January by scoring her 1,000th point as a Sea Gull.

This Saturday's action at the Maggs Center will feature much more than just the men's and women's varsity games. Former players from the '60s, 70s, and 80s return for a men's alumni game at 3 p.m.

Prior to the men's varsity game, the four senior players on this year's team will be honored. Kevin Cromer, Ed Farrell, Bret Grebowsky and Aaron Wood will be suiting up before the home fans for the final time.

At halftime of the men's game, 1992 graduate Andre Foreman will have his uniform retired in a special ceremony. Foreman finished his career last year as NCAA Division III's all-time scoring leader with 2,940 points. He was a two-time all-American and was the 1992 national Player-of-the-Year.

Johnson Is Selected as Guest Conductor

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies, was invited to appear as guest conductor at the Carroll County Senior High School Band Festival on February 4-6 in Westminster. The invitation was a result of Johnson's recent visit to the Carroll County area to adjudicate for the Maryland Music Educators Association all-state band festival in May 1992.

Johnson maintains an extensive schedule as guest conductor, clinician and adjudicator. Recent guest appearances include the St. Mary's County High School Band Festival, the MMEA State Band Festival, the Maryland Band Directors All-State Ensemble Auditions and the Percy Grainger Wind Music Symposium titled, "Grainger's Basement," at Michigan State University in East Lansing. In the spring of 1992, Johnson was invited to serve as clinician for a conducting workshop titled "Developing Effective Rehearsal/Conducting Techniques" at the MMEA All State In-Service Conference in Ocean City, MD. He continues to remain active in Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland and Michigan.

Johnson presently serves as state advisor for Maryland Educators National Conference Collegiate Chapters in the state of Maryland, representative to the Maryland Council of Higher Education in Music and eastern representative to the Maryland Band Directors Association. Johnson is published five times annually in the Maryland Music Educators Association Journal. Recent articles of acclaim include, "Perspectives on our Profession" and "A Guiding Philosophy for Performance Ensembles."

Film Analyzes Art Museum Functions

The departments of Art and Modern Languages present the award-winning film "Godzilla Meets Mona Lisa" on Wednesday, February 17, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

The film by Ralph Arlyck visits both the Pompidou Center and the Louvre in Paris in order to study the functions of the art museum in 20th century culture.

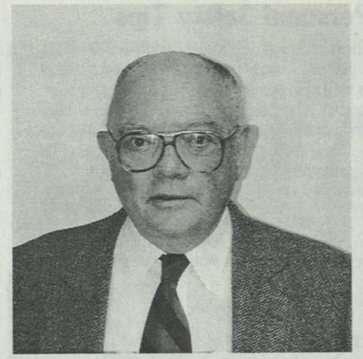
The two museums are very different, both in their collections and their approaches. Arlyck discusses the design of the Pompidou Center, people and art in public places, what a museum is and what compels people to want to look at art.

The public is invited and the event is free.

25+ Union Has February Meetings

The 25+ Student Union is gearing up for the new semester. The first two meetings will take place on Monday, February 15, from 5:30-7 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room (Guerrieri University Center) and on Tuesday, February 16, noon-1 p.m. in Nanticoke C (GUC). A representative from the Financial Aid Office will be available to provide guidelines for financial aid procedures. Everyone is welcome to bring a brown-bag lunch— cookies and sodas will be provided.

Also, beginning in February, there will be a newsletter for non-traditional students published on monthly basis. It will be printed on teal green paper and will be available at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. For more information, or with ideas and suggestions, contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.



Wally Swank

Swank Is Named Planned Giving Director

Wally Swank of Ocean City has been named director of planned giving and director of corporate and foundation relations for the University.

Swank will be working with SSU alumni and friends to raise funds for the University, helping alumni with their estate planning and providing information about tax savings through philanthropic gifts.

Working through the Office of Institutional Advancement, Swank is establishing a planned giving program for the SSU Foundation that will include a pooled income fund, charitable gift annuities and other deferred gift plans.

Recently, Swank helped form SSU's first Planned Giving Advisory Council made up of prominent professionals from the Eastern Shore and Baltimore.

Swank also will be trying to match specific programs at SSU with corporations that offer funds or in-kind gifts for educational purposes.

"I'm really pleased to be on the Eastern Shore and glad to be working at Salisbury State in a field I'm familiar with," he said.

In the past, Swank has worked with planned giving at Fairhaven, the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland, the Anne Arundel Medical Center Foundation and the Memorial Hospital Foundation.

In addition to his work at SSU, Swank teaches planned giving at Goucher College in Towson. He also serves as Eastern Shore field representative for the American Diabetes Association.

Prior to his retirement, he worked for Security Trust Co., a division of MNC Financial in Baltimore where he managed Eastern Shore trust investment accounts.

Swank has owned a house in Ocean City since 1980. He and his wife, Janet, moved there full time in 1990.

Clueless About Major?

Are you unsure about your major? Do you have a major? Are you worried about your career opportunities?

If the answer is yes to any of these questions the Center for Personal and Professional Development may have the solution to your problem. The CPPD has walk-in hours on Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. to answer questions and lead you in the right direction. You will be able to talk to fellow students, many who have had the same questions. CPPD will help you find your interests and skills, then its up to you.

The assistance is free and confidential.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Experimental Photography Next Gallery Exhibit

A traveling exhibit of experimental work by 21 Maryland and Washington, D.C. photographers will be in the University Gallery from February 11-March 4.

Titled "Photography On the Edge," the exhibit showcases a wide range of work from nudes and landscapes to conceptual and surreal images. Although sometimes vastly different in their approaches, each of the artists in the show was selected because of their ability to push the limits of the medium.

Some of the photographers, such as Matthew Gray and Penny Harris, address social issues. Others, like Marie Ringwald, couple photography with another medium—in Ringwald's case, color Xerox and watercolor.

Assembled by Maryland Art Place in Baltimore, "Photography On the Edge" was juried by Douglas Davis, an artist, writer, performer and critic who has worked intensively in video, printmaking, collages, sculpture, photography and film. His work can be seen in many public and private collections including the Guggenheim Museum and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, both in New York, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art and the Centre Pompidou in Paris.

The University Gallery is in Fulton Hall. It is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday, and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed on Friday.

For more information, contact the University Gallery Office at 543-6271.

CLEP Test Deadline Approaches

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, March 17. The registration deadline for the test is Wednesday, February 17. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

African-American Music Performed, Celebrated

Kijana Wiseman will share her celebration of music and pay homage to the African-American contribution to American music on Friday, February 12, in Caruthers Auditorium from 8-9:30 p.m.

"Our music is purely, 100 percent American..." said Wiseman, "It's the first real crossover music. The great thing about black American music is that it mixes into all styles—reggae, rock, showtunes, jazz and the classics—it unifies the multi-mix of cultures in the audiences I serve and helps us realize that, despite our differences, we Americans are all ultimately one people...a new mix...and this is our music."

Wiseman uses slides and on-stage costume changes during her shows; becoming a modern-day "griot" celebrating music. "I do the songs of our heritage, from teaching the audience an African 'click' song to the ageless tunes of Lady Day." A high-point of the show is when she struts her stuff while performing the more risque tunes of vaudeville with her suggestive "I Can't Do Without My Kitchen Man" or comical "You Got the Right Key, but the Wrong Keyhole." "I like to mix it up a bit," she said.

Wiseman has a 3 1/2 octave range. A lyric coloratura, she has performed in America, Africa, Mexico and Europe. She lived in West Africa for six years where she sang and performed with such greats as Hugh Masakela and Mariam Makeba. She taught drama at the American Embassy school and was assistant director of the National Liberian Cultural Troupe. Wiseman sings in seven languages, has hosted international TV entertainment shows and has been a soloist with numerous jazz groups. Classically trained, she has performed with the Conrad Johnson Big Band, the Scott Joplin Orchestra, the Houston Symphony, Orquetra Filarmonica de la Universidad Nationale in Mexico City and SssteaMoga in West Africa.

"I like to surprise my audience," Wiseman said. "I love the expressions on their faces with I soar to a double-high 'A' in Gershwin's 'Summertime' or start throwing clothes at them during the vaudeville scene."

For more information on Wiseman's concert call 543-6125.

Residence Life Earns Crime Prevention Award

A program designed to heighten Salisbury State students' awareness of personal safety and property protection was the recent recipient of a Governor's Crime Prevention Award.

During the 1991-92 academic year, the Office of Housing and Residence Life conducted 94 programs that addressed crime prevention issues of interest to University students including rape, drug and alcohol awareness and vehicle theft.

As a direct result of the program, there was a 15 percent decrease in reported thefts, a 45 percent decrease in reported bicycle thefts, a 26 percent decrease in disorderly conduct complaints and a 6 percent decrease in destruction of property and vandalism cases.

"This overall reduction in criminal activity is directly attributable to the efforts of the crime prevention program," said Jim Phillips, director of public safety.

The Governor's Crime Prevention Awards program recognizes citizens, community groups, law enforcement agencies and law enforcement officers who have made outstanding contributions to crime prevention in their departments or their communities. The awards have been given annually since 1980.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

State Archives Announces Summer Intern Program

The Maryland State Archives has four internships available this summer for its 10-week internship program. The internships are available to Maryland college students (graduate or advanced undergraduate).

The purpose of the nationally recognized program is to provide training in archival management and historical research. This includes helping establish computerized archival control over permanently valuable historical records and conducting research in primary source materials for publication in series such as the Archives of Maryland.

Qualifications for candidates include demonstrated academic excellence, preferably with an interst in archival science, history, library science or related fields. The internship provides a $2,100 stipend (before taxes).

For information and application materials write to Archival Internship Program, Maryland State Archives, 350 Rowe Boulevard, Annapolis, MD 21401, or call (410) 974-3916. Application deadline is April 2.

KIJANA WISEMAN will share her celebration of music and pay homage to the African-American contribution to American music on Friday, February 12, from 8-9:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Wiseman's presentation is part of the campus's on-going celebration of Black History Month. SEE STORY, PAGE 4

Alumni Association Has Parenting Seminars

It may be the most difficult job in the world and there is no orientation program—until now. A series called "Five Seminars for Caring Parents" will soon get under way at the University.

Sponsored by SSU's Alumni Association, the Wednesday night series begins on February 24 and continues March 10 and 24 and April 14 and 28. Seminars will run from 6:30-8:30 p.m. and will be held in the Nanticoke rooms of the Guerrieri University Center on the SSU campus. Cost for the series is $40 for adults; child care is available at $20 per child.

The series is designed to enhance relationships between caring parents and their children. Speakers chosen for the seminars are known not only for their expertise, but also their successes in working with parents and children. Each session will offer ideas that parents could put into immediate practice.

The atmosphere for the series will be relaxed: each evening will begin with a light supper, followed by a presentation by the speaker and a question and answer period. Speakers and participants will also have time for small group discussions.

Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center at SSU, will open the series with seminars on problem solving and survival skills. Her first topic is "How to Help Your Child to Choices," helpful information for parents who hope to guide their children toward making good decisions both at home and at school.

Berkman continues the series with "Balancing Career, Family and Self," offering survival strategies for busy working parents. "How to Teach Your Kid to Be a Jerk...Or Lessons I Learned in the Supermarket" is the intriguing title for the series' third seminar. Dr. Charles Long, associate professor of education at SSU, will focus on increasing communications and enhancing family relationships. This session promises a lively exchange between presenter and participants.

The session that follows is tailor-made to the participants' specific needs. Responding to requests from last year's series, the "Participants Exchange," led by Dr. Carolyn Bowden, associate professor of education, will be used to share and exchange information. Participants are invited to "share what you've learned as a parent."

"Diversity and Assertion," the final session of the series will be invaluable to parents, but will also enlighten participants as adults. Carolyn Stegman of the Communication Arts Department will focus on our increasingly diverse population, helping participants find ways in which they and their children can better understand and discover their roles in the community.

The Five Seminars for Caring Parents will be limited to 50 participants, so early registration is recommended. For more information, please call the Office of Alumni Affairs at 543- 6042.

'Belle of Amherst,' Emily Dickinson, Comes to SSU Stage

"The Belle of Amherst," a portrayal of Emily Dickinson starring Lee Townshend, will be presented by Salisbury State University Theatre in Fulton Hall Theatre this weekend. Performances are on Friday and Saturday, February 12 and 13, at 8 p.m. and on Sunday, February 14, at 2 p.m.

The audience will visit the stage as if visitors to the famed American poet's home, as if each had been personally invited. Most of the script is derived from the poetry and letters of Dickinson.

Townshend, the sole performer in the production, believes Dickinson to be an enigma to most people, "their typical exposure to her through a brief (and often confusing) sampling of her poetry in middle or high school English classes.

"She has been termed a recluse, an eccentric and as she says in the play, 'Squire Dickinson's half-cracked daughter,'" said Townshend. "Much of what I have read about her in researching this role belies such a facile characterization.

"Emily made a deliberate choice to confine her world to Amherst," said Townshend, "with very few exceptions, and to concentrate her energies toward writing and caring for her family.

Lee Townshend

She was quite aware of what she did and how she was viewed. She was an individualist in an age of conformity, especially as a woman. Her views on religion and nature, for instance, are quite modern. Furthermore, her refusal to write in the traditional and accepted poetic forms of her era made her an outcast in the literary world. Few recognized or supported her talent in her lifetime. Now she is held in high esteem as one of our premier American poets.

"As you watch and listen, I hope you feel the enormity of her passion for words," said Townshend. "This is, after all, a poet who wrote 1,775 poems that we know of, even though only seven were published in her lifetime. Finally, I hope you will admire her for her intellect and for her superb sense of humor, which helped her to deal with many of the frustrations she experienced throughout her life." Townshend is a native of Washington, D.C. She is a graduate of American University, where she received her B.A. in speech and drama and an M.A. in speech arts, emphasizing theatre history and dramatic literature. She and her husband, Richard, took a "side trip" to Florida for 20 years, during which time she worked and taught at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton and received an M.F.A. in acting/directing from that institution. In 1988 she accepted the position of director of academic services in the Perdue School of Business, where she continues today.

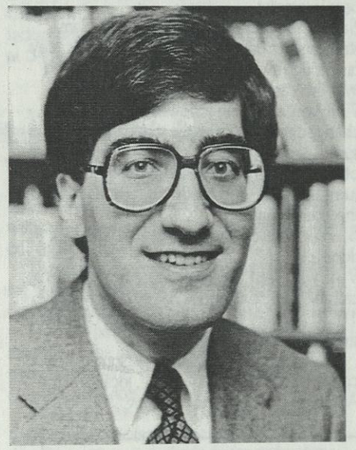
Princeton Prof Discusses First Amendment and Free Speech

What is the point of constitutionally protecting free speech and other forms of expression? Do different theories of the justification for such protection produce interestingly different results when applied to cases? Do competing theories of free speech reflect fundamental differences regarding human nature and the human good? How does one choose rationally among competing theories?

These are some of the questions Dr. Robert P. George of the Department of Politics at Princeton University will address in his lecture "If Men Were Angels...: The First Amendment and Free Speech" on Thursday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

George was recently promoted to the rank of associate professor with continuing tenure at Princeton. In addition, he is "Of Counsel" to the law firm of Robinson & McElwee in Charleston, WV. In 1989-90, he was the Justice Tom C. Clark Fellow at the Supreme Court of the United States. In 1988-89, he was Visiting Fellow in Law at New College, Oxford University.

George's scholarly interests are legal, moral and political philosophy. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Swarthmore College and received a Knox Fellowship from Harvard University for graduate study in legal philosophy at Oxford.



Dr. Robert P. George

He has also been a Fellow of the Howard Foundation of Brown University. He received his doctorate in philosophy from Oxford. He is a member of the editorial board of The American Journal of Jurisprudence and the academic advisory board of the Judiciary Leadership Development Council. His articles and review essays have appeared in the Review of Politics, the Review of Metaphysics, Law and Philosophy, the American Journal of Jurisprudence and the law reviews of the University of Chicago, Tulane and Michigan. His book, Making Men Moral: Civil Liberties and Public Morality, will be published by Oxford University Press, which is also publisher of his edited book, Natural Law Theory: Contemporary Essays.

His practical interests are in constitutional law and general appellate litigation. He is admitted to practice law in Pennsylvania and New Jersey and is a member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, admission to the lecture is free and the public is invited.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Education Department Sponsors Children's Literature Conference

Reading can open doors to new worlds for children, but sometimes they need a little help. A creative teacher can provide the key. But who helps the teacher?

The Children's Literature Conference at Salisbury State is designed to give teachers a boost. The conference, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, February 26 and 27, offers a series of presentations by authors of children's books and by teachers who have fresh, classroom-tested ideas to share.

Booksellers will showcase teaching accessories and their latest titles; and authors will be on-hand to sign and discuss their books. Parents are welcome at the conference.

Children's author Marvin Terban gets things off to an entertaining start Friday evening. Terban turns children's humor to educational advantage with books that explore language. From homonyms ("the coffees make fun and the teas tease") to idioms (Why is the calendar crying?" "Because its days are numbered."), Terban finds childlike fun to be had in learning about language.

Saturday's sessions promise more suggestions for inspiring young students. With titles like "Swallowed by a Boa Constrictor!" and "Big Ideas for Little Children" the 27 workshops are offered in three sessions and cover classroom ideas from preschool to middle school. Participants can learn about resources in the community at "Reading Is for the Birds," a presentation by Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art volunteer Carole Bozman. They can also learn the ins and outs of creating a book from local author Larry Points ("Assateague— Island of the Wild Ponies") or from teacher Becky Davis, whose workshop suggests "Class-Made Big Books Get Big Results."

Drs. John Wolinski and Amy Meekins, who are coordinating the conference for the Education Department at SSU, said that their goal is to provide a practical workshop for local teachers.

"It's hard for teachers to get travel money to attend distant conferences these days," said Wolinski. "So we wanted to bring the resources to them." In addition, the conference was scheduled to accommodate teachers' schedules.

Meekins, who taught in Dorchester County elementary schools, remembers benefiting from such conferences: "It refreshes and recharges you," she said. "You discover many new ideas that other teachers have pretested."

The workshop planners have also aimed for variety, from suggestions for social studies to fun books that can be made in classrooms at any grade level.

Conference registration for Saturday is $5 and will continue through February 20. Those who do not preregister will be charged $8 at the door. Friday's dinner and Terban's presentation will cost $12.95. For more information, please call the Education Department at 543-6281.

Waters Is Recipient Of Irish Arts Fellowship

Dr. Michael Waters of the English Department spent January on a Residency Fellowship at the Tyrone Guthrie Centre at Annaghmakerrig, Ireland.

The fellowship, part of an exchange program administered by the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, is awarded to three Americans annually. Waters was the only writer chosen this year. The other two fellowships were awarded to visual artists.

Annaghmakerrig is the name of the 400-acre family estate of the late Sir Tyrone Guthrie, perhaps this century's foremost theatre director. Now a retreat administered by the Irish Arts Council, the centre provides accommodations and meals for writers, artists and composers from the north and south of Ireland and from abroad.

Five new poems by Waters will appear in the spring issue of The Missouri Review. He has been invited to read his poems this spring at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, the University of Connecticut and Fairfield University.

If interested in attending a workshop, call the Personnel Office at 548-4755 and request an enrollment form. Registration is required and applications must be in Baltimore no later than three weeks prior to the session of your choice.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Clueless About Major?

Are you unsure about your major? Do you have a major? Are you worried about your career opportunities?

If the answer is yes to any of these questions the Center for Personal and Professional Development may have the solution to your problem. The CPPD has walk-in hours on Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. to answer questions and lead you in the right direction. You will be able to talk to fellow students, many who have had the same questions. CPPD will help you find your interests and skills, then its up to you.

The assistance is free and confidential.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

SGA Announces General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold its first General Assembly meeting Sunday, February 21, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend. If you want to see changes in the University come to the meeting Sunday. The SGA is open to new ideas and concerns. Don't let your voice go unheard.

Tai-Chi Course Offered

How many units of stress can you take? Why not try T'ai-chi ch-uan an ultra-low impact, non-aerobic system of exercise?

The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture.

The beginner's course will be held on Tuesdays starting February 23 and the intermediate course will be Thursdays starting February 25.

The classes, which will meet for 10 sessions, will be held from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the dance studio of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the United States and Taiwan. He has been teaching it in Wicomico County since 1976.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170 or Fusaro at 742-9170.

Salisbury Zoo Seeks Volunteer Docents

The Salisbury Zoo Education Department is looking for volunteers to complete the 1993 docent training classes. A docent is a volunteer teacher, and zoo docents help in sharing knowledge about wildlife and conservation to thousands of visitors every year.

The training classes are on Mondays in March from 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Docents gain basic knowledge about the zoo animals and their cousins in the wild as well as how to communicate this information to zoo visitors.

Potential docents are invited to attend one of two coffee hours that will be held on Saturday, February 20, and Monday, February 22, at 10 a.m., where they can meet experienced docents and learn more about the Education Department.

For more information, call Jim Rapp at 742-2640.

First Amendment Issues Subject of Lecture Series

Freedom of speech is an issue of concern to all communities, large and small, in the United States. That concern has been heightened recently in light of recent court decisions regarding hate speech, the impact of "political correctness" and restricted National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) funding.

Salisbury State is sponsoring a series of four lectures to explore ways to exercise free speech while encouraging self-imposed limits so as not to use this precious freedom to intimidate others.

On Thursday, February 25, Dr. Robert George of Princeton University will discuss "If Men Were Angels...: The First Amendment and Free Speech," a constitutional and historical perspective on the issue.

On Monday, March 22, Robert Lynch of the National Association of Local Art Agencies, will discuss "Defense of Unrestricted Arts Funding: A Necessity for Free Expression in a Free Country." His presentation will discuss the recent NEA funding controversy and then defend the need for unrestricted and uncensored funding for the arts.

On Wednesday, March 24, Dr. John Staczek of Georgetown University will discuss political correctness and individual responsibility for the use of words in his presentation, "Sticks and Stones...: First Amendment, Education and Individual Responsibility."

Dr. Dale Herbeck of Boston College will conclude the lecture series on Wednesday, April 21 with "Don't Believe the Hype: Rock, Rap and the First Amendment." "He will discuss pop culture issues such as MTV, rap music, films and TV ads.

All of the presentations will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center. For more information on the lecture series contact the Guerrieri Center Office at 543-6100.

Taylors Published in Mental Health Journal

The journal Families in Society will publish a paper by Drs. Brennen and Ann Taylor in its May issue. The article, "Wayfinding In Mental Health The Transportation Handicapped Severe Mentally Ill," is another article in a series of deinstitutional publications. The work was a collaborative effort involving psychiatric clients of Barney Neighborhood House in Washington, D.C.

Wayfinding in mental health represents a major contribution to the national and international rehabilitation movements. Research suggests that a lack of travel skills primarily contributed to psychiatric clients noncompliance with community-based mental health service. Often their release into the community to participate in normalization activities resulted in their becoming geographically lost. Technically, a person is geographically lost if he or she is unable to associate current community location with an understanding of the destination that's out of immediate perceptual range.

These clients were frequently found wandering in the community which proved to be counterproductive toward deinstitutionalization.

Over the past 17 years the Drs. Taylor have researched the skills that could be taught to psychiatric clients for competent travel to outpatient services.

In essence the article provides a history of wayfinding services with the psychiatric population. The authors have been designated reviewers for Families in Society Journal on issues relevant to mobility training.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Saturday, February 20	Women's Basketball at Lincoln	6 p.m.
	Men's basketball at Lincoln	8 p.m.
Monday, February 22	Women's Basketball vs. Cabrini (HOME)	6 p.m.
Thurs-Sat., February 25-27	Men's and Women's ESAC Tournament at Frostburg

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

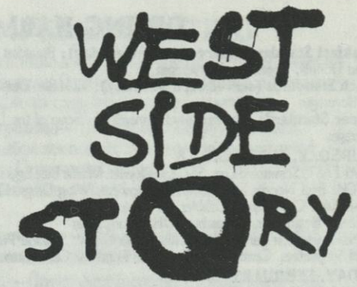
The men's and women's basketball teams conclude the regular season this weekend before playing in next week's conference tournament at Frostburg. For the men, Saturday night's game at Lincoln will decide the Eastern States Athletic Conference regular season champion. Both teams have 6-1 records in ESAC play this year. The winner will also be the top seed for next week's conference tournament.

Salisbury defeated Lincoln 101-79 at home two weeks ago and has won six straight over the Lions. The Gulls jumped out to a 50-32 halftime lead in the earlier meeting between the teams, and finished the game with four players in double figures. Salisbury is the two-time defending conference champion and is seeking its third straight trip to the NCAA Tournament.

The women's team should notch its third ESAC win of the year against Lincoln. The Sea Gulls (9-10 overall, 2-5 in conference) defeated Lincoln 95-39 in their earlier meeting this season. Salisbury will likely play Lincoln again in the opening round of the ESAC Tournament next week as the two teams will probably be the fourth and fifth seeds.

As the season winds down, two Salisbury players have a shot at winning individual statistical titles in Division III. Dameon Ross is currently second in the nation in scoring with a 28.1 average. A big week could propel him to the top of the scoring chart. For the women, sophomore Kim Roth is second in rebounding with 15.1/game. She trails the current leader by nearly one rebound per contest.

Practice has also begun for most of the spring sports squads. The baseball and men's lacrosse teams will be the first ones to open play officially. Baseball coach Deane Deshon begins his 30th season on March 6 with a home doubleheader against Kean. The men's lacrosse team opens the following day against Roanoke. That game will be played at Loyola High School in Baltimore.



'West Side Story' Coming in March

Tickets are now on sale for the SSU Theatre and Salisbury Symphony Orchestra joint production of West Side Story, a late 1950s version of Romeo and Juliet set in the New York City slums.

The SSU production is directed by T. Paul Pfeiffer, with choreography by Martha Pfeiffer and sets by Gerald Patt. The symphony is under the direction of Dr. Thomas Elliot.

Performances for West Side Story are set for Friday and Saturday, March 5 and 6, and Wednesday-Saturday, March 10-13, at 8 p.m.. A matinee performance is scheduled for Sunday, March 7, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and non-SSU students. Call 543-6226 for reservations.

TIAA-CREF Counselor Offers Retirement Planning

The Personnel Office is pleased to offer individual retirement planning on campus with a TIAA-CREF participant counselor. The next scheduled visit is Monday, February 22, from 1-5 p.m. in the Choptank Room on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center. There will be a general interest meeting from 2-3 p.m. Employees wishing an individual appointment should call 548-4755.

While TIAA-CREF participant counselors do not provide financial planning advice, they will assist employees in understanding relevant factors that may impact retirement decisions and provide counseling on a broad variety of benefit options that are made available. Listed below are topics of discussion that can be covered during individual sessions: quarterly statements, annual benefit statements, retirement income options, TIAA investments, CREF investments, supplemental retirement annuities and tax deferred annuity maximum contribution levels.

Personal Counseling Available to All Students

Personal counseling is provided for SSU students by the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), located on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center. The CPPD is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Appointments with any of the three counselors, Dr. Bob McBrien, Kathryn Reading or Patti Selig, may be made in person or by calling 543-6070. Walk-in hours, when a counselor is available to see students without appointments, are 1-3 p.m., Monday through Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students

Pocomoke Canoe Challenge Now Accepting Entries

New racing categories and classifications will make the fifth annual Pocomoke River Canoe Challenge in June an event that canoeists of all skill levels can enjoy. In addition, a variety of family activities will provide entertainment prior to the race start.

The United States Canoe Association (USCA) sanctioned event begins Saturday, June 19, at 9 a.m. in Sturgis Park along the Pocomoke River in Snow Hill. The challenge course winds 12 miles downstream to Cypress Park in Pocomoke City, where the annual Cypress Festival will be under way.

A scavenger hunt, wet sponge toss and a dramatic "canoe drop" of an Old Town canoe from the roof of a two-story building are some of the activities planned for youngsters and adults to enjoy prior to the actual start at noon.

This year's racing categories include novice and advanced and teams of two paddlers entered based on their cumulative age. A novice is a person who has not placed in the top five of a racing competition with five or more entrants in that class. Canoes will be classified as either standard or competition cruiser depending on their measurements. There will also be a solo division for standard, competition cruiser and kayak entries. Prizes will be awarded in each division.

For further details and entry forms, call Paula Sparrow at 957-1334.

Theatre, Symphony Bring 'West Side Story' To Fulton Hall Stage

The music of Leonard Bernstein coupled with a classic, tragic love story will come to life on stage starting Friday, March 5, when Salisbury State presents the popular musical West Side Story.

The University's production is a collaborative effort between SSU Theatre and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and the first time the groups have worked together since their successful 1988 staging of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Pirates of Penzance.

West Side Story was chosen as the next joint production, not only for its popular appeal, but because the story and music are challenging for both actors and musicians. Composed by Bernstein with lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, the music is made up of multi-rhythms and complex meter.

"It's probably one of the most difficult scores to perform," said the symphony's director, Dr. Thomas Elliot. "Bernstein didn't pull any punches."

The music is equally challenging for the actors, because much of the physical action, especially fight scenes, is choreographed to the the score, according to SSU's theatre director Dr. Paul Pfeiffer. Since rehearsals started, the actors have not only had to learn dialogue and lyrics to the songs, but they are getting lessons in stage combat and dance as well, he said.

First produced on Broadway in 1957 as a contemporary version of Romeo and Juliet, West Side Story is set in the slums of mid-Manhattan's West Side. In this case, the star-crossed lovers are Tony, a second-generation American, and Maria, a Puerto Rican immigrant. Like their Shakespearean counterparts, Tony and Maria become victims of their rival street gangs' and families' hatred for each other.

Because the story is as relevant today as it was in 1957, Pfeiffer said he is deliberately avoiding the staging of a 1950s period piece. "I think you can easily say that nothing's changed since then," he said. "In fact, things have gotten worse. Every day, there are more and more stories of gangs in the news."

Assisting Pfeiffer and Elliot in the staging of the production are choreographer Martha Pfeiffer and set designer Gerald Patt.

The lovers Tony and Maria will be played by Craig Davenport and Jennifer Wills. The other leading actors are Charles Price Jr. as Riff, Ed Atkinson as Bernardo and Jennifer Carlson as Anita.

Other cast members are Chris Nazarian, Todd Gillenardo, Lee Standford, David Hyland, Jim Waltz, Amy Black, Cynthia Lasner,

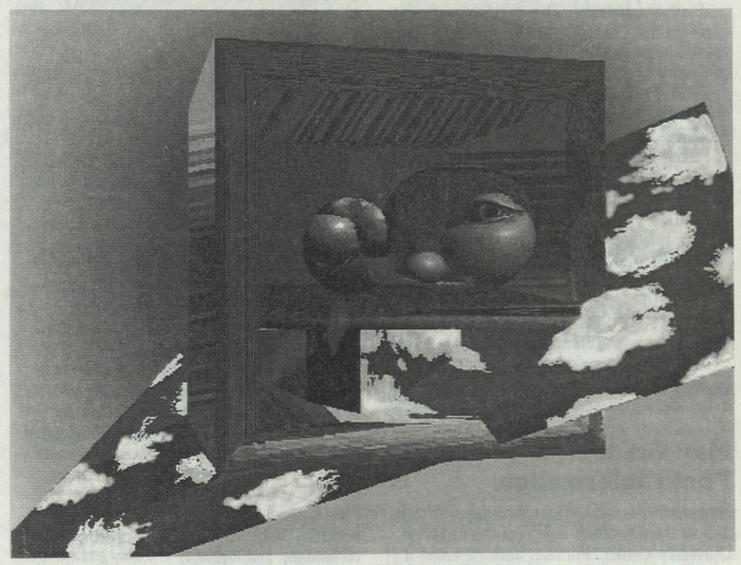
Sculpture Exhibit Opens at Atrium Gallery



The Atrium Gallery located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri Center opens a unique sculpture exhibit titled "Technically Speaking" on Thursday, March 4. The exhibit by artist Joan Burritt will be open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and from noon-4 p.m. on Sundays through March 25. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

The sculpture exhibit is not a display of traditional three-dimensional forms but a combination of abstract figures and interlocking shapes, all relating to one another by computer images that make up a video sequence. The viewer, manipulating simple controls of a computer, changes the relationship and creates new relationships with the figures. The images created speak to both the mind and the heart by suggesting a concern for line, color and form, and by inviting the viewer to analyze these forms and their changing relationships to one another.

Burritt feels the new shapes created by new relationships will be interpreted differently by each individual due to the past personal experiences and emotions of the individual. She said, "The content of my sculptures relates to issues that abstractly represent a search for identity, the expression of moods and feelings, the thought processes of the mind. All of this needs to be re-examined due to our rapidly changing technological society."

Burritt, from Smyrna, DE, received her Master's of Fine Arts from the University of Delaware. She has received grants from the Delaware State Arts Council and the Delaware Humanities Forum and is currently teaching art in the Dover School District and in the University of Delaware Parallel Program.

For more information about this and upcoming gallery exhibits call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.

Children's Books Author Makes Reading Fun

In a few daze, maybe a weak or sew, teachers will fined themselves bold over by what they've herd from a colleague who can billed excitement in his students under the guys of teaching them about language. It's awl in his manor.

Confused? Not if you're reading allowed.

Homonyms, words that sound alike but are spelled differently, are just the beginning for Marvin Terban. With 30 years of teaching in middle school and 19 books to his credit, Terban is well prepared to kick off the Children's Literature Conference at Salisbury State with a presentation that asks "Who Says Language Study Can't Be FUN?" The conference is sponsored by the Education Department and is set for February 26 and 27, when teachers and parents will come together with authors and booksellers in the interest of boosting the reading and language success of area schoolchildren. Terban's presentation is Friday, February 26, at 6 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Like many teachers, perhaps especially in middle school classrooms, Terban one day found himself presenting "a brilliant lesson on the board, an altogether scintillating lesson on homonyms to a group of kids who were barely staying awake. That's when the riddles—and the books began.

Like the words they playfully manipulate, Terban's books are defined by how you look at them.

"Teachers look at them and see language arts textbooks," Terban explained. "Kids see joke books." Knowing that hooking the younger reader was the greater challenge, Terban has designed all of his books with kids in mind. "I leave lots of room for illustrations and lots of white space," he said. He knows that page after grey page of type is apt to turn off a child. Terban instead sneaks up on them with engaging riddles and illustrations. Before they know it,

Senior portraits will be taken the week of March 1-5 in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Portraits must be taken if graduates wish to be included in the 1992-93 edition of The Evergreen, Salisbury State's yearbook. Additionally, this will be the last opportunity for portraits to be taken before the end of the spring semester.

Interested students must sign up at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center now through March 4. There is a $5 sitting fee, and dress is as follows: men, jacket and tie; and women, blouse or the like. Cap and gown portraits will be taken also.

If anyone would like more information please write to The Evergreen, P.O. 3061, or stop by The Evergreen office (second floor, Guerrieri Center) Tuesdays or Thursdays from 2-4 p.m.

Princeton Prof Discusses First Amendment And Free Speech

What is the point of constitutionally protecting free speech and other forms of expression? Do different theories of the justification for such protection produce interestingly different results when applied to cases? Do competing theories of free speech reflect fundamental differences regarding human nature and the human good? How does one choose rationally among competing theories?

These are some of the questions Dr. Robert P. George of the Department of Politics at Princeton University will address in his lecture "If Men Were Angels...: The First Amendment and Free Speech" on Thursday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, admission to the lecture is free and the public is invited.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

David Barto as Henry David Thoreau

Thoreau Comes to Life In March 10 Performance

"Superfluous wealth can buy superfluities only. Money is not required to buy one necessary of the soul...The fault-finder will find faults even in paradise...Love your life, poor as it is. You may perhaps have some pleasant, thrilling glorious hours, even in a poor-house...Cultivate poverty. A man becomes rich by making his wants few."

The common sense words of the fervent 19th century essayist, naturalist, surveyor and frank proponent of self-reliance, Henry David Thoreau, will be ringing loud and clear in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Wednesday, March 10, at 7 p.m.

When David Barto, a high school English teacher from Levittown, PA, assumes the Thoreau identity, he actually seems to bring the ardent individualist back to life. Recreating the period styles of Thoreau, Barto dons a gold vest, open-necked chemise and corduroy pants. Speaking in Thoreauvian prose, he chats, lectures, plays tunes from his childhood on the flute and entertains with realistic bird calls (learned from Indians).

"My performance will be Henry David Thoreau lecturing on various aspects of his life, focusing particularly upon why he went to Walden Pond to live, some of what he found when he got there, and why he left," said Barto.

In the course of his portrayal, Barto will touch upon Thoreau's themes of love of nature, living a simple life in the face of a materialistic world, following one's conscience, the importance of each person's dreams for his life and the value of each person's uniqueness. There will also be a time for questions from the audience about any aspect of Thoreau's life.

"In 1974, I tried something very unusual in one of my English classes that opened a whole new direction for my life," said Barto. "In an effort to interest obviously bored students, I entered my classroom as Henry David Thoreau and claimed to be the famous writer. I spoke about my life as Thoreau, played the flute, as he had, and explained some of 'my' words in 'Walden.'"

When one of his classes was literally moved to tears by his performance, Barto decided to share the experience with others. In 1984, he was discovered by Dr. Walter Harding, Thoreau scholar and co-founder and secretary of the 50-year old Thoreau Society.

"I performed as part of, and participated as a selected fellow in, his National Endowment for the Humanities sponsored by 'Concord Authors' seminar in Concord, MA," Barto continued. "My performance led to seven summer seasons at Thoreau's own Walden Pond and performances throughout the United States and England," he added.

Barto's enactment is free and open to the public. For more information call the Guerrieri Center Office at 543-6100.

Fulbright Scholar Awards for Faculty and Professionals

The Fulbright Scholar Program for 1994-95 includes some 1,000 grants for research, combined research and lecturing, or university lecturing in nearly 135 countries. Opportunities range from two months to a full academic year; many assignments are flexible to the needs of the grantee. Nearly one-third of Fulbright grants are targeted for research and many lecturing awards offer research opportunities; multi-country research is also possible in many regions.

Virtually all disciplines and subfields participate. Specific openings exist in almost every area of the humanities, social sciences, physical sciences, the arts and applied fields such as business, journalism and law. Many offerings throughout the program allow scholars to propose their own lecturing or research projects.

Scholars in all academic ranks are eligible to apply, from junior faculty to professor emeriti. Applications are also encouraged from professionals outside academe and from independent scholars. Fulbright seeks good teachers as well as active researchers.

The basic eligibility requirements for a Fulbright award are U.S. citizenship and Ph.D. or comparable professional qualifications; for certain fields such as the fine arts or TEFL, the terminal degree in the field may be sufficient. For lecturing awards, university or college teaching experience is expected. Language skills are needed for some countries, but most lecturing assignments are in English.

A single early deadline of August 1 exists for research and lecturing grants to all world areas. Other deadlines are in place for special programs.

Application materials are available beginning March 1. For further information and applications, call or write the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, 3007 Tilden Street, N.W., Suite 5M, Box CAMP, Washington, D.C. 20008-3009. Telephone (202) 686-7877.

Student Government Association General Assembly Meeting

The Student Government Association will hold a General Assembly meeting on Sunday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Any interested members of the SSU student body are invited and encouraged to attend. Important issues that affect all students will be discussed. This is an opportunity to be involved in the decision making that goes on at SSU.

Students who have a problem or concern let an SGA member know about it at the General Assembly meeting to help bring the University to its fullest potential.

"SSU would not exist without us, the students, and it is our responsibility to change the aspects of student life that we don't like and continue those that we do," said an SGA representative.

'Tour de Florida' Slide Show March 1

SSU Cycling Club's "Tour de Florida" slide show will be shown on Monday, March 1, at 8 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome to attend.

Some of the intrepid 'Tour de Florida' cyclists.

SSU Cycling Club Does 'Tour de Florida'

What do Krispy Kremes, "honeybells," key lime pie and guava with cream cheese turnovers all have in common? These were just some of the enjoyable experiences the SSU Cycling Club shared over winter break when they headed to St. Augustine, FL for a seven-day biking adventure.

Despite interruptions for Krispy Kreme donuts during the long drive down, 17 tired but well-fed participants arrived to enjoy the warm weather and beautiful scenery. After incredible 50-to-80-mile bike rides, hot springs, swimming, wildlife viewing, canoeing, manatee stroking and snorkeling, it was time to say good-bye. What a way to prepare for spring semester.

Participants were Mike "Moneybag" Boolukos, Joe "Manatee" Gilbert, Valorie "Mother" Gilbert, Dean "Krispy Kreme" Burroughs, Dave "Journal" Brown, Stan Shedaker, Anne Lang, Ann Sullivan, Stacy Pavlovsky, Angela "Screamer" Fridley, Chris Recht, Scott "Beaver" Van Cleve, Jim "Capt." Berkman, Frances Kendall, Carey "Spinach" Steelman, John "Second Mate" Hostetter, and of course, Whiskers "Warm and Fuzzy Helper" Gilbert.

For more fun, come check out the Cycling Club every Monday at 8 p.m. in the university annex (the mobile building next to the Guerrieri University Center). The spring break trip will be here soon.

Employment Opportunities Available at Job Fair

The Center for Personal and Professional Development is sponsoring a Job Fair on Wednesday, March 10, from noon-4 p.m. The fair is open to all SSU students and alumni who are seeking full-time, part-time, summer or internship opportunities. Employers representing large and small business and government agencies will be available to discuss employment opportunities and application procedures.

The fair will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information, contact CPPD at 543-6075 or stop by the office in the Guerrieri Center.

Modern Languages

Applications are now being accepted for a one-year non-tenure track position as instructor of Spanish beginning in September 1993. An M.A. is required, Ph.D. is preferred. Evidence of excellence in teaching is required.

Applicants should have native or near-native proficiency in Spanish and English. Peninsular orientation in language and culture is preferred. Send letter of application and resume by May 1 to Dr. Arlene F. White, Chair, Department of Modern Languages, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Models Needed For Art Classes

Models are needed for both drawing and painting classes in the Art Department. Please call 543-6270 and leave name and telephone number if interested.

Perdue School Students Direct VITA Program

Are you a senior citizen, handicapped or on a limited income and need tax help but can't afford to pay for it? Free federal and state tax preparation assistance is available through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program sponsored by the Perdue School of Business through April 15.

Trained volunteers can provide the assistance and guidance needed in preparing federal and state tax returns. Interested parties should bring their 1992 tax package of forms, wage and earning statement(s), Form(s) W-2, interest statement(s) from bank(s), form(s) 1099, a copy of their 1991 tax return (if available), and any other relevant information concerning income and expenses.

Tax assistance will be available at the following locations: Wicomico County Social Services, Maryland Multiservice Building, second floor, 214 Baptist St., Salisbury, Mondays and Wednesdays, 12:30-4:30 p.m.; SSU's Blackwell Library, first floor seminar room, Thursdays, 5-9 p.m., and Saturdays, noon-4 p.m.; Worcester County Library, 14th St. and Philadelphia Ave., Ocean City, Saturdays, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.; and the Dorchester County Library on 303 Gay St., Cambridge, Thursdays, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., and Saturdays, 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m.

The tax preparation assistance is free and available to all. For additional information, contact the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Give An 'SSU Cat' A Good Home

The SSU Feline Committee is seeking loving homes for these beautiful cats still on campus:
—Sweet gorgeous gray tabby male with white paws (10-months-old)
—Loveable velvet-like black female (8-months-old)
—Cute black and white with black eye patch female (8-months-old)
—Personable white/gray/black tabby female (1 1/2-years-old)
—Shy white and gray female (1 1/2-years-old)

All of the above are very playful, in excellent health, and have had their rabies vaccinations, distemper shots and operations to prevent reproduction. If you would like to provide a good home for a slightly untamed but very loving cat, please see Mia Vye in the President's Office (Holloway Hall, room 237) or call her at 543-6012. Also, if you see anyone hurting the cats, please let Vye know immediately.

Search for Artistic SSU Employees Underway

The staff of the Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center, is investigating the possibility of sponsoring an SSU Employee Art Exhibit.

Many SSU employees spend their spare time in some creative endeavor such as painting, photography, original needlework and stained glass creations. Are you one of these people and would you like to exhibit your work with fellow workers? If so, please respond to the Guerrieri Center Office, attention Donna Forgash, with a phone call (543-6428) or a note by March 30.

This "talent search" is not in any way limited, except participants must be employed by SSU and work must be original. So, step forward and let the Atrium Gallery staff know who you are. This could be the beginning of a new fun yearly event.

Grade Distributions Major Study Underway

When faculty plot the grades of their students on a graph, do they get a bell-shaped curve? Should they? Who cares? If faculty have the answers to these questions, or if they are even curious about such issues, a major study being undertaken here, jointly with the College of Business at the University of Northern Colorado, might be of some interest.

Dr. Memo Diriker, assistant professor of marketing in the Perdue School of Business, will be the principal investigator for this project titled: "The Myth of the Normal Grade Distribution as a Valid Measure of Effective Marketing Education." The findings are to be discussed in detail in three national and international conferences over the next 24 months, and are tentatively scheduled to be published in Marketing Education Review, a quarterly refereed publication of the Educators Division of the American Marketing Association.

For more information, call Diriker at 548-2547.

Khazeh and Decker Co-author Journal Paper

Dr. Kashi Khazeh, associate professor of finance, and Dr. Wayne Decker, professor of management, both of the Perdue School, have written an article titled, "How Customers Choose Banks," which was published in the winter issue of the Journal of Retail Banking.

Bank's efforts to attract (or retain) customers should focus on the issues of service charges, bank reputation, the interest rates on loans, a speedy loan approval process and friendly tellers, according to the research done by Khazeh and Decker.

Their study reveals that in today's competitive banking environment successful depository institutions must have an edge on competition. To find this edge, many institutions have redoubled their marketing efforts.

However, these efforts will be in vain if they do not focus on the true determinants of consumer's bank selection decisions. These determinants are likely to be a function of both the importance of the factor and perceived differences in how banks in a given region perform with respect to the factor.

As shown in the study, important information about the true determinant attributes of consumer's bank selection decisions can be found by combining ratings (scores) for importance and dissimilarity.

Their data can even be broken down demographically to better focus on a particular target market.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Kraft Presents Paper on East European Finance

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, recently presented his paper "Recasting Finance in Eastern Europe: Options and Possibilities" at the Allied Social Sciences/American Economic Association Meetings in Anaheim, CA.

The ASSA/AEA meetings are the main national meetings of the economics profession.

Kraft's paper explored the financial problems of post-communist Europe, which inherited weak and undeveloped financial institutions from the old regime. Key problems include the lack of developed banking systems, large amounts of bad loans that are unlikely to be repaid, and the complete absence of financial instruments such as bonds and mortgages.

Current debate has focused on priorities: which institutions can be built the quickest and which will have the biggest influence. In particular, reliance on stock markets versus investment banks as central institutions has been hotly debated.

Kraft argued that while both types of institutions cannot be built overnight, banks have the advantage of being somewhat less vulnerable to booms and crashes. In addition, he pointed out that government-run banks, whether at the national or local level, can play an important role in filling the gaps in financial markets and in financing projects that may not be profitable for private banks but may be important to local communities, such as environmental clean-up.

Muller and Diriker To Edit Business Journal

Reed Muller and Dr. Memo Diriker, both from the Perdue School of Business, have recently been invited to serve as guest editors of a special issue of the Journal of International Business Education focusing on the "Impact of the Emerging European Market on International Business Education." In addition to serving as guest editors, Muller and Diriker will write the lead article for the special issue. Their article is tentatively titled: "Incorporating the Concept of a Single European Market into Business Curricula."

Bowl For Kids' Sake Aids Big Brothers/Sisters

Students, faculty, staff and friends are invited to join the Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Lower Eastern Shore for its 10th annual Bowl for Kids' Sake Community Day at Cherokee Lanes on Sunday, February 28.

Bowl for Kids' Sake is a bowl-a-thon that raises funds to support Big Brothers/Big Sisters services in the community. Form a team of five bowlers to represent your club, fraternity, sorority, department or friends in the community. Big Brothers/Big Sisters will supply sponsor sheets and team members collect pledges from friends and family, based on the score that they bowl at the event. Prizes include a Williamsburg weekend, a pizza party, t-shirts and door prizes.

The event is endorsed nationally by the Pro Bowlers Association and sponsored locally by radio station WICO and WBOC- TV, channel 16.

For more information call, Gigi Suntum or Lisa Brockway at 543-2447.

Students Observe Nursing Practices in Sri Lanka First-hand

Traveling halfway around the world to the tropical teak forests, mountains and tea plantations of Sri Lanka may sound like an exotic vacation, but for a group from Salisbury State's Nursing Department it was an educational and eye-opening experience.

For almost two weeks in January, the SSU group of five was allowed to teach and observe at the 1,600-bed teaching hospital Kandy General at the invitation of hospital director Dr. A.M.L. Beligaswatte.

Heading up the group was SSU nursing professor Dr. Edna Quinn who was invited to Sri Lanka by a British friend with the purpose of helping upgrade nursing care. In response to pretrip publicity, SSU nursing students Lisa Freyre and George Nepert, as well as registered nurses Norkie Cosgrove of Peninsula Regional Medical Center and Fay Rogner of Dorchester General Hospital (also a SSU graduate nursing student), decided to join Quinn on the trip.

What they discovered made them appreciate what is taken for granted at most American hospitals. "They had very limited supplies," said Quinn. "Patients have to bring their own soap and sheets when they check into the hospital. The doctors are well trained, but the hospital would be a lot better if it only had more resources available."

Nepert, who observed in Kandy General's intensive care unit, noticed that supplies designed to be disposable are reused whenever possible.

Rogner, a neonatal nurse, found a similar shortage of equipment during her stint in Kandy General's pediatric unit. Currently, there is no equipment for testing the glucose level of newborns for hypoglycemia and there is only one special set of lights used for jaundiced babies.

Quinn was amazed to find that practically all babies are born either by Caesarean section or induced labor. "With almost 10,000 births a year at the hospital, they schedule the deliveries," she said. "There are very few spontaneous deliveries."

Health officials in Sri Lanka encourage family planning and are having some success. Many women choose sterilization over other methods, she said.

The SSU group also had the opportunity to see patients with diseases rarely seen in this country, such as leprosy and typhoid fever. Cosgrove saw a seven-year-old child having surgery for a club foot, a common birth defect that is normally corrected in infancy in this country. However, the problem is often neglected for several years in Sri Lanka, in part, because the parents have problems arranging transportation to the hospital.

Freyre, who was given the opportunity to interview nursing students at the hospital, was surprised to find they did not own textbooks. "The students have to write everything down in order to study for exams," she said. "And the tutors have to teach all subjects—they have no specialists."

The student nurses were so intrigued by Freyre's description of Salisbury State's nursing program that they asked her to find them pen pals in order to learn more about American nursing.

In general, the staff was very receptive and open-minded toward the American visitors, according to Quinn. "The director of the hospital and nursing administrators are very forward-looking and believe in the possibility of change," she said.

Because the visit was so successful, Quinn and the others are already planning another trip to Kandy General in 1994, but they would like to find sponsors. Participants in the January trip had to pay their own plane fare, plus hotel costs during a three-day layover in the capital city Columbo (about $1,200 apiece). Housing in Kandy and transportation within Sri Lanka were provided by Sri Lanka's Ministry of Health.

To help sponsor the next trip or to contribute to a fund for supplies and equipment for Kandy General, call Quinn at 543-6420 or 742-7963.

Education Club Meets Twice Monthly

The Student National Education Association meets in Caruthers Hall, room 211, at 3:30 p.m. every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. All are welcome to attend. Lots of exciting activities are planned.

Baptist Student Ministries Holds Weekly Meetings

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Fun and Christian Fellowship every Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome. Meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information call 749-7069.

The Evergreen Seeks Staffers

The Evergreen, Salisbury State's yearbook, is currently seeking individuals interested in producing the 1992-93 edition. Interested individuals are encouraged to attend a meeting on Thursday, February 25, at 3 p.m.

The Evergreen needs writers and photographers. No experience is necessary, however, writing, photography and graphics experience is helpful.

If unable to attend the meeting but still interested in joining the yearbook staff, please call 546-3210, or write The Evergreen, P.O. Box 3061.

Outdoor Club Schedules Weekend Trip

The first Outdoor Club adventure of the spring semester is quickly approaching: a backpacking and caving trip February 26-28.

If the activity brings thoughts of exciting cave exploration, if you can't wait to try out that new pack or even if you just want to try something new, come to the weekly Outdoor Club meetings on Mondays in the Guerrieri University Center annex (behind Maggs Gym) at 9 p.m.

For additional information contact Donnie Clime at 548-7904.

Buckle Up SSU!

U.S. Media, Latin America Subject of History Texts by SSU History Professor

A prestigious new series of modern American history texts features the work of a Salisbury State professor. Dr. Sarah E. Sharbach is the author of "Stereotypes of Latin America, Press Images, and U.S. Foreign Policy, 1920-1933" and is assistant professor of history at SSU.

Sharbach's book takes a relatively new approach to the history of U.S. foreign policy, in that it takes into consideration the domestic situation and cultural attitudes, especially in issues of race, on the homefront.

In the past, historians have isolated the study of international affairs, but as Sharbach pointed out, "Foreign policy is often based on the national mood."

Sharbach specifically looked at the role of the press in the policy this country adopted toward Latin America. "The press often reflects government policy and cultural assumptions," said Sharbach. "You can see this happening as recently as the Gulf War."

In the 1920s, according to Sharbach's study, three stereotypes about Latin America prevailed that were reinforced in the U.S. press: the Latin American as a political child; the backward nations that yearn for deliverance from their impoverished conditions; and the exotic Latin temperament that is alien to Anglo sensibilities. In a description of her book, Sharbach wrote: "Such stereotypes ostensibly served to explain Latin American behavior and political events to the U.S. public; however, these images also served to justify U.S. actions in the hemisphere and defined the United States as a mature, civilized and rational nation.

"In the realm of both press and government," Sharbach continued, "racism was the basis of these stereotypes."

Sharbach's insight into the role of the press in government policy and in cultivating cultural attitudes comes not only from her extensive research, but from her own background. Having originally planned to become a journalist, Sharbach earned her B.A. in editorial journalism at the University of Washington in Seattle. She shifted to history, she said, because of the opportunity historians have to "dig a little deeper."

While she says its "great to get a book out within a year of finishing the dissertation," Sharbach is even more pleased to have been included in this series. "Modern American History" was edited by Frank Freidel of Harvard University and Robert E. Burke, who directed Sharbach's graduate studies at the University of Washington.

At SSU, Sharbach teaches 20th century American history and modern Latin American history and leads a graduate seminar in U.S. labor history.

his readers are learning about language. From Eight Ate and Hey, Hay!, Terban moved on to other word play books like The Dove Dove, which explores homographs (words that look alike but sound different) and to tricky verbs and nouns in his books I Think, I Thought and Your Foot's on My Feet! When taken literally, idioms are kind of silly, as Terban found with his books In a Pickle and Mad as a Wet Hen!

"The secret weapon so many teachers are not using," according to Terban, "is humor." Drawing on his own success, Terban has made it his mission to let others in on the fun. Not only in the books, but in his workshops and lectures, Terban puts the emphasis on entertainment.

Looking forward to his talk at SSU, Terban has been assembling his slides and transparencies with a clearly defined objective. "I want them to have a good time," he said of conference participants. "I want to be informative, to show them where to find humor that they can use."

When the conference continues Saturday morning, focus will shift to teachers helping themselves. Dr. Susan E. Page works with teachers in their classrooms to help them find ways to continue their professional growth and to enhance their decision-making skills. Page is educational consultant for reading/language arts for the Marion (IN) Community Schools and will be the keynote speaker when the conference meets in Saturday's general session.

Small group workshops follow Page's presentation. These range from "Literature Ideas for Preschoolers" to a similar workshop for upper elementary school teachers. Participants will be authors of children's books and teachers who have classroom successes to share. The schedule also makes room for visiting exhibits provided by booksellers and authors, who will be on hand to discuss and sign their works.

Registration for the Saturday conference is $5 and is open until February 22. Those who register at the door will be charged $8. The cost of Friday's dinner and Terban's presentation is $12.95. For more information, please call the Education Department at 543-6281.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 4, 1993 VOL. IX NO. 20

Metropolitan Museum Bus Trip Scheduled

The Guerrieri University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Friday, March 26.

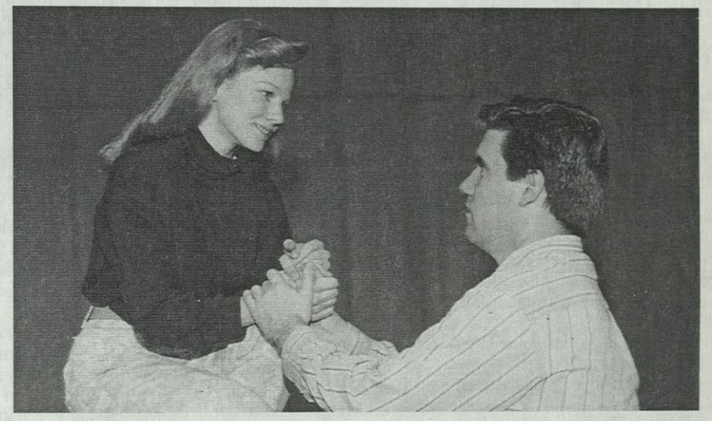
Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m., March 17, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center for full-time students with SSU identification. The cost is $12 and covers transportation cost only. Students must pay for entrance into the museum which is $3 with student identification.

Part-time students, faculty, staff and invited guests can sign up at 8 a.m. on Friday, March 19; transportation cost is $15.

Students, faculty and staff must be present to sign up for the trip and cannot give their seat to someone else. No refunds will be given for cancellations unless the seat is taken.

One of the featured exhibits is "The Greek Miracle: Classical Sculpture From the Dawn of Democracy: The 5th Century B.C." This exhibit of ancient Greek sculpture contains 34 marbles and bronzes that represent the great sculptural innovations and achievements in the depiction of what has been considered the ideal or classical image of the human figure. "The Kritios Boy," "The Contemplative Athena," "Cavalry from the Parthenon Frieze" and "Nike Unbinding Her Sandal" are among the icons of fifth century sculpture on view.

The bus leaves Dogwood parking lot at 6:30 a.m. on March 26 and returns to the same location at approximately 11 p.m. There will be a brief stops for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus. For more information about the trip, call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.



Jennifer Wills (Maria) and Craig Davenport (Tony) share a tender moment in a scene from West Side Story, the 1950s version of William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

Riall Series Lecturer To Discuss Putting Common Sense Back into Education

Ideas for attacking current problems in education and society in general will be offered by a specialist in the teaching of science in a lecture on Wednesday, March 17, at Salisbury State.

Dr. Mary Budd Rowe, a professor of science education at Stanford University in California, will be this year's second guest speaker in the Riall Lecture Series, according to Dr. Maurice Bozman, member of Education Department and coordinator of the event.

Her talk on "Making Certain Choices in an Uncertain World" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Rowe said she will suggest ways that learning science can help people make sound decisions about the "larger choices" in their lives and will offer ideas for putting "common sense back into the business of doing education."

The Riall series, which each year brings outstanding educators to the SSU campus, was established in 1988 by a bequest from the late E. Pauline Riall, teacher and principal for many years at the campus elementary school.

A past president of the National Science Teachers Association, Rowe is well-known for her research in "Wait Time," a procedure that has been found to improve language and logic skills of students studying science. The technique also is applicable to other subjects in the K-12 curriculum areas.

Teachers using "Wait Time" allow a greater time lapse (three seconds or more) while waiting for a student to answer their questions, and another time lapse of the same length after the student responds.

Research in science classes from kindergarten through college has shown that "Wait Time" increases student participation and exchanges and leads to improved performance.

For her work on "Wait Time," Rowe received an outstanding research award from the National Association for Research in Science Teaching.

On another front, research by Rowe and others has shown that school science programs improve verbal and logic skills of students across the board, especially low-income students and the handicapped in kindergarten through primary school.

Other awards received by Rowe include the Robert Carlton Teacher/Scholar Award from the National Science Teachers Association, the University of Florida's President's Medal for outstanding scholarship and teaching, and a Division B Award from the American Educational Research Association for distinguished contributions to curriculum development.

She was elected a member of the National Academy of Education in 1991 and is now serving on the council and the committee of council affairs of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Rowe is on the advisory boards of three major public television programs, "Reading Rainbows," "3-2-1 Contact" and "Voyage of the Mimi." She also has been directing a video project on physical science for elementary teachers, supported by the National Science Foundation in association with the University of Florida. Currently she is advising in the development of Stanford University's program in human biology middle grades curriculum.

Rowe was invited here at the suggestion of Dr. Leonard J. Garigliano, a professor of education at SSU. He said Rowe was his thesis advisor while working for his doctorate at Teachers College, Columbia University in New York City.

Rowe received her Ph.D. from Stanford where she held a Wheeler Scholarship and received a post doctoral award. She taught for eight years at Columbia University and received a post doctoral award from New York University. She holds her master's degrees in zoology and physics/math.

In Third World countries she has done extensive research and development work in science programs in schools.

For more information on Rowe's presentation or the Riall Lecture Series, call the Education Department at 543-6280.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Attention May Graduates: Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee has decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

March 1-5 Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

April 28-May 17 Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center.

April 28-May 17 Sign up at Guerrieri Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

May 19-28 Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

More information about commencement will be available during the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, The Flyer and MAX for details.

Senior portraits will be taken the week of March 1-5 in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Portraits must be taken if graduates wish to be included in the 1992-93 edition of The Evergreen, Salisbury State's yearbook. Additionally, this will be the last opportunity for portraits to be taken before the end of the spring semester.

Interested students must sign up at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center now through March 4. There is a $5 sitting fee, and dress is as follows: men, jacket and tie; and women, blouse or the like. Cap and gown portraits will be taken also.

If anyone would like more information please write to The Evergreen, P.O. 3061, or stop by The Evergreen office (second floor, Guerrieri Center) Tuesdays or Thursdays from 2-4 p.m.

Sculpture Exhibit Opens At Atrium Gallery

The Atrium Gallery located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri Center opens a unique sculpture exhibit titled "Technically Speaking" on Thursday, March 4. The exhibit by artist Joan Burritt will be open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and from noon-4 p.m. on Sundays through March 25. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

The sculpture exhibit is not a display of traditional three-dimensional forms but a combination of abstract figures and interlocking shapes, all relating to one another by computer images that make up a video sequence. The viewer, manipulating simple controls of a computer, changes the relationship and creates new relationships with the figures. The images created speak to both the mind and the heart by suggesting a concern for line, color and form, and by inviting the viewer to analyze these forms and their changing relationships to one another.

For more information about this and upcoming gallery exhibits call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.

Education Scholarships, Awards Are Listed

The Education Department Scholarships/ Awards Committee invites all eligible students to apply for the following scholarships. Applications may be picked up in the Education Department, Caruthers Hall, room 148. Deadline for submitting completed applications is March 15.

T.J. Caruthers Award: $125 scholarship given to junior or senior education major evidencing scholarship and leadership.

Cecil County Retired Teachers Association Scholarship: $300 given to sophomore or junior student who graduated from the Cecil County public school system and who is a resident of Cecil County. Student must provide evidence of scholarship and leadership.

Institute of Retired Persons Scholarship Award: $250 scholarship given to graduating senior majoring in education whose permanent home is in one of the lower Eastern Shore counties (Somerset, Worcester, Wicomico). Must have 3.0 GPA or better (over past five semesters) and provide evidence of campus and community involvement.

Worcester County Teachers Association: $1,000 scholarship given to junior education major who has graduated from Worcester County public school system. Must have GPA of 2.5 or better and provide evidence of campus and community involvement.

Career Planning, Placement Offered Through CPPD

Career development counseling, including help choosing a major and job placement services, are provided for SSU students and alumni by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263.

The CPPD is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Appointments with career development specialist Terry Clay and placement coordinator Linda Benson, or to use SIGI-PLUS, a computerized career guidance system, may be made in person or by calling 543-6070.

Personal Counseling Available to All Students

Personal counseling is provided for SSU students by the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), located on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center. The CPPD is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Appointments with any of the three counselors, Dr. Bob McBrien, Kathryn Reading or Patti Selig, may be made in person or by calling 543-6070. Walk-in hours, when a counselor is available to see students without appointments, are 1-3 p.m., Monday through Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students

Health Careers Day Set for March 5

The School of Nursing and Health Sciences is sponsoring a Health Careers Day/Job Fair on Friday, March 5, from 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

There will be representatives from over 25 hospitals and health care organizations from the Eastern Shore, as well as many from Baltimore, Washington, D.C. and Delaware. Each organization will have a table set up at the fair with information on employment opportunities in the health care industry.

For more information contact Dr. Edna Quinn or Eleanor Morris of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences at 543-6416 or 6401.

SGA General Assembly Meeting Explores Issues

The Student Government Association will hold a General Assembly meeting on Sunday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Any interested members of the SSU student body are invited and encouraged to attend. Important issues that affect all students will be discussed. This is an opportunity to be involved in the decision making that goes on at SSU. Students who have a problem or concern let an SGA member know about it at the General Assembly meeting to help bring the University to its fullest potential.

"SSU would not exist without us, the students, and it is our responsibility to change the aspects of student life that we don't like and continue those that we do," said an SGA representative.

Employment Opportunities Available at Job Fair

The Center for Personal and Professional Development is sponsoring a Job Fair on Wednesday, March 10, from noon-4 p.m. The fair is open to all SSU students and alumni who are seeking full-time, part-time, summer or internship opportunities. Employers representing large and small business and government agencies will be available to discuss employment opportunities and application procedures.

The fair will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information, contact CPPD at 543-6075 or stop by the office in the Guerrieri Center.

Models Needed For Art Classes

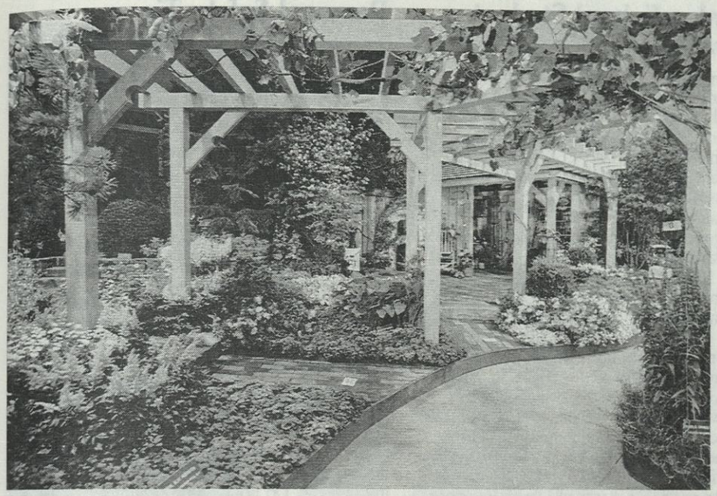
Models are needed for both drawing and painting classes in the Art Department. Please call 543-6270 and leave name and telephone number if interested.

Education Club Meets Twice Monthly

The Student National Education Association meets in Caruthers Hall, room 211, at 3:30 p.m. every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. All are welcome to attend. Lots of exciting activities are planned.

Baptist Student Ministries Holds Weekly Meetings

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Fun and Christian Fellowship every Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome. Meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information call 749-7069.



Van Trip Scheduled to Philly Flower Show

The Guerrieri University Center and the Horticulture Department are joining together to offer a van trip for Salisbury State students, faculty and staff to the Philadelphia Flower Show on Thursday, March 11. There is no charge for the vans; tickets for the show, however, are $11.50 each.

The Philadelphia Flower Show is the largest and most prestigious indoor show in the world. There are 55 major displays including a 7,000 square-foot feature display of "Lion Parterre," a section of a historical garden in Scotland. Also included are rose gardens, tropical gardens with abstract sculpture, a 21st century biotech orchid laboratory, window boxes, room settings, bonsai, flower arrangements and many other artistic and horticulture categories.

Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m. at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center on March 3. Seats are limited and will be available on a first come, first served basis.

The vans will leave at 8 a.m. on March 11 from the Dogwood parking lot in front of the Guerrieri Center. There will be a brief stop for breakfast in Wilmington. Lunch can be purchased at the Flower Show. No food or beverages will be allowed in the vans. The vans will return to the Guerrieri Center at approximately 7 p.m.

For more information about the trip, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006 or the Horticulture Department.

'Radio Free Delmarva' Production Is Halted

Production of Radio Free Delmarva, the weekly musical variety program broadcast by WSCL.FM, 89.5, has been stopped by its producer, Van Williamson. He cited financial and personnel problems for his decision.

This unique radio program showcased performing artists, writers and others active in the arts throughout the region. The show followed in the tradition of vaudeville and the stage variety shows of the past. Comic skits were regular features, as were musical performances, readings and interviews with area personalities working in the arts.

Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL, said, "We regret Van's decision to halt production, but WSCL lacks the staff time required to continue." Williamson produced RFD in addition to his full-time responsibilities as news director at WSCL.

"Radio Free Delmarva was a major accomplishment for WSCL," Marino said, "one of which Van Williamson and all those who worked on it can be very proud."

RFD had been in production for just over three years. The program started as a jazz jam session broadcast from WSCL's recording studio. As attendance increased, the program was moved and broadcast from Caruthers Hall Auditorium. In recent months it was recorded at Holloway Hall Auditorium to take advantage of the larger stage. Programs were produced at the Avalon Theater in Easton and the Ward Museum in Salisbury to show RFD to a wider audience.

In 1991 RFD received an honorable mention from the National Federation of Community Broadcasters in competition with similar radio programs produced throughout the country. RFD was supported in part by grants from the Maryland State Arts Council and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in recognition of its high quality and its importance to the region's arts community.

Looking for a Break? Try Florida This Spring

The American Marketing Association is sponsoring "Spring Break in Panama City, FL." Prices start at $134 without transportation and $224 with transportation. Students who are seeking an unforgettable way to spend spring break should consider this opportunity. Deadline for reservations is March 11.

For additional information, contact Kara or Missy at 742-6314.

Fusaro Presents Paper At Math Conference

Dr. Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematics in the Henson School of Science and Technology, recently addressed the northeastern section of the Mathematics Association of America fall meeting at Trinity College (MA). The MAA is the nation's biggest organization which emphasizes undergraduate work.

In addition to his lecture, "Environmental Mathematics via Energy Diagrams," Fusaro presented a student workshop on "Environmental Mathematics."

SSU Wind Sinfonia Performs in Ocean City

Members of the SSU Wind Sinfonia will perform at the Maryland Music Educators All-state Conference on Saturday, March 6, at the Ocean City Convention Center.

The performance is the second appearance by members of the Wind Sinfonia at the all state conference under the auspices of Dr. Richard L. Johnson, a assistant professor of music at SSU. The Chamber Ensemble, comprised of 15 members of the Wind Sinfonia, will accompany the MMEA all-state junior chorus on a John Rutter composition written for chorus and chamber ensemble titled "O Clap Your Hands." The all- state junior chorus will be conducted by Dr. Russell Robinson, professor of music at Florida State University. The invitation to the Wind Sinfonia to perform at the MMEA conference was extended by Dr. Richard Disharoon, president of the Maryland Choral Educators Association and member of the MMEA executive board.

The SSU Wind Sinfonia membership is comprised of both student and community symphony personnel. Membership is open to all SSU students regardless of their academic major. The chamber ensembles, which are formed from within the Wind Sinfonia, have included chamber wind players, brass quintet, saxophone quartet, percussion ensemble and flute choir.Chamber ensembles perform for approximately 30 University and community events annually.

Students Prepare PSAs To Promote 5K Run

Salisbury State seniors Scott Bethke and Craig Davenport volunteered their time and talents to aid the fight against cancer. The communication arts majors put together a video public service announcement which will air on local stations WMDT and WBOC. The subject of the announcement is the American Cancer Society's St. Patty's Day Run for the Shamrock. Bethke designed and created the computer graphics while Davenport's audio expertise defined the vocal portion of the 30-second spot.

The fifth annual St. Patty's Day 5K will be held Saturday, March 13, at 9 a.m. The entry fee for the race is $12 ($15 on the day of the race). Free t-shirts will be given to the first 250 entrants. The starting place is the Market Street Inn on West Market Street in Salisbury.

The major sponsor of the event is Wyatt Wholesale and Coors Light. Radio station WQHQ will be broadcast live from the starting/ finishing line.

All proceeds raised through the race will go toward funding cancer research, services to local cancer patients and local education programs. For further information and a race application, call the American Cancer Society at 749-1624.

Give An 'SSU Cat' A Good Home

The SSU Feline Committee is seeking loving homes for these beautiful cats still on campus:
—Sweet gorgeous gray tabby male with white paws (10-months-old)
—Loveable velvet-like black female (8-months-old)
—Cute black and white with black eye patch female (8-months-old)
—Personable white/gray/black tabby female (1 1/2-years-old)
—Shy white and gray female (1 1/2-years-old)

All of the above are very playful, in excellent health, and have had their rabies vaccinations, distemper shots and operations to prevent reproduction. If you would like to provide a good home for a slightly untamed but very loving cat, please see Mia Vye in the President's Office (Holloway Hall, room 237) or call her at 543-6012. Also, if you see anyone hurting the cats, please let Vye know immediately.

Search for Artistic SSU Employees Underway

The staff of the Atrium Gallery, located next to the bookstore in the Guerrieri University Center, is investigating the possibility of sponsoring an SSU Employee Art Exhibit.

Many SSU employees spend their spare time in some creative endeavor such as painting, photography, original needlework and stained glass creations. Are you one of these people and would you like to exhibit your work with fellow workers? If so, please respond to the Guerrieri Center Office, attention Donna Forgash, with a phone call (543-6428) or a note by March 30.

This "talent search" is not in any way limited, except participants must be employed by SSU and work must be original. So, step forward and let the Atrium Gallery staff know who you are. This could be the beginning of a new fun yearly event.

Perdue School Scholarships Available for 1993-94

The Perdue School of Business is now soliciting applications for the following scholarships for the 1993-94 academic year:
—The Holland Business Scholarship ($2,000 for the year, to a rising junior or rising senior);
—The Craig N. Piepenbring Scholarship ($500 for the year, to a rising sophomore or rising junior); and —The Purchasing Management Association Scholarship ($750 for the year, to a rising junior or rising senior).

Application forms and details are available at Holloway Hall, room 113. Application deadline is March 5.

Perdue School Student Direct VITA Program

Are you a senior citizen, handicapped or on a limited income and need tax help but can't afford to pay for it? Free federal and state tax preparation assistance is available through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program sponsored by the Perdue School of Business through April 15.

Trained volunteers can provide the assistance and guidance needed in preparing federal and state tax returns. Interested parties should bring their 1992 tax package of forms, wage and earning statement(s), Form(s) W-2, interest statement(s) from bank(s), form(s) 1099, a copy of their 1991 tax return (if available), and any other relevant information concerning income and expenses.

Tax assistance will be available at the following locations: Wicomico County Social Services, Maryland Multiservice Building, second floor, 214 Baptist St., Salisbury, Mondays and Wednesdays, 12:30-4:30 p.m.; SSU's Blackwell Library, first floor seminar room, Thursdays, 5-9 p.m., and Saturdays, noon-4 p.m.; Worcester County Library, 14th St. and Philadelphia Ave., Ocean City, Saturdays, 10 a.m.-2 p.m.; and the Dorchester County Library on 303 Gay St., Cambridge, Thursdays, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., and Saturdays, 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m.

The tax preparation assistance is free and available to all. For additional information, contact the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Grade Distributions Major Study Underway

When faculty plot the grades of their students on a graph, do they get a bell-shaped curve? Should they? Who cares? If faculty have the answers to these questions, or if they are even curious about such issues, a major study being undertaken here, jointly with the College of Business at the University of Northern Colorado, might be of some interest.

Dr. Memo Diriker, assistant professor of marketing in the Perdue School of Business, will be the principal investigator for this project titled: "The Myth of the Normal Grade Distribution as a Valid Measure of Effective Marketing Education." The findings are to be discussed in detail in three national and international conferences over the next 24 months, and are tentatively scheduled to be published in Marketing Education Review, a quarterly refereed publication of the Educators Division of the American Marketing Association.

For more information, call Diriker at 548-2547.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Keller Is Named Interim SBDC Chief

Dr. Richard Bebee of the Perdue School of Business announced the interim appointment of Warren Keller to the position of executive director of the Eastern Shore Region Small Business Development Center (SBDC). Keller will temporarily fill the position while continuing to serve in his normal position as director of the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council (RTC). Both local SBDC and RTC operations are coordinated through the Perdue School.

The former director, Dr. Richard Palmer, resigned in January to accept a similar position with the SBDC in Baltimore. The entire staff except Palmer remain in place and all current activities sponsored by the Eastern Shore SBDC will continue during the interim period. "We want the community to know that its business as usual here," said Keller.

Keller joined the Perdue School's outreach program in April 1991. He served previously as NASA's senior management official at the Wallops Island Flight Facility in Virginia. He will head the SBDC until a search is completed for a new director.

The Maryland SBDC is an economic development organization founded by the state of Maryland and the U.S. Small Business Administration. It is a community outreach program of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development and the Small Business Administration providing management and technical assistance to the small business community as well as providing leadership and assistance toward economic development efforts within the state.

SBDC programs offer one-on-one counseling for small business owners and for people who are considering a business start-up. For more information on SBDC programs, call 546-4325.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's basketball team won its third straight conference championship last weekend by sweeping a pair of games in the Eastern States Athletic Conference Tournament. The Gulls, who entered the tournament as the number two seed, downed host Frostburg State 106-97 in the semifinals, then routed Allentown 123-93 in the title game.

Dameon Ross scored 57 points in the two games and was named tournament MVP. Kevin Cromer (37 points, 10 rebounds) and Tom Wolfe (32 points, 12 assists) were also slected to the all- tournament team. Despite the championship, SSU was not selected to play in the 40-team NCAA Division III Tournament, and thus finishes the year at 18-8.

The SSU women finished their season at 11-13 following an 89- 64 loss to Frostburg State in the ESAC Tournament semifinals. Jen Boone paced the Gulls with 19 points, while Gail Lindenstruth added 17 and Kim Roth had 14. Boone was the only Salisbury player selected to the all-tournament squad. The senior finished her career with 1,210 points, fifth best in SSU history.

The ESAC men's and women's all-conference teams were also announced last week. The Sea Gulls had two players named to both first-teams. Ross and Cromer were named on the men's side, while Boone and Roth represented Salisbury on the women's first-team.

Two of the spring sports teams leap into action this week. The baseball squad, under the tutelage of Coach Deane Deshon, starting his 30th season at SSU, opens on Saturday with a home doubleheader against Kean. The first pitch is scheduled for noon.

The men's lacrosse team begins its season on Sunday against Roanoke College in a game at Loyola High School in Baltimore. The Gulls, ranked fifth in the USILA coaches preseason poll, finished 12-2 last year and advanced to the NCAA Tournament quarterfinals.

25+ Student Union To Expand Hours

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 11, 1993 VOL. IX NO. 21

'Savor' An Evening Of Fine Food, Music and Dancing

When was the last time the two of you went dancing? Not aerobic exercise, but holding each other close while the band played "The Shadow of Your Smile" or "Old Devil Moon?"

Tickets for Savor the Symphony, an evening of fine food, great music and—yes—dancing are now available. This is the fifth annual Savor, which benefits the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University, and this year's event promises to be the best ever. Some of the area's most popular and best restaurants and caterers have signed on to showcase their chef's specialties. And in a season that includes West Side Story and the spring concert, the SSO is in rare form.

While the Symphony's fall and spring concerts are free to faculty, staff and students, Savor is the one event each year devoted to raising funds to support the SSO. Tickets are $30, a fraction of what one might expect to spend for an evening of dining and dancing.

The doors of the Guerrieri University Center open for Savor at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, April 2, and the music starts at 7 p.m. Tickets should be ordered from the SSO by Monday, March 15.

For tickets or more information contact the Department of Music in Fulton Hall, room 200, or call 543-6385.

Musical Play 'Songs from Walden Pond' Comes to Campus March 23

Folklorist Dillon Bustin and pianist Jacqueline Schwab perform the musical play, Songs from Walden Pond, on Tuesday, March 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and the public is invited.

This musical-theater version of Henry David Thoreau's masterpiece, Walden, is in the format of a one-man show, set in 1845-1846 at Thoreau's small house by Walden Pond. Just as the book is an account of one year at the pond, told in 18 chapters from spring around the year to spring again, the musical play follows Thoreau's text through the seasons in 18 songs. Instrumental interludes provide opportunities for the appearances of two solo dancers—one, a man who appears on a summer's afternoon while Thoreau is off sauntering in the woods, named The Visitor Who Calls in Absence, and the other, a woman who appears during a winter's night while Thoreau is asleep, named The Visitor Who Never Comes.

"Henry David Thoreau has been an endless inspiration for composers from Charles Ives to John Cage," said Bustin, who wrote Songs from Walden Pond in collaboration with composer Grey Larsen.

Recently the scholar Walter Harding put together a listing of music which interprets Thoreau's writings and found nearly 200 published works in tribute to him. Most of these pieces, however, are in the style of 20th-century "new music" or modern chamber opera.

Until now no one has recast Thoreau's narrative according to the author's own musical tastes and interests. Thoreau played the flute, and, in addition to the reels, jigs and hornpipes used as dance music in the early 19th century, he enjoyed improvising on the instrument.

"He also loved to sing, and the musical allusions in his books, essays and journals show that he strongly preferred old folk songs and broadside ballads to the elite repertoire of art songs and choral compositions," said Bustin.

"Last year while rereading Walden, said Bustin, "I was inspired to delve more deeply into the song references in the book, such as The Ballad of Captain Kidd and The Children in the Wood to learn more about Thoreau's musical sensibilities. I then began to adapt his text, both poetry and prose, into lyrics in song styles popular with common people in the 1840s. The results are a delight to sing and make Thoreau's ideas accessible to today's audience in a way that presents his own historical period, and his personality, with integrity and compassion."

Bustin is a folklorist, filmmaker and playwright who combines his scholarly interests with his love of theater and the performing arts. As a public folklorist he has produced festivals, recordings, radio series, books and exhibitions, and designed funding programs for the Massachusetts Cultural Council. He has directed four ethnographic films, including The Pearl Fisher, which received the Award of Excellence from the Society for Visual Anthropology in 1987. Among his theatrical productions, the most recent is Tidebook: An Island Rhapsody, a ballad opera about cultural diversity on Martha's Vineyard.

Schwab is a pianist based in Boston, where she is a member of Bare Necessities, Renaissonics and Sgiath Oran. With these ensembles she frequently tours the United States and Europe. She also performs extensively for dances, solo concerts and studio projects. Her work of the soundtrack to the PBS series The Civil War, produced and directed by Ken Burns, won a Grammy Award in 1992. She graduated with honors from the New England Conservatory of Music, in the experimental Third Stream program.

Songs from Walden Pond is sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee and the Guerrieri University Center. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Horticulture Department Has Victory Garden Plots

It's that time of the year when many on campus begin thinking of spring and the planting of vegetable gardens. Last year the Horticulture Department had a tremendous response to the "Victory Gardens" and is continuing with the gardens this year.

Due to the development of the athletic complex, the gardens will be moved across Wayne Avenue to the area where compost is stored and produced. Plots will be 20 feet x 35 feet as they were last year; members of the campus community are invited to sign up for as many plots as desired.

If interested in a plot, please contact Les Lutz by March 30. Please don't be late. Gardens will be plowed the following week.

Metropolitan Museum Bus Trip Scheduled

The Guerrieri University Center will sponsor a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Friday, March 26.

Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m., March 17, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center for full-time students with SSU identification. The cost is $12 and covers transportation cost only. Students must pay for entrance into the museum which is $3 with student identification.

Part-time students, faculty, staff and invited guests can sign up at 8 a.m. on Friday, March 19; transportation cost is $15.

Students, faculty and staff must be present to sign up for the trip and cannot give their seat to someone else. No refunds will be given for cancellations unless the seat is taken.

One of the featured exhibits is "The Greek Miracle: Classical Sculpture From the Dawn of Democracy: The 5th Century B.C." This exhibit of ancient Greek sculpture contains 34 marbles and bronzes that represent the great sculptural innovations and achievements in the depiction of what has been considered the ideal or classical image of the human figure. "The Kritios Boy," "The Contemplative Athena," "Cavalry from the Parthenon Frieze" and "Nike Unbinding Her Sandal" are among the icons of fifth century sculpture on view.

The bus leaves Dogwood parking lot at 6:30 a.m. on March 26 and returns to the same location at approximately 11 p.m. There will be a brief stops for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus. For more information about the trip, call the Guerrieri Center information desk at 543-6006.

Riall Lecturer Discusses Putting Common Sense Back into Education

Ideas for attacking current problems in education and society in general will be offered by a specialist in the teaching of science in a lecture on Wednesday, March 17, at Salisbury State.

Dr. Mary Budd Rowe, a professor of science education at Stanford University in California, will be this year's second guest speaker in the Riall Lecture Series, according to Dr. Maurice Bozman, member of Education Department and coordinator of the event.

Her talk on "Making Certain Choices in an Uncertain World" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

For more information on Rowe's presentation or the Riall Lecture Series, call the Education Department at 543-6280.

Dr. Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by April 1. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Computer Bowl Attracts High School Students

Picture this: 80 high school students and coaches converging all at once on Salisbury State with computers and surge suppressors in tow. Why? It's time for the fourth annual Eastern Shore Computer Bowl. On Friday, March 12, the Computer Bowl, an annual competition for high school students from the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, will be held at the Guerrieri University Center. The event is co-sponsored by Delmarva Power and the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology.

All Maryland and Virginia Eastern Shore school districts were invited to participate, and 17 teams have registered to date. According to Mary Lou Malone, director of the 1993 Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, "We look forward to hosting the competition each year because it is a one-of-a-kind opportunity for local students, who share an interest in computers, to gather for a day of challenge, creativity and teamwork."

Each high school is permitted to bring two teams of four students each. Students will be given two tests: a "literacy" test, taken individually, which will cover basic concepts of computers and computer programming, and a programming test, which will be taken as a team effort. The programming test, which contains 21 programming problems, tests the students' problem-solving capabilities by forcing them to analyze problems, design algorithms to solve them, implement the algorithms as computer programs and test the programs. Each team solves as many of these problems as the two-hour test period allows. points are awarded based on the number of problems solved and the difficulty of the problems. The programs will be judged by faculty from the Henson School and volunteers from SSU's Computer Services Office.

"The 'Computer Revolution' has affected all of our lives," said Malone. "Students who participate in our Computer Bowl usually have a healthy respect for the computer as a machine that does what you tell it to do, not what you want it do. They appreciate the organization, effort and skill which go into designing and developing the sophisticated software which we take so much for granted."

While students take the literacy test and programming test, their coaches will attend two sessions: "Mathematics on a Spreadsheet," presented by Dr. Kathleen Shannon of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science; and a general discussion of the ACM's "Model Computer Science Curriculum for High Schools," led by one of the coaches.

Following the programming competition, the students, coaches and SSU faculty and student volunteers will attend a buffet luncheon, followed by an awards presentation. Delmarva Power, co-sponsor of the event, will award cash prizes to the top three teams to be used toward the purchase of computer hardware and software for their high schools. Each of the teams will receive a plaque, and the members of those teams will receive savings bonds. Each participant will receive an official Eastern Shore Computer Bowl t-shirt and a certificate of participation.

According to Peggy Brinkley, communications representative of Delmarva Power, "The Computer Bowl is a challenging event which encourages teamwork and creativity. Our sponsorship reflects Delmarva Power's support for quality education experiences for the young people in our community."

Outdoor Club Spring Break Trips

With spring break rapidly approaching the Outdoor Club announces the two trips it will run during the week of April 2-11. The first trip is canoeing in Florida on the Peace River and the second is a week of hiking on the Appalachian Trail. Both trips are affordable; the price includes transportation and lodging. Equipment is available for both trips.

Sign ups are at the Outdoor Club weekly meetings starting March 15. The meetings are on March 15, Guerrieri University Center Annex (behind Maggs Gym); and March 22 and 29, Nanticoke Room B in the Guerrieri Center.

For additional information contact Cheryl Rogers at 860-9339.

Karna, Zeigler Perform Joint Recital

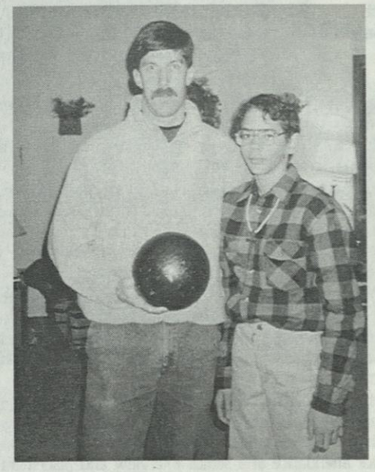
A voice and piano recital by Salisbury State music faculty Dr. Duane R. Karna and Dr. Ray Zeigler will be held on Sunday, March 21, at 4 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The program will feature songs by Purcell, Handel, Mahler, Ravel, Michael Head and Benjamin Britten, and Scottish folksong arrangements by Roger Quilter. Carrie Work, a special guest performer, will be featured on the french horn. Work, a graduating senior in French horn performance from the Peabody Conservatory in Music, is from Salisbury. She will perform on the Canticle III-Still Falls the Rain by Britten, a work written for tenor voice, piano and French horn.

Vocal selections performed by Karna will include: Songs of a Wayfarer (sung in German) by Gustav Mahler, Five Popular Greek Melodies (sung in French) by Maurice Ravel and Two Hebrew Melodies (sung in Hebrew and in German) also by Ravel.

Karna is an assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at Salisbury State, and Zeigler is an associate professor of music. Both teach in the Department of Music in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Zeigler currently teaches music appreciation, electronic and computer-assisted music instruction, and applied piano and organ lessons. Karna is responsible for the vocal/choral curriculum at SSU which involves voice class, singer's diction, applied voice lessons, chamber choir and university chorale. With the assistance of Susan Bender and Barbara Hudson, adjunct music faculty teaching voice in addition to Karna, 32 University students are currently enrolled in private voice instruction this semester. Karna is also the conductor and music director of the Salisbury Choral Society, a position which Zeigler also held for over 17 years.

Sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee, the recital is free and the public is invited. For further information, please contact 543-6030, 543-6100 or 543-6385.



Brad Taylor, SSU computer services director and Big Brother of the Year for the Lower Eastern Shore Chapter, is shown with his little brother, Jonathon Kelly, as they prepared for the Bowl for Kid's Sake benefit for the chapter.

Furnace Town Recreates Revolutionary War

Thanks to a Maryland Humanities Council grant the program "A Sense of Family in a Revolutionary Setting" takes place with the annual Revolutionary War Encampment on April 17-18 at Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill.

Throughout the weekend, several scholars from Salisbury State and UMES will be present to speak to the public concerning Revolutionary War family culture as well as the war itself. Sylvia Bradley, Donald Whaley, Louise Ash, Dr. Polly Stewart, Dr. Della Dameron-Johnson and Dr. Joel Roache are among the educators speaking on such topics as genealogy, folklore and family life during the Revolutionary era. On Sunday, April 18, Dr. Greg Stiverson of the Maryland State Archives speaks about the families of the Revolution. Aside from the living history exhibits, speeches, displays and artisan shops (blacksmithing, broommaking, weaving, printing and archaeology), many intergenerational activities will be available to the public.

Featuring British troops, American troops and camp followers the encampment is arranged on the 12-acre wooded grounds and visitors can wander through this living history exhibit. The weekend encampment involves setting up tents for sleeping and supplies, cooking over an open fire, and musket drills and skirmishes. The camp followers perform tasks typical of the 18th and early 19th centuries such as sewing, mending and nursing. The soldiers give rifle and musket demonstrations and engage in mock battles with fellow re-enactors.

Humanities programs and exhibits and activities take place on Saturday from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. and on Sunday from 1-5 p.m. Furnace Town's daily special event site admission of $5 per adult and $1.50 per child includes all of the activities of day. There is free parking available.

Robert L. Lynch

Arts Funding Discussed In First Amendment Series

"Defense of Unrestricted Arts Funding: A Necessity for Free Expression in a Free Country" will be the subject of a lecture by National Assembly of Local Arts Agencies (NALAA) president Robert L. Lynch.

The lecture will be held Monday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment.

In the past decade, the arts have become a hot topic in political and ideological debates. Lynch will discuss how funding for the arts rose from political obscurity to a subject of furious debate in Congress and in political campaigns across the country. He will also explore the past, present and future of the controversies facing the National Endowment for the Arts as well as public funding for the arts in America. Most importantly, the lecture will examine whether unrestricted public funding for the arts is necessary for free expression in a free country as guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Lynch has served as president and chief executive officer of NALAA since 1985. In that capacity, he serves as chief spokesman for more than 3,800 local arts agencies across the country.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Education Association Meets Twice Monthly

The Student National Education Association meets in Caruthers Hall, room 211, at 3:30 p.m. every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. The next meeting, March 23, features a mock interview session. All are welcome to attend.

U.S., Russian Artist Exhibit in Gallery

Paintings by a Russian and an American, who consider themselves "artistic and spiritual twins," will hang together at Salisbury State.

The work of Randy Michener and Vladimir Opara will be on exhibit March 18 through April 15 in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall on the campus. There will be a gallery talk by Michener at 6 p.m. on Thursday, March 18, followed by an opening reception from 7-9 p.m.

Michener and Opara met two years ago when both were part of an art exhibit organized by the Washington/Moscow Exchange, an organization established to promote cultural exchanges between the two capital cities. Michener was one of 10 Washington-area artists chosen to travel to Moscow for the opening of the show and live with a Russian artist. He was paired by chance with Opara.

Michener later wrote of that week: "Though I speak no Russian and he speaks just a bit of English, we were able to communicate basic needs and ideas in a wonderful pidgin English, but found our mutual visual appreciation did not require words as we discovered the numerous stylistic similarities in our approach to making art."

The Washington part of the exchange was scheduled for October 1991, the same time Michener was having a one-man show at the Foundry Gallery. He asked Opara to stay with him that month and to share the show at the Foundry. Additionally, Michener offered Opara a show at the Northern Virginia Community College in Manassas where Michener is chairman of the Art Department. The two also had another joint exhibition at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado.

The University Gallery is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed Friday.

For more information, call the gallery at 543-6271 or the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Oil Painting Workshop

The Art Institute & Gallery is sponsoring a one-day oil painting workshop on Sunday, March 14, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Monthly Watercolor Workshops

The Art Institute & Gallery is sponsoring a series of one-day watercolor workshops by Mary Talbot Reickert on one Tuesday a month, beginning Tuesday, March 16, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

Additional workshops will be held on April 13 and May 11. Students may select to participate in one, two or all three workshops.

Well known for her expertise as a watercolor painter and teacher, Rieckert is particularly accomplished in landscapes and still-lifes and finds that the scenes of the Eastern Shore offers abundant inspiration. She emphasizes the importance of location painting as a key to capturing mood and a feeling of place when painting. Rieckert's work is represented in corporate and private collections across the United States and Europe.

Cost for each workshop is $25 per day for AI&G members and $30 for non-members. Cost for all three workshops is $65 for AI&G members and $70 for non-members. Supplies are not included in the cost. For more information students may call Reickert in East New Market at (410) 228-3114 or the AI&G at 546-4748. Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team, ranked fifth in the preseason, opened the '93 season with a resounding 10-6 victory over third ranked Roanoke last Sunday. Freshman Jason Coffman, playing his first collegiate contest, immediately made his presence felt with five goals. Senior Chris Soper added two scores, while sophomore transfer Dan Mergott had one goal and one assist. Keith Malfa and Chris Bellotte also netted goals.

Goalie Erik Miller, a transfer from Essex CC, had a record-setting debut in the SSU cage. The junior stopped 27 Roanoke shots, tying the Sea Gull single-game saves record set by Scott Bentkowski against Ohio Wesleyan in 1991.

The Gulls open the home season on Saturday, hosting Hampden-Sydney in a 1 p.m. contest. SSU downed the Tigers 21-6 in last year's game. Saturday's contest is the first of four straight at home for Salisbury. The homestand will also include a visit from the defending NCAA Division III champions, Nazareth, on Wednesday, March 17.

Coach Deane Deshon started his 30th season with the baseball team by watching his squad win two of its opening three games last weekend. The second win, a 12-11 comeback on Sunday over Rutgers-Camden, was highlighted by a four-run ninth inning rally. Salisbury split with Kean (NJ) on Saturday, losing the first game 2-0 before winning game two 11-7.

Newcomer Mike Sullivan enjoyed a productive game against Rutgers-Camden with three RBIs, while catcher Darren Bush hit SSU's first homer of the year and added two RBIs against R-C. Junior righthander Bill DeAtley recorded both Gull victories in relief.

The women's lacrosse team will start its season on Wednesday at Notre Dame in Baltimore. Coach Dawn Chamberlin's squad plays its first three games on the road before opening the home season against Johns Hopkins on Tuesday, March 16. The Sea Gulls finished 8-4 last year and won the championship of the year-ending Maryland State Colleges Tournament for the second time in four years.

Reviewing the program of the first annual Pain Management Symposium are Christina Mullikin, coordinator of the pain management team at the Memorial Hospital, Easton, and Dr. John Zweig, psychologist at Peninsula Regional Medical Center and biofeedback consultant, both symposium speakers.

Pain Management Symposium Planned

The first annual Pain Management Symposium will be held Saturday, March 19, from 8 a.m.-noon in the Guerrieri University Center.

"The symposium is designed to update health care professionals on the latest methods of pain management in patients," said Carol Mears, chairperson. It is an outgrowth of the Eastern Shore Oncology Conference, which has been held for many years.

Several organizations and institutions have gotten involved in planning this event, including Peninsula Regional Medical Center, SSU's Nursing Department, the American Cancer Society, Coastal Hospice and Homehealth Center," Mears said.

According to Mears, some of the main objectives of the symposium are to differentiate between acute and chronic pain, identify barriers to successful pain management, identify the basic components of pain management, review all the methods of pain control and learn methods of managing side effects.

The symposium should appeal to any health care professional who cares for any patient suffering pain. The registration fee is $10, with the exception of full-time nursing students, who may attend at no charge.

Registration forms must be received by March 12. For more information or a registration form, call the American Cancer Society at 749-1624.

Gala Proceeds To Benefit Gallery

An evening of gourmet food, champagne and artwork by one of America's foremost 20th century painters awaits guests at the Salisbury State University Foundation's Gala for the Gallery set for Friday, June 4.

This year all proceeds from the Gala will go to the new University Gallery in Fulton Hall since recent state budget cuts have put SSU in the position of being unable to fully fund it.

Instead of one large event on campus as in years past, guests at this year's Gala will be able to join one of several smaller gourmet dinner parties in private homes scattered in and around Salisbury. Following dinner, all guests will meet in the University Gallery for champagne, dessert and the opening of an exhibit of drawings by Edward Hopper titled "Seeds of Genius."

Because the hosts of the small dinner parties are also donating the food, the Foundation will have very little in overhead expenses at this year's Gala. As a result, the Gallery will receive the full proceeds from each person's $100 ticket.

The University Gallery opened in September with a major exhibition of prints by Spanish surrealist Joan Miro. The Gallery's state-of-the-art climate control system makes it possible for important, museum-quality artwork, such as Hopper's drawings and Miro's print, to be shown on the Eastern Shore for the first time.

Hopper (1882-1967), who divided his time between New York City and Truro, MA, produced a large body of work at both locations and is equally well known for his cityscapes and Cape Cod landscapes. Despite the difference in locale, his New York and Truro works both show where Hopper's interest lay— architectural structures, room interiors, rooftops and empty paths and streets.

Hopper was a contemporary of Grant Wood, Thomas Hart Benton and other painters of the American Scene, but he intensely disliked that group. Instead, he looked to one of his teachers, Robert Henri, 19th century American painter Thomas Eakins and Civil War photographer Matthew Brady for his inspiration.

Hopper's first paintings to attract attention were of Cape Cod—old lighthouses, gas stations, old houses and the rocks and dunes along the water. It is those subjects that are predominate in the drawing exhibit coming to the University Gallery.

Guests at the Gala will be eligible to win a long weekend at Hopper's Cape Cod home where the drawings in the Gallery exhibit were found.

For more information or to purchase tickets, call the SSU Foundation office at 543-6175.

Federal Reserve Governor Is Executive-in-Residence For Perdue School

Dr. Susan M. Phillips of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System will discuss "U.S. Economic Situation— Perspectives from the Federal Reserve" on Friday, March 26, at 11 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, the hour-long presentation is free and open to the public.

Phillips, who will spend the day on campus with Perdue School students and faculty as an Executive-in-Residence, was sworn in on December 2 as a board member with the Federal Reserve System to fill an unexpired term ending in 1998. Her areas of specialization include options and commodity futures, financial management and economic theory of regulation.

She is the author of many scholarly publications, including a book written with J. Richard Zecher titled, "The SEC and the Public Interest."

"We are pleased to have such a distinguished Federal Reserve Governor, Susan Phillips, on campus as part of the Perdue School's Executive-in-Residence program," said Dr. Richard F. Bebee, dean of the Perdue School. "We are looking forward to Dr. Phillips' insights about the workings of the Federal Reserve."

The Executive-in-Residence program was inaugurated last fall by the Perdue School.

Phillips was born December 23, 1944, in Richmond, VA. She received a B.A. in mathematics from Agnes Scott College in 1967, an M.S. in finance and insurance from Louisiana State University in 1971, and a Ph.D. in finance and economics from Louisiana State University in 1973.

Before becoming a member of the Board of Governors, Phillips served as vice president for finance and university services, and professor of finance at the College of Business Administration at the University of Iowa (1987-91).

Phillips was an assistant professor at Louisiana State University from 1973-74. She joined the University of Iowa in 1974 as an assistant professor of business administration. In 1976-77, she was a Brookings Economic Policy Fellow, and spent the following year as an SEC

Students Enriched After Louisiana Trip To Build Habitat for Humanity Homes

Working at a Habitat For Humanity site in Louisiana are SSU student Jill Zucker, left, and December graduate Kristin Monks. Call Center employee Bobbie Malcolm is in the background.

What to do over the month-long semester break at Salisbury State. isn't always an easy decision for some students. While some may opt for ski vacations or sign up for mini-mester courses at the University, this year one small group decided to work for Habitat For Humanity in hurricane-ravaged Louisiana.

"Instead of sitting around the house watching TV, I thought I'd go down and help," said Marc Moyer, a senior from Gaithersburg.

Helping victims of Hurricane Andrew was nothing new for SSU students. Since last September, members of the Residence Hall Association have held bake sales and other fund-raising events to help the people of Homestead, FL.

Likewise, students have volunteered their time to Habitat in the Salisbury area for the past several years. The trip to Louisiana, however, was their first outside of the immediate area.

Shortly before the Christmas break, SSU's administrative services director and advisor to the campus Habitat group, Richard Yobst, put in a call to Pamela Rosen, president of the student Habitat chapter, and asked her to get a group together for the trip. Within a few days, Rosen had recruited eight students, plus three employees of the Call Center where Rosen works part time.

Although Yobst's intention was to take the group to Florida where all of the campus donations had been sent, Habitat International said their help was greatly needed in the New Iberia, LA area instead.

The group set out on the trip in an SSU van pulling a rented trailer full of the food and other provisions they would need during their week's stay. Food and cash donations were provided by University Dining Services, McDonald's, Pepsi, Lankford-Sysco, the Call Center and the SSU Foundation. Driving straight through to New Orleans, the SSU group stayed one night at Tulane University before setting out for New Iberia.

The area in which they would live and work for the next week was in a poor, rural area of the state in the heart of Cajun country. At first glance, the area appeared to have been completely devastated by the hurricane, but the group soon discovered that the crude shacks in which some people were living was the way life had always been for them.

"I've never seen such poverty like I did in Louisiana. It was rough," said Rosen. "It was beautiful out there, though, and the people where really friendly."

On the first day, the group worked on repairs to a convent which was being converted into dormitory space for volunteers. The remaining four days were spent working on a three-bedroom house. With the help of four Canadian carpenters, they completed the foundation, floor, framing, roof, siding, insulation and exterior doors and windows.

"I've worked for Habitat in Salisbury a few times on weekends, but I never got to see the end product," said Moyer. "It was more satisfying in Louisiana because you could see the work in progress. And after five days, you knew you had really worked."

They slept at night in an old one-room schoolhouse on Red Cross cots and shared one

Campus Habitat Chapter Enlists Entire University To Build New Home

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is embarking on an ambitious project which the organization hopes will be supported by the entire University community: raising $34,000 through individual contributions to finance the building of a home for a needy family.

If the fund drive, scheduled for April 19-30, is successful, construction of the house would begin this fall and be completed within a year. In addition to financial contributions, the newly formed campus Habitat chapter hopes students, faculty and staff will actually build the house. According to Habitat officials no other college or university has both secured funding and built a Habitat home within a year. Salisbury State would be the first.

The genesis of the idea occurred while members of the campus Habitat chapter spent

Musical Play 'Songs from Walden Pond' Comes to Campus March 23

Folklorist Dillon Bustin and pianist Jacqueline Schwab perform the musical play, Songs from Walden Pond, on Tuesday, March 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and the public is invited.

This musical-theater version of Henry David Thoreau's masterpiece, Walden, is in the format of a one-man show, set in 1845-1846 at Thoreau's small house by Walden Pond. Just as the book is an account of one year at the pond, told in 18 chapters from spring around the year to spring again, the musical play follows Thoreau's text through the seasons in 18 songs. Instrumental interludes provide opportunities for the appearances of two solo dancers—one, a man who appears on a summer's afternoon while Thoreau is off sauntering in the woods, named The Visitor Who Calls in Absence, and the other, a woman who appears during a winter's night while Thoreau is asleep, named The Visitor Who Never Comes.

Songs from Walden Pond is sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee and the Guerrieri University Center. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Horticulture Department Has Victory Garden Plots

It's that time of the year when many on campus begin thinking of spring and the planting of vegetable gardens. Last year the Horticulture Department had a tremendous response to the "Victory Gardens" and is continuing with the gardens this year.

Due to the development of the athletic complex, the gardens will be moved across Wayne Avenue to the area where compost is stored and produced. Plots will be 20 feet x 35 feet as they were last year; members of the campus community are invited to sign up for as many plots as desired.

If interested in a plot, please contact Les Lutz by March 30. Please don't be late. Gardens will be plowed the following week.

Karna, Zeigler Perform Joint Recital

A voice and piano recital by Salisbury State music faculty Dr. Duane R. Karna and Dr. Ray Zeigler will be held on Sunday, March 21, at 4 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The program will feature songs by Purcell, Handel, Mahler, Ravel, Michael Head and Benjamin Britten, and Scottish folksong arrangements by Roger Quilter. Carrie Work, a special guest performer, will be featured on the french horn. Work, a graduating senior in French horn performance from the Peabody Conservatory in Music, is from Salisbury. She will perform on the Canticle III-Still Falls the Rain by Britten, a work written for tenor voice, piano and French horn.

Vocal selections performed by Karna will include: Songs of a Wayfarer (sung in German) by Gustav Mahler, Five Popular Greek Melodies (sung in French) by Maurice Ravel and Two Hebrew Melodies (sung in Hebrew and in German) also by Ravel.

Sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee, the recital is free and the public is invited. For further information, please contact 543-6030, 543-6100 or 543-6385.

No 'News' April 1

The SSU News will not be published on Thursday, April 1, because of spring break the following week. The newsletter will resume publication on Thursday, April 8.

Math Club Meets March 23

The Math Club's next meeting is on Tuesday, March 23, at 3:30 p.m. in Power Professional Building, room 117. Members will discuss the upcoming t-shirt sale and MAA spring conference.

Look for the "Problem Solving Competition" in Power Professional.

Fall Student Teaching Orientation Meeting Set

Education majors who wish to student teach during fall semester and have completed or are in the process of completing their professional education (methods) classes are requested to attend an orientation meeting on Friday, March 12, from 10 a.m.-noon in Nanticoke Rooms A, B and C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Dr. Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by April 1. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-graduates

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

March 1-5—Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia
April 28-May 17—Pickup caps, gowns, etc. and six tickets at graduation center
April 28-May 17—Signup at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets
May 19-May 28—Pickup extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Education Association Meets Twice Monthly

The Student National Education Association meets in Caruthers Hall, room 211, at 3:30 p.m. every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. The next meeting, March 23, features a mock interview session. All are welcome to attend.

Sports Management Internship

There is a anticipated internship in collegiate sports management in the Physical Education Department. Qualifications include a bachelor's degree, with candidate needing internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of Maggs Physical Activities Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling facility for various practices and activities, supervising facility in evenings, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, assessing inventory, evaluating programs, using computer, writing newsletter and other duties as assigned.

The appointment is for nine months beginning September 1. The stipend is $8,000.

The deadline for applications is April 15 or until the position is filled. Send a letter of interest, resume and two letters or recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Stitcher, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Part-Time Office Assistant

The Affirmative Action/Institutional Research Office has an opening for a part-time office assistant working 25 hours weekly (Monday through Friday, daytime hours only). This is a contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $7.50 an hour.

Excellent typing and advanced word processing, with at least two years experience in WordPerfect and Lotus 1-2-3, is required. Experience in Harvard Graphics or other graphics software package is preferred. Applicants must be able to perform varied clerical and statistical duties with minimum supervision.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, resume, and three references, along with a completed application, to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 by March 22.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Congressman Wayne Gilchrest presented achievement awards to three cadets from the Civil Air Patrol's Wicomico Composite Squadron. All three cadets are sophomores at Salisbury State. Cadet Major Shawn P. Fry, 20, of Lexington Park, earned the Amelia Earhart Award. The award is named for the famous aviatrix and is presented to the cadet who demonstrates exceedingly high levels of scholastic achievement and leadership ability. Cadet Second Lieutenants Cindy A. Johanns, 20, of Wenona and John T. Wolinski, 19, of Salisbury received the Billy Mitchell award. Named for the pre-World War II army flyer Gen. Billy Mitchell, the award marks the point at which a cadet first assumes the roll of officer and leader. Gathered for the award presentation are (front row): Wolinski, Rep. Gilchrest, Johanns; (back row) Salisbury Squadron Commander First Lieutenant Robert C. Chango and Fry.

Wicomico County Forming Teacher Intern Program

Wicomico County Forming Teacher Intern Program Wicomico County teachers attended an orientation meeting in January at SSU concerning a pilot summer teacher intern program directed at math, science and technology-oriented teachers. The meeting was sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and the Wicomico County Public School System.

According to Allan McClelland of the Delaware Science Alliance, the majority of jobs do not require a college degree. They do require a high school diploma. Schools need to graduate students who are prepared to do the jobs available. Industry must give teachers the chance to see the range of opportunities and types of jobs available for high school graduates. A teacher intern program provides teachers with that opportunity.

Dr. Rudy Karkosak of Wicomico Public Schools felt the main benefit from a teacher intern program was the opportunity for professional and personal growth afforded the teacher.

"Educators need to be exposed to how businesses make decisions," said Karkosak. "They look at total quality management, decision making and team effort. Curriculum revision is necessary so that what is taught fits today's needs."

Moderator Jack Heath of American Mirrex in Salisbury emphasized to teachers that "their finished goods (high school graduates) are business's raw materials (employees)." When a business provides an internship for one teacher, that teacher can reach many students.

The tentative time line for the program is: June 1993, completion of program details; September 1993, jobs listing available; October 1993, job announcements; December 1993, teacher applications accepted; March 1994, selection for jobs completed; and summer 1994, teacher intern implementation.

The Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council, operating from the Perdue School of Business, serves Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties.

R. Peter Kernaghan Scholarship Established

A scholarship fund has been established by the Biological Sciences Department in memory of Dr. R. Peter Kernaghan, professor of biological sciences, who died on December 12.

Contributions can be made to the fund by sending checks to the Salisbury State University Foundation/Kernaghan Scholarship Fund.

These funds will be used to provide scholarship awards to outstanding biology students as a memorial to Dr. Kernaghan.

Gus Bus Is Back

Due to popular demand the Gus Bus has returned. It will run Saturday, March 20, and will leave from Maggs Gym every hour from 1-9 p.m. The bus will leave the Centre at Salisbury from the food court every half hour until 9:30 p.m. It will also stop at Movies 6 if requested to do so. It only costs a dollar and is sponsored by the Student Government Association and Appropriations.

Second Start Scholarhip Applications

Applications for the Second Start Orville Rendenbacher Scholarships are available in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, room 243) for the 1993-94 year.

Students must be 30-years-old or older at the time of application and be enrolled full or part time in an undergraduate or graduate degree program. Thirty scholarships will be given $1,000 for each recipient. Applications must be postmarked by May 1.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

In the Liberal Studies Department there will be no change of majors during the two weeks of preregistration (April 12-23). Dr. Natalie Hopson will see only her advisees during preregistration. Advisees should see their appropriate advisor during this period.

Language Use And First Amendment Subject of Talk

"Sticks and Stones: First Amendment, Education and Individual Responsibility" will be the subject of a lecture by Georgetown University associate professor Dr. John Staczek.

The lecture will be held Wednesday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech.

Staczek's lecture will focus on political correctness and individual responsibility for the use of words. "In many ways, language is similar to a loaded weapon that can be used to protect, to intimidate, to empower, to control," he said. "How speakers and writers use language depends on the message, the audience and the circumstances. The user of language, not the language itself, is responsible for the social, psychological and political manipulation."

Staczek is on the faculty of the School of Languages and Linguistics at Georgetown University. He also is a member of the board of directors of the Georgetown University Press and serves as editor of linguistics and romance languages.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture series is designed to encourage discussion on issues such as the impact of "political correctness," restricted National Endowment for the Arts funding and recent court decisions regarding hate speech.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Nursing Scholarship For Maryland Residents

Applications for the State Nursing Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, room 243). The deadline is June 30.

The scholarship is to provide financial assistance to full- or part-time nursing students. Applicants must have a cumulative GPA of 3.0, and be residents of Maryland, enrolled in a program that leads to a nursing degree or diploma and enrolled for at least six credit hours per semester.

The scholarship is for tuition and mandatory fees up to $1,200 per semester and is renewable annually if recipient meets eligibility requirements. Recipients are required to serve as a nurse on a full-time basis one year for every year they receive assistance.

For more information, contact the State Scholarship Administration at (410) 974-5370.

Clueless About a Major?

Are you unsure about your major? Do you have a major? Are you worried about your career opportunities? Does it bother you that registration is just around the corner? If the answer is yes to any of these questions then the Center for Personal and Professional Development may have the solution to your problems.

CPPD, located in room 263 of the Guerrieri University Center, has walk-in hours on Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. to answer students' questions and to lead them in the right direction. Students are able to talk to fellow students; many of them have had the same questions. CPPD counselors will help students find their interests and skills, then its up to them. This is free, confidential assistance.

Community Service Awards Program Initiated

A campus outreach recognition program is underway to recognize groups and who have provided outstanding community service.

Awards will be presented to a campus organization, a residence hall, individuals (student, staff and faculty) and a faculty member for service learning. Nomination forms are available in the Dean of Students Office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center, and are due March 26 by 4 p.m. A ceremony will be held April 20.

Please nominate a deserving person, self nominations are also accepted.

Alarmguard Sponsors Savor the Symphony

Greg Westhoff, president of Alarmguard Security Services, recently announced his company's sponsorship of the fifth annual Savor the Symphony.

The event, scheduled for Friday, April 2, at 7 p.m., raises funds for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University. "Savor" features the area's finest in music and dining: area restaurants showcase their chef's specialties in an atmosphere of elegance.

While Alarmguard has long been a supporter of the University, this is the first time the company has undertaken corporate sponsorship of Savor. One reason for the change may be Alarmguard's new president.

Westhoff and his partner bought the company last spring. Both were interested in maintaining Alarmguard's ties to SSU, but were ready for something new. "The event needed a sponsor," Westhoff recalled. "And we thought it was a good idea.

"Our interest was to get involved in the University," he said.

Westhoff, who lives in Westchester, PA, just outside Philadelphia, has become a fan of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and finds it "unique." Once he learned about the upcoming fundraiser, he was hooked.

"I've never been to Savor," he said, "but everything we've heard about that evening sounds very special."

The evening beings at 7, when patrons are invited to stroll from table to table through the gracious rooms of the Guerrieri University Center on the SSU campus. Small groups of musicians, strategically positioned throughout the center, entertain with chamber music.

When Savor patrons have had a chance to sample the gourmet creations, the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra gathers and the dancing begins. SSO's director, Dr. Thomas Elliot, strikes up the orchestra; and the music inspires not only the musicians, but the couples who take to the dance floor, as well: popular songs from a more romantic time, Latin tunes with a samba beat and some of the most memorable songs from musical theater.

Savor was conceived as the Symphony's only annual fundraiser. Perhaps just as important as the money it raises is the door it opens to the community. The program features familiar tunes, written for dancing as much as for listening. Savor is just one of Elliot's tactics for making the SSO more inviting to lovers of all types of music.

In setting up the calendar for the rest of the Symphony's season, Elliot adopts a give-and-take approach: the winter concert includes a holiday music sing-along, while the spring concert is strictly classical. In addition, the SSO and its conductor welcome many other opportunities to perform, including a partnership with the University's theater program in a production of "West Side Story."

Tickets for Savor the Symphony are available for $30 per person. They can be purchased from Alarmguard Security Services (1001 Eastern Shore Drive, Salisbury) or by calling 543-6385.

Art Exhibit, Sale at Atrium Gallery

Marson Galleries, Ltd. of Baltimore will host an art exhibition and sale on Friday, April 2, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday, April 3, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Marson Galleries which specializes in exhibits for sale has a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of approximately 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in this unique collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth, Renoir, Manet, Cassatt, Cezanne and others. A fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts are included.

There is a large group of works by such renown distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebgi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima, Saito, Cassigneul, Bourrier, Vasarely, Fanch Ledan, Quilici, Laporte and others.

Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of the Uikyo-E prints is also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection, answer questions about the works, the artists and the various techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited to browse through the collection.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the United States.

For more information on the sale or exhibit call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Auditions Being Held for SSU Variety Show

The Auditoria Services Department produces the third annual Variety Show on Friday, April 16, and Saturday, April 17, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The show features students, staff and alumni of the University.

Auditions for the show are in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Monday, March 29, and Tuesday, March 30, starting at 7 p.m. The sign-up list for auditions will be posted on Monday, March 22, in the lobby of WSCL in Caruthers Hall. All types of acts are encouraged to audition.

The Variety Show also needs volunteers to help produce the show. The show needs students to work behind the scenes and to help with ushering and selling tickets. All students that work on the Variety Show will have money donated to their favorite campus organization. Last year the Variety Show donated $4.50 per hour to campus organizations for each hour that was volunteered.

For more information on how to be in the Variety Show or to find out how to raise money for campus organizations, call Tony Broadbent at 548-4597.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Arts Funding Discussed In First Amendment Series

"Defense of Unrestricted Arts Funding: A Necessity for Free Expression in a Free Country" will be the subject of a lecture by National Assembly of Local Arts Agencies (NALAA) president Robert L. Lynch.

The lecture will be held Monday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment.

In the past decade, the arts have become a hot topic in political and ideological debates. Lynch will discuss how funding for the arts rose from political obscurity to a subject of furious debate in Congress and in political campaigns across the country. He will also explore the past, present and future of the controversies facing the National Endowment for the Arts as well as public funding for the arts in America. Most importantly, the lecture will examine whether unrestricted public funding for the arts is necessary for free expression in a free country as guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Lynch has served as president and chief executive officer of NALAA since 1985. In that capacity, he serves as chief spokesman for more than 3,800 local arts agencies across the country.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Community Players Benefit Planned

To benefit the Community Players, solve the "St. Patrick's Murder Mystery" on Friday, March 19, at Frank's Place. Cocktails are from 6:30-7:15 p.m., followed by a buffet. The evening features a live cabaret performance by the Folk Heroes, an Irish Folk group. Tickets are $20 per person. For tickets call the Community Players at 543-0099 or Class Acts II at 742-6436.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Last week's severe storm cancelled all of the Sea Gull athletic events, forcing a rearrangement of the schedule for all of the spring sports teams. An updated look at each of the teams:

The baseball team, off to a 3-1 start, has had its last three games postponed or cancelled, including last weekend's two-game series against Eastern Connecticut State. Salisbury's last game was on Tuesday, March 9, when the Gulls downed Trenton State 14-6. Dusty Harbaugh led the SSU attack with two homeruns and five RBIs, including a third-inning grand slam. Left fielder Mike Franklin had three hits with three runs scored and four RBIs. Righthander Tom Keating, making his second start of the year, picked up the win. Through four games, the Gulls are hitting .301 and averaging 9.3 runs/game.

The men's lacrosse team (1-0) had their contest against Hampden-Sydney postponed last Saturday. The game may be rescheduled for the week of spring break. The Gulls hope to return to action on Wednesday, March 17, when defending NCAA Division III champion Nazareth visits Sea Gull Stadium.

The women's lacrosse team continues to fall victim to bad weather. SSU has had its first three games postponed or cancelled, and hopes to finally take to the field against Notre Dame on Tuesday, March 16.

The softball team is scheduled to open its season this Friday with a home twinbill against Mansfield. The Gulls had their game with Cabrini, originally slated for last Saturday, moved to May 1. Mansfield is a late addition to the schedule, replacing Hilbert, which dropped off.

The men's tennis team, which finished 8-4 last year and won its fourth straight ESAC crown, begins Coach Dean Burroughs' 20th year on Tuesday, March 16, with a home match against Loyola. Senior Ken Soliday, the team's number one player for the last three years and last year's ESAC Player of the Year, is the squad's top returnee.

Cycle Across Maryland Applications Being Accepted

First National Bank Cycle Across Maryland Tour, one of the largest bicycling events in Maryland attracting riders from across the U.S., has applications available for its fifth annual ride.

With the theme of "Capturing the Essence of Maryland," FNB CAM Tour's festival on wheels will ride over 300 miles across Maryland beginning Sunday, July 25, in Cambridge and concluding at Towson State University on Saturday, July 31.

During the week-long "Cyclabration," riders stay overnight at various host sites across Maryland, often on college campuses. Every morning, the cyclists begin their day's ride whenever they wish, averaging 50 miles per day in what is a non-competitive cycling introduction to Maryland's scenery. While the cyclists ride, FNB CAM tour trucks transport the groups luggage to the next site. The various host sites act as "ambassadors" to that part of Maryland, letting riders know the highlights of the next day's ride. Every evening there is an entertainment program featuring local musical talent or games. Because this will be FNB CAM Tour's fifth summer ride, special celebration activities are planned.

FNB CAM-Tour attracts families and friends of all ages. Riders in 1992 ranged from 9-79 years old. Typically 80 percent of the participants are from Maryland; the others travel for this event from over 25 states across the U.S.

In addition to Towson and Cambridge, stops will be made at Federalsburg, Chestertown, Catonsville, Westminster and Belair. The 1993 route includes visits to historic seaside towns on the Eastern Shore, the Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge, and winding through many beautiful reservoirs and state parks such as Patapsco, Little Gunpowder Falls, Pretty Boy Dam and Maryland treasures.

Registration is limited to 1,500 people. Applications are available at First National Bank branches and at bicycle shops throughout Maryland. The cost of the tour is $140 for registrants before May 3. The fee includes nightly camping accommodations, rest site food along the route, baggage transportation, support vehicles ("sag wagons"), medical support, bicycle repairs, t-shirts, tour books and nightly entertainment programs, including a talent show and musical programs. An optional meal plan is offered.

Call 1-800-842-BANK for applications or information.

Math Tutoring Services Available for All Students

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Science continues to offer the following services to all SSU students in math courses at all levels.

Tutoring services are available Monday through Thursday from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. and Sunday from 5-9 p.m. These services are available in the seminar room on the second floor of Blackwell Library. Tutoring sessions are held in Blackwell rather than the Power Building as a convenience for students. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis. The tutors are students who have been hand-picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring aptitude. Each semester students in math classes are given an opportunity to evaluate the tutoring program.

A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. These instructors are willing to help with all questions even from students not in their own classes.

The Math Lab located in Power Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Each semester new programs have been added to the software collection. Students will be directed to the Math Lab by the instructors.

Graham To Teach Interior Design Workshop

To benefit the Art Institute & Gallery, Martha Graham, a Salisbury interior designer, will give a Sunday workshop on March 21 from 2-5 p.m. titled "Interior Design: Living With Your Objects" at the historic town home of Dr. Talmadge Reeves.

The informal workshop will provide an overview of interior design concepts focusing in particular on the display of collections in the home. Discussion will be held on such topics as "When can you consider an object art? How can collections be revived and displayed to their best advantage, and in turn enhance and enliven a home?" People with all kinds of collections, from stamps, shells and paperweights, to fine art, are encouraged to attend.

Graham is the owner of Interior Concepts, which specializes in interior renovations, space planning and design.

England Trip Has Final Interest Meeting

The final interest meeting for a summer travel course to England and Wales will be held Wednesday, March 31, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 112. The travel tour, organized by history faculty member Wayne Ackerson, runs from June 8-19.

Included in the trip are visits to such locales as York, Wales, Stonehenge, Windsor Castle and King Arthur's "birthplace" (Castle Tintagel), as well as other noteworthy stops.

The price of the trip is $1,625, which includes all lodging in four-star hotels, all transportation, airfare, admission charges and most meals. Ackerson, who has led other travel courses and lived in England for five years, feels that the price is unbeatable.

Interested people can attend the meeting but are also asked to contact Ackerson at 543-6527 or 543-6245.

Math Club Sponsors MS Walk Team

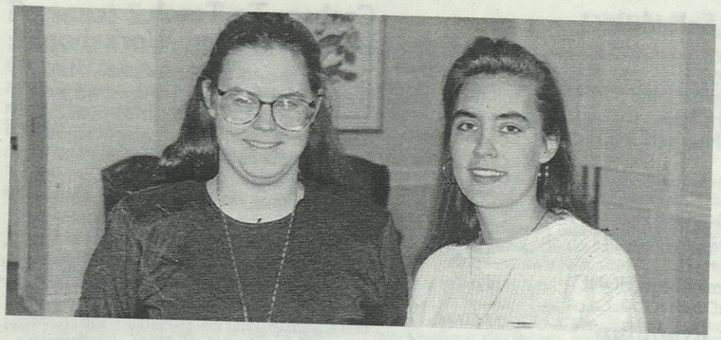
The Math Club is sponsoring a team in the MS Supercities Walk on March 28. Anyone interested in participating should fill out the registration form (available at the Mathematics and Computer Science Department) and put SSU Math Club as the team and Celeste Jordan as team captain.

For more information about the walk or Multiple Sclerosis, contact one of the club officers or Jordan (Power Professional Building, room 117). Details will be discussed at the next Math Club meeting on Tuesday, March 23, at 3:30 p.m. in room 117 of the Power Building.

Tickets Available For Cooking Show

Anyone interested in tickets for the Southern Living Cooking Show on Tuesday, March 30, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center please contact Renee Stephens in the Perdue Center for Professional Development (548-4505). The event is sponsored by the Salisbury Junior League and proceeds go to Joseph House Village, Project Read and other charitable projects.

Tickets are $5 and there are two shows, 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. There will be national exhibitors in addition to the show, demonstrating new foods and giving samples and coupons. This is the first year that Southern Living has agreed to come to Salisbury, and the Junior League would appreciate support from the community.



Arts administration interns Beth Nelson, left, and Kristin Lyons

Arts Administration Pair Are Interns in D.C.

In the past year two SSU students, Kristin Lyons and Beth Nelson, served as arts administration interns in Washington D.C. Lyons and Nelson are communication arts majors working in the theatre program at SSU with special emphasis on arts administration, an interdisciplinary program initiated by James Burgess of the Art Department, Dr. Thomas Elliot of the Music Department and Dr. Andrew Hepburn of the theatre program.

Having studied arts administration with communication arts instructor Lee Whaley, Lyons and Nelson then looked to the nation's capitol for internship opportunities. Nelson worked as an intern last summer with the National Endowment for the Arts, and Lyons, who was offered internships at both the John F. Kennedy Center and the Arena Stage (one of the major regional theaters in the country), chose the latter and is currently working there through April.

Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre, said, "I am pleased that Beth and Kristin were awarded these internships which are valuable stepping stones for careers in arts administration."

First Seminole War Topic of Heidler Paper

Dr. David S. Heidler, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has had an article accepted by the Journal of the Early Republic. The journal is a national scholarly publication that covers United States history from 1787 to the early 1850s.

Heidler's article, "The Politics of National Aggression: Congress and the First Seminole War," examines the congressional response to Andrew Jackson's invasion of Spanish Florida in 1818. Heidler has spent nearly a year compiling a database on all members of the 15th Congress. Using computer analyses, he calculated and cross-indexed more than 16 votes, party membership, regional origin, age and a dozen other qualifiers for over 180 congressmen to determine trends in votes on the Seminole War. Combining these statistics with traditional research in primary documents, Heidler concluded that the youth, inexperience, ambitions and expansionism of the 15th Congress controlled debates and votes more than constitutional principles did.

The article is part of a larger work on the First Seminole War that he and Dr. Jeanne Heidler, also of the History Department, are now researching and writing. Both Heidlers have been invited to present another part of this study in May during the Society of Military History's international meeting at the Royal Military College in Kingston, Ontario, Canada. That paper will analyze the United States' complex relationship with its Creek Indian allies between the War of 1812 and Jackson's 1818 invasion.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

a week in Louisiana in January repairing homes destroyed by Hurricane Andrew.

"Realizing the great need Salisbury has for affordable housing for lower income families, and witnessing in Louisiana and in Salisbury the effectiveness of the Habitat for Humanity program, we felt the University sponsorship of a Habitat home would be a wonderful project," said Richard Yobst, director of administrative services and advisor to the campus Habitat group.

"If the university community can rally around this project," said Yobst, "it will send a signal to the broader Salisbury community that we are vitally interested and an integral part of achieving solutions to the housing problems in the region." The building site has not been determined.

During the fund raising drive, students, faculty and staff will be asked to contribute $5, $10 or $25 to the project. A $5 contribution by each member of the University community will achieve the $34,000 goal.

Everyone who makes a contribution will be eligible for a grand prize drawing at the conclusion of the fund drive. Top prizes include a weekend in Ocean City and tickets to an Orioles game. The project has been endorsed by the Habitat on Maryland's Eastern Shore. the local affiliate of Habitat for Humanity, International. "We are so grateful for the enthusiastic support of Salisbury State University," said Dr. Tony Whall, Habitat vice-president and SSU professor of English. "Our goal is to build seven homes in 1993—an enormous undertaking for a Habitat affiliate that's been averaging three a year for the past four years, but not impossible with this kind of help from SSU faculty, staff and students. Habitat builds homes, but our ultimate objective is to build community. SSU's commitment is tangible proof that the spirit of community is thriving in Salisbury."

Family applicants to own the homes are selected on the basis of three criteria: they must be in need of a decent place to live; they must demonstrate that they are able to make regular monthly payments of $200; and they must prove themselves dependable partners by participating in the building of their own home and others' homes.

Once approved, a family is placed on the list for an available home and they begin to work out their commitment of 500 hours of work. A family may move in only after completing 200 hours of work and receive title on completion of the full 500 hours and after having made 12 on-time monthly payments.

For more information, call Yobst at 543-6219.

shower, but the Salisbury group, who started out mostly as strangers, soon developed a strong bond in spite of (or maybe because of) these conditions. "I only knew two of the girls on the trip. The rest were strangers," said Moyer. "But we became good friends by the end of the week, and we still hang out."

Moyer said the group also became friends with the Canadian carpenters who volunteered during the month when they usually have no work at home. Some from the SSU group are planning a trip to Canada this summer to see them, he said.

Back home, the student Habitat chapter is now embarking on another project—to raise $34,000 during April to build a Habitat house in Salisbury. If successful, construction of the house would begin in the fall.

Williamsburg Theatre Group Performs Colonial Farce

Salisbury State Theatre is host to a mini-conference on 18th century theatre in the American Colonies on Saturday, March 27, when a company of actors from Colonial Williamsburg arrives on campus.

The centerpiece of the day is a production of The Irish Widow, a riotous farce written in 1772 by David Garrick and acted by Williamsburg's Hallem Society. The play is typical of the sort that originally toured throughout the 13 Colonies in the 1700s.

Performances are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the Fulton Hall Theatre.

In The Irish Widow, Mr. Thomas Mettle, a wealthy, aging merchant, uses his control over his nephew William's estate to thwart William's desire to marry the Widow Brady. Old Whittle, smitten by the charms of the widow, plans to marry her himself.

Assisted by William and his friend, Mr. Bates, the widow embarks on a plan to save herself from the embrace of her suitor. All is set right in the end, but not before everyone has been led on a merry chase in this fast-paced farce.

The newly formed Hallem Society is made up of professional actors who perform 18th century plays for visitors to Williamsburg. The group takes its name from The Hallem Company, a group of actors that arrived in Yorktown, VA, from England in 1752.

Hosting the event will be SSU theatre director, Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, whose area of expertise is centered on the theatrical history of the period. Pfeiffer and SSU assistant history professor, Sylvia Bradley, an expert on 18th century politics and society, will preside over a panel discussion following both performances of the play. As a part of the discussion, the audience will have the opportunity to meet the cast and question them about life in Colonial America. Prior to each performance, Pfeiffer will give an introduction to 18th century theatre.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and students. Faculty, staff and students are admitted free with an ID. Due to limited seating, reservations are suggested. For tickets, call 543-6228. For information, call 543-6229.

In a Taxing Season Perdue School Students Offer To Help

While most of us dread tax season, it can be especially daunting to elderly taxpayers. For others, a limited education has left them ill equipped to read and understand the complicated instructions that come in the mail with their 1040 form.

A group of Salisbury State students is helping to turn confusion into caring.

Again this year, SSU students in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business who have completed the tax course required for their accounting majors and have passed an IRS training program will complete tax returns for more than 800 people in the lower Eastern Shore community. As participants in the IRS's VITA (Voluntary Income Tax Assistance) program, these students will spend at least 30 hours each in the program.

For the people who bring in their taxes and get free help, the service is more than helpful. Yet the real winners may be the students themselves.

Laura Jester is one who thinks so. A student and team captain, she supervises eight to 10 other students, making sure they report for work and have all the information they need to answer the client's questions. The first-hand experience she's gaining has "one really good aspect," she said. "We learn to bring together all the skills and techniques we learned in undergraduate work on a client basis.

"When I go into an accounting firm, I can say to myself, 'I already know how to work with clients.'"

The VITA teammates operate like a CPA firm in many ways. There is a supply team, to make sure all the necessary forms are on hand, and a quality control team ensures that the work done is the best possible. In addition, practicing professionals from the accounting community have volunteered to help when needed. Marketing students have adopted this project and are working to get the word out to taxpayers who may benefit. The Modern Languages Department has supplied translators for non-English speaking taxpayers.

The structure for the program was established by accounting professor Joseph Quinn, but

Foundation Grants Go to Nine Faculty

The Salisbury State University Foundation Grants Committee recently awarded nine grants to Salisbury State faculty.

Dr. Elizabeth Curtin of the English Department received a grant for $500 toward travel expenses to attend a conference on "College Composition and Communication" in San Diego, CA, where she will present a paper, "Building a Writing Across the Curriculum Campus Network," and attend three days of panel and workshop discussions.

Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna of the Biology Department was awarded a $130 grant toward expenses to be incurred for reprint permission of essential tables and preparation of the index of his textbook on the biology of aging in humans.

A $500 award was given to Dr. James Hatley of the Philosophy Department toward his presentation and response to a series of papers, "Evidence of Histories," at the 17th

Federal Reserve Governor Is Executive-in-Residence For Perdue School

Dr. Susan M. Phillips of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System will discuss "U.S. Economic Situation—Perspectives from the Federal Reserve" on Friday, March 26, at 11 a.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, the hour-long presentation is free and open to the public.

Phillips, who will spend the day on campus with Perdue School students and faculty as an Executive-in-Residence, was sworn in on December 2 as a board member with the Federal Reserve System to fill an unexpired term ending in 1998. Her areas of specialization include options and commodity futures, financial management and economic theory of regulation.

For more information about her presentation, contact the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Campus Habitat Chapter Enlists Entire University To Build New Home

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is embarking on an ambitious project which the organization hopes will be supported by the entire University community: raising $34,000 through individual contributions to finance the building of a home for a needy family.

If the fund drive, scheduled for April 19-30, is successful, construction of the house would begin this fall and be completed within a year. In addition to financial contributions, the newly formed campus Habitat chapter hopes students, faculty and staff will actually build the house. According to Habitat officials no other college or university has both secured funding and built a Habitat home within a year. Salisbury State would be the first.

For more information, call Richard Yobst, director of administrative services, at 543-6219.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-students

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

March 1-5: Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

England Trip Has Final Interest Meeting

The final interest meeting for a summer travel course to England and Wales will be held Wednesday, March 31, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 112. The travel tour, organized by history faculty member Wayne Ackerson, runs from June 8-19.

Included in the trip are visits to such locales as York, Wales, Stonehenge, Windsor Castle and King Arthur's "birthplace" (Castle Tintagel), as well as other noteworthy stops.

The price of the trip is $1,625, which includes all lodging in four-star hotels, all transportation, airfare, admission charges and most meals. Ackerson, who has led other travel courses and lived in England for five years, feels that the price is unbeatable.

Interested people can attend the meeting but are also asked to contact Ackerson at 543-6527 or 543-6245.

Kinetics Dance Theatre Has Class, Demonstration

Kinetics Dance Theatre presents a modern dance master class and lecture demonstration performance on Wednesday, March 31. The master class, which begins at 4:30 p.m. is in the Maggs Center dance studio. The lecture demonstration is in Caruthers Hall Auditorium at 7 p.m.

The modern dance master class will be taught by Kinetics company member Amanda Thom Woodson, who also teaches Kinetics at Goucher College in Towson. The lecture demonstration will feature four works from the Kinetics Dance Company repertory, including "Oooo Baby, Baby" choreographed by Sharon Wyrrick, "Reflections" choreographed by Dorothy Fried, "Winter Sleep" choreographed by Alvin Mayes and "Speak Easy" choreographed by Liese Frutchey.

Tickets for the performance are $6 general admission, $4 for students, and free to anyone with an SSU ID. The master class fee is $10, free to SSU students. Call Kinetics Dance Theatre at (410) 461-9907 or the SSU Dance Company at 543-6353 for more information.

Art Exhibit, Sale at Atrium Gallery

Marson Galleries, Ltd. of Baltimore will host an art exhibition and sale on Friday, April 2, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday, April 3, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Marson Galleries which specializes in exhibits for sale has a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of approximately 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in this unique collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth, Renoir, Manet, Cassatt, Cezanne and others. A fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts are included.

There is a large group of works by such renown distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebgi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima, Saito, Cassigneul, Bourrier, Vasarely, Fanch Ledan, Quilici, Laporte and others.

Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of the Uikyo-E prints is also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection, answer questions about the works, the artists and the various techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited to browse through the collection.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the United States.

For more information on the sale or exhibit call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Fall Culture Series Flashes Back to '60s

The topic for the cultural events series for the fall semester is "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s."

Topics to be presented are "Roots of the Revolution: American in the '50s," "Civil Rights," "The New Left," "Anti-War Movement," "The Counter Culture," "The Feminist Movement" and "Aftermath: The Legacy of the '60s."

Specific lecture titles have not been decided as speakers have not been determined.

Also, please be aware of the following change. The program on Japan scheduled for spring 1994 will take place in fall 1994. Spring '94 will deal with current issues.

Women's Conference Seeks Workshop Proposals

The planning committee for the fourth annual Conference of the University of Maryland System Women's Forum welcomes proposals for formal papers, workshops, panels or seminars related to the theme "Access to Success."

The one-day conference includes a keynote address by Dr. Catherine Gira (president of Frostburg State University), panel discussions, a film and workshops. Preference is given to workshop topics that teach practical skills, as well as providing information. Conference participants include faculty, administrators, students, associate staff and classified staff. Innovative workshop topics and formats are encouraged.

Some examples of subjects are "Women as Agents of Social Change," "Office and Professional Skills Development," "Layered Identities—Gender, Ethnicity, Sexual Orientation," "Health Hazards on the Job," "UMS Electronic Communications Systems," "New Directions in Curriculum Development" and "Creating a Voice in Higher Education."

Proposals received by Friday, April 16, will be given first consideration. Notification of status of proposals takes place by Friday, May 14.

Participants should submit two copies of a one-page description (typed, double space) of your workshop, plus a resume copy (including the names and phone numbers of two professional references).

Attach the completed workshop proposal form to each copy of the proposal. Mail the proposal to Regina Richards, University College, Room 340, 6525 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, MD 20782.

Questions can be addressed to Richards at (310) 985-7743. The SSU contact is Priscilla Nichols, Academic Affairs Office, 543-6020.

Calcott Scholarship Offered by AAUW

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. The deadline is April 16.

Mrs. Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of the AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fundraising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout group here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Mrs. Calcott was a writer for the Daily Times.

Pritchard Authors Book on Teaching Writing

How can teachers help students build critical-thinking skills and good writing skills? A new book titled Teaching Writing as Thinking offers English and language arts teachers 44 detailed strategies for teaching writing and thinking simultaneously. The strategies are designed to be used with teachers' own writing assignments, and are adaptable for use in grades four through 14.

Teaching Writing as Thinking, written by noted educator/author Dr. Florence Pritchard, associate vice president of academic affairs at Salisbury State, helps teachers guide their students through a thinking-writing process every time they write. The process consists of easy-to-teach, easy-to-understand thinking steps that help students interpret their writing assignments and respond critically and creatively to them. Students who are preparing to compose a persuasive essay, for example, begin by answering questions designed to help them understand what their assignment expects them to do. Next, they use thinking techniques that help them develop ideas for writing and use "thinking frames" to organize those ideas in a persuasive way. Finally, they use additional thinking techniques to refine their writing so that it communicates their thoughts to others.

In addition to providing a wide variety of techniques for enhancing both thinking and writing, Teaching Writing as Thinking includes realistic teaching scenarios in which fourth, seventh and 11th grade teachers use the book's thinking-writing strategies with their own students. A wealth of sample assignments and illustrative student compositions also accompany each thinking-writing strategy.

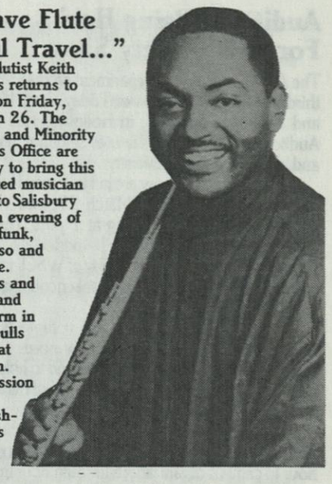
Teachers may use this comprehensive book systematically (progressing from one chapter to the next) or as a ready compendium of independent, self-contained strategies for improving writing and thinking. All strategies are keyed to the familiar "writing process" allowing easy incorporation into teachers' existing plans.

Teaching Writing as Thinking (400 pages) may be ordered directly from the publisher, Shore Educational Associates, 2212 Ocean Pines, Berlin, MD 21811. The price is $34.95 plus shipping, and complete satisfaction is guaranteed. For more information, phone (410) 213-0222.

Pritchard, also known for her nationally-distributed teaching kit, "Improving Test Taking Skills," conducts staff-development seminars related to Teaching Writing as Thinking program. Seminar information and prices may be obtained from her publisher.

For more information contact Pritchard at 543-6330.

"Have Flute Will Travel..."



Jazz flutist Keith Marks returns to SSU on Friday, March 26. The SSPB and Minority Affairs Office are happy to bring this talented musician back to Salisbury for an evening of jazz, funk, calypso and reggae. Marks and his band perform in the Gulls Nest at 8 p.m. Admission and refreshments are free.

Scholarships Offered To Upper-class Women

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for application is Friday, April 16.

New Award Recognizes Student Leadership

The Student Government Association and the Appropriations Board are pleased to announce the funding for an annual Outstanding Leader Scholarship Award to be presented at the Student Leadership Awards Ceremony on April 29. The award will be a credit toward tuition and fees.

The maximum award amount appropriated is $2,500; the maximum number of recipients will not exceed 10 in any given school year. (If 10 applicants win they will each receive $250 a piece.) The number of awards will be based on the number of applicants.

The eligibility requirements for making a nomination follow:

—Full-time, matriculated, undergraduate student with at least one full-time semester remaining before graduation.

—Students who are currently involved in one or more University recognized student organizations and have shown outstanding leadership qualities and or contributions for the organization(s). Students must have been members of at least one student organization for at least two semesters prior to the award semester. To apply for this year's award, nominees must have been a member of a single organization for both the spring and fall of 1992.

—Any student with a 2.5 or better GPA.

If you know someone who meets the above criteria please submit an application. Applications are available in the Student Activities Office, the Dean of Students Office and the Appropriations Board Office. All applications must be completed and returned to one of the above locations by Friday, April 2. A completed application must include the application form, two letters of recommendation, a resume of involved activities, and a paragraph on the contributions the nominee has made to an organization. At least one recommendation must be from the organization's advisor or a faculty/staff member who has worked closely with the nominee.

Auditions Being Held For SSU Variety Show

The Auditoria Services Department produces the third annual Variety Show on Friday, April 16, and Saturday, April 17, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The show features students, staff and alumni of the University.

Auditions for the show are in Holloway Hall Auditorium on Monday, March 29, and Tuesday, March 30, starting at 7 p.m. The sign-up list for auditions will be posted on Monday, March 22, in the lobby of WSCL in Caruthers Hall. All types of acts are encouraged to audition.

The Variety Show also needs volunteers to help produce the show. The show needs students to work behind the scenes and to help with ushering and selling tickets. All students that work on the Variety Show will have money donated to their favorite campus organization. Last year the Variety Show donated $4.50 per hour to campus organizations for each hour that was volunteered.

For more information on how to be in the Variety Show or to find out how to raise money for campus organizations, call Tony Broadbent at 548-4597.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Community Service Awards Program Initiated

A campus outreach recognition program is underway to recognize groups and who have provided outstanding community service.

Awards will be presented to a campus organization, a residence hall, individuals (student, staff and faculty) and a faculty member for service learning. Nomination forms are available in the Dean of Students Office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center, and are due March 26 by 4 p.m. A ceremony will be held April 20.

Please nominate a deserving person, self nominations are also accepted.

Math Tutoring Services Available for All Students

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Science continues to offer the following services to all SSU students in math courses at all levels.

Tutoring services are available Monday through Thursday from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. and Sunday from 5-9 p.m. These services are available in the seminar room on the second floor of Blackwell Library. Tutoring sessions are held in Blackwell rather than the Power Building as a convenience for students. Students are served on a first-come, first-served basis. The tutors are students who have been hand-picked by the director of the program because of their exceptional abilities in mathematics and excellent tutoring aptitude. Each semester students in math classes are given an opportunity to evaluate the tutoring program.

A backup system of instructors has been created to aid those students whose questions cannot be fully answered by tutors. These instructors are willing to help with all questions even from students not in their own classes.

The Math Lab located in Power Building is equipped with some software for all math courses and several tutoring packages for some individual math courses as well. Each semester new programs have been added to the software collection. Students will be directed to the Math Lab by the instructors.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Methods Courses Admission Outlined

As preregistration approaches, please remember that in order to take methods classes, students must apply to the Professional Teacher Education Program.

Briefly, the requirements for admission to the program are as follows: completed application (available in Caruthers Hall, room 148); overall GPA of 2.5 including transfer courses, GPA of 2.75 in academic major; grades of C or better in English 101 and 102, CMAT 250, Education 300 and 305, Math 103 (ELED majors only); and passing scores on the general knowledge and communication skills tests of the National Teachers Exam (NTE).

Unless students meet all of these requirements they may not register for methods classes. Please be aware that no waivers are granted.

Applications are available in the Department of Education, Caruthers Hall, room 148. These applications must be turned in to one's advisor during preregistration. Failure to do so results in students being dropped from any methods classes for which enrolled.

Students should see their advisor for further information.

8th Wellness Day Is All About Caring

"Caring has become one of the most important issues of this decade. Human beings, with all their strengths, abilities and scientific knowledge, are still very fragile and susceptible to external forces of the universe," said Agata Liszkowska, program assistant for the Office of Student Activities and Organizations.

"Last year's seventh annual Wellness Day was a great success," said Liszkowska. "It explored the preservation of the endangered environment of the Earth, and how we can save her through collective and unified efforts of each inhabitant. Many students, faculty and staff enjoyed the performances, free screenings, Crystal Light samples, variety of foods and other activities. The participants included many student groups, University departments, and community agencies and organizations."

This year's eighth annual Wellness Day promises to be as much fun. Organizers are eager to teach everyone and to provide as much information as possible about caring for oneself. Many screenings and tests will be available, as well as free food samples and a variety of demonstrations. Organizers hope this Wellness Day helps everyone realize how much jeopardy world civilization is in and how to help. The event takes place on Monday, May 3, from 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. outside and inside the Guerrieri University Center. If anyone would like to help organize this Wellness Day, or has any questions or ideas, please contact Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, at 543-6309 or Liszkowska at 543- 6313.

Education Club Meeting Features Panel Discussion

The Student National Education Association holds its fourth meeting of the semester on Tuesday, April 13.

The club will have a panel discussion with students and teachers from elementary, middle and high schools around the area. It will give students the opportunity to ask questions, and learn how students and teachers feel about their experiences.

The club meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. Meetings are held in Caruthers Hall, room 211 at 3:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Summer Arts Calendar Deadline Approaching

The deadline for Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's quarterly publication, Accent on the Arts, the summer issue which will cover the months of June to September, is upcoming. Information is due in SWAC's office no later than 5 p.m. on April 2.

Information for the listings includes event name, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and daytime phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included.

Accent on the Arts showcases the cultural offerings of a three-county region, encompassing Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties. The Southern Eastern Shore Calendar, the listing of cultural activities in the region, remains the centerpiece of the publication. The listings portion is made possible by a grant from the Department of Economic and Employment Development, through the Wicomico County Department of Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Wicomico County Council.

Accent on the Arts is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 1,000 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

Dr. Gerry Rossi (left), chair of the Department of Education at SSU, and Dr. Velma Speight (right), chair of the UMES Department of Education, were recent participants at a conference held between SSU and UMES about teacher preparation programs.

SSU, UMES Developing Collaborative Teacher Plan

Education faculty from Salisbury State and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore met March 12 to develop an on-going structure to assure collaboration and correspondence between their teacher preparation programs. The meeting follows the proposal developed by the two faculties in response to a mandate by the University of Maryland System Board of Regents.

The proposal is based on principles of distinctive institutional identities, a precedent of collaboration, a commitment to efficiency, an obligation for regional service, and shared values and mutual respect. It maps strategies for reducing program duplication while at the same time strengthening programs in teacher education.

The structure developed by the faculty provides for an inter-institutional forum for teacher education that will assure careful planning, timely response to regional needs and developing innovations in teacher preparation.

Credential File: A credential file is a collection of letters of recommendation, resumes, personal history, grades, test scores, student teaching evaluation, etc. It is made available to employers or graduate schools at one's request. When students or alumni request CPPD to sent a completed file, its contents are duplicated, a Salisbury State University cover sheet is attached, then mailed to the address provided. If students or alumni have a cover letter or application, that can be included in the mailing. To open a credential file, stop by the CPPD during regular office hours. It only takes about 15 minutes to get the process started.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

Workshops: Interview and Placement Briefing–To participate in on-campus interviewing, first attend this one-hour session, which includes an overview of the services available, as well as basic information about the campus interview process. Thursday, April 22, 1-2 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Resume Writing: A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools, discussion includes such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume. Handouts are provided. Bring a draft resume if available. Tuesday, April 20, 3:30-5 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Interview Skills: A must for every senior, this one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing applicants for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested. Thursday, April 15, 3:30-5 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

Taylors' Paper To Appear in Research Journal

The National Research Council accepted a paper coauthored by Drs. Brennen and Ann Taylor of Salisbury State for publication in its transportation Research Record Journal. The referred journal is published irregularly (50 times per year) by the Transportation Research Board. Its peer review consist of members of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Engineers and the Institute of Medicine.

Brennen Taylor presented the paper "Wayfinding Crisis Intervention Theory and Practice with the Transportation Handicapped Severe Mentally Ill" in a workshop at the 13th National Conference on Accessible Transportation and Mobility in Tampa Bay, FL.

A backdrop to the research suggests that a major barrier psychiatric clients must overcome in their transfer or relocation into the community relates to inadequate travel skills. Limited travel skills frequently result in their becoming geographically lost and moving into a crisis state upon his or her trying to access community mental health services.

Technically, a crisis state exists when there is a perception of an event or situation as an intolerable difficulty that exceeds the resources and coping mechanisms of a person. A common client response to a crisis is to be readmitted to the mental institution to resolve the trauma associated with being geographically lost.

This approach to crisis is referred to as the revolving door syndrome which is counter-productive toward deinstitutionalization. Clinicians in community mental health have devised various treatment models to foster clients handling of psychiatric emergencies in the community. The vast majority of those models have failed in achieving this goal.

The paper by Drs. Taylor provides a crisis intervention service delivery model for psychiatric clients who are geographically lost in the community. A wayfinding training selection criteria is synthesized for helping exceptional populations and transportation handicapped mentally ill people access community mental health service via public bus.

In addition, the factors associated with geographical psychiatric crisis is outlined. A crisis continuum based on human physiology is discussed relative to moving into the crisis state.

In general, a client who is in a geographical psychiatric crisis becomes increasingly cognitively impaired. This is accompanied by drastic changes in his or her physiological state. However, the crisis state can readily be reversed upon clients recognizing familiar landmarks which serve as travel guides.

At times clients may have to be rescued by specialized transportation to ensure his or her safety. The trauma will still have to be worked through for the client to enhance their psychosocial functioning. A problem-solving process was outlined of how to work effectively with similar situations through case illustrations.

Neville at Conference at William & Mary

Barry Neville, a lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently attended the 16th annual Learning Weekend Conference presented by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The conference was held on March 4-7 and consisted of lectures from noted faculty from the College of William and Mary and staff historians of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation as well as tours of important archaeological sites and re-enactments of historical events.

The sessions on Thursday and Friday discussed the evolution of the Colonial soldier in Virginia from the Elizabethan period up to the eve of the American Revolution. The focus of each presentation was on the difficulty of establishing and maintaining colonies in the New World as well as the ramifications of European settlement for the various Native American cultures.

The lectures on Saturday and Sunday addressed the coming of the American Revolution with an emphasis placed on why colonists risked their lives and fortunes in a rebellion against Great Britain. Other lectures discussed the question as to whether or not Americans were prepared for war in 1775. On Saturday Neville participated in a debate re-enacting the historical and stormy debate by the Virginia House of Burgesses on whether independence should be declared in 1776. Information learned at this conference will be shared with other members of the History Department.

Esther Flak (left) of Ocean City, a nursing student at Salisbury State, selects her textbooks for the current semester with the help of Kaaren Kundell, textbook manager at the Book Rack. Flak is one of three SSU students who won $200 to be applied to the cost of their books from Follett Campus Resources Co., the Book Rack's main used book wholesale company.

carrying it out is largely up to the students themselves.

Quinn manages to provide support, but gives the students room to learn. "As faculty coordinator," he said "I get it started. But then I try to stand back from it."

He adds that their VITA experience may be fulfilling another of SSU's goals by giving the students a window on the community in which they live. "It can be a kind of social culture shock," he said. "Many of our students are white and come from the upper middle class. They come out of this program with a whole new positive attitude and feeling about people at the lower income levels of society.

The VITA students work at five sites on the lower Shore: Wicomico County Social Services, Blackwell Library at SSU, and public libraries in Ocean City and Cambridge. Schedules vary, but students are available in the public libraries on Saturdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. through April 15.

For Roger Young, participating in VITA was just one of the many things he values from his years as an accounting major at SSU. Young graduated in May 1990 and went on to earn the prestigious Sells Award: presented to the top 100 scorers among the 75,000 who take the CPA test nationwide. Young is one of three Sells Award recipients that the Perdue School of Business is proud to count among recent graduates.

Young says that his years at SSU provided him with valuable preparation for his professional life. "I can't say enough about the accounting staff at the Perdue School."

His employer at C.W. Amos & Company agrees. Thomas Trice is the company's partner in charge of the Eastern Shore offices of C.W. Amos. Trice estimates that there are seven or eight SSU graduates in the company's Shore offices. He says the firm values participation in activities like the VITA program and usually has two or more interns from SSU in the office. "They turn out some good kids," he said.

That seems to be the consensus among area CPA firms. Lester Simpson, a partner at Pigg, Krahl Stern and Co., P.A., says that SSU interns have played a key role in the firm's recruitment and hiring process. He says that SSU interns usually join the firm after graduation. "We've been pleased with the caliber of the students we see from the Perdue School at SSU," he said.

All of which is good news for Dr. Robert Dombrowski who chairs the Accounting and Legal Studies Department at the Perdue School. In fact the only people who have been frustrated by the school may be the recruiters who come from out of town looking for talented graduates.

Dombrowski said, "We typically have had difficulty filling recruiters' calendars. "By senior year, our students have found jobs."

Perdue School Graduate To Be Top Buyer for Navy

Finding a job after college isn't easy these days, much less one that is challenging, offers room for advancement and pays a good salary.

But recent Salisbury State University graduate Sharon Collins has found such a job. Since January 11, Collins has been working as a contract specialist for Naval Air Systems Command (NAVAIR) in Arlington, VA, a civilian office that buys all aviation products for the Navy.

A 1989 graduate of South Hagerstown High School, Collins is the daughter of David E. and Catherine V. Collins of Hagerstown. She graduated from SSU in December with a B.S. in business administration with a concentration in finance.

The requirements for a contract specialist are tough. Candidates for the outstanding scholar hiring program must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better and possess good analytical and communication skills. Collins, who maintained a 4.0 average throughout her four years at the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at SSU, passed with flying colors.

"She was one of the best candidates I've interviewed in the last few years," said John Nyce, one of the NAVAIR officials who recruited Collins. "She was not only bright and talented, but she conducted herself really well in the interview and oral communications are very important in this job."

Collins originally intended to go into banking after graduation. "Most banks have been downsizing in the past few years so there's an overflow of middle management," she said. "I sent out 75 resumes and I only heard back from one bank."

Through SSU's Personal and Professional Development Center, Collins heard about NAVAIR and met with a recruitment team. "I listened to the job requirements and realized they were things I already knew I enjoyed doing," she said. "And I liked the idea that there's always something new going on each day in this job."

NAVAIR is responsible for the procurement of all Navy aircraft, missiles, avionics and related items. A contract specialist's responsibilities include soliciting, analyzing and negotiating complex proposals from major defense contractors, as well as development and negotiation of the terms in the final contracts.

For the next three years, Collins will be in NAVAIR's training program that includes classroom and on-the-job training and job rotation that will prepare her for work at the GS-12 level.

Nyce said NAVAIR has been recruiting at SSU for the past four or five years."We have seven Salisbury State grads working here now," he said. "We've always been very pleased with the people we've found there."

SSU Alumna Receives Chiropractic Scholarships

New York Chiropractic College student Maria-Luisa Carey, an 1987 SSU graduate, has been named recipient of the first New York Chiropractic Council Scholarship, a $1,000 award given in conjunction with the Nuzzi Financial Network.

Competition was open to all chiropractic colleges. From the six participating colleges, Carey's research paper, "Relationship of the Vertebral Subluxation Complex to Organic Dysfunction," was selected as the winner. The winning paper will be published in the April issue of the State journal, New Directions.

Carey also was presented with the Dr. Kenneth W. Padgett Scholarship. The scholarship, named for the NYCC's current president, was established with monies donated by the NYCC Alumni Association in honor of Padgett. Carey is the first student to win the award.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team, off to a 3-0 start, has moved into the number one spot in the USILA weekly poll, released this week. The Sea Gulls were fifth in the preseason ranking, but have beaten Roanoke (No. 3) and Nazareth (No. 1) in the last two weeks to climb to the top spot. It is the first time since the end of the 1991 regular season that Salisbury has been ranked number one.

SSU routed Scranton 22-7 last Saturday as 11 different players tallied at least one goal. Dave Webb topped all players with a career-high four goals. Freshman Jason Coffman's six goals keyed the 10-7 win earlier last week against defending champion Nazareth.

Flossy Owens established a new school record for the women's lacrosse team as her 10 goals helped Salisbury drop St. Mary's 23-11 last Saturday. Owens broke the single-game record of nine shared by Suzanna Mallow (1980) and Kathy Fegan (1981). The Gulls fell just shy of the team record of 25 goals in a game. SSU, now 1-1 overall, hosts Trenton State on Wednesday before taking to the road for its next five contests.

Four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning propelled the baseball team to a 7-5 comeback win over Tufts last Sunday. The win snapped a three-game losing skid and upped the team's mark to 4-3 overall. Brian Holloman scored the tying run and Dave Shull the game-winner to key the four-run rally. Tom Keating (2-2) picked up the win in relief, and Bill DeAtley registered the save by working out of a bases loaded jam in the ninth. Mike Brogden hit a two run homer earlier in the game for the Gulls. Salisbury hosts defending Division III champion William Paterson on Saturday at 1 p.m.

The men's tennis team opened its season with a 6-1 decision over Loyola last week. The Gulls, led by senior Ken Soliday at the number one spot, won five of six singles matches and claimed the only doubles match contested. The men play their next nine matches away from home.

Alumni Begin Campaign To Build House On Camden Avenue

The Salisbury State Alumni Association announces a campaign to build an Alumni House on recently acquired property on Camden Ave. opposite Holloway Hall.

The red brick Georgian-style home will be funded entirely through private contributions from alumni. Architecturally it will bear a resemblance to Holloway Hall while at the same time blending comfortably into the surrounding residential area. Alumni Association representatives anticipate construction to begin in the summer with a fall 1994 opening planned.

"The project has been in the planning stages for over two years," said Alumni Association president Paul Rendine. "We are thrilled that construction is so imminent and fully anticipate alumni support to meet our fund-raising goal."

The SSU Foundation will finance the project initially, allowing construction to begin as early as this summer. After reaching the campaign goal, the Alumni Association will then reimburse the Foundation for its start-up contributions.

The Alumni House will be home to the administrative offices of the Alumni Relations Office as well as the Foundation staff. The facility will allow for myriad alumni-related events to take place in the home and on the grounds. Class reunions, socials, weddings, teas, committee meetings and other types of alumni activities will be held in the new facility.

"It's a maroon-and-gold (school colors) letter day for the SSU Alumni Association," said Anne Miller, vice president of the association which numbers over 12,500 members. "The Alumni House will provide the Alumni Association with a much more prominent place on campus in addition to the many opportunities for reuniting past graduates. Graduates from the Salisbury Normal School to Salisbury State Teachers College to Salisbury State College to Salisbury State University all now have a place on campus to call home. I hope and trust the rest of the alumni share my excitement over this project."

While the SSU Alumni House Campaign will have a great deal of visibility for the Alumni Association, the Annual Fund drive soliciting unrestricted funds will continue as in past years. Monies raised in the Annual Fund go toward scholarships and other on-going alumni activities.

Two existing buildings on the Camden Ave. location will be razed beginning April 5. The Alumni House will be built on the cleared three-acre site.

For more information on the Alumni House Campaign, please call the Office of Alumni Relations at 543-6042.

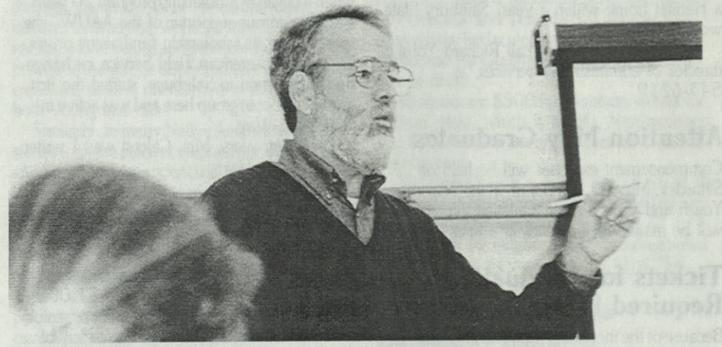
Middle School Students Find Saturdays on Campus Are Super



Dr. Raymond Whall, professor of English in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, is shown with area middle school students participating in SSU's Super Saturday. Super Saturday is a program that invites middle school students to nuture their love of learning.

There's a program at Salisbury State that is breaking all the rules.

First are the students: these 13- and 14-year-olds are too young to be learning about etymology and critical thinking from college professors, aren't they?

And we all know you could never talk a teenager into spending Saturday morning in a classroom. Aren't classrooms supposed to be quiet, orderly places in which students listen calmly to lectures?

And who said school was supposed to be fun?

But here they are: on a Saturday morning, the 20 students in Dr. Raymond Whall's etymology class are giggling, joking and competing to show how much they've learned about language. It's all part of Super Saturdays: a program that invites middle school students to nurture their love of learning. To call this gang lively would be like saying rap music is somewhat popular.

Today, they have split into four teams and are taking turns answering questions about the chapters they read for homework. (Homework? Without credit??) Having taken apart the word "subdue" and come up with a definition, team A (it's picked the name "Foxy Five") has to use it in a sentence. One girl jumps out of her seat to shout, "I'd like to subdue my little sister." Another calls out, "The babysitter was finally able to subdue the children." This class has given new meaning to the term "pop quiz."

Super Saturdays were the brainchild of Whall and fellow SSU English professor Dr. Thomas L. Erskine. The program began about 10 years ago, but had to be shelved when a promotion to dean of liberal arts competed for Erskine's time. The two revived Super Saturdays this year and added philosophy lecturer Claire Katz to the team.

Katz, whose master's degree is in philosophy for children, says she loves teaching critical thinking on Super Saturdays. "The kids are fantastic," she said. "They're very aware, very intelligent, very quick."

While her SSU students have a greater level of sophistication, Katz has found these younger students "give me insights sometimes college students don't give." Without the pressure of a grade point average hanging over them, Super Saturday students are risk-takers, ready and able to take a stab at answering Katz's questions.

Metropolitan Opera Trip Features 'Magic Flute'

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Opera at the Lincoln Center in New York City on Friday, April 16. Die Zauberflot (The Magic Flute) written by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart in 1791 features Renee Fleming and Donald Runicles.

The bus leaves the Guerrieri Center, Dogwood parking lot, at 8 a.m. There will be a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington, DE, and the bus will discharge all passengers at the Metropolitan Museum in New York at approximately noon. Everyone is free to spend the afternoon at the Metropolitan Museum or at other attractions and proceed on their own to the Lincoln Center for the 8 p.m. performance. The bus leaves New York immediately after the performance and returns to Salisbury at approximately 4 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus.

The charge for the trip is $20 and includes the transportation cost and the opera ticket only. Sign-up for full- time students begins at 8 a.m. Friday, March 26, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. Part-time students, staff, faculty and guests can sign-up beginning Monday, March 29.

There is no refund for cancellations unless the seat is filled. Please present SSU ID at sign-up. You may only sign up for yourself. All food and local transportation in New York is not included in the $20 fee.

For more information, call 543-6006. Remember—bring binoculars.

Campus Habitat Chapter Enlists Entire University To Build New Home

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is embarking on an ambitious project which the organization hopes will be supported by the entire University community: raising $34,000 through individual contributions to finance the building of a home for a needy family.

If the fund drive, scheduled for April 19-30, is successful, construction of the house would begin this fall and be completed within a year. In addition to financial contributions, the newly formed campus Habitat chapter hopes students, faculty and staff will actually build the house. According to Habitat officials no other college or university has both secured funding and built a Habitat home within a year. Salisbury State would be the first.

For more information, call Richard Yobst, director of administrative services, at 543-6219.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Saturday, May 29, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-students

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—March 1-5: Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Calcott Scholarship Offered by AAUW

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. The deadline is April 16.

Mrs. Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of the AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fundraising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout group here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Mrs. Calcott was a writer for the Daily Times.

Scholarships Offered To Upper-class Women

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for application is Friday, April 16.

Dean, Fulton School

Applications and nominations are invited for the position of the dean of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts was established in 1989 with the creation of a multimillion dollar enhancement fund to ensure that the various academic programs offered by the Fulton School maintain a high level of excellence. The Fulton School, comprised of 11 academic disciplines—art, communication arts, English, history, liberal studies, modern languages, music, philosophy, political science, pscyhology and sociology—is the largest school in the University and shoulders the main responsibility for the students' General Education experience. While sharing a commitment to a fairly traditional liberal arts curriculum, the Fulton School seeks through such initiatives as learning communities, faculty seminars and schoolwide discussion days to enliven, to integrate, to diversify and to challenge that tradition.

The dean is the chief administrative officer of the school reporting to the academic vice president and providing leadership for both baccalaureate and graduate programs. Qualifications include an earned doctorate in the liberal arts, extensive teaching experience and demonstrated administrative competence, such as department chair, associate dean or dean. A leader is sought who operates within a collegial context, an educator with demonstrated ability to engage and inspire students, and a strong advocate for liberal education to the University and the wider community.

A letter of application, curriculum vitae and three original letters of recommendation should be addressed to Dean's Search Committee, Dr. Polly Stewart, Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801, FAX: (410) 543-6068.

Education Club Meeting Features Panel Discussion

The Student National Education Association holds its fourth meeting of the semester on Tuesday, April 13.

The club will have a panel discussion with students and teachers from elementary, middle and high schools around the area. It will give students the opportunity to ask questions, and learn how students and teachers feel about their experiences.

The club meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. Meetings are held in Caruthers Hall, room 211 at 3:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Information, Decision Sciences

The Perdue School of Business is seeking applicants for a tenure-track position in the Department of Information and Decision Sciences. The position begins August 15.

Qualifications include a doctorate in information systems or a closely related field and the ability to teach at least two of the following courses: C programming, database management, data communications and networking, and systems analysis and design. Preference will be given to those applicants who are familiar with CASE tools (such as, software AG natural architect workstation) and fourth generation languages (such as, natural) and are knowledgeable in object oriented programming and design. The Perdue School requires a commitment to high quality teaching as well as an active research agenda. Candidates for senior rank should have an established research record and a diverse portfolio of teaching capabilities and interests. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Send vita and letter of application to Chair, Information and Decision Sciences Search Committee, Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Consideration of applications begins April 2 and will be accepted until the position is filled.

SBDC Director

Applicants are sought for the director of the Small Business Development Center Network Maryland's Eastern Shore which is housed in the Perdue School.

The professional will direct, supervise and participate with a staff providing counseling, training and educational seminars to small business owners and employees. This is an opportunity for the right person to also teach entrepreneurship and business consulting at the university level.

Qualifications include M.B.A. or equivalent; five years of experience as either a small business owner or consultant to small businesses; and proven skills in management, budgeting, and oral and written communications.

Salary is open, competitive and dependent on qualifications and experience.

Closing date for applications is Friday, April 16. Send resumes to George C. Rubenson, Associate Dean, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801.

Student Voice Assembly Sponsored by SGA

The Student Government Association will meet on Sunday, April 18, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Formerly called a General Assembly meeting, SGA members are hopeful for increased campus involvement in the new Student Voice Assembly.

African, African-American Folk Tales Presentation

Charlotte Blake Alston

Storyteller Charlotte Blake Alston will bring her entertaining folk tales, songs and spirituals to Salisbury State on Wednesday, April 14.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the event will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is free and open to the public.

Alston's repertoire includes tales from African and African-American sources, educational raps, songs and poetry. In keeping with the African oral tradition, the stories promote an understanding of the common human experience and engage the hopes, fears and funny bones of each individual.

Alston's interest in the oral tradition began during her childhood in Philadelphia when her father encouraged her to read and recite the dialect poems of African-American writer Paul Lawrence Dunbar. Her repertoire still includes this material.

Although it was starting to die as an art form, storytelling, in both the African and Native American traditions, is in the midst of a major revival in the United States. Throughout West Africa, griots (gree-ohs) preserved and passed on the history and culture of their people through stories. In West Africa and other cultures around the world, stories taught and reinforced the values and mores of the society, provoked thought or discussion about an issue, explained natural phenomena and entertained both young and old.

Similarly, in many Native American cultures stories took the place of corporal punishment as children came to understand through stories what behaviors were inappropriate and unacceptable and why.

Trained as a teacher, Alston discovered that dramatizing literature could serve as an important teaching tool for people of all ages. It was in 1981 while helping her kindergarten class prepare for an assembly that Alston found herself on stage dramatizing the folktale "Who's In Rabbit's House?"

"You would have thought that Rabbit had appeared before the children's eyes and jumped off the stage into their laps," she said of her impromptu performance.

After 19 years as a classroom teacher, Alston now devotes her time and energy to her performances. She has appeared at schools, colleges, museums and festivals across the U.S. and Canada.

McGrew Brings Reality to Geography Textbook

If you have an important job to do and the tools at hand just aren't good enough, what do you do?

If you're Salisbury State geography professor, Dr. J. Chapman McGrew, Jr., you create a better tool. In this case, McGrew and a colleague spent several years writing and revising a new textbook for their students. An Introduction to Statistical Problem Solving in Geography was published earlier this year by Wm. C. Brown Communications, Inc.

Co-author Charles B. Monroe was a graduate student with McGrew at Pennsylvania State University. Some years later, while teaching the same course at different schools, they agreed that no suitable textbook existed, and the idea for their book was hatched. "We were just not happy with the existing texts," McGrew recalled, "and we thought we could do better."

The two authors decided to place a lot of emphasis on selection of realistic samples and real-world problems to illustrate techniques for statistical analysis. "Existing textbooks often use artificial, hypothetical data," McGrew explained. "They show the mechanics of how a statistical technique works, but they're not really very helpful to students."

McGrew and Monroe turned to the real world, drawing from data sets they encountered in their work as professional geographers. SSU students may even recognize some of the ground covered, as data from a Salisbury/Wicomico County Regional Airport passenger survey are analyzed in chapter 10.

Both authors believe a realistic approach to teaching statistical methods leads to a better understanding. "The real world is a complicated place," said McGrew. "By working with real-world examples, students see that applying statistical analysis doesn't solve all the problems. There are still some unanswered questions."

Unlike the textbooks they have encountered, the book by McGrew and Monroe is designed to serve purely as an introduction. "Many books advertised as introduction go into upper-level techniques that are not appropriate for introductory-level students." To ensure that the text would be very readable and understandable to undergraduates encountering statistics for perhaps the first time, the authors enlisted the aid of Laura Monroe. McGrew said that her background in publishing—and her lack of formal training in geography—made her the ideal editor.

Finally, McGrew said, he probably wouldn't be proudly holding his new book in his hands if it weren't for the Geography Department chair, Dr. Calvin R. Thomas, and his other SSU colleagues. In addition to allowing McGrew to "field-test" the book with his students, Thomas "creates a departmental environment that is conducive to doing this type of work.

Ward Foundation Presents Summer Classes

The Ward Foundation offers several classes at Salisbury State in June.

On June 13-18, Greg Woodard will carve and burn a life-size kestral; Bob Guge will carve, burn and paint a yellow-rumped warbler; Ernie Muehlmatt will carve, burn, and paint a cluster of baby bluebirds; Pat Godin will paint a bufflehead drake; and Gordon Hare will carve, burn and paint an elf owl.

On June 20-25, Rich Smoker will carve and paint a life-size decorative slick atlantic brandt; Habbart Dean will carve, texture and paint a lesser yellow-legs and sea shells; Ernie Muehlmatt will carve, burn and paint a life-size sharp-shinned hawk; Phil Galatas will carve, burn, and paint a miniature peregrine falcon; Leo Osborne and Teri Malec Osborne will demonstrate bird sculpting from the field to the studio; and Pat Godin will paint a canvasback hen or drake.

All classes are $500 for members, except for Galatas' class, which is $650. Non-members pay $35 extra to cover the cost of a year's membership.

The classes are 8 a.m.- 6 p.m. daily at the University. Arrangements can be made for room and board on campus.

For more information, call the Educational Department at the museum at 742-4988.

Festival of Cultures Comes to Campus

Experience a day of appreciation and exploration of our diverse world with a variety of cultural music, food, artifacts, vendors, history, costuming, dancers, singers and much more at the Festival of Cultures sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board on Monday, April 19. The festival will be located near the Guerrieri University Center and in front of the dining hall. In case of rain the event will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

Fall Culture Series Flashes Back to '60s

The topic for the cultural events series for the fall semester is "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s."

Topics to be presented are "Roots of the Revolution: American in the '50s," "Civil Rights," "The New Left," "Anti-War Movement," "The Counter Culture," "The Feminist Movement" and "Aftermath: The Legacy of the '60s."

Specific lecture titles have not been decided as speakers have not been determined.

Also, please be aware of the following change. The program on Japan scheduled for spring 1994 will take place in fall 1994. Spring '94 will deal with current issues.

Research Center Holds Training Seminar

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture will conduct a training seminar for interested students and volunteers on Monday, April 12, from 2:30-4:30 p.m.

The training session will provide participants with introductory instruction in conservation methods for personal papers and historical documents. In addition, training in basic archival procedures and the use of the Research Center catalog will be provided.

To register, please call 543-6312 on Monday through Friday from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Baptist Student Ministries Invites All Denominations

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Fun and Christian Fellowship every Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome; meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information call 749-7069.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Methods Courses Admission Outlined

As preregistration approaches, please remember that in order to take methods classes, students must apply to the Professional Teacher Education Program.

Briefly, the requirements for admission to the program are as follows: completed application (available in Caruthers Hall, room 148); overall GPA of 2.5 including transfer courses, GPA of 2.75 in academic major; grades of C or better in English 101 and 102, CMAT 250, Education 300 and 305, Math 103 (ELED majors only); and passing scores on the general knowledge and communication skills tests of the National Teachers Exam (NTE).

Unless students meet all of these requirements they may not register for methods classes. Please be aware that no waivers are granted.

Applications are available in the Department of Education, Caruthers Hall, room 148. These applications must be turned in to one's advisor during preregistration. Failure to do so results in students being dropped from any methods classes for which enrolled.

Students should see their advisor for further information.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Monday, April 12	Men's Tennis vs. Virginia Wesleyan (HOME)	3 p.m.
Tuesday, April 13	Softball at Christopher Newport	2:30 p.m.
	Men's Tennis vs. UDC (HOME)	3 p.m.
	Men's Lacrosse at St. Mary's	4 p.m.
	Women's Lacrosse at Rowan	4 p.m.
Wednesday, April 14	Baseball vs. Wesley (HOME)	3 p.m.
	Softball vs. Delaware Tech (HOME)	3 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team remains in the top spot in the weekly Division III poll for the third straight week, collecting all 10 first-place votes. The Gulls, who spent spring break on a four-game road trip to North Carolina and Virginia, return to Sea Gull Stadium on Saturday, April 17 with a game against ninth-ranked Gettysburg. SSU nipped the Bullets 13-12 in overtime last year.

The men's tennis team is quietly off to a strong start with wins in four of the first five matches. Three players sport individual marks of 4-1 through the early season. Number one player Ken Soliday, number five Michael Daw and number six Kipp Kramer are each tied for the team's best singles record.

Despite a 2-5 start for the women's lacrosse squad, senior Flossy Owens continues to dazzle with her scoring. Owens has tallied exactly half of SSU's 56 goals, and has been the team's top scorer in all seven games. Her exploits include a school-record 10 goal performance against St. Mary's two weeks ago.

The baseball team returns to home action on Wednesday, April 14 against Wesley. SSU has played its last six games on the road, including a 4-1 victory over Wesley on March 31. Righthander Tom Keating pitched seven strong innings, allowing just five hits, to register his third win of the year in that game. Bill DeAtley followed with two shutout innings to pick up his second save.

The softball team played its long-awaited season opener on April 1 and pounded Wesley in a doubleheader. The Gulls defeated the Wolverines 14-0 and 15-4. Sonja Akers hurled a complete-game three-hitter in game one and Lauren Hessen earned her first collegiate win in game two. Sandy Lawless' three-run triple keyed the offense in the opener, while Sandie Warren, Kelly Carey and Jen Bowman had RBI doubles in the nightcap.

Two school-records fell last Saturday as the track team competed in the Captain's Classic Meet. Dan Quinn finished second in the hammer and broke his own record with a throw of 141'7". Junior Kirsten Owings set a new long jump record at 17'1 1/4". She also placed second in the event.

Jones, Murray Receive NOAA Grants

The National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) has awarded Drs. Thomas Jones and Laura Murray of the Biology Department a two-year grant in the amount of $146,389 to perform ecological studies in a marsh system located at the mouth of the Wicomico River.

Assisting them will be Dr. Jeff Cornwell from the University of Maryland Horn Point Environmental Laboratory. Their site of research is in the NOAA Monie Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve. Reserves such as Monie Bay have been established around the United States and its territories by NOAA to provide locations for long-term ecological research and to preserve estuarine habitats.

The project is scheduled to begin on June 1. The research team will study the concentrations of the important ecological nutrients nitrogen and phosphorus in the water the marsh plants and the marsh sediments of the Monie Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve to ascertain the magnitudes and relative importance of time-scaled storage (sequestering) by marshes of these important nutrients. Nitrogen and phosphorus may be stored on a short-term scale (days) in creek waters and plankton, on a longer-term scale (months) in macrophytes, and on a very long- term scale (years) in sediments. Jones, Murray and Cornwell propose to assess the nitrogen and phosphorus sequestering capacity of these components in Monie Bay, which consists of three creek systems, two of which have agriculturally influenced watersheds and the third a relatively pristine watershed of marsh/woodlands. Long-term sequestering of nutrients will also be analyzed and compared for two other Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve sites—Jug Bay on the Patuxent River and Otter Creek just north of Baltimore.

The results of the study will add to biologists' knowledge on the role marshes play in nutrient filtering as well as aiding governmental agencies and other managers in zoning and planning considerations.

'Buckle Up,' Use Your Seat Belts

In recognition of the Maryland Chiefs of Police Association Seat Belt Awareness Months, members of the University community are urged to "buckle up" when driving or riding as a passenger in a motor vehicle.

Statistics have shown that traffic deaths rank as the number one killer of Americans between the ages of six months to 32 years, and the probability of being involved in a motor vehicle accident is 86 percent during a lifetime.

Therefore, it seems only prudent to make every effort to ensure personal safety for drivers and passengers through the use of seat belts.

Computer Lab Hours

Computer Lab hours for the week of April 11-17 are:

Fulton Hall Labs
Sunday, noon-midnight; Monday-Thursday, noon-midnight; Friday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-midnight

Devilbiss Lab
Sunday, Closed; Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.; Saturday, Closed

Blackwell WP Lab (Room 010/015)
Sunday, Closed; Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Saturday, Closed

Salisbury State student Keith Frost, center, picks up his spring semester books, totalling $260.45, which were paid for by the campus German Club. Frost is the winner of a contest sponsored by the German Club at the fall Oktoberfest. A sophomore chemistry major, Frost is a graduate of James M. Bennett High School in Salisbury. He is the son of Barry and Barbara Frost of Ocean City. With Frost are Kaaren Kundell, left, textbook manager of The Book Rack, and Klaudia Thompson, faculty advisor to the German Club.

Abstract Sculpture Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

A sculpture exhibit by American University professor and sculpture, Mark Oxman, opens in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, April 15. The exhibit of abstract sculptures made of polyester resin and fiberglass remains on view in the gallery through May 3. After leaving the Atrium Gallery, the show travels to Cape Cod, MA, and Elizabeth College in West Chester (PA) State University.

Oxman was born in New York and educated at Adelphi University, the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia, and at the City and Guilds of London Art School in England where he was awarded the Certificate of Merit in Post-Graduate Sculpture. He has participated in many one-person and group shows as well as completed large sculptured commissions for the Queens Plaza Complex and the Bellmore Memorial Library, both in New York. His teaching experience includes artist-in-residence at Haverford College in Pennsylvania and assistant professor of fine arts at Amherst (MA) College. Since 1975 Oxman has been associate professor of fine arts at the American University in Washington, D.C.

The Atrium Gallery show includes 14 relief, hanging and free-standing abstract sculptures ranging in size from eight inches to two-feet tall. Oxman develops his work as an exploration of seeing and thinking about space and form. He challenges the surface in an expressionist way with resulting eccentric relationships of surface and form. He explores fundamental questions regarding the relationships of space, form and surface. All of the pieces are made by modeling plasticene to reflect abstract, organic planes.

When the piece is complete, a negative mold is made from plaster. The piece is then cast in polyester resin and fiberglass. The plaster is chipped away and the resulting piece is cleaned and finished with a surface patina. Artist Jennifer M. Beringer, said, "Oxman asks fundamental questions regarding the nature of sculptural relationships of space, form and surface. Through his very personal exploration of these elements, we have an opportunity to reexamine organic abstraction through his tenacious, elemental eye."

A gallery talk and slide presentation about the exhibit is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, May 3, in the Atrium Gallery. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Johnson Guest Conductor at Honor Band Festival

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies, appeared as guest conductor for the Harford County Honor Band Festival in Havre De Grace, MD, on April 1-3.

During the three-day festival, Johnson rehearsed and conducted the 75-member senior high school honor band. The ensemble is comprised of the most gifted student instrumentalists who have been selected from area high school programs throughout Harford County.

In addition to his responsibilities at Salisbury State, Johnson continues to be in demand as a consultant and guest conductor. This season's appearances in Maryland have included Perry Hall-Baltimore County, Leonardtown and Loveville-District IV and St. Mary's, North Carroll Township-Carroll County and the Maryland Music Educators Association all-state conference in Ocean City.

Johnson presently serves on the executive boards of the Maryland Music Educators Association and the Maryland Band Directors Association. He is state advisor for Maryland Educators National Conference Collegiate Chapters and representative to the Maryland Council of Higher Education in Music. Johnson is a nominee for state representation to the National Collegiate Band Directors Associations.

Johnson is also a member of the International Conductors Guild, the International Percy Grainger Society and the International Society for the Promotion and Investigation of Band Music.

Piano Class, Lessons Offered in Fall Term

Piano classes and private lessons in piano are offered this fall semester.

Class piano I (MUSA 205-001, Mondays and Wednesday, 8:55 - 9:50 a.m.) and class piano II (MUSA 206-001, Mondays and Wednesdays, 10-10:50 a.m.) are held in the new piano lab in Fulton Hall. The lab is a wonderful facility using electronic Roland pianos with 88 weighted keys that give the sound and feel of an acoustic piano. In addition, these instruments have the ability to produce different keyboard sounds such as harpsichord, jazz piano, etc., and to record one's practicing. In addition, the lab includes computer stations with keyboards for self-tutoring.

The prerequisite for class piano I is music fundamentals (MUSC 200) or permission by the instructor. For those who have already had private piano lessons, it is possible to be eligible for class piano II or individual studio lessons (MUSA 390-006). In certain cases, students' background could CLEP them out of class piano and enable them to register for individual lessons.

Anyone interested in class piano or applied piano Lessons please contact Linda Cockey in the Music Department (Fulton Hall, room 242) before preregistering. Enrollment is limited, so act now.

In addition, for students having prior piano lessons and who have reached a certain level of proficiency, harpsichord and organ lessons are also offered. Please contact Dr. Ray Zeigler in the Music Department before preregistering.

Scholarships Offered To Med Tech Majors

In recognition of the quality of SSU medical technology graduates, the Clinical Laboratory Managers Association of Maryland has established a $500 per year scholarship for an outstanding junior or senior medical technology major.

In order to qualify, applicants must be admitted to the medical technology program and must have at least a 3.0 GPA. The scholarship committee will select the candidate based on the most deserving combination of financial need, aptitude for the profession and academic ability.

Individuals who are interested and are qualified should contact Diane Hayes, Room 256, Power Professional Building, 548-4787 for an application and recommendation forms. Applications must be submitted no later than May 1. All qualified medical technology majors are urged to apply.

Gus Bus Is OC Bound

The Gus Bus has had a rough start this semester due to a little confusion with the motor pool. Apologies to those who showed up at times the Gus Bus did not.

On the weekend of April 17 the Gus Bus will travel to the Convention Center in Ocean City for the annual job fair. Students can use this opportunity to get ahead on job hunting for summer. The bus leaves from Maggs Center at 12:30 p.m. and the Convention Center at 3 p.m.

The Gus Bus travels to Ocean City again on Sunday, May 2. The cost for each trip is only $2. The Gus Bus continues to run to the Centre at Salisbury on the weekends that it does not go to Ocean City.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential Personal Information Form on file with the Center for Personal and Professional Development prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the CPPD as soon as possible to complete this requirement. Unless otherwise specified, recruiters are interviewing all graduates up to and including May 1993.

Tues. April 13
Champs Sports–(Sports retail) Management trainee positions in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company–Sales associate positions available in Baltimore metropolitan area.

Wed. April 14
Naval Air Systems Command–(Responsible for all Navy and Marine Corps aircraft, missiles, avionics and related items) Contract specialist in Washington, D.C. and Baltimore area only.

Enterprise Rent-a-Car–Management trainee positions in the Washington, D.C. and Baltimore area only.

Thurs. April 15
Anne Arundel (MD) County Public Schools–All elementary and secondary education majors should apply.

Queen Anne's (MD) County Public Schools–All elementary and secondary education majors should apply.

Tues. April 20
Bello Machre–(Private, non-profit organization that provides community homes for individuals with developmental disabilities) Full-time, live-in residence manager in the Glen Burnie, MD area. Psychology, sociology, social work and special education majors are being accepted.

Thurs. April 22
Intervet, Inc.–(Animal health company) Biology, microbiology and medical technology majors accepted for lab technician positions in Millsboro, DE.

Cecil County Public Schools–All elementary and secondary education majors should apply.

Wed. April 28
Perdue Farms, Inc.–(Largest retail supplier of poultry products to the New England and Mid-Atlantic U.S., as well as to North Carolina, Atlanta, Cleveland and Chicago) MIS, computer and business administration majors with a minimum of 3.0 cum. GPA should apply. (Entry level program analyst positions available in Salisbury.)

All recruiting requires sign-ups. Contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

Credential File: A credential file is a collection of letters of recommendation, resumes, personal history, grades, test scores, student teaching evaluation, etc. It is made available to employers or graduate schools at one's request. When students or alumni request CPPD to sent a completed file, its contents are duplicated, a Salisbury State University cover sheet is attached, then mailed to the address provided. If students or alumni have a cover letter or application, that can be included in the mailing. To open a credential file, stop by the CPPD during regular office hours. It only takes about 15 minutes to get the process started.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

Workshops: Interview and Placement Briefing–To participate in on-campus interviewing, first attend this one-hour session, which includes an overview of the services available, as well as basic information about the campus interview process. Thursday, April 22, 1-2 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Resume Writing: A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools, discussion includes such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume. Handouts are provided. Bring a draft resume if available. Tuesday, April 20, 3:30-5 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Interview Skills: A must for every senior, this one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing applicants for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested. Thursday, April 15, 3:30-5 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

General Information

Connexion–A new service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country, the service is free to current students.

Kinexus–A national employment database, registration is free to current students.
More information is available from the CPPD.

Food Drive 'Alive' For Joseph House

The movie Alive will be shown on Friday, April 30, at 8 p.m. and 10:15 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 149. The showing will coincide with a food drive for the Joseph House. Those bringing food will be eligible to win door prizes such as backpacks, beverage pitchers, pizzas and movie tickets. For more information, please call Colleen at 543-6102.

Biology Students' Research Projects Presented

Two biology majors presented the results of their research projects conducted while students at Salisbury State to the spring meeting of Atlantic Estuarine Research Society (AERS) in Charlottesville, VA.

Robert (Brian) Sturgis worked with Dr. Laura Murray of the Biology Department on a project in Chincoteague Bay studying the effects of low light levels and sulfides on the submerged grass, Zostera marina (better known as "eelgrass"). The title of his talk was "Photosynthetic and respiratory responses of eelgrass (Zostera marina) to light and sediment sulfide." Sturgis collected data for the project last summer and spent the fall semester analyzing the results.

Jonathan Frey worked with Dr. Thomas Jones of the Biology Department on a project in the Monie Bay National Estuarine Research System located at the mouth of the Wicomico River. Frey's project involved analysis of nitrogen and phosphorus inputs from Monie Bay's surrounding watersheds on the amount of phytoplankton (microscopic algae) in the marsh creek waters. The title of his presentation was "Water quality variability in adjacent marsh creeks with differing watersheds in the Monie Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve." His project was also performed during the summer and is still continuing.

The Atlantic Estuarine Research Society is a regional chapter of its parent international society, the Estuarine Research Federation, and is composed of marine scientists working on estuaries (bays) and coastal regions. Jones was the president of the society from 1990 to 1992.

Ference Presentations On Eastern Europe

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history in Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently made two presentations for the symposium, "Continuity and Change in Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet Union."

Ference's first presentation, "Czechs and Slovaks, not Czechoslovaks," dealt with the historical background to the dissolution of Czechoslovakia into the two independent states of the Czech Republic and Slovakia on January 1.

Ference's second talk on "Yugoslav Tribalism" was replacement for an army analyst from Fort Bragg who specializes in Yugoslav topics and who was unable to attend the conference since he was overseeing the airdrop of supplies into Bosnia. Ference focused on the historical, religious, economic and cultural contexts which has led to the division and civil war in the former Yugoslavia. The symposium, sponsored by the Georgia Humanities Council and the Southern Center for International Studies in Atlanta, was held at West Georgia College.

Members of Students of University Dining Services (SUDS) recently made a $210 contribution to the campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity. The campus Habitat chapter hopes to raise $34,000 by the end of April to fund the building of a home for a low-income family in Salisbury. Accepting the check on behalf of the campus Habitat chapter is Pamela Rosen (left). Presenting the check are SUDS members (left to right): Doug Horn, president; Adrian Miller, treasurer; Lori Robinson, vice president; Jenna White, public relations officer; Cielo Tanedo, secretary; and Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of dining services.

Communication Arts Instructor Writes Book on Ham Radio Satellites

The first complete history of private space satellites built and operated in Earth orbit by radio hobbyists has been written by Anthony R. Curtis, instructor in communication arts in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

The Hamsat Handbook, published by Tiare Publications of Wisconsin, covers more than three dozen amateur-radio satellites launched since 1961.

Amateur radio, or ham radio, is a non-commercial service for communication among private persons as a pastime and for public service. The hobby's flotilla of communications and science satellites circling the globe has gone largely unnoticed by the public.

There are more than 500,000 amateur radio operators in the U.S. and more than a million elsewhere. They are male and female, ranging in age from 5 to 104, from all walks of life. The author has been a radio amateur since 1954. His callsign, assigned by the Federal Communications Commission, is K3RXK.

A California group, calling itself Project OSCAR for Orbital Satellite Carrying Amateur Radio, built the first hamsat, OSCAR-1. It was launched December 12, 1961. The spacecraft have been financed by donations of time, hardware and cash from hams in Russia, Great Britain, Japan, Germany, Australia, Canada, Italy, France, Brazil, Argentina, Belgium, South Korea, South Africa, Israel, Finland, Mexico, the United States and elsewhere.

"A person interested in the history of private human adventures in space finds virtually nothing in popular mass media," Curtis said. "So much is happening, there's really a great hunger to know what's going on out there."

The number of hamsats has been mushrooming. Four were orbited in the 1960s. Six went to space in the 1970s. Seventeen were launched in the 1980s. In the early 1990s, 21 have been launched with another 18 planned for the later years of the decade. Most remain in orbit and many still are in use.

Hamsats often receive free rides to space as ballast on government rockets carrying other satellites. Sometimes, paid tickets are required today.

Most hamsats fly at 200 to 1,000 miles altitude in east-west equatorial orbits or north-south polar orbits. That's just a bit higher than a space shuttle usually flies. A few range out beyond 20,000 miles from Earth, then loop back within about 2,000 miles of the planet.

Hamsats relay voice, computer and Morse code signals. Some hamsats have television cameras snapping photos of Earth. Hamsats have message bulletin-boards; transmitters for radio propagation tests, ionospheric research, radioteletype and meteor sounding; and receivers for radioastronomy, radiolocation and other science research. Hamsats relay medical data, teach school science groups, provide emergency communications for disaster relief and train satellite trackers.

Hamsat Handbook also describes amateur radio operations aboard American space shuttles and the Russian space station Mir, hams bouncing signals off the Moon, and amateurs planning Moon and Mars satellites. The book recalls the first space satellites and describes hamsat modes, frequencies, ham radio balloons near space, sporadic-E and meteor scatter chatter.

Curtis, a Marietta, OH, native has a B.A. in journalism and an M.A. in political science, both from Pennsylvania State University, and has been teaching since 1967. He was assistant professor in the School of Journalism at Penn State. He taught political science at Penn State. At Ohio University, Curtis instructed broadcast journalism students. He taught journalism at Hood College, computer science at Frederick Community College and English at Wor-Wic Community College. Curtis has written some 70 books in addition to hundreds of articles for magazines and newspapers.

The Hamsat Handbook is published by Tiare Publications, P.O. Box 493, Lake Geneva, WI 53147. It was assigned international standard book number (ISBN) 0-936653-35-3. The 152-page, 8.5 x 11-inch paperback is priced at $17.95. Tiare previously published two books by the author in 1992, Weather Radio and Monitoring NASA Communications.

The second edition of Curtis' Space Almanac was released by Gulf Publishing Co. of Houston in 1992. Gulf will publish the third edition of the author's Space Satellite Handbook, listing all 22,000 satellites ever orbited, in 1994.

Whitney Presents Papers On Her Research

During the month of March, Dr. Jeanne Whitney, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, presented a number of papers based on her current research.

Early in the month she presented "Creating a New Economic World: Mortgage Lending in Central Massachusetts, 1790-1850" to the History of Technology Colloquium at the University of Delaware. The colloquium, which has met weekly for a number of years, is open to both faculty and students engaged in the study of history of technology, business and economics. Originally associated with the Hagley Program in the History of Technology, the colloquium continues to meet under the sponsorship of the History Department and invites visiting scholars to the Hagley Center for Business and Economic History and faculty members from other departments to speak at their meetings. The mix of academic interests—business, economics, technology and history—made the discussion following the formal presentation lively and provocative.

Later in March Whitney presented a paper to the Old Sturbridge Village Colloquium on Early New England Society and Culture. One of the most prestigious seminars dealing with colonial culture and society, the occasion was especially satisfying for Whitney. The colloquium, comprising scholars from around the country, grew out of the Old Sturbridge Village Research Department's National Endowment for the Humanities-funded project exploring economic behavior in which Whitney served as one of the initial researchers. This year's meeting, "Possession and Dispossession: Debt, Tenancy and Speculation in the Rural North," marked the sixth anniversary of the colloquium.

The Old Sturbridge Village Colloquium follows a distinctive format. Before the meeting, each attending member receives copies of the papers—and has the opportunity to carefully consider the work before gathering. After listening to comments offered by specialists, participants questioned the authors and offered further analysis of the topics. Dr. Naomi Lamoreux of Brown University commented on Whitney's paper, "Securing a Future: Lenders and Borrowers in Early Nineteenth-Century Central Massachusetts." Whitney's paper was one of three which is being considered for publication.

Weight Loss Competition

Do you still have the winter blues because you gained an extra five pounds? Well it is time to "spring" into action and lose that weight just in time for summer. It's easy. All you need is a little help from two friends who feel the same way. The three of you, as a team, can join the Take-five Weight Loss Competition.

The event sponsored by Club Maryland is open to all faculty and staff. In order to enroll, a team captain must contact Shirley King in Holloway Hall, room 222, 548-4755, before the April 12 registration deadline. Once it has been determined a team qualifies according to the height/weight charts, King will register the team. All materials needed for each team member will then be sent to the captain.

Competition begins on April 19 and continues for 10 weeks. Weight loss is achieved by following four easy steps: record status in team's weight loss log; strive to eat five fruit and five vegetable servings every day; increase physical activity; and keep track of progress in the Take-five Skills Diary. Learn new behaviors and improve appearance.

Johnson Published in Music Journal

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently had his article, "A Taxonomy for Teaching Aesthetics," published in the February issue of the Maryland Music Educators Journal. This is the third article in a series of articles that addresses topics for consideration by both current and future music educators in Maryland.

The article compares several traditional philosophies of aesthetics of the arts in order to clarify the history and the nature of misinterpretation of aesthetic philosophy as well as placing it in context of teaching music in the public schools. Johnson presents a teaching taxonomy developed by Dr. David G. Peters of the University of Illinois at Urbana titled "The Affected Component." The taxonomy serves as a guideline for public school music teachers for the organization of what to teach (cognitive) and when to teach it (psychomotor) as opposed to serving solely as a basis for evaluation.

As state advisor for the Maryland Music Educators collegiate chapters and the topics of his recent publications in the MMEA Journal, Johnson has been asked to participate in a panel discussion of collegiate music educators which will be presented at the state conference of the Maryland Council of Music Supervisors on April 27 at the Eubie Blake Cultural Center in Baltimore. The panel will discuss current changes in the collegiate curricula in order to prepare future teachers and the proposed directions that public schools must take to prepare their students for the collegiate music curricula.

The conference will also provide a forum for the state's music supervisors to discuss current trends in music education, new state graduation requirements, student attrition and additional training that might be provided at the university level to prepare music teachers for the year 2000. The annual spring meeting is sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Education.

In one exercise, Katz has her students examine advertisements for their "pseudo-reasoning." The textbook (which is used at a different pace at the college level) asks questions like "Is the fact that a brand of toothpaste is advertised as a best seller relevant to the issue of whether to buy that brand?"

Fourteen-year-old Corey Benjamin has found he already uses the lessons from his class. "I've started to pick ads apart more," he said. Benjamin, who initially signed up hoping to someday boost his SAT scores, said he loves Super Satudays. "The teacher are great," he said. "It's more highly paced than my classes at Bennett (Middle School)."

Emily Payne, 13, also a student at Bennett, agreed. "It's fun," she said. "It allows a little more in-depth study than regular classes. It's more challenging."

The energy and humor Whall brings to his etymology class keeps the kids on their toes. But not every answer these bright students called out was correct. Testing their vocabulary, Whall asked, "If you're asked to make a 'prognosis,' what kind of tools would you need?" It was the Foxy Five's turn again and the group was almost ready. "The tools a proctologist uses," one girl suggested. It wasn't until they took the word apart that another student realized that "crystal ball" was a better answer.

No student goes unchallenged, not even a shy one. "Why do you look so puzzled?" Whall asked one boy. Even this question was answered quickly: "Because it's Saturday morning and we're in a classroom."

When the last question of this game show/quiz hybrid had been answered and Whall tallied the scores, his students generously provided him with a drumroll. The Bees (one of the less creatively-named teams) had won the day and each teammate received a cash prize: $1. And the debate over the fairness of the scorekeeping began. These are teenagers, after all.

At least one rule of thumb has held true.

Meekins, Wolinski Present Workshop

Dr. Amy S. Meekins and Dr. John Wolinski, both of the Education Department, presented a workshop in conjunction with the Virginia State Reading Association's 26th annual conference held recently in Norfolk.

During the workshop, "Under the Boardwalk—Down by the Sea: A Theme Based Integrated Reading-Language Arts Model," participants had an opportunity to experience seashore-related activities and review available materials relating to the theme. Sample content "directed-reading-thinking" and "directed-listening-thinking" activities were demonstrated.

The theme of the conference was "Reflections on Literacy."

Off Campus Housing Information Available

The off campus housing information that was in the Housing Office will now be kept at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students looking for a room or a house in the area, stop in and see what's available. The information desk is open on Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m., and on Sunday from noon-10 p.m.

Perdue School Students Are Able to Gain On-the-Job Experience

Business students in search of the classic "win-win situation" have found it in a program at the Perdue School of Business.

The school's ABLE program—for Applied Business Learning Experience—requires that students complete work designed to bring to life the lessons they are learning in the classroom. The program is drawing praise from the students and from their employers.

In many cases, the student intern takes his employer by surprise. Businesses that enter the program to support SSU find their interns a great asset. In a letter to SSU ABLE director Rebecca A. Emery, Charles B. Dashiell, president of J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, Inc., described his company's ABLE experience, exactly the success the program sets out to achieve:

"He (intern Mike Guercio) has not only been learning but he has also been teaching and instituting programs that we haven't had time to do, and has made improvements in several areas of our business," Dashiell wrote.

In making matches like the one that placed Guercio at Dashiell & Sons, Emery tries to customize the position to the student's major. She also screens both the student and the employer to ensure that the placement is both appropriate and informative for the student. Finally, the students check in with Emery regularly throughout the course of the internship, so she knows they are progressing on track. Emery has observed that in the process, the on-the-job relationship often shifts from the usual student-supervisor one to student-mentor. By the time their internship is completed, most students have established a network of business connections that should serve them well after graduation.

One such student was Donna Wheeley. Now a graduate of SSU and the ABLE program, Wheeley's first contact with her current employer, Perdue Farms, was made through the ABLE program. Not only did she have an opportunity to learn the company and make a positive impression on her future employer, Wheeley found that the experience she gained through the internship attracted other job offers.

"I had classmates who didn't have internships and some of them are still looking for jobs," she said. "When I interviewed with companies in Washington, Baltimore and Virginia I was able to talk about my experience and to give references."

Wheeley pointed out that, for her, the internship itself was just the beginning. When her supervisors at Perdue Farms offered to send her to training workshops, she took advantage of every opportunity. "Perdue Farms invested time and money in training me," she said. "And I think they noticed that I was willing to learn more." One such training program prepared Wheeley for her current position as associate programmer analyst in Perdue Farms' management information systems office.

SSU business student Kris Garofalo is still building her network of business contacts. Her internship at the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce has brought Garofalo into contact with many area business leaders. Garofalo tries

Bus Trip Scheduled For 'Mother Courage'

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a theatre trip for students to the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday, May 4, to see Mother Courage and Her Children, written by Bertolt Brecht. Mother Courage will be played by Pat Carroll.

Set in the 17th century during the Thirty Years' War, Mother Courage was written in 1939 on the eve of World War II. A canteen woman, Mother Courage pulls her wagon across battle lines, selling provisions on both sides. One by one she loses her children while she is away haggling, ironically, over a sale of goods to keep her family afloat. Brecht illustrates how greed perpetuates war, while paradoxically exacting the highest personal price from those who trade in it.

This anti-war play indites war and forces that relate to war. It addresses questions parallel to the questions of college students today such as: Do we need such a huge national defense budget? What is the relationship of big business and war, of war industry and big business?

Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m., Wednesday, April 21, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students. The cost is $15; a student ID must be presented to sign up. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up on Friday, April 23; the cost is $18. The charge covers transportation and theatre ticket.

The bus leaves Dogwood parking lot at 2:30 p.m. on May 4. There will be time before the 8 p.m. curtain for dinner on your own. No food or beverages will be allowed on the bus. The bus returns without stops to the Dogwood lot at approximately 1 a.m.

For more information, call 543-6006.

Lecture on Rapping and First Amendment

"Don't Believe the Hype: Rock, Rap and the First Amendment" will be the subject of a lecture by Boston College associate professor Dr. Dale Herbeck.

The lecture is Wednesday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech.

Herbeck's lecture will focus on the numerous calls from political, civic and academic leaders for regulations on rap music and other forms of popular culture. He will look at the song "Don't Believe the Hype" by the rap group Public Enemy which decries the efforts to censor rap music. Through the lyrics of the song, Public Enemy attempts to persuade the listener that rap is not responsible for the social problems that plague society. Instead, the song suggests that rappers are merely commentators on increasingly troubled times.

Herbeck takes the position that rap music and other forms of popular culture should be protected because a democratic society must protect distasteful ideas to create the climate necessary for a healthy exchange of ideas.

The author of numerous articles on freedom of expression, Herbeck is an associate professor in the Department of Communication and Theater at Boston College.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture series is designed to encourage discussion on issues such as the impact of "political correctness," restricted National Endowment for the Arts funding and recent court decisions regarding hate speech.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-students

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—March 1-5: Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Baptist Student Ministries Invites All Denominations

Baptist Student Ministries invites everyone to attend Fun and Christian Fellowship every Tuesday at 7 p.m. All denominations are welcome; meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center adjacent to Holloway Hall on 309 W. College Ave. For more information call 749-7069.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Piano Class, Lessons Offered in Fall Term

Piano classes and private lessons in piano are offered this fall semester.

Class piano I (MUSA 205-001, Mondays and Wednesday, 8:55 - 9:50 a.m.) and class piano II (MUSA 206-001, Mondays and Wednesdays, 10-10:50 a.m.) are held in the new piano lab in Fulton Hall. The lab is a wonderful facility using electronic Roland pianos with 88 weighted keys that give the sound and feel of an acoustic piano. In addition, these instruments have the ability to produce different keyboard sounds such as harpsichord, jazz piano, etc., and to record one's practicing. In addition, the lab includes computer stations with keyboards for self-tutoring.

The prerequisite for class piano I is music fundamentals (MUSC 200) or permission by the instructor. For those who have already had private piano lessons, it is possible to be eligible for class piano II or individual studio lessons (MUSA 390-006). In certain cases, students' background could CLEP them out of class piano and enable them to register for individual lessons.

Anyone interested in class piano or applied piano Lessons please contact Linda Cockey in the Music Department (Fulton Hall, room 242) before preregistering. Enrollment is limited, so act now.

In addition, for students having prior piano lessons and who have reached a certain level of proficiency, harpsichord and organ lessons are also offered. Please contact Dr. Ray Zeigler in the Music Department before preregistering.

Scholarships Offered To Med Tech Majors

In recognition of the quality of SSU medical technology graduates, the Clinical Laboratory Managers Association of Maryland has established a $500 per year scholarship for an outstanding junior or senior medical technology major.

In order to qualify, applicants must be admitted to the medical technology program and must have at least a 3.0 GPA. The scholarship committee will select the candidate based on the most deserving combination of financial need, aptitude for the profession and academic ability.

Individuals who are interested and are qualified should contact Diane Hayes, Room 256, Power Professional Building, 548-4787 for an application and recommendation forms. Applications must be submitted no later than May 1. All qualified medical technology majors are urged to apply.

Gus Bus Is OC Bound

The Gus Bus has had a rough start this semester due to a little confusion with the motor pool. Apologies to those who showed up at times the Gus Bus did not.

On the weekend of April 17 the Gus Bus will travel to the Convention Center in Ocean City for the annual job fair. Students can use this opportunity to get ahead on job hunting for summer. The bus leaves from Maggs Center at 12:30 p.m. and the Convention Center at 3 p.m.

The Gus Bus travels to Ocean City again on Sunday, May 2. The cost for each trip is only $2. The Gus Bus continues to run to the Centre at Salisbury on the weekends that it does not go to Ocean City.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Food Drive 'Alive' For Joseph House

The movie Alive will be shown on Friday, April 30, at 8 p.m. and 10:15 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 149. The showing will coincide with a food drive for the Joseph House. Those bringing food will be eligible to win door prizes such as backpacks, beverage pitchers, pizzas and movie tickets. For more information, please call Colleen at 543-6102.

Off Campus Housing Information Available

The off campus housing information that was in the Housing Office will now be kept at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Students looking for a room or a house in the area, stop in and see what's available. The information desk is open on Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m., and on Sunday from noon-10 p.m.

Computer Lab Hours

Computer lab hours for the week April 18-24 are:

Fulton Hall Labs
Sunday, noon-midnight; Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-midnight; Friday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-midnight

Devilbiss Lab (Room 242)
Sunday, Closed; Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.; Saturday, Closed

Laboratory Instructors

The Department of Chemistry is seeking applications for laboratory instructors in the area of chemistry. These positions are part-time/full-time contractual with no state benefits. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree with a master's degree preferred. Send resume to Dr. Frederick F. Kundell, chair, Chemistry Department, by April 30.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Trip to Hopper Cottage Possible for Those Attending Gallery Gala

Guests at this year's Gala For the Gallery, sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation, will be eligible to win a long weekend at the Cape Cod home of American painter Edward Hopper shown in the photograph between Gala Committee member Jimmie Christian, left, and Gala co-chair Marge Shenasky.

Gourmet food, champagne and an art exhibit won't be the only attractions to the SSU's Foundation's Gala for the Gallery on Friday, June 4. Guests and dinner hosts also will be eligible to win a long weekend at the Cape Cod summer home and studio of renowned American painter Edward Hopper.

The weekend includes air transportation to Massachusetts.

Hopper (1882-1967), who divided his time between New York City and Truro, MA, produced a large body of work at both locations and is equally well known for his cityscapes and Cape Cod landscapes. An exhibit of Hopper's drawings, found after his death in the Truro cottage, will open in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall during the Gala.

Designed by Hopper and built in 1934, the plain shingled bungalow sits atop a hill overlooking Massachusetts Bay and Fisher Beach. The water view through the large studio window is said to be one of the best on Cape Cod.

Hopper and his wife, Josephine, spent six months of every year at the house. After their deaths it was inherited by J. Anton and Laurence Schiffenhaus, sons of an old friend of Jo Hopper's.

The 35 drawings in the SSU exhibit, titled "Seeds of Genius," were discovered and rescued during a 1970 remodeling of the cottage when the architect for the project found workmen throwing them into the back of a dump truck with construction debris. The collection has since been framed by the Schiffenhaus brothers who have loaned it to the University for the Foundation fundraiser.

This year all proceeds from the Gala will go to the new, state-of-the-art University Gallery in Fulton Hall which has been seriously threatened by reduced state funding.

The format for the evening is a variation of the annual event of years past. Guests at this year's Gala will join one of several smaller gourmet dinner parties in private homes scattered in and around Salisbury. Following dinner, all guests will gather in the University Gallery for champagne, dessert, the opening of the Hopper exhibit and the drawing for the Hopper cottage weekend.

With area hosts providing the dinner parties and the Schiffenhaus brothers loaning the exhibit, the University Gallery will receive the full proceeds from each person's $100 donation.

For more information or to make reservations, call the SSU Foundation Office at 543-6175.

Children's Puppetry Class Begins April 24

Children in grades one to six can learn the fine art of puppetry at the Art Institute & Gallery this spring.

Beginning Saturday, April 24, and continuing for five Saturdays through May 22, children will create different types of puppets, using drawing, painting and three-dimensional modeling skills. The complexity and sophistication of the techniques match individual abilities and interests. The children will develop and execute their own puppet shows, and will work both cooperatively and individually to create a stage and backgrounds. Creativity, fun and original thinking skills will be emphasized. Mary Dulany will be the instructor.

The cost of the class is $35 for AI&G family members and $40 for non-members. The cost includes supplies. Classes will meet for five Saturdays, April 24-May 22. Grades one to three will meet from 9 -10:30 a.m. and from 1-2:30 p.m. Grades four to six will meet from 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m. The performance date for the puppet shows is Wednesday evening, May 26.

To register, parents can call the Art Institute or send a check made payable to AI&G, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803, Attn: Classes. The child's name, parent's name, address, phone (both work and home), title of class and time of class should be indicated. Class size is limited so pre-registration is recommended. Confirmations are not sent back by mail. No discounts or refunds are given for missed classes.

For more information, call 546-4748.

Spring Literary Festival Brings Distinguished, Diverse Writers to Campus

The Writers-on-the-Shore series of readings, 1993 Spring Literary Festival at SSU, features several of the country's most distinguished and influential writers reading from their works. Held on four consecutive Thursday evenings beginning April 22 at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall, the event is sponsored by the Department of English and the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free.

Short-story writer and novelist Robin Hemley opens the festival on April 22. His collection of stories, All You Can Eat, was published by Atlantic Monthly Press in 1988. The New York Times called the stories "dazzling." A novel, The Last Studebaker, was published by Graywolf Press in 1992. Again The New York Times praised the work: "He has infused just the right amount of humor and pathos into his exploration of how people discover and maintain connections in these bewildering times."

Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Louis Simpson reads his work on April 29. His recent volumes include his Collected Poems (1988) and his Selected Prose (1989), as well as a collection of new poems, In the Room We Share (1990). He has also published several volumes of criticism, including Three on the Tower: The Lives and Works of Ezra Pound, T.S. Eliot and William Carlos Williams (1975), A Revolution in Taste: Studies of Dylan Thomas, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath and Robert Lowell (1978), A Company of Poets (1981) and The Character of the Poet (1986). He has also published Riverside Drive, a novel, and North of Jamaica, an autobiographical memoir.

Mary Oliver received the Pulitzer Prize in 1984 for American Primitive and the 1992 National Book Award for Poetry for her New and Selected Poems. Her other volumes of poetry include Twelve Moons (1979), Dreamwork (1986) and House of Light (1990). Banister Writer-in-Residence at Sweet Briar College in Virginia, Oliver reads her work on May 6.

Richard Forester is the recipient of the 1992 Bess Hokin Prize from Poetry magazine. His two volumes of poetry are Sudden Harbor (Orchises Press, 1992) and Patterns of Descent (Orchises Press, forthcoming in 1994). A recipient of residency fellowships from Yaddo, the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts and Hawthornden Castle in Scotland, as well as the "Discovery"/The Nation Prize in 1985, Forester has been associate editor of Chelsea since 1978. He reads on May 13 to celebrate the publication of Scarab, the SSU student literary journal.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Fall Culture Series Flashes Back to '60s

Credential File: A credential file is a collection of letters of recommendation, resumes, personal history, grades, test scores, student teaching evaluation, etc. It is made available to employers or graduate schools at one's request. When students or alumni request CPPD to sent a completed file, its contents are duplicated, a Salisbury State University cover sheet is attached, then mailed to the address provided. If students or alumni have a cover letter or application, that can be included in the mailing. To open a credential file, stop by the CPPD during regular office hours. It only takes about 15 minutes to get the process started.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

Workshops: Interview and Placement Briefing–To participate in on-campus interviewing, first attend this one-hour session, which includes an overview of the services available, as well as basic information about the campus interview process. Thursday, April 22, 1-2 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Resume Writing: A one-session workshop designed to help the student develop one of the job campaign's basic tools, discussion includes such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume. Handouts are provided. Bring a draft resume if available. Tuesday, April 20, 3:30-5 p.m.; Monday, May 3, 3-4 p.m.

Interview Skills: A must for every senior, this one-session workshop is designed to assist in preparing applicants for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, interview phases and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a senior interview and placement briefing is suggested. Thursday, April 15, 3:30-5 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact the CPPD, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

Connexion–A new service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country, the service is free to current students.

Kinexus–A national employment database, registration is free to current students. More information is available from the CPPD.

AI&G Raffle Benefits Children's Programs

For as little as $5, you could own an original work of art. As part of the City Arts Weekend, April 16-18, the Art Institute & Gallery is sponsoring a raffle to benefit its children's art programs. Five professional artists have donated framed original works. One $5 ticket provides a chance to win any of the prizes.

The five art works to be raffled include a serigraph by Marcy Shear Wolpe, a watercolor by Sharon Himes, a terracotta bowl by Margery Violetta, a hand-colored photograph by Michel Demanche and a handmade paper original by Clyte Taylor. All the works will be on display in participating Salisbury galleries.

Through April 17, the public can view the art works being raffled by visiting the five participating galleries: SSU's Atrium Gallery, The Gallery at Court Plaza, Salisbury Art Framing, the Finer Side and the Art Institute Gallery.

Raffle tickets can be purchased at or through the Art Institute & Gallery, on Route 50 & Lemmon Hill Lane. The cost of the tickets is $5 for one, $14 for three, or $25 for six. The drawing will be held on Thursday, May 27, at 6 p.m., during an opening reception at the Art Institute. For more information call 546-4748.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team returned from its spring break trip to North Carolina with four wins and an unblemished record of 9-0. The Gulls, who remain atop the USILA Division III ranking, begin a three-game homestand this Saturday at 1 p.m. against ninth-ranked Gettysburg. Salisbury nipped the Bullets 13-12 in overtime last year. SSU's remaining home games include Washington College on April 24 and West Chester on May 1. The Division III playoff tournament begins on May 16. The baseball team (6-7) was able to play just two of its five scheduled games on its spring trip, but the Gulls look to return to the diamond with four games this week. Coach Deane Deshon's squad, currently 1-1 in conference games, hosts Frostburg State in an important ESAC doubleheader on Saturday. Game one begins at noon. The women's lacrosse team (2-5) plays twice on the road this week after a 10-day layoff. The Gulls will be looking to snap a three-game slide. Flossy Owens, with 28 goals and 30 points for the season, continues to spark the offense. She has tallied seven of the team's last 11 goals in the past two games and is on pace to snap her own record of 47 goals in a season, established last year. The men's tennis squad (4-3) won two of four matches on its spring trip last week. After wins over Goucher and St. Andrews, the Gulls fell to Francis Marion and UNC, Wilmington. This week's full schedule features a rare home match on Saturday. The Gulls welcome UMES at 1 p.m. The softball team (2-4) also faces a full week of activity, ending a week-long layoff. Following Wednesday's home twinbill against Delaware Tech, the Gulls take to the road for weekend doubleheaders at Eastern Mennonite and Virginia Wesleyan. The track teams are running again on Saturday at the Cardinal Classic in Washington, D.C. Two school records fell in last week's meet in Newport News, VA. Kirsten Owings broke the women's long jump mark with a leap of 17'1 & 1/4", while Dan Quinn betterd his own record in the hammer with a distance of 141'7".

Festival of Cultures Comes to Campus

Experience a day of appreciation and exploration of our diverse world with a variety of cultural music, food, artifacts, vendors, history, costuming, dancers, singers and much more at the Festival of Cultures sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board on Monday, April 19. The festival will be located near the Guerrieri University Center and in front of the dining hall. In case of rain the event will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

SSU Habitat Campaign A Dream-Come-True for Salisbury Family

For Betty Johnson, the chance to own her own home is clearly the dream of a lifetime. It also offers the opportunity to escape the nightmare of reality.

"Owning our own home means freedom from having our clothes stolen off the clothes line, having flowers uprooted, having the kids toys stolen out of the yard," said Johnson. "It's an exciting time for me and my children."

Next year at this time, Johnson, who works full time at Wesley Temple Day Care Center, and her kids, Terrence Johnson, 18, and Vernique Donaldson, 13, hope to move into a new home built and financed through contributions from the University community.

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity begins its ambitious two-week fund-raising campaign on April 19. By April 30 the Habitat chapter hopes to have raised the necessary $34,000 to fund the building of the Johnson's dream home. Students, faculty and staff are asked to donate at least $5 each to the project. Construction would begin in the fall, when a sweat-raising campaign will commence to enlist volunteer campus support in the actual building of the home.

Johnson already has put in over 200 hours of so-called sweat equity helping other people build the home of their dreams. Families are required to spend at least 250 hours working on Habitat homes before moving into their own home.

"I've had fun putting in my sweat equity, helping others build their homes," said Johnson. "I come home all dirty, but it was fun—sanding walls all day, sneezing all night, but a thoroughly enjoyable experience.

"Other people whose (Habitat) homes are finished tell me how happy I'll be when I move into my own home. I believe them!"

Johnson's resolve to actively work to improve her family's living conditions is matched by her appreciation of the University community in raising the money to build her home, then assisting with the construction.

"I didn't know that other people cared enough to help," said Johnson. "To help someone achieve something they never thought would be possible to achieve is a wonderful thing—overwhelming really."

No other college or university has successfully secured the funding and built a Habitat home in a single year. It's a daunting project, but one that members of the campus Habitat chapter are pursuing optimistically. And Johnson radiates confidence.

"I don't want to pay rent for the rest of my life," said Johnson. "This home is something I can give to my children eventually. Sure it's a challenge, but I enjoy challenges."

To find out how to contribute to the SSU Habitat campaign, call Richard Yobst, director of administrative services, at 543-6219.

Choral Society Annual Spring Concert Set for May 1

The Salisbury Choral Society presents its annual spring concert on Saturday, May 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

The concert features the Choral Society, the Asbury United Methodist Church Choir under the direction of Taylor Harvey and the Salisbury State University Chamber Choir. All three choirs combine for the final choral work of the program, Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Lord, Thou Hast Been our Refuge," a composition for double choir, organ and trumpet discant. The women of the SSU Chamber Choir and the Salisbury Choral Society will join forces with Leneida Crawford, mezzo-soprano and special guest artist, to perform Williams' "Magnificant."

Other special guest artists include Taylor Harvey, organ; Scot Hawkins, piano; and Brenda Toney, flute.

The remainder of the concert features the following choral works: "The Hundredth Psalm" and "The Old 100th" by Williams; "Variations on 'Ah, Holy Jesus'" by Roger Petrich; and "Rejoice in the Lamb" by Benjamin Britten.

Tickets can be purchased at the door the evening of the performance or from any singer participating in the Salisbury Choral Society. Adult tickets are $7 and senior citizen and student tickets are $4. For more information contact the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Abstract Sculpture Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

A sculpture exhibit by American University professor and sculpture, Mark Oxman, opens in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, April 15. The exhibit of abstract sculptures made of polyester resin and fiberglass remains on view in the gallery through May 3. After leaving the Atrium Gallery, the show travels to Cape Cod, MA, and Elizabeth College in West Chester (PA) State University.

A gallery talk and slide presentation about the exhibit is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, May 3, in the Atrium Gallery. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

not to miss any opportunities to learn about the business community and has seen many of the management strategies she learned about in class put to work on the job. Garofalo is hoping that the network she is building will enable her to get a job in Salisbury during her senior year at SSU—adding more business experience to her resume.

While all students hoping to graduate from the Perdue School must complete the ABLE program, not all are sent out into the local work force. Two courses, marketing research and small business consulting, offer studentshands-on experience with real business problems under the direction of a Perdue School faculty member. Emery said that has made it possible for her to ensure that the students placed in internships are qualified for the work to which they are assigned. "We have to stand behind the students we're sending out," she said. "They have our stamp of approval."

That kind of quality control has earned the program at least one convert. Rich Evans, who runs the equipment sales office for AT&T in this region said he was skeptical at first that a college student could be of help to him. "As an account rep, I have many responsibilities and monthly objectives to meet," he said. "I was concerned that this would be a hindrance.

"I found quite the opposite. (Intern) Tom Baumann runs with me every day. I've come to rely on him. He'll come away with some excellent experience. And I'll participate in the ABLE program again."

Yearbook Interships Available

Internships and/or independent studies are available for the '93-'94 school year in journalism, photography, graphics, marketing and business management. For more information please stop by the Yearbook office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (room 229A) between 2-4 p.m. on Tuesday or Thursday.

Don't miss this opportunity to gain experience and to be published.

Variety Show This Weekend

The third annual Variety Show produced by the Auditoria Services Department will be presented on Friday, April 16, and Saturday, April 17, in Holloway Hall Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The Variety Show is being sponsored by the SSU Program Board and the Guerrieri University Center Office.

The producer of the show, Tony Broadbent, considers himself more a landlord of a building full of talent than a producer. He feels that all of the performers are like tenants in his building and the show is like walking down the hallway and opening the door of each apartment to see what is in it. Broadbent feels the format of the show should allow the performers to do their own thing, while showing that everyone can live in one large building together.

The doors that open feature a few groups of dancers. A few of the dance acts will feature members of the SSU Dance Company. Another dance piece features some of the SSU cheerleaders. At the next door, the music of George Gershwin is heard. On the piano practicing is Scot Hawkins, a Salisbury State alumnus. Hawkins has recently performed with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and in piano recitals in the area. Down the hallway are the sounds of saxophones, comedians, vocal quartets, a rock band and more.

At the second to last door, SSU student Amy Ford is working in her darkroom. Ford will be helping with the opening slide show and presenting a slide show as a special attraction. At the last door, people from Phillips Men's Wear of Salisbury bring in tuxedos and following them is a group from Flowers Unlimited bringing in many of the flowers to be used in the show. The final door is opened—an interesting mix of people, faculty members, students, staff and alumni, move props and hooking up gizmos for many of the special effects. The light designer, Anthony Blake, is going crazy trying to create the most extensive light design in the history of the University. There are wires, piles of wood and clouds of smoke all over. After the show, this group might need to be evicted.

The Variety Show is open to the public and which is invited to see the celebration of talent. The proceeds for the show go toward student organizations on campus. Advance tickets are on sale at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center on Monday, April 12. Advance tickets are $2 and will be on sale until 3 p.m. on Friday, April 16. Tickets at the door both nights of the show are $4. Tickets can be reserved for groups larger than 10. For more information about the show, or to have tickets reserved, please call Broadbent at 548-4597.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

APRIL 22, 1993 VOL. IX NO. 26

Students Organize Children's Activities at Salisbury Festival

Around the world in 30 minutes. Sound impossible? Don't tell that to the Student National Education Association members at Salisbury State University. The students are hard at work preparing to help children at the Salisbury Festival discover "It's a small world, after all."

SSU's Education Club students have a long history of providing the children's activities for the Salisbury Festival on Saturday, May 1. This year's event will feature an international theme. Equipped with a passport, of course, children will "visit" Ireland, Africa, Japan, Mexico and this country. In addition, SSU students will, for the first time, organize a series of games for Sunday-in-the-Park on May 2, an extension of the traditional Salisbury Festival.

While they're discovering the world on Saturday, children at the Festival will have a chance to create their own travel souvenirs. They'll begin by coloring their own pictures on their passports, then make shamrocks in Ireland, necklaces in Africa, paper dolls and lanterns in Japan and Ojos de Dios ornaments in Mexico. Returning to America, they'll make Native American-style headdresses and have their faces painted.

If it sounds like the children will be busy at the Festival, the students preparing to keep them that way are even more so. Dr. Carolyn Bowden, associate professor of education at SSU, is working with the club and has been involved in the Festival's children's activities before.

"Normally, about 500 to 600 children participate," she said. "Most of them are young: 2 to 8 years old. We want them to have the fun of making something, but some of the younger children have shorter attention spans. This will give education students experience planning activities that are appropriate for all ages."

And that planning includes lots of hands-on work pre-assembling the crafts so that children at the Festival can add the finishing touches. "For the Native American headdresses, we have been making headbands," student Therese Harkowa explained, "then the children will cut out and color the feathers." Harkowa and Erin Bokinski are co-chairing the children's activities. They say that Education Club members have had the help of other education majors at SSU. Work on the 500-plus passports, Native American headbands and other crafts has been under way since the beginning of the semester.

The games and activities on tap for Sunday-in-the-Park are tailor-made for parents and their younger children. Non-competitive in nature, the games have some unusual names: bug tug, Prui (pronounced PROO-ee), Hagoo and Spirals, among them.

Most of the stories live up to their names: each produces lots of giggles and a crowd of winners, rather than just one. Hagoo, for example, takes its name from the language of the Tlingit Indians of Alaska, who invented it. Participants must run a gauntlet of members of their own team and the opposing one. Beyond that, the nature of the challenge will be a secret until Sunday-in-the-Park.

Saturday's children's activities will be held on the west end of the Downtown Plaza in the former Newtown Theater all day. The games segment of Sunday-in-the-Park will be held in the City Park from 1-3 p.m. For more information about the Salisbury Festival, please contact the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce at 749-0144.

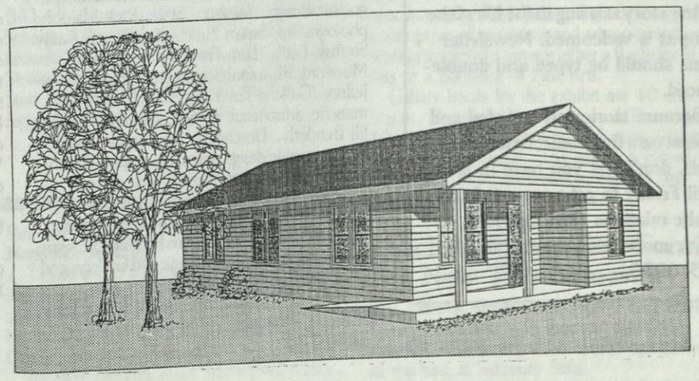
More Than a Concert, Spring Fling's a Party

The Salisbury State Program Board's Spring Fling comes to a close Friday, April 23, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center with a free concert for students and faculty. Prizes will be given that night and free food and drinks will be available. Listen to WSUR for a chance to win. The grand-prize winner will be chosen during the show, and all prizes will be given at the concert.

Theories of the Old School will be performing. The all-female trio uses marimba, flutes, Chapman Stick and a variety of instruments from around the world to complement guitar, bass and drums instrumentation and strong vocals. Stylistically, Theories blend rock and progressive jazz with folk harmonies and melodies. The pop arrangements bring together musical elements to create an original sound that appeals to a diverse following. The group's music ranges from lyrical ballads to songs of social, political and environmental concerns. The two founding members of the group have shared the stage with such national acts as House of Freaks, the Feelies, Throwing Muses, Sunrise Hammers and many more. Major influences include Bonnie Raitt, Woody Guthrie, the Beatles, Joan Baez and Bob Dylan.

Habitat Campaign Underway

The University chapter of Habitat for Humanity is in the midst of a two-week fund raising campaign to raise $34,000 to build a three-bedroom detached home as illustrated here. Donation sites are set up throughout the campus where students, faculty and staff can make a contribution. Everyone in the campus community is asked to contribute $5, more if possible. The campus Habitat chapter's goal is to raise the necessary funds and build the home in one year, a first for any college or university in the country. The campaign concludes Friday, April 30. All participants in the campaign will be eligible for a grand prize drawing on May 7 for a weekend in Ocean City or four tickets to an Orioles game. For more information, contact Richard Yobst, director of administrative services, at 543-6219.



Graduating Loan Borrowers Must Attend Interview

All May graduating students who borrowed under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that students attend one of the following sessions in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center: Tuesday, May 4, 4:30 p.m.; Wednesday, May 5, 4:30 p.m.; or Thursday, May 6, 4:30 p.m.

School records and diploma will be withheld from those not attending one of the sessions. Students who are working, interning or student-teaching must make arrangements to attend.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-students

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—March 1-5: Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

Faculty members who are not marching, staff and family members who would like tickets should sign up for tickets at the information desk beginning April 28.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Student Organizations Group Photos Taken

On Wednesday, April 21, and Thursday, April 22, a photographer will be on campus to photograph organizations for the 1992-93 yearbook.

Photo times begin at 3:30 p.m. and continue until 10 p.m. Sign-ups are at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center and continue until the day of the photo shoot.

Organizations are asked to submit a complete listing of members (for 1992 through 1993 if possible) at the time of the picture taking.

Yearbook Internships Available

Internships and/or independent studies are available for the '93-'94 school year in journalism, photography, graphics, marketing and business management. For more information please stop by the Yearbook Office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (room 229A) between 2-4 p.m. on Tuesday or Thursday.

Don't miss this opportunity to gain experience and to be published.

Ackerson Organizes June Britain Trip

There is still time to plan the summer vacation of a lifetime. Travel to Britain with on a travel tour organized by history faculty member Wayne Ackerson.

The travel course leaves June 6 and returns June 18, and includes visits to such sites as London, York, Cardiff (and other locations in Wales), and other fascinating sites as well.

"With the dollar so strong overseas, this is the time to go," said Ackerson. The strength of the tour, according to Ackerson, are the cost and variety of activities. The cost of the trip, which includes all transportation, airfare, most meals, all lodging in four-star hotels and all admission costs, is only $1,625. Not included is tuition for the three-credit travel course. "For a tour of this quality and extent, this price simply cannot be beat," said Ackerson.

No more interest meetings are planned, but those interested are asked to call Ackerson at 543-6527.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

African-American Students Sponsor Spring Lecture

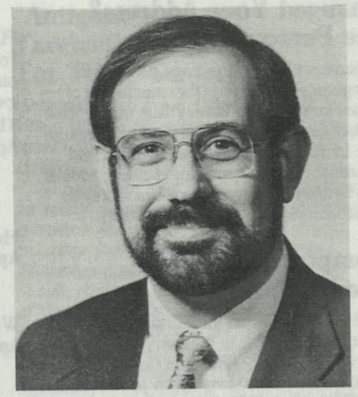
The Union of African-American Students spring lecture will be given by Anthony T. Browder on Thursday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Browders' topic is "Nile Valley Contributions to Civilization."

Browder is a native of Chicago and graduate of Howard University's College of Fine Arts. He is an author, cultural historian, artist and educational consultant. He has lectured throughout the United States, Mexico, Africa, Japan and Europe and has appeared on and conducted numerous television, radio and print interviews.

Browder is the founder and director of the Institute of Karmic Guidance, a culturally oriented organization which is dedicated to the dissemination of ancient Egyptian history and metaphysics. Through the institute, Browder sponsors lectures and seminars and conducts African-centric tours of Washington, D.C. He also organizes study groups throughout the U.S. and abroad and personally escorts annual study tours to Egypt.

He is the author and publisher of three major works: From the Browder File: 22 Essays on the African American Experience, Nile Valley Contributions to Civilization and My First Trip to Africa. All of these works are currently being used as textbooks in classrooms throughout the country, including the New York City School System, the largest in the world.

Browder describes himself as a chronicler of facts and information relative to the positive portrayal of the worldwide African experience. This lecture is free and open to the public. Please call 548-4503 for more information.



Dr. John D. Treadway

Yugoslav Tragedy Is Subject of Lecture

"The Yugoslav Tragedy: Historical and Cultural Origins" will be the subject of a lecture by University of Richmond professor Dr. John D. Treadway on Wednesday, April 28.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Treadway will discuss the causes of the current conflict in Bosnia-Hercegovina, the war-torn country that was previously part of Yugoslavia.

A history professor, Treadway has written extensively on two of the states that joined to make Yugoslavia—Serbia and Montenegro—as well as interwar Yugoslavia. He has been a Fulbright Scholar in Yugoslavia twice, most recently in 1990, and studied the Serbo-Croatian language in Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia-Hercegovina, in 1974.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Ben & Jerry's Traveling Show Comes to Campus April 25

Free family entertainment on a Sunday afternoon? The Ben & Jerry's Traveling Show comes to Salisbury State on Sunday, April 25. The show arrives in a colorful bus filled with performers, a portable stage and, of course, lots of Ben & Jerry's ice cream. The bus sets up at the Salisbury State parking lot off of Camden Ave., next to Holloway Hall at noon. Everyone is invited.

There are two 45-minute shows, beginning at 12:30 p.m. and 2 p.m. The shows are filled with music, magic, juggling and comedy—a show that all ages, even the youngest, can enjoy. To make the show even more enjoyable volunteers will be selling Ben & Jerry's ice cream. The event is a fundraiser for SSU's Center for Teaching Peace. All of the proceeds from the ice cream sale go to the Center to support the teaching of conflict resolution in local elementary and middle schools. Although the Center for Teaching Peace is located at the University, it is supported entirely by grants and donations. The conflict resolution program, taught by University student interns, has benefitted many local schools including Pemberton, Fruitland, Prince Street, Westover, Ocean City and Chipman elementary schools, Woodson and Bennett Middle Schools, St. Francis deSales School and Salisbury School.

The schools are not charged for the program, but the Center for Teaching Peace must raise funds so the interns can be reimbursed for their time and transportation expenses. The program has become very popular and some requests have had to be denied because the center's budget is not sufficient to cover all the intern's expenses.

Ben & Jerry's Homemade, Inc. believes that businesses can play an important role in improving community life. It has made a special effort to address the needs of children and the traveling show is provided at not cost as part of the 1993 "Call for Kids" campaign. Ben & Jerry's is cooperating with the Children's Defense Fund and the Campaign for New Priorities to let people know what they can do to ensure children are raised in an atmosphere of non-violence, where basic needs are met.

Joan Maloof, associate director of the Center for Teaching Peace, said "We're pleased to be part of the important educational work that Ben & Jerry's is doing. The goals of the 'Call for Kids' campaign and the goals of the Center for Teaching Peace are marvelously complementary. The interns and I are looking forward to seeing the show, raising some needed funds...and eating some great ice cream."

CPA Exam Seminar Scheduled for May 1

The Perdue School of Business is conducting a Uniform CPA Exam Seminar for accountants or accounting graduates who plan to take the CPA exam in November 1993 or later. The seminar is in held in Fulton Hall, room 111, on Saturday, May 1, from 9 a.m.- noon. The cost of the seminar is $40 per person.

Credential File: A credential file is a collection of letters of recommendation, resumes, personal history, grades, test scores, student teaching evaluation, etc. It is made available to employers or graduate schools at one's request. When students or alumni request CPPD to sent a completed file, its contents are duplicated, a Salisbury State University cover sheet is attached, then mailed to the address provided. If students or alumni have a cover letter or application, that can be included in the mailing. To open a credential file, stop by the CPPD during regular office hours. It only takes about 15 minutes to get the process started.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

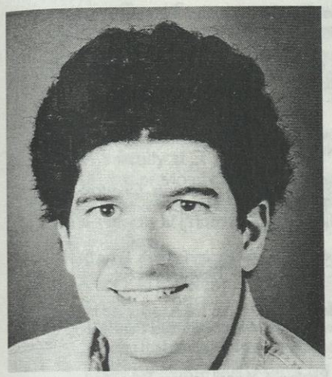
Robin Hemley Opens Writers-on-the-Shore Series



Robin Hemley

For 15 years, the Writers-on-the-Shore series has brought some of the country's most celebrated authors to Salisbury State. The tradition continues this spring with a special literary festival featuring four distinguished and influential writers.

The Spring Literary Festival will run for four consecutive Thursdays at 8 p.m. and begins April 22. All four readings will be held in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall. Admission is free.

The series begins with short-story writer and novelist Robin Hemley, whose work has won the praise of The New York Times. Their reviewers proclaimed Hemley's All You Can Eat, a collection of short stories, "dazzling." His novel, The Last Studebaker was published last year by Graywolf Press. New York Times book critics wrote then, "He has infused just the right amount of humor and pathos into his exploration of how people discover and maintain connections in these bewildering times."

"Robin Hemley is one of the bright lights in contemporary fiction," according to Dr. Michael Waters, the SSU English professor who coordinated the series. "His stories are both funny and sad at the same time." The title story to his 1988 collection, All You Can Eat, is set at a pancake supper where the narrator has a change of heart about his marriage while under the influence of syrup and Aunt Jemima herself.

The Writers-on-the-Shore series was founded to celebrate the best in contemporary writing and to bring major writers of poetry and fiction within reach of SSU students and the Shore community. Among the estimated 100 novelists and poets who have participated are such influential writers as Raymond Carver, Grace Paley, Marilyn Nelson Waniek, Robert Bly and Gary Snyder. Many of the Writers-on-the-Shore have been relative newcomers who have made time not only to read their work, but to hold workshops and visit with students.

Through the readings and the receptions that have followed, the series has brought students and others into contact with these distinguished authors. Students find themselves inspired by these successful writers and can get invaluable help with their own work. Many have kept up a correspondence with visiting writers.

Waters points out that the series is free and open to the public. "The community has been important to the success of the series," he said. "They are as much a part of the series as students have been."

The Writers-on-the-Shore Spring Literary Festival is sponsored by the English Department and the Guerrieri University Center. For more information please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

Grants Are Offered to Adult Learners

Alpha Sigma Lambda, the honor society for adult learners, is offering ASL Foundation Scholarships of $600 for 1993-94. The grants will be made to adult students in continuing higher education based on scholarship, leadership, clarity and content of personal statements and strength of recommendations.

Need criteria for eligibility for grants follow: attend an institution with an active Alpha Sigma Lambda chapter and may be endorsed by that chapter, but do not have to be chapter member; be 24 years of age or older; be matriculated in a program leading to the baccalaureate degree, not graduate level; complete 30 semester hours in institutional coursework as of completion of the fall semesters at the institution in which the student is presently enrolled with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.2 on a scale with 4.0 as the high grade; and complete the application and submit it to the chapter with enough lead time for forwarding by the national deadline.

In addition to application forms, all applicants must submit transcripts of their academic record at their current institution, a personal statement, a listing of leadership experiences and one letter of recommendation.

Application packets may be picked up in the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (Guerrieri University Center, room 242E) and have to be completed by Wednesday, May 5.

For more information please call Agata Liszkowska at 543- 6313.

Salisbury State's international honor society in history, Phi Alpha Theta, held its annual initiation ceremony in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall recently.

The 31 new members of the Eta Iota chapter are Alison R. Barnes, Kelly J. Basil, Brenda O. Boggs, Andrea C. Boosey, Michele L. Burgess, Cori L. Crocker, Danny R. Crum, Jr., Thomas M.L. Goguen, Chad B. Headman, Charles L. Highbarger, Jr., Monica C. Hooks, T. Aaron Horner, Jennifer L. Hufnagel, W. Todd Humphrey, Carolyn J. Hyman, Phillip W. Johnson, Chad Lafley, Martha Mance, Alicia A. Morris, Christopher W. Ohrel, Marnie Oldham, Lynne S. Prettyman, Daryl B. Pynn, Jean B. Rusen, Cathy Jo Russell, Jennifer Silvestri, Donald J. Sterling, Kevin M. Sweeney, Timothy N. Timmons, Jennifer S. White and Philip Williams.

After the initiation and installation of the new members the Honorable Mary Boergers, state senator from Montgomery County, gave a few remarks on how history has enriched her life.

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta requires a class standing of either junior or senior with a minimum of 18 credit hours in history with a 3.0 or above, and an overall GPA of 3.0.

'Antigone' Is Farewell Performance For Three Seniors

Antigone, which opens Friday, April 30, in Fulton Hall Theater features three graduating seniors: Stacy Pushkar, Alex Ulrich and David Hyland.

All have been involved in SSU productions for several years and have proven themselves competent actors. Ulrich has been in several mainstage productions such as The Three Musketeers playing Porthos, The Grapes of Wrath, playing Noah and The Vietnamization of New Jersey playing David. In the fall he plans to relocate to Washington, D.C. to take acting classes and audition. Ulrich's latest role as Creon should prove to be a suiting climax to his college career, having won the Hess Theatre Award last year.

Hyland has also enjoyed a successful career at SSU. Some of his accomplishments include Stanley in Brighton Beach Memoirs, D'Artagnan in The Three Musketeers, Tom Joad in The Grapes of Wrath, and the role of Action in West Side Story. After graduation Hyland will be acting as a character interpreter in Colonial Williamsburg for the summer. When asked about his future, he said, "I hope to go to graduate school to get my Master of Fine Arts in acting. Then I will try to become a professional actor or I hope to teach theater at a university somewhere." Hyland won the Stephen Grant Scholarship for Theatre in 1991 which showed his dedication to the theatre. His last performance as an undergraduate will be as the Chorus, who acts as a narrator for Antigone.

Pushkar, who is playing the part of Antigone, has had her share of performances at SSU. Some of her more noted roles include the narrator in Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Dolores in Dolores, Ozzie Ann in The Vietnamization of New Jersey and Consuela in West Side Story. Her plans for the future include going to Chicago. She said, "When I get to Chicago, I will be auditioning all over the place and eventually I hope to go to graduate school to get my master's."

Antigone can be seen April 30, May 1, 6, 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. and May 2 at 2 p.m. For more information call 543-6228. Tickets cost $5 for adults and $3 for non-SSU students and senior citizens. SSU students, faculty and staff are admitted free.

Fungi Watercolors On Display in Easton

Dr. John Haines, a New York state mycologist, presents a lecture on Mary Banning and her watercolors of fungi at 3 p.m. Thursday, April 22, at the Talbot County Civic Center in Easton. Banning (1868-1898) was an artist from St. Michaels who specialized in watercolors of fungi. When Maryland officials showed no interested in her studies, she sent them to New York.

The lecture and showing of Banning's work was organized by local mycologist, Lance Bischell. For more information, call Dan Sistrunk in the Biology Department at 548-4767.

Middle School Teams Subject of Summer Workshop

"Focus on Middle School Teams," a three-day workshop emphasizing interdisciplinary teaming in middle school environments, will be held July 13-15 at Salisbury State.

Sponsored by the School of Education and Professional Studies and the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium, the workshop is designed for middle school teams of administrators and teachers. Teams must consist of at least one building-level administrator and two teachers.

The workshop provides in-depth exploration of relevant issues and topics in middle-level education with an emphasis on interdisciplinary teaming. Areas investigated are: the nature of the client, appropriate teaching strategies, curriculum design, staff development, characteristics of effective programs and organizational restructuring.

Nationally recognized middle level education consultants will participate in a workshop format and will assist team participants in problem solving and developing a project related to their specific needs. Sessions run from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. each day.

Leading the workshop is Dr. George P. White, an assistant professor of educational leadership in the Lehigh University College of Education. Specializing in middle level education and the principalship, White came to Lehigh University from Central Bucks School District (PA) where he served as assistant superintendent. He also served as a middle level principal, teacher and consultant. White has worked with over 20 school districts, assisting in the design and implementation of middle level programs. Additionally he has presented at the annual conferences of both the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the National Middle School Association.

He will be assisted in the leadership of the workshop by William Ecker, director of the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium; and Gail Meister of Research for Better Schools.

Cost of the workshop is $180 per person which includes lunch daily, a reception and tour of the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art on July 13 and a dinner cruise aboard the Maryland Lady on July 14. The registration deadline is May 21. The workshop is limited to the first 50 participants.

To register or for more information, contact Shirley Adyelotte in the School of Education and Professional Studies at 543-6335.

Jazz Concert Duet at Furnace Town

Furnace Town's mini-concert series begins its 1993 season on Sunday, April 25, with a performance by Van Williamson and Jim Mitchell. The one-hour concert begins at 3 p.m. beneath the Furnace Town Pavilion in Snow Hill. Picnic tables provide seating, although many concert-goers prefer to bring chairs or blankets.

Mitchell and Williamson will perform jazz guitar duets. Williamson, who received a degree in music from San Francisco State University, has been playing professionally for 20 years. Mitchell is guitarist with the Sesame Street Band, the group which provides the sound track for the PBS program Sesame Street. He has been playing professionally for more than 30 years. Both are players in the RFD Quintet.

The concert is included in Furnace Town's site admission charge of $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. Furnace Town Foundation members receive free site admission. For more information please call 632-2032.

Small Discusses Series on Civil War Programs

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has recently completed a six-part discussion series of the Public Broadcast System film documentary of the Civil War. Small's focus was on the social and minority perspectives of the war, as well as the historical significance of the war in American life and history.

For the past two years, Small has been asked to participate and lead some of the discussions in the Adult Plus groups at Delaware Technical and Community College at Georgetown. Co-sponsored by the Delaware Humanities Forum, a state program of the national Endowment for the Humanities, the series is designed to foster collaborative efforts by scholars at neighboring institutions and to encourage them to share their research with adults and other interested parties.

In a similar program at Chesapeake College in February, Small presented the keynote address titled "The Role of African-American Women in American Society" in what is intended to become an annual event.

Choral Society Presents 'Rejoice in the Lamb'

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "Rejoice in the Lamb" on Saturday, May 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury. Special guest artists include: Leneida Crawford, mezzo-soprano; Taylor Harvey, organ; and Scot Hawkins, piano.

Crawford is presently a member of the adjunct voice faculty at St. Mary's (MD) College and was previously an adjunct voice teacher at Salisbury State. She continues to serve in that same capacity at Prince George's (MD) Community College.

Since arriving in the Washington D.C. area in 1987, Crawford has been much in demand as a solo recitalist. In 1990 she was a regional winner in the MacAllister opera competition and in 1989 she won first place in the Mid-Atlantic Regional NATS Auditions. She receive her Bachelor of Science in biology from Virginia Commonwealth University and her Master of Arts in vocal performance from California State University. She has also pursued vocal studies as a scholarship student at Mannes College of Music in New York City.

Crawford is currently a doctoral candidate for the Doctor of Musical Arts in vocal performance and opera from the University of Maryland College Park. She has been an apprentice artist with the Santa Fe Opera Company for the last three summers.

Harvey is a native of Roanoke, VA, and was the organist and choir master at the First English Lutheran Church in Baltimore for 10 years before coming to Asbury United Methodist Church in 1975.

He did his undergraduate and graduate work at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore with additional studies at Westminster Choir College in Princeton, NJ. He studied both organ performance and conducting. Harvey has played recitals in Baltimore, Washington D.C., Philadelphia and Roanoke as well as numerous places on the Eastern Shore. He is the past dean of the American Guild of Organists in Salisbury and has been the full-time organist and choir master at Asbury Church since 1975. There he directs five choirs of which the Chancel Choir has also sung many major choral works including the Rutter, Verdi and Brahms Requiems.

Hawkins is a graduate of Wicomico Senior High School and Salisbury State. During his four years of studies in high school, he was the Concert Choir accompanist under the direction of Phyllis Oldham. Hawkins has studied piano privately with both Harvey and Mary Graham and, while studying at SSU, was a student of Linda Cockey. He began teaching private lessons himself in 1989 and presently teaches piano at Salisbury Music and Instrument Repair. Currently Hawkins is the organist and choir master at St. Philips Church in Quantico, MD. In September 1991 he began as the rehearsal accompanist for the Salisbury Choral Society and was the featured accompanist on Verdi's "Stabat Mater" with the Salisbury Choral Society during its fall concert.

The Salisbury Choral Society is under the direction of Dr. Duane Richard Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at Salisbury State.

The remainder of the concert features the following choral works: "The Hundredth Psalm" and "The Old 100th" by Williams; "Variations on 'Ah, Holy Jesus'" by Roger Petrich; and "Rejoice in the Lamb" by Benjamin Britten.

All three choirs combine for the final choral work of the program, Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Lord, Thou Hast Been our Refuge," a composition for double choir, organ and trumpet dicant.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Two SSU Scholars Invited to Texas Vietnam Conference

Two Salisbury State professors recently participated in the Vietnam: Paris + 20 Conference sponsored by the Center for the Study of the Vietnam Conflict at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Harry Basehart of the Political Science Department chaired a discussion panel on April 24. Jim Welsh, associate professor of English and editor of Literature Film Quarterly, presented a paper titled "Hollywood's Vietnam: Myth and Countermyth" on April 23. Basehart was director of "Remembering Tet" Vietnam conference held at SSU in November, and Welsh was one of the Tet conference co-directors.

Both Basehart and Welsh were invited to Texas Tech by Dr. James R. Rechner, who oversees the Texas Tech Vietnam Archive and who organized the keynote speaker, Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr.

Science Student Presents Research Paper

Karen W. Patterson, a math and geography major and Henson Scholar at Salisbury State, recently presented a paper at the seventh National Conference on Undergraduate Research held at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City March 25-27.

Her paper, "Biomass Fires and High Tropospheric Ozone: A Possible Link," summarized research completed last summer in conjunction with an internship at NASA, Goddard Space Flight Center. The mission of the National Conferences on Undergraduate Research is to promote undergraduate research, scholarship and creative activity done in partnership with faculty or other mentors as a vital component of American higher education.

Patterson's participation in this national conference, the first by an SSU student, was sponsored by the University of Maryland Sea Grant Program funded by NASA.

Whitney Reviews History Manuscript

Assistant professor of history, Dr. Jeanne Whitney, recently reviewed a manuscript for Bedford Books, a division of St. Martin's Press. The manuscript will be one of several volumes in a new series of books, Bedford Books in American History.

The series is designed to serve as supplemental reading for undergraduate history courses. Each volume combines historical narrative with major historical documentation or collections of documents focusing on a specific topic and time period. Whitney commented on the manuscript's appropriateness for use in a survey course and offered suggestions for improving the work.

Journal Honors Horne Essay

Dr. Janet Horne, assistant professor of communication arts in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently took third place honors in a Best Article Award Competition conducted by the editorial board of The Southern Communication Journal.

Horne's article, "Rorty's Circumvention of Argument: Redescribing Rhetoric," was judged, "a fine essay that will be referenced for years," by Dr. Keith V. Erickson, editor of the journal.

Women's Soccer Club Interest Meeting

There is a meeting for anyone interested in playing women's soccer in the fall, on Thursday, April 22, at 7 p.m. in Maggs Gym, room 204. (Bring a pen.)

For more information or if unable to attend please contact Wayne Gorrow at the Campus Recreation Office or call 548-3266.

Salisbury State student Keith Frost, center, picks up his spring semester books, totalling $260.45, which were paid for by the Book Rack. Frost is the winner of a contest sponsored by the German Club at the fall Oktoberfest. A sophomore chemistry major, Frost is a graduate of James M. Bennett High School in Salisbury. He is the son of Barry and Barbara Frost of Ocean City. With Frost are Kaaren Kundell, left, textbook manager of the Book Rack, and Klaudia Thompson, faculty advisor to the German Club.

Bus Trip Scheduled For 'Mother Courage'

The Guerrieri University Center is sponsoring a theatre trip for students to the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday, May 4, to see Mother Courage and Her Children, written by Bertolt Brecht. Mother Courage will be played by Pat Carroll.

Sign-up for the trip began at 8 a.m., Wednesday, April 21, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students. The cost is $15; a student ID must be presented to sign up. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up on Friday, April 23; the cost is $18. The charge covers transportation and theatre ticket.

For more information, call 543-6006.

Education Club Holds Regular Meetings

The Student National Education Association holds its fifth meeting of the semester on Tuesday, April 27. Dr. Charles Long will talk about classroom management. Meetings are every second and fourth Tuesday of the month in Caruthers Hall, room 211, at 3:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Buckle Up SSU!

In 'Making a Heaven of Hell' Horne Examines Marriage Through 18th Century Poetry

With a recently published book, a Salisbury State professor of English may have opened new doors for scholars of 18th-century literature. A member of the SSU faculty since 1973, Dr. William C. Horne has just had a book published by University of Georgia Press. While this book looks back in time, its subject is one that can still cause a stir: the notion of the perfect marriage.

Making a Heaven of Hell: The Problem of the Companionate Ideal in English Marriage Poetry, 1650-1800 examines 18th-century ideas about men and women in marriage as the poets of the day expressed them. Of interest to scholars, in addition to the text itself, will be the Checklist of Marriage Poems, 1650-1800, that Horne offers in the book. Until now, there has been no such list for students of literature to consult. Collections of the work of 18th-century women poets have only recently been published, so the task of assembling such a checklist was especially difficult. Its completion is likely to open new doors for future scholarship.

In the first half of what Horne refers to as the long 18th century, beginning in 1650, writers scorned marriage as ruining the lives of otherwise intelligent and fulfilled men. Wives were curses to be borne, full of trickery and fitting objects for disdain. Marriage at that time was as much a business venture as anything else: pairings were pre-arranged, dowries were negotiated, contracts were signed.

In the latter half of the period, however, there was a noticeable shift in the way marriage was not only described but prescribed. Men and women sought out their own spouses and were encouraged to strive for a companionate ideal, a union of partners.

Then, as now, couples and society debated the question of whether the husband or the wife was the more powerful. When you consider that writing was the century's only means of mass communication, marriage poetry becomes an important window on attitudes of the time. As Horne explains, they didn't have Roseanne or Married: With Children, but they did have poetry that took on social issues.

"Much of the poetry is fun to read," Horne noted. "Some of it is very satirical. There was no shortage of male poets, especially clergy, who were always willing to lecture wives on their duties or instruct them in obedience." In his review of marriage poetry of the period, from sometimes crude satire to celebrations of marriage—all of which sought to advise husbands and wives, Horne outlined the shift in sentiment. Poets and others remade marriage from a hell in which man was sure to be trapped with a shrewish wife to a heavenly union of equal companions. In the latter part of the century, while the woman's role was still a domestic one, she was painted as something of an angel.

With the recent publication of work by women writers of that era has come new research into their attitudes on the subject of marriage. Horne studied the works of poets of both sexes. He writes that the "shift from satire to celebration, from a male-centered attack on marriage as a hell to a feminized idealization of marriage as a heaven, strengthens woman's stature in the domestic sphere, although it effectively delays her acquisition of power in the legal and economic sphere."

This conclusion, Horne acknowledges, may prove to be controversial. Other scholars have said that both versions of marriage amounted to hell for the women of the 18th century.

In this century, each person has his or her idea of marriage: heaven or hell—or somewhere in between. With the new possibilities for research his book opens up, Horne hopes Making a Heaven of Hell will shed some light on the culture that gave rise to our contemporary ideas of marriage.

Henson School Research Symposium Provides Unique Opportunity For Budding Scientists

A chance to test and hone the talents they will need for the future will soon come to life for students at the Henson School of Science and Technology. An estimated 40-50 students will present their research at the school's third annual Undergraduate Research Symposium.

Symposia like this one are traditionally reserved for graduate students and established research scientists; but this unusual program gives SSU's own budding scientists the opportunity to try the future on for size, to see themselves as the professionals they are about to become.

The emphasis on undergraduate research was introduced by Henson School dean, Dr. Phillip D. Creighton. "There will be a critical shortage of mathematicians and scientists by the year 2000," he said. "Undergraduate research is a proven way to get students to identify with their disciplines—biology, chemistry, mathematics, geography, physics—and to consider going on to graduate schools and to careers in science."

Only three years old, the program is already bearing fruit. Creighton and his colleagues report increases in the number of their students applying to graduate schools and in the number of acceptances. In one recent graduating class from the Henson School a third of the students went on to graduate school.

A new trend shows that the Research Symposium is enhancing the reputation of SSU and its students: last year, one of the students who presented at the symposium had her research published; this year, several students are presenting their findings not only on campus, but at national and regional meetings of scientists in their fields.

In one project, a student with a double major in mathematics and English is producing a manual and series of learning exercises for elementary calculus students to use with the Derive computer package. Celeste Jordan gave a presentation on her work and the manual she produced before a meeting of the Maryland-D.C.-Virginia section of the Mathematical Association of America. Aside from a group of students who had participated in a math modeling contest, Jordan was the only undergraduate to make a presentation at the conference.

"It is not all that usual for students to present papers at these meetings," Dr. Kathleen Shannon pointed out. Shannon is associate chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department of the Henson School and is coordinating this year's symposium. "This year," she said, "at least two of our students will present papers at the Mid-Atlantic Division of the Association of American Geographers, another has presented at a regional meeting of the marine biologists' group and another was invited last year to present her paper at the National Conference on Undergraduate Research."

Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, attended the first Under-

Sophanes Presents Greek Classic In Fulton Theatre

Dramatic tragedy is a theme for the semester at Salisbury State University, with the earlier production of the love tragedy West Side Story and now the student production of Jean Anouilh's Antigone. Sophanes, the student theatre organization, presents this modern adaptation of the Greek classic on April 30, May 1,2,6,7 and 8 in the Fulton Hall Black Box Theatre.

Anouilh, a French playwright, took up the task of bringing Antigone into the 20th century. Written and produced in the midst of World War II, Anouilh's script reflects the terrorism and tyranny of Hitler's reign and echoes the original script, written by Sophocles as the third play in the Oedipus trilogy. Even in today's multicultural society, oppression exists and Antigone's cause is pertinent. Antigone, the daughter of Oedipus, fights a moral battle of life and law, with her uncle King Creon, over the burial of her brother Polynices.

The title role will be played by Stacy Pushkar, a senior. Alex Ulrich, also a senior, will player Creon, ruler of Thebes. Ismene, Antigone's sister, will be played by freshman Kate Turner-Walker. John Warren, new to the SSU stage, will play Haemon, Creon's son and Antigone's lover. Cynthia Lasner will play the nurse, matron figure to both girls. Other characters include the page, played by Amy Black; the Body Has Soul? Philosophers Respond

"Does the Body Have a Soul" is the topic for discussion at the Philosophical Society's 13th annual Spring Symposium. Sponsored by the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Salisbury State Program Board it will be held on Saturday, May 1, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

As is customary, two visiting philosophers will make morning presentations to help bring the issues into focus. Dr. Drew Leder, who teaches at Loyola College in Baltimore, is the author of The Absent Body, published by the University of Chicago Press. In it he discusses the many ways in which the body has been ignored and forgotten. Dr. Susan Selner teaches at Mount St. Mary's College and is a specialist in classical philosophy. Both are reputed to be excellent teachers.

A group of panelists will set in motion the afternoon discussion: Dr. Susan Cabral, Legal Studies Department; Dr. Augie DiGiovanna, Biology Department; and Rev. John Klein, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. Dr. Jerry Miller of the Philosophy Department will moderate. Following the remarks of the panelists, the floor will be open for the philosophical free- for-all.

With the help of symposium sponsors, a free lunch will be provided.

For more information call the Philosophy Department at 543- 6038.

Graduating Loan Borrowers Must Attend Interview

All May graduating students who borrowed under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that students attend one of the following sessions in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center: Tuesday, May 4, 4:30 p.m.; Wednesday, May 5, 4:30 p.m.; or Thursday, May 6, 4:30 p.m.

School records and diploma will be withheld from those not attending one of the sessions. Students who are working, interning or student-teaching must make arrangements to attend.

Tickets for Graduation Required for Non-students

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—March 1-5: Book Rack graduation center open for ordering caps, gowns, announcements and other graduation paraphernalia.

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

Faculty members who are not marching, staff and family members who would like tickets should sign up for tickets at the information desk beginning April 28.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Yearbook Internships Available

Internships and/or independent studies are available for the '93-'94 school year in journalism, photography, graphics, marketing and business management. For more information please stop by the Yearbook Office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (room 229A) between 2-4 p.m. on Tuesday or Thursday.

Don't miss this opportunity to gain experience and to be published.

CPA Exam Seminar Scheduled for May 1

The Perdue School of Business is conducting a Uniform CPA Exam Seminar for accountants or accounting graduates who plan to take the CPA exam in November 1993 or later. The seminar is in held in Fulton Hall, room 111, on Saturday, May 1, from 9 a.m.- noon. The cost of the seminar is $40 per person.

The seminar is conducted by Dr. Robert Dombrowski, CPA, chair of the Accounting and Legal Studies Department, and associate professor P. Douglas Marshall, CPA. The seminar addresses all aspects of applying and preparing for the exam, as well as the requirements for certification, licensing and continuing professional education in Maryland and neighboring states. It also looks at upcoming changes to the CPA exam in 1994 and 1996. Samples of commercial CPA review course materials, such as textbooks and software, will be available.

For more information contact Ellen Fykes at 543-6315 or mail check (payable to Perdue School of Business) to: Dr. Robert Dombrowski, Department of Accounting and Legal Studies, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. The registration deadline is April 28.

Dance Company Has Spring Concert

The University's Dance Company presents its Spring Concert 1993 on Wednesday, April 28 (7 p.m.), Friday, April 30 (8 p.m.), and Saturday, May 1 (2 p.m.) in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert includes various styles of dance and features choreography by the Dance Company's Director, Mary Troy. Guest artists include Alvin Mayes of Mt. Ranier, MD, April Brennan of Orange County, CA, and Mary Norton of Salisbury.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for teenagers and senior citizens. Children under 12 and SSU students with identification are free. Tickets will be sold at the door and at the Guerrieri University Center prior to the concert.

For more information call Troy at 543-6353.

Changed Your Address? See Personnel Office

Employees who have recently had address changes or are involved in the renumbering of homes in Wicomico County take note. Please contact the Personnel Office to obtain appropriate forms for updating health, payroll and individual records. Forms for changing address with the State Employees Credit Union are also available through the Personnel Office.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Senior Art Show Opens in Fulton Gallery

The work of 27 senior art majors will be on exhibit May 1-21 during the 20th annual Senior Art Show.

The show will be in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall. The exhibit includes both two- and three-dimensional art work executed in a wide variety of mediums: pencil, pastel, charcoal, conte crayon, watercolor, acrylic paint, oil paint, wood, clay, plaster and fiber.

Art majors at Salisbury State may choose to concentrate in two-dimensional studio, three-dimensional studio, graphic design/visual communications, arts administration and art education. A general studies program along with a core group of art courses and art concentration enables students to acquire either a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Fine Arts.

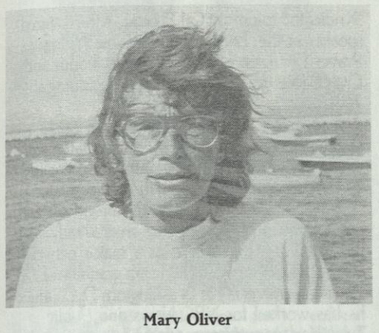
Gallery hours for the exhibit are 10 a.m.- 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.- 8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed Friday. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Outdoor Club Has White Water Trips

The next Outdoor Club trip for the spring semester is white water rafting on the Cheat River in West Virginia or white water canoeing in Ohiopyle, PA, on May 7-9.

Sign ups are at the Outdoor Club meeting on Monday, May 3, in Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information contact Claudine Roussel at 546-4591.

Award-winning Poet Joins Literary Festival



Mary Oliver

Within days of making plans to return to Salisbury State for her third Writers-on-the-Shore reading, poet Mary Oliver learned that her most recent collection, New and Selected Poems, had won the National Book Award (NBA) for 1992.

When asked about the honor, she responded with characteristic straightforwardness. "It is wonderful to win any award and especially an award as prestigious as the NBA," she said. "However, awards speak of the past, and any writer's real interest is focused on the future. No award gets the next book written."

Oliver will be the third author in the Writers-on-the-Shore Spring Literary Festival at SSU. She will be reading selected poems Thursday, May 6, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. Admission is free.

The National Book Award is not the first prestigious literary award Oliver has earned. Her book American Primitive won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1984.

Oliver's poetry brings a 20th century sensibility to concerns for the physical world expressed by the transcendentalists of the last century. Her work is plainspoken and, according to Dr. Michael Waters, possesses "clarity and honesty that shine through." Waters is the coordinator for the Writers-on-the-Shore series and teaches English and creative writing at SSU.

In a recent poem, "When Death Comes," Oliver sounds very much like a contemporary Walt Whitman:

> "When it's over, I want to say: all my life
> I was a bride married to amazement.
> I was the bridegroom, taking the world into my arms.
> "When it's over, I don't want to wonder > if I have made of my life something particular, and real
> I don't want to find myself sighing and frightened, > or full of argument.
> "I don't want to end up simply having visited this world."

Oliver has been well received when she has read her poetry at SSU in the past and is looking forward to returning. "Michael Waters is both a personal friend and a poet whose work I greatly admire," she said. "When I've come to Salisbury previously, I've been provided with an especially interested audience; have met a lot of cordial people from the University, students and faculty; and I get to see my friend as well."

The Writers-on-the-Shore series was founded 15 years ago to celebrate the best in contemporary writing and to bring major writers of poetry and fiction within reach of SSU students and the Shore community. Among the estimated 100 writers who have participated are such influential authors as Raymond Carver, Grace Paley, Marilyn Nelson Waniek, Robert Bly and Gary Snyder. Many of the Writers-on-the-Shore have been relative newcomers who have made time, not only to read their work, but to hold workshops and visit with students.

The series itself expresses a philosophy Oliver shares. "When I was a student," she said, "meeting writers in person, whose work was important to me, was both exciting and nerve-wracking. We all know how difficult and how solitary the work of writing is. It tempered me and cheered me to meet writers who were sincere, and accessible, and a little worn out from the work, who emanated a certainty that the writing life was a good life. Remembering this, I try to be accessible to students, and I try to let them know what happiness there can be in the life of the imagination."

The Writers-on-the-Shore Spring Literary Festival is sponsored by the SSU English Department and the Guerrieri University Center. Mary Oliver's participation is additionally sponsored by the SSU Program Board.

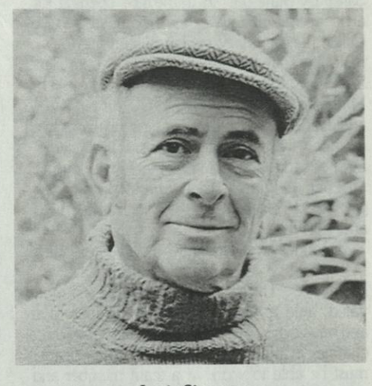
Summer Job Program Seeking Team Leaders

The state of Maryland has established a Summer of Service (SOS) program, M Power!, to engage young people in meeting the needs of their communities.

As part of M Power, the Maryland Student Service Alliance is reviving its summer corps and recruiting 50 energetic, enthusiastic young leaders (ages 17-25) to engage teams of middle and high school students to tackle real problems in their communities—namely those problems confronting children in need in the Greater Baltimore area. Summer corps runs from June 14- August 14. Team leaders will participate in two weeks of extensive training beginning Monday, June 14. Team leaders must serve in the summer corps for the full nine weeks and live in the accommodations provided, most likely on a college campus in Baltimore.

A minimum wage salary ($4.25 per hour) will be earned plus a post-service benefit of approximately $1,000. For more information pick up an application in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for application is May 7.

Poet Louis Simpson Part of Writer Series



Louis Simpson

Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Louis Simpson reads selections from his works on Thursday, April 29, marking his return to the Writers-on-the-Shore series and SSU.

Simpson is the second featured artist in the Writers-on- the-Shore Spring Literary Festival. The series of readings features four of the country's most celebrated authors and is being held on consecutive Thursdays at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. Admission is free.

Simpson brings a sense of humor to his strong, narrative poetry, infusing it with charm. "His poetry comes from the ordinary routine of the suburbs: barbecues, shopping malls," said English professor, Dr. Michael Waters, coordinator of the series. "His work has influenced a younger generation of poets by showing those materials can become part of moving, powerful poetry."

Simpson touches on this in a poem called "Sacred Objects":

> I am taking part in a great experiment—> whether writers can live peacefully in the suburbs > and not be bored to death.

A prolific writer, Simpson most recently published a collection of poems, In the Room We Share, in 1990. Other recent volumes include his Collected Poems (1988) and his Selected Prose (1989). He has also published several volumes of criticism, including books on the lives and work of Ezra Pound, T.S. Eliot, William Carlos Williams, Dylan Thomas, Allen Ginsberg, Sylvia Plath and Robert Lowell. He has also published a novel, Riverside Drive, and an autobiographical memoir, North of Jamaica.

The Writers-on-the-Shore Spring Literary Festival is sponsored by the English Department and the Guerrieri University Center.

Wilkerson Participates In Summer Institute

Dr. Ken Wilkerson, professor of communication arts, will be a participant in a summer institute on Vico's Contributions to the Humanities.

Hosted by the Institute for Vico Studies associated with Emory University in Atlanta, the institute is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Wilkerson has also been recommended by the Council for the International Exchange of Scholars for a fall lectureship in Albania. He has been granted sabbatical leave for the fall semester by SSU.

Computer Services Academic Analyst

Salisbury State has an immediate opening for an academic analyst in the Computer Services Office. The primary responsibilities are to maintain software systems (such as compilers, SAS SPSS, Maple IFPS, VAXnotes, AutoCAD, Mathematica) on a VAX 4300 running VMS and DECstation 5000s running UNIX as well as support users of the systems. The systems must be supported in an Ethernet network using DECnet, LAT and TCP/IP protocols and gateways to external networks such as Internet and BITNET.

Secondary responsibilities involve supporting PC and MAC labs networked using DEC Pathworks. The applicant should be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of technological changes in the computer field. The applicant must be able to work as a team member and possess good communication skills, both oral and written.

Bachelor's degree or comparable education and experience in a computer related field is required. This is a permanent state position with benefits. Starting salary range is $26,000 - $30,000.

All applicants must submit a letter of application, resume and list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of at least three references, not later than May 13 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860.

Economics

Applications are being accepted for a one-year temporary assistant professor position, non-tenure track, starting August 15. Candidates must be able to teach microeconomic and macroeconomic principles, managerial economics, intermediate macroeconomics and intermediate microeconomics. Teaching load will be 12 semester hours. Ph.D. and evidence of excellence in classroom is required. Salary is AACSB competitive. Applications will be accepted until suitable candidates are selected.

Interested parties should submit a letter of application, resume, teaching evaluations, and transcripts to Chair, Search Committee, Department of Economics and Finance, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Choral Society Presents 'Rejoice in the Lamb'

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "Rejoice in the Lamb" on Saturday, May 1, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury. Special guest artists include: Leneida Crawford, mezzo-soprano; Taylor Harvey, organ; and Scot Hawkins, piano.

The remainder of the concert features the following choral works: "The Hundredth Psalm" and "The Old 100th" by Williams; "Variations on 'Ah, Holy Jesus'" by Roger Petrich; and "Rejoice in the Lamb" by Benjamin Britten.

All three choirs combine for the final choral work of the program, Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Lord, Thou Hast Been our Refuge," a composition for double choir, organ and trumpet dicant.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Laboratory Instructors

The Department of Chemistry is seeking applications for laboratory instructors in the area of chemistry. These positions are part-time/full-time contractual with no state benefits. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree with a master's degree preferred. Send resume to Dr. Frederick F. Kundell, chair, Chemistry Department, by April 30.

Grants Are Offered To Adult Learners

Alpha Sigma Lambda, the honor society for adult learners, is offering ASL Foundation Scholarships of $600 for 1993-94. The grants will be made to adult students in continuing higher education based on scholarship, leadership, clarity and content of personal statements and strength of recommendations.

Need criteria for eligibility for grants follow: attend an institution with an active Alpha Sigma Lambda chapter and may be endorsed by that chapter, but do not have to be chapter member; be 24 years of age or older; be matriculated in a program leading to the baccalaureate degree, not graduate level; complete 30 semester hours in institutional coursework as of completion of the fall semesters at the institution in which the student is presently enrolled with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.2 on a scale with 4.0 as the high grade; and complete the application and submit it to the chapter with enough lead time for forwarding by the national deadline.

In addition to application forms, all applicants must submit transcripts of their academic record at their current institution, a personal statement, a listing of leadership experiences and one letter of recommendation.

Application packets may be picked up in the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (Guerrieri University Center, room 242E) and have to be completed by Wednesday, May 5.

For more information please call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

Don't Cuss Gus, Fuss With Us

The Student Government Association and the Motor Pool apologize for recent scheduling problems with the Gus Bus. Attempts are underway to have a bus designated for SGA use in the fall.

Dietary Worker

The Office of Dining Services has a part-time opening (25-30 hours per week) for a dietary worker. Duties include serving of food, maintaining cleanliness of utensils and equipment and cashiering. Work on evenings and weekends is required. A contractual position with no paid benefits, pay is $5 per hour.

Make application not later than May 12 to Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Prayer Breakfast Features Columnist Cal Thomas

Syndicated columnist Cal Thomas is the featured speaker at the 18th annual Salisbury Mayor's Prayer Breakfast at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center on Tuesday, May 4, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

In addition to his nationally syndicated column, Thomas is a radio commentator and author. His twice weekly columns appear in 250 newspapers throughout the United States.

A veteran of 30 years in the broadcast and print journalism fields, Thomas entered radio at the age of 16 and served as a major network copy boy at the age of 18. He is a graduate of American University in Washington, D.C., and he has worked for NBC News and Public Television, winning numerous reporting awards. Thomas has guest hosted Cable News Network's Crossfire and has appeared as a guest on Donahue, ABC's Nightline, Good Morning America, The CBS Morning News and NBC's Today Show.

He is also the author of eight books including Uncommon Sense, Death of Ethics in America, Occupied Territory, Liberals for Lunch and the 1983 best seller, Book Burning.

Rather than calling himself a "Christian Journalist," Thomas says he is a follower of Jesus Christ whose calling is journalism. He feels that being a Christian, the Word gives him a standard for objective truth. This provides advantages over journalists who are not believers he feels, because he views the role of journalists as one which pursues and communicates truth. As a Christian, Thomas says he can "approach issues, subjects, and politics with a firm set of principles and a standard by which I might judge right and wrong."

Thomas acknowledges the liberal views of the media saying that numerous surveys over the last 20 years have shown that most in his profession "take political and spiritual position that is directly opposite what most Christians believe in." Working during the presidential election campaign, whose media coverage was in his opinion "shameful...slanted...and quite objectionable," Thomas feels "you have to be extremely well grounded in your faith."

Thomas is a frequent lecturer and has spoken on more than 70 college campuses. He and his wife, Ray, who is a family therapist for the Minirth-Meier-Byrd Clinic in Fairfax, VA, live outside Washington, D.C. in Manassas, VA.

Whitney Paper Proposal Is Accepted

Dr. Jeanne Whitney, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently learned that her paper proposal has been accepted for the 1993 conference of the Dublin Seminar in New England Folklife.

The seminar, operated in conjunction with Boston University's Program in American and New England Studies, Historic Deerfield, and Plimoth Plantation, has been meeting for 17 years and produces a series of publications. More than 50 scholars submitted proposals for this year's topic, "New England Creatures: 1600-1900," but fewer than 20—including Whitney— received acceptances.

Whitney will investigate whether 19th-century central New England farmers heeded the animal husbandry advice from agricultural reformers. The paper will be published in the journal Proceedings of the Dublin Seminar.

Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance (left) receives $40,000 from Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation of Dorchester County, to finance four-year scholarships for five Dorchester County students to attend SSU.

Nathan Foundation Funds Additional Scholarships

The Nathan Foundation of Dorchester County recently presented $40,000 to the SSU Foundation, Inc. to finance four-year scholarships. The scholarships, amounting to $8,000 each, are for five Dorchester County students to attend Salisbury State University.

The check was presented to Dr. Bellavance by Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation. To qualify for the scholarship, Nabb said, one has to secure a guidance counselor's recommendation. The selection process begins in May.

"Success begets success, doesn't it?" asked Nabb. "We at the Nathan Foundation think that for every person you educate, you've sown seeds for five more to be educated.

"Many of the good students we're sponsoring at Salisbury State have taken the opportunity to go on and further their education (at graduate school)," said Nabb. "And many return to Cambridge to share the expertise they've gained."

The Nathan Foundation has been making scholarship money available to Salisbury State-bound students since 1962. The foundation's 31-year investment in SSU now totals over $500,000.

The Nathan Foundation directors feel these scholarships represent the most quality we're going to buy with Milford Nathan's money," said Nabb. "We feel that is our obligation to spend the foundation funds the way Mr. Nathan would have spent it.

"Salisbury State University offers a quality education and we try to invest our money in quality programs," said Nabb. "We have received overtures from a lot of other schools (seeking donations), but we can buy more quality education at Salisbury State for our dollar than at any other institution at Maryland."

Bellavance said distribution of the scholarship money is closely controlled by the University. "There's been a very good track record for these students," he said.

The Nathan Foundation specifies that the money be used only for the benefit of citizens of Dorchester County and goes to organizations that serve people of every race, color and creed.

The Nathan Foundation was created in 1962 following the instructions in the will of Milford Nathan, who died in 1956. Later the Foundation was supported further from the estate of Bertha Nathan, Milford's sister who passed away in 1981.

Wind Sinfonia, Dance Company Spring Concert Set

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music present the Wind Sinfonia's spring performance at Holloway Hall Auditorium on Sunday, May 9, at 2 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public.

Feature guest artists include members of the Dance Company under the auspices of the present interim director, Mary Troy. Two compositions written for wind band have been chosen by Troy and two members of the Dance Company for choreography with dance. Warren Benson's "The Solitary Dance," composed in 1969, will be performed by Troy and Tru Stevenson.

Benson describes his setting as a "quiet and poised energy that one may observe in a dance in repose, alone with her inner music."

A continuous percussion movement provides the rhythmic drive for the development of "minimalistic" thematic material. Benson also incorporates ensemble chanting and hand clapping to the development of the composition.

The second setting for solo dance is Ron Nelson's "Homage to Machaut," the third movement of his medieval suite composed in 1981. The setting is choreographed and danced by Heather Curran.

Nelson composed the suite in homage to three great masters of the Middle Ages: Leonin (middle 12th century), Perotin (c. 1155-1200) and Machaut (c. 1300-1377). "Homage to Machaut" evokes the stately, gently syncopated and flowing sounds of the master of choral writing. The movement consists of a chant statement with two repetitions, each orchestrated for different sonoric balances.

The Wind Sinfonia will close the afternoon concert with a composition written by Daniel Bukvich titled "Voodoo." The work is performed in total darkness and incorporates the use of a flashlight brigade, jungle chanting, Latin themes, the samba, bird whistles, jungle drums, and a variety of ways of playing wind instruments, mutes and tuning slides. Bukvich has been a member of the Lionel Hampton School of Music at the University of Idaho since 1978. He has received commissions for his ensemble compositions throughout the United States and in several foreign countries.

Other compositions performed by the Wind Ensemble include "Fanfare for the Hour of Sunrise" by Ron Nelson, "Ballad for Band" by Morton Gould and "Divertimento for Band" by Vincent Persichetti.

The Wind Sinfonia is conducted by Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies. Johnson has recently been appointed state representative to the National Association of College Band Directors.

For more information contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.

First Amendment And PC Are Topic of Lecture

Dr. John Staczek

"Sticks and Stones: First Amendment, Education and Individual Responsibility" is the subject of a lecture by Georgetown University associate professor Dr. John Staczek.

The lecture is Monday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech.

Staczek's lecture focuses on political correctness and individual responsibility for the use of words. "In many ways, language is similar to a loaded weapon that can be used to protect, to intimidate, to empower, to control," he said. "How speakers and writers use language depends on the message, the audience and the circumstances. The user of language, not the language itself, is responsible for the social, psychological and political manipulation."

Staczek is on the faculty of the School of Languages and Linguistics at Georgetown University. He also is a member of the board of directors of the Georgetown University Press and serves as editor of linguistics and romance languages.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture series is designed to encourage discussion on issues such as the impact of "political correctness," restricted National Endowment for the Arts funding and recent court decisions regarding hate speech.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Explore Tax Shelters With Personnel Office

An excellent way to avoid paying unnecessary taxes (legitimately) is to enroll in a tax shelter program. Why not explore the possibilities?

A portion of employees' paychecks can be tax sheltered for retirement purposes before being tempted to spend it elsewhere.

A representative of PEBSCO (commonly called Deferred Comp) will be on campus and available for individual meetings Monday, May 10. Call the Personnel Office (543-6035 or 548-4755) for further details and an appointment time.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The Gulls roll on. The men's lacrosse team, ranked number one in Division III since March 22, upped its record to 12-0 for the year with a convincing 17-5 rout of fifth-ranked Washington College last Saturday. The win was SSU's 20th straight at home in regular season action, dating back to 1991, and the fourth this season over a team ranked in the top 10.

Freshman Jason Coffman led the offense with four goals and five assists, and junior Joe DiNenna tallied a career-high three goals. SSU opened a 7-1 lead after one quarter and led 15-3 after three quarters to easily defeat Washington for the third straight year.

Seniors Mike Esham and Scott Petrie led the stingy Gull defense, with junior goalie Erik Miller recording 22 saves on the afternoon. The Sea Gulls will try to notch their second undefeated regular season in the last three years when they close with West Chester at home this Saturday. The Division III playoffs begins on May 16.

The men's tennis team (9-3) swept all nine championship matches to easily outdistance the field and win the Eastern States Athletic Conference championship for the fifth straight year. Senior Ken Soliday was named ESAC Player-of-the-Year for the second straight season as he captured titles at number one singles and doubles. Brian Weist, Bill Stern, Dave Allewalt, Mike Daw and Kipp Kramer also won two championships apiece.

With one game remaining for the women's lacrosse team (4-7), Flossy Owens is within reach of her own single-season goals record. Owens tallied 47 goals last year as she set a new Sea Gull record, and needs three in Thursday's game at Notre Dame to break the mark. Her 92 career goals places her fourth on the all-time SSU list.

Kirsten Owings finished first in four events, including a school-record of 17'3" in the long jump, as the SSU women won the championship of the annual Sea Gull Invitational Track Meet last Saturday. Owings added first place finishes in the 100 and 200 meter runs and was on the winning 4 x 100 relay team. The SSU men won nine events to also claim the men's team championship. Dan Quinn's throw of 147'3" broke his own school-record in the hammer for the third time this season. Salisbury State hosts the Mason/Dixon Conference Championship Meet this weekend.

The baseball team fell to 10-11 overall as it dropped a home doubleheader to Allentown last Saturday, 13-4 and 6-4. Jerry Nicklow, Mike Brogden and Derek Yobst had home runs for the Gulls. SSU fell to 2-4 in ESAC games.

Meanwhile, the softball team (8-7) turned the tables on Allentown with a sweep of its own. SSU beat its ESAC rival 7-0 and 11-1 at home as Sonja Akers and Lauren Hesson hurled complete game wins.

All volunteers receive a Wheelchair Games t-shirt and a ticket to the dance Saturday night. The games are sponsored by SSU and the Department of Natural Resources, with grants from Pepsi-Cola of Salisbury and Perdue Farms Inc.

Newman Club Looks at Christian Life in '90s

The SSU Newman Club (the campus Catholic student association) is sponsoring a panel discussion on "Living as a Christian in the '90s: A Catholic Perspective."

The discussion is scheduled for Thursday, May 6, at 8 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center (second floor). Father Roger DiBuo of Saint Francis de Sales Catholic Church in Salisbury and Dr. Timothy Miller of the History Department will make a few remarks on the moral problems facing Christians in today's society, problems which are perhaps most difficult for college students to address since many of them are away from family, friends and familiar institutions for the first time.

Following the short presentations, Father DiBuo and Miller will answer questions from students and anyone interested in attending. "Facing social pressures to conform, answering probing intellectual questions raised by professors and confronting the pervasive selfishness of modern culture all make the Christian life a difficult road," said Miller. "In addition TV, radio and even psychological counselors praise the 'pursuit of happiness' without providing any moral rules for the game."

The Newman Club's panelists promise not to try to answer all these questions, but they will offer some moral guidelines, outlined in Christ's Gospel and in the interpretations of the Catholic Church through the centuries.

The event is open to everyone, not just Newman Club members. Miller will be happy to answer any questions (543-6243).

Alexander Belaiev

Russian, Delaware Painters Exhibit at AI&G

An unusual opportunity will present itself to art lovers through May 21 at the Salisbury Art Institute & Gallery (AI&G).

On display in Gallery One is an exhibit of Soviet abstract and impressionistic art by Siberian painter Alexander Belaiev. The accompanying Yost Gallery features "From City to Shore," oils by Delaware painter Sharon Gude, who recently moved from New York City.

Although living worlds apart, both Gude and Belaiev use the natural and the artificial worlds as points of departure in their work. Belaiev, who works in watercolor and oil, expresses the energy objects possess and generate through abstract and impressionistic forms. Gude's work also possesses a lot of energy, and her show is a study in contrasts between American urban and rural landscapes.

The Art Institute & Gallery is located on the north side of Route 50 in downtown Salisbury, one block west of N. Division Street. Gallery hours are noon-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Extended hours are available for groups. For more information call 546-4748.

Chamber Choir Concert In Great Hall

The Chamber Choir performs an all a cappella concert in the newly-renovated Great Hall located in Holloway Hall. There is no charge for the performance and the public is invited. Two identical performances are scheduled for Monday, May 10, and Tuesday, May 11, at 8 p.m.

The Chamber Choir is a select ensemble of voices which performs annually on the campus and often combines with the Salisbury Choral Society to perform extended choral works. They will sing with the Salisbury Choral Society on its May 1 concert at Asbury United Methodist Church.

The Chamber Choir is currently making preliminary plans for a return study abroad trip and concert tour to Germany during the 1994 January winter term. Recently the choir and its director, Dr. Duane R. Karna, received an invitation for their return to the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf, Germany.

The concert program planned for May 10 and 11 represents Samuel Barber' "Reincarnations," Aaron Copland's "Four Motets" and other a cappella choral music representing Renaissance motets, spirituals and American folksongs.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Canoe Challenge On Pocomoke River

The fifth annual Pocomoke River Canoe Challenge on Saturday, June 19, is a 12-mile race from Snow Hill to Pocomoke City.

New racing categories and classifications add excitement to the race. Novice and advanced categories allow canoeists of like abilities to compete, and team racing is by cumulative age.

Canoes will be classified as either standard or competition cruiser depending on their measurements. There is also a solo division for standard, competition cruiser and kayak entries. Prizes are awarded in each division.

The United States Canoe Association (USCA) sanctioned event begins at 9 a.m. in Sturgis Park with breakfast for competitors. Children's activities are slated to begin then, and the actual race starts at noon. The course winds 12 miles downstream to Cypress Park in Pocomoke City, where the annual Cypress Festival will be under way.

Official Pocomoke River Canoe Challenge patches are given to all participants. Trophy paddles are given for first place winners, while second and third place winners receive commemorative pins. Entry fees are $10 per person if postmarked no later than June 13. A late entry fee of $15 will be charged for those forms postmarked or hand-delivered June 14-19.

Longwood Gardens Van Trip May 13

The Guerrieri University Center and the Horticulture Department are joining together to sponsor a van trip to Longwood Gardens on Thursday, May 13.

The van leaves the Dogwood parking lot near the Guerrieri Center at 8 a.m. and arrives at the gardens at approximately 10 a.m. It leaves the gardens at 3 p.m. and arrives back in Salisbury at approximately 5 p.m.

There is no charge for the van but everyone is responsible for their own admission charge. No food or beverages are allowed in the van. There is a restaurant in the gardens where lunch can be purchased. Van seating is limited and sign-up begins at 8 a.m. on Wednesday, May 5, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center.

Longwood Gardens is located near Kennett Square, PA, in the Brandywine Valley. Longwood's many attractions include 350 acres of outdoor gardens and woodlands, glassed conservatories enveloping 20 indoor gardens, and beautiful fountains. Spring time at Longwood is spectacular.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Bike to Campus On Wellness Day

In conjunction with Wellness Day on Monday, May 3, the Cycling Club is promoting bicycling to campus.

This is everyone's chance to try it. It's efficient. It's ecological. It's economical. It's healthy. And it's fashionable. Too often overlooked and underrated, the bicycle is the simplest and most pleasure-inducing way to become healthier while saving the environment.

Meet at the Guerrieri University Center hill at noon to get more information on bicycle commuting, bicycle safety, upcoming bicycle trips, helmet and lock purchases, and bicycle registration

Challenge Exams For English Scheduled

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Wednesday, September 8, from 4-7 p.m. For students interested in taking either of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, May 24.

In August a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

Gus Bus Goes To the Beach

The Gus Bus travels to Ocean City on Saturday, May 1, leaving from Maggs Gym at 1 p.m. and departing Ocean City at 8 p.m. Take advantage of the Student Government Association sponsored trip; it only costs $2.

History Faculty at Furnace Town

Barry Neville, a lecturer of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently participated in the Revolutionary War Program sponsored by the Historic Furnace Town Foundation. The weekend, titled "A Sense of Family in a Revolutionary Setting," recreated a Revolutionary War era military encampment, with reenactors demonstrating tactics, drill and camp life. Guest speakers lectured on various topics dealing with the historic period, as well as family genealogy.

Neville's lecture, "For King and Country: Loyalism on the Delmarva Peninsula During the American Revolution," identified the groups labelled as loyalists by the Maryland government and addressed the question of whether these groups were genuinely disloyal or whether they opposed the Revolutionary movement for political and/or religious reasons. The merits of the actions taken by the state government to suppress loyalism were also debated.

History professor Sylvia Bradley spoke on "Joined by Blood: Divided by War" in which she analyzed a number of loyalist families on the lower Eastern Shore, concentrating on Sussex, Somerset and Worcester counties during the American Revolution.

Bradley demonstrated that many Eastern Shore families there were divided in their loyalties. She concluded that much of the reason for loyalism was economic, and that it was the well-to-do "gentry" which was primarily Tory in sympathy.

Donald Whaley's lecture, "A Family Tree: From Nuts to Bolts," explored genealogy as a useful way to gain insight into the past. Whaley, a history instructor, outlined the sources which a individual interested in family history should consult in the process of creating a record of a certain family.

graduate Research Symposium and was inspired to lend his support. "When I attended, I saw students engaged in an intellectual endeavor of a kind I hadn't seen around here before," he said. "The quality of the papers, the thoughtfulness that had gone into preparing the presentations—it was akin to attending a professional meeting.

"It's the kind of thing we have long wanted our students to be involved in," he said. After that first year, Butler has made available funds from his office to support the students' research. "The money pays for their equipment, or travel expenses if they are doing field work," he explained. "These students get a leg up on graduate school and represent the University well."

The Undergraduate Research Symposium includes the presentations of papers and a poster session, for research that lends itself better to a visual presentation. It will be held Tuesday, May 11, from 3:15-5:45 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall. Admission is free and the symposium is open to the public. For more information, call the Henson School at 543-6425.

Symphony Orchestra Showcases Young Musicians in Spring Concert

It's always exciting to discover a treasure. Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, director of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU, hopes to help music lovers do just that with the SSO's Spring Concert May 14 and 15.

Elliot says the program has a very specific goal: "To showcase the talents of our own exceptional musicians." The symphony's spring concert will feature solo performances by the SSO's own harpist, Hong Liang, 17-year-old SSO violinist Alexia Luscher, 5-year-old pianist Gary Cheng and a horn quartet that includes Carrie Work. Work made her solo debut with the SSO four years ago.

The concert will open with Brahms "Academic Festival Overture, in c minor, Op.80," followed by Handel's "Concerto for Harp and Orchestra, Op.4, No.6." The concerto, especially in the hands of Liang and the SSO, serves as an eloquent explanation for the traditional depiction of harps in the hands of angels. Liang, a Master of Music candidate at the Peabody Conservatory, will perform the piece on the University's brand new concert harp, manufactured by the country's premier harp maker, Lyon and Healey.

Next on the program is the beautiful "Valse Triste, Op.44." Then, the first half of the concert will conclude with Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen (Gypsy Airs)," featuring Wicomico Senior High School senior Luscher. This was a favorite solo performance piece of Paganini's, and so may be familiar to music lovers.

The concert's second half begins with a "special young man," in the words of Elliot. Five-year-old Cheng is a piano student of Judith S. Gray and has already won several distinctive honors. Gray, a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory, has orchestrated the Clementi "Sonatina, Op.36, No.3" for Cheng and the SSO. An original composition by Judith Gray will follow: "Animal Crackers—Eight Miniatures for Orchestra." This is a light-hearted piece, which Gray characterizes as a tone poem describing a collection of different animals.

Schumann's "Konzertstuck for Four Horns and Orchestra" is the last piece on the spring concert program. Work has assembled a horn quartet of friends from the Peabody Conservatory, Temple University and Swarthmore College. Work will graduate from Peabody in May and is a member of the Peabody Symphony Orchestra, the Peabody Conductor's Orchestra and the Charm City Brass Quintet. Joining her are Daniel Bloor, a Master of Music student at the Peabody, William Bonnell, who graduates this May from Temple University, and Zach Maupin, a senior music major at Swarthmore College, where he has held a Garrigues or a Barnard Scholarship for private studies all four years.

Harpist Hong Liang prepares for her solo performance with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU. The SSO's Spring Concert, May 14 and 15 features solos by its members. First violin Robin Cockey is also shown.

As excited as he is about these instrumentalists, Elliot is keeping his focus on the sound. "What motivates me," he said, "is music that will highlight both the orchestra and the soloist. I want to bring out the best in orchestral texture."

Unlike previous spring concerts, this performance will not include vocal music. With so much instrumental talent to draw from, however, SSO fans are not likely to be disappointed.

The spring concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, May 14, and 2 p.m. Saturday, May 15 in Holloway Hall auditorium on the campus of Salisbury State University. Tickets are $6, with $4 tickets available to students and senior citizens. SSO Gold Card Patrons will be admitted without charge. For more information, please call the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Alumnus Cottman Is Honors Convocation Speaker

Salisbury State will honor some 400 outstanding scholars and student leaders at its 68th annual Honors Convocation on Friday, May 7, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

"Honors Convocation is that time of the year when we salute those students who have distinguished themselves in their academic and student leadership pursuits," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. "Through their efforts they gain individual recognition, but also give rise to pride from their family and friends and the University."

The Honors Convocation, which dates back to the founding of the University in 1925, this year recognizes students in nearly 60 different areas of academic life. These awards reflect organizations as diverse as international honor societies to the Wall Street Journal to local patrons and clubs saluting civic leaders such as Sam and Marilyn Seidel and the late Doris Gay Calcott.

According to tradition, each year the Honors Convocation Committee chooses a member of the SSU Alumni Association to give the address.

George H. Cottman, a 1976 graduate with a Bachelor of Arts in geography and a Wicomico County native, is this year's Honors Convocation speaker. The title of his speech is "College Days: The Best of Times or the Worst of Times? The Choice is Yours."

"One thing I remember most about Salisbury State is that it has a good learning environment," Cottman said. "There's an excellent relationship between the students and faculty. You could go to the professors about anything whether it was academic, social or personal. That atmosphere is conducive to quality education, so you are able to get a quality education.

"SSU isn't just a big training arena. It prepares people to go into the professional world, but it also turns them into contributors to the community."

Cottman, who also earned a Master of Arts in business and space systems management from Webster University, spent the bulk of his career in the Air Force. Currently, he is a classification analyst for the Center for Naval Analyses Corp. in Alexandria, VA.

The son of Myrtle Cottman of Salisbury, he graduated from James M. Bennett High School in 1972 and started at Salisbury State in 1973.

While at SSU, Cottman enrolled in the ROTC program and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Air Force upon graduation. He entered active duty in 1977 and, after completing technical training, was assigned as a Minuteman III launch control officer at Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota. Other

Alumni Office Offers SSU License Plates

Alumni throughout Maryland are displaying their pride in the University with special "Salisbury State" license plates on their passenger cars, multipurpose vehicles or light trucks registered in Maryland. New graduates interested in receiving a license plate form should call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Graduation Requires Tickets to Attend

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17, will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

Faculty members who are not marching, staff and family members who would like tickets should sign up for tickets at the information desk beginning April 28.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Challenge Exams For English Scheduled

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Wednesday, September 8, from 4-7 p.m. For students interested in taking either of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, May 24.

In August a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Wheelchair Games Volunteers Needed

The Maryland Wheelchair Athletic Games are at SSU on May 7- 9. Volunteers are needed as timers, judge's assistants and other areas as needed.

The events are as follows:

Friday
- 1 p.m. Table tennis-Maggs Gym
- 4 p.m. Slalom-Maggs Gym
- 7 p.m. Weightlifting-Maggs Gym
- 7 p.m. Swimming-Maggs Gym (Pool)

Saturday
- 8 a.m. Track and field events-SSU Track
- 9 a.m. Air weapons-Maggs Gym
- 1 p.m. Archery-Sea Gull Stadium

Sunday
- 9 a.m. Archery-Sea Gull Stadium

Volunteers need to be at the event at least one-half hour before start time. To volunteer call David Duitscher in Computer Services at 543-6115 and leave your name and when you can help. All volunteers receive a Wheelchair Games t-shirt and a ticket to the dance Saturday night. The games are sponsored by SSU and the Department of Natural Resources, with grants from Pepsi-Cola of Salisbury and Perdue Farms Inc.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Building Manager

The Guerrieri University Center has an opening for a part-time building manager.

Duties include on-site supervision of the facility and its staff during evening hours and weekends on a rotating basis. High school education is required; supervisory experience is preferred.

This is a contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $6.50 an hour, ideal for a college student or retiree.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University until May 14.

Physics

Applicants are sought for a physics laboratory instructor, a full-time contractual position in the Department of Physics. The position runs from August 15 through June 15.

Duties include teaching astronomy and physics laboratories and supervising student workers. Minimum requirements are a degree in physics or suitable experience. Inquiries may be directed to Dr. C. Richard McKenzie, Chair, Department of Physics, Salisbury State University, 21801, by May 15. Phone 543-6480.

Computer Services Academic Analyst

Salisbury State has an immediate opening for an academic analyst in the Computer Services Office. The primary responsibilities are to maintain software systems (such as compilers, SAS SPSS, Maple IFPS, VAXnotes, AutoCAD, Mathematica) on a VAX 4300 running VMS and DECstation 5000s running UNIX as well as support users of the systems. The systems must be supported in an Ethernet network using DECnet, LAT and TCP/IP protocols and gateways to external networks such as Internet and BITNET.

Secondary responsibilities involve supporting PC and MAC labs networked using DEC Pathworks. The applicant should be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of technological changes in the computer field. The applicant must be able to work as a team member and possess good communication skills, both oral and written.

Bachelor's degree or comparable education and experience in a computer related field is required. This is a permanent state position with benefits. Starting salary range is $26,000-$30,000.

All applicants must submit a letter of application, resume and list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of at least three references, not later than May 13 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860.

Economics

Applications are being accepted for a one-year temporary assistant professor position, non-tenure track, starting August 15. Candidates must be able to teach microeconomic and macroeconomic principles, managerial economics, intermediate macroeconomics and intermediate microeconomics. Teaching load will be 12 semester hours. Ph.D. and evidence of excellence in classroom is required. Salary is AACSB competitive. Applications will be accepted until suitable candidates are selected.

Interested parties should submit a letter of application, resume, teaching evaluations, and transcripts to Chair, Search Committee, Department of Economics and Finance, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

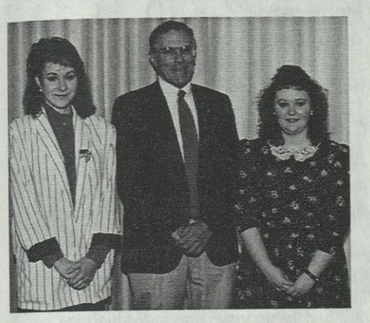
Dietary Worker

The Office of Dining Services has a part-time opening (25-30 hours per week) for a dietary worker. Duties include serving of food, maintaining cleanliness of utensils and equipment and cashiering. Work on evenings and weekends is required. A contractual position with no paid benefits, pay is $5 per hour.

Make application not later than May 12 to Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Guerrieri Scholarships Benefit All Schools



Alan Guerrieri, center, president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms Inc., meets with Melissa Hetteroth, left, of Felton, DE, and Leigh Ann Tull, right, of Seaford, DE. Both are juniors and are recipients of Guerrieri Scholarships.

For the first time since Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City endowed Salisbury State with a $1 million scholarship fund, there are four Guerrieri Scholars in each class—freshman through senior—at the University.

Also for the first time, 10 of the 16 Guerrieri Scholars met their benefactor at a recent luncheon in the Guerrieri University Center.

"I came to the luncheon because I want Mr. Guerrieri to know of my extreme appreciation for my scholarship," said Melissa Hetteroth, a junior from Felton, DE, majoring in communication arts and elementary education.

"I felt really honored that my academic efforts were recognized," said Leigh Ann Tull, a Guerrieri Scholar and a junior mathematics/secondary education major from Seaford, DE. "The scholarship helped me out financially, too. Now I won't be paying off a college loan for the next 20 years."

The Guerrieri Scholarships are unusual because they are not limited to one area of study, according to Robert Gearhart, director of institutional advancement at SSU. The Guerrieris wanted the aid to go where it was most needed.

"It's the largest scholarship program at Salisbury State that's open to students in all five schools at the University," Gearhart said. "The gift has allowed us to provide more academic scholarships to the brightest and best students in every discipline."

Alan Guerrieri is president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms, Inc., a privately owned poultry corporation.

Patti Guerrieri, who is a Salisbury State alumna, met her husband in the early 1950s while she was still a student. After their marriage they continued to live in Salisbury and three of their five children attended the Salisbury State Campus Elementary School.

"I really enjoyed meeting the scholarship recipients and look forward to future get-togethers," Alan Guerrieri said. "Currently, Showell Farms is working with the University's Center for Personal and Professional Development to help identify students and recent graduates for possible internships and careers at Showell."

Minimum requirements for consideration for a Guerrieri Scholarship are a 3.5 grade point average and a score of 1150 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Scholarships range from $1,000 to $2,000 per year and do not exceed four years. Recipients must maintain a 3.3 grade point average for continuation.

For more information, call the Admissions Office at 543-6160.

Furnace Town Walk Scheduled for May 7

Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill is the location for the final in a spring series of night walks on Friday, May 7.

The walk, which starts at The Company Store in Furnace Town, begins at 7 p.m. and concludes about 9 p.m. Kathy Fisher, executive director of Furnace Town Foundation, will lead walkers past the bloodroot to the millrace, along the ponds and past the Nassawango Iron Furnace. The walk will continue along the Nature Trail, with frequent stops to listen to the night sounds and to identify spring plants. Special attention will be paid to calling owls and to listening for members of the nightjar family.

Walkers are encouraged to dress for the weather and to bring a flashlight. Furnace Town's standard site admission fee of $3 per adult and $1.50 per child will be collected. Members of either Furnace Town Foundation or The Nature Conservancy receive complimentary site admission.

Please call 632-2032 to make reservations.

New Student Seminar Needs Student Workers

A limited number of upper-class students are being hired to co-teach the five-week Fall New Student Seminar with a member of the faculty or University staff.

The 10-session course is offered during the first five weeks of the fall semester. Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and service organizations on campus, and articulate and well-organized in a teaching role. Good role models for incoming students are sought.

Students selected will be required to attend two brief training sessions (about two hours each), one before the end of the spring semester and one prior to the first day of classes in the fall.

Interested students should fill out an application with Priscilla Nichols in the Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs, Holloway Hall, room 239.

Perdue School Admissions Requires Appointment

Any student wishing admission into the professional (upper division) programs in the Perdue School of Business or any student wishing to become a Perdue School major must make an appointment with Lee Townshend in Holloway Hall, room 113, prior to Monday, May 24. Failure to do so may result in deregistration from Perdue School courses.

Annual Golf Outing At Nutters June 14

The ninth annual Salisbury State University Invitational (formerly the Whack & Hack Open) will be held Monday, June 14, at Nutters Crossing Golf Course.

The event is open to faculty, staff, alumni and guests of all abilities—fun and fellowship are the priorities of the day. This year's tournament chair is Bob Spery of the Perdue School of Business.

Golfers are urged to arrive by 11:15 a.m. to pick up registration materials. Tee-off is at noon; the format is again four ball, best ball scramble.

The cost is $32.50 for SSU employees and alumni and includes green fees, cart, dinner, beverages and prizes. Guests are charged $42.50 each. Early registrants will receive an official SSU Invitational hat.

Foursomes will be entered in one of three flights: Ringer Division (one or more non-SSU employees in foursome); Collegiate Division (all SSU employees); and Inclusive Division (one or more women).

Efforts are still underway to organize a tennis tournament that same day at the SSU courts. More information will be forthcoming if sufficient interest develops.

Dinner will be served at 5 p.m. at the Nutters Crossing clubhouse and features a chicken and ribs barbecue. Golfers and tennis players are urged to complete play by 5 p.m. to ensure food is available for all participants. The cost for those interested in dinner only is $15.

For registration materials contact the Public Relations Office in Holloway Hall, room 264, or phone 543-6030. Checks should be made payable to the SSU Foundation and sent to Dee Hedrick in Holloway Hall, room 209, no later than Friday, June 4.

Golf Discount Books Benefit Heart Association

Golfers on the Eastern Shore can now take advantage of discounts at numerous area courses and retail stores while at the same time benefiting the American Heart Association.

The 1993 Eastern Shore Golf Passport Book features 31 coupons offering discounts for rounds of golf, driving range facilities, golf merchandise and more for $25 per book. Coupons are valid through April 30, 1994. Proceeds go to the AHA.

Discount coupons are available from the following country clubs and merchants: Nassawango Country Club, Peninsula Golf Center, Nutters Crossing Golf Course & Driving Range, DCM Sports Center, Pine Shore Executive Golf Course, The Sports Trappe, Winter Quarters Golf Course, Sandbaggers Discount Golf & Tennis, Assateague Greens, Ocean City Golf & Yacht Club, Eagle's Landing Golf Course, Cambridge Country Club, Boscov's, The Beach Club Golf Links, Salisbury Games 'N Golf Center, Mulligan's Restaurant & Sports Pub and Caroline Country Club.

Sponsored by the American Heart Association and the Association of Builders and Contractors, Eastern Shore chapter, checks for the Golf Passport Books can be made payable to the AHA.

To purchase books or for more information, call the American Heart Association in Salisbury at 742-4343, or Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Wind Sinfonia, Dance Company Concert Set

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music present the Wind Sinfonia's spring performance at Holloway Hall Auditorium on Sunday, May 9, at 2 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public.

Feature guest artists include members of the Dance Company under the auspices of the present interim director, Mary Troy. Two compositions written for wind band have been chosen by Troy and two members of the Dance Company for choreography with dance. Warren Benson's "The Solitary Dance," composed in 1969, will be performed by Troy and Tru Stevenson.

Benson describes his setting as a "quiet and poised energy that one may observe in a dance in repose, alone with her inner music."

A continuous percussion movement provides the rhythmic drive for the development of "minimalistic" thematic material. Benson also incorporates ensemble chanting and hand clapping to the development of the composition.

The second setting for solo dance is Ron Nelson's "Homage to Machaut," the third movement of his medieval suite composed in 1981. The setting is choreographed and danced by Heather Curran.

Nelson composed the suite in homage to three great masters of the Middle Ages: Leonin (middle 12th century), Perotin (c. 1155-1200) and Machaut (c. 1300-1377). "Homage to Machaut" evokes the stately, gently syncopated and flowing sounds of the master of choral writing. The movement consists of a chant statement with two repetitions, each orchestrated for different sonoric balances.

The Wind Sinfonia will close the afternoon concert with a composition written by Daniel Bukvich titled "Voodoo." The work is performed in total darkness and incorporates the use of a flashlight brigade, jungle chanting, Latin themes, the samba, bird whistles, jungle drums, and a variety of ways of playing wind instruments, mutes and tuning slides. Bukvich has been a member of the Lionel Hampton School of Music at the University of Idaho since 1978. He has received commissions for his ensemble compositions throughout the United States and in several foreign countries.

Other compositions performed by the Wind Ensemble include "Fanfare for the Hour of Sunrise" by Ron Nelson, "Ballad for Band" by Morton Gould and "Divertimento for Band" by Vincent Persichetti.

The Wind Sinfonia is conducted by Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies. Johnson has recently been appointed state representative to the National Association of College Band Directors.

First Amendment And PC Are Topic of Lecture

"Sticks and Stones: First Amendment, Education and Individual Responsibility" is the subject of a lecture by Georgetown University associate professor Dr. John Staczek.

The lecture is Monday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is part of a series of lectures on the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Sophanes Presents Greek Classic In Fulton Theatre

Dramatic tragedy is a theme for the semester at Salisbury State University, with the earlier production of the love tragedy West Side Story and now the student production of Jean Anouilh's Antigone. Sophanes, the student theatre organization, presents this modern adaptation of the Greek classic on April 30, May 1,2,6,7 and 8 in the Fulton Hall Black Box Theatre.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for non-SSU students and senior citizens and are available at the Theatre Box Office. Tickets are free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For additional information or ticket reservations call 543-6228.

Senior Art Show Opens in Fulton Gallery

The work of 27 senior art majors will be on exhibit May 1-21 during the 20th annual Senior Art Show.

The show will be in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall. The exhibit includes both two- and three-dimensional art work executed in a wide variety of mediums: pencil, pastel, charcoal, conte crayon, watercolor, acrylic paint, oil paint, wood, clay, plaster and fiber.

Art majors at Salisbury State may choose to concentrate in two-dimensional studio, three-dimensional studio, graphic design/visual communications, arts administration and art education. A general studies program along with a core group of art courses and art concentration enables students to acquire either a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Fine Arts.

Gallery hours for the exhibit are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.- 8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed Friday. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Award-winning Poet Joins Literary Festival

Within days of making plans to return to Salisbury State for her third Writers-on-the-Shore reading, poet Mary Oliver learned that her most recent collection, New and Selected Poems, had won the National Book Award (NBA) for 1992.

When asked about the honor, she responded with characteristic straightforwardness. "It is wonderful to win any award and especially an award as prestigious as the NBA," she said. "However, awards speak of the past, and any writer's real interest is focused on the future. No award gets the next book written."

Oliver will be the third author in the Writers-on-the-Shore Spring Literary Festival at SSU. She will be reading selected poems Thursday, May 6, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. Admission is free.

The National Book Award is not the first prestigious literary award Oliver has earned. Her book American Primitive won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1984.

The Writers-on-the Shore Spring Literary Festival is sponsored by the SSU English Department and the Guerrieri University Center. Mary Oliver's participation is additionally sponsored by the SSU Program Board.

Chamber Choir All A Capella Program May 10, 11

The Salisbury State Chamber Choir presents an all a cappella program in the newly-renovated Great Hall in Holloway Hall on Monday, May 10, and Tuesday, May 11, at 8 p.m. The performances are free and the public is invited.

The choir will perform Aaron Copland's "Four Motets," Samuel Barber's "Reincarnations," spirituals, Renaissance motets and American folksongs.

The Chamber Choir is a select choral ensemble of mixed, undergraduate voices which performs a wide variety of choral literature. Membership is open to all students by audition only and the singers assume individual responsibility and leadership in terms of professionalism, commitment, awareness of musical objectives and excellence in performance.

During the 1990 winter term the choir performed a highly-acclaimed concert/study tour of southern Bavaria in Germany. The choir members performed well-received concerts in Altenstady, Marktoberdorf, Augsburg and Munich while living, studying and rehearsing for two weeks in-residence at the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf. The choir has been invited to return in January 1994.

Under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities, the choir is "looking forward to performing and singing in the beautifully renovated Great Hall with its excellent acoustics."

Longwood Gardens Van Trip May 13

The Guerrieri University Center and the Horticulture Department are joining to sponsor a van trip to Longwood Gardens on Thursday, May 13.

The van leaves the Dogwood parking lot near the Guerrieri Center at 8 a.m. and arrives at the gardens at approximately 10 a.m. It leaves the gardens at 3 p.m. and arrives back in Salisbury at approximately 5 p.m.

There is no charge for the van but everyone is responsible for their own admission charge. No food or beverages are allowed in the van. There is a restaurant in the gardens where lunch can be purchased. Van seating is limited and sign-up begins at 8 a.m. on Wednesday, May 5, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center.

Longwood Gardens is located near Kennett Square, PA, in the Brandywine Valley. Longwood's many attractions include 350 acres of outdoor gardens and woodlands, glassed conservatories enveloping 20 indoor gardens, and beautiful fountains. Spring time at Longwood is spectacular.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Christian Life in '90s

The SSU Newman Club (the campus Catholic student association) is sponsoring a panel discussion on "Living as a Christian in the '90s: A Catholic Perspective."

The discussion is scheduled for Thursday, May 6, at 8 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center (second floor). Father Roger DiBuo of Saint Francis de Sales Catholic Church in Salisbury and Dr. Timothy Miller of the History Department will make a few remarks on the moral problems facing Christians in today's society, problems which are perhaps most difficult for college students to address since many of them are away from family, friends and familiar institutions for the first time.

The event is open to everyone, not just Newman Club members. Miller will be happy to answer any questions (543-6243).

Grants Office Funds 14 Proposals

Each year the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research awards summer stipends and small research grants to faculty to encourage and support their research and other scholarly endeavors. This year a total of 18 proposals were submitted and 14 funded for a total amount of $18,354.

"We are especially grateful to Dr. K. Nelson Butler (vice president of academic affairs) who added $3,000 to our funds to allow us to support three additional proposals," said Dr. Karin Johnson, director of grants and sponsored research.

"All of the proposals were impressive this year making the decision-making process a difficult one for the Grants and Sponsored Research Advisory Committee," added Johnson. The committee included Dr. Steven Hetzler from the Henson School of Science and Technology, Dr. Memo Diriker from the Perdue School of Business, Dr. Adeline Tryon from the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Ellen Whitford from the School of Education and Professional Studies and Dr. Shielda Rodgers from the School of Nursing and Health Sciences.

"These individuals spent a great deal of time reviewing proposals and deserve much credit for their careful, objective reviews," said Johnson.

Faculty from the Fulton School receiving grants are: Sylvia Bradley and Dr. Ray Thompson, Department of History, $1,250, research, "Preparation of Grant for External Funding for Research Center DHAC Finding Aids Compilation"; Dr. Cyril K. Daddieh, Department of Political Science, $1,200, stipend, "Donor Perceptions of Regional Integration in Africa"; Dr. Thomas Erskine and Jim Welsh, Department of English, $1,200, stipend, "Annotated Bibliography of Literature and Film"; Dr. James Hatley, Department of Philosophy, $1,200, stipend, "Justifying Literary Testimonies of Victimization"; Dr. Janet S. Horne, Department of Communication Arts, $1,200, stipend, "Conversation, Contingency, and Civil Society: The Rhetoric of Richard Rorty"; Dr. William C. Horne, Department of English, $1,200, stipend, "British Views of American Wilderness 1750-1825"; Dr. Adeline Tryon, Department of Psychology, $1,500, research, "Maternal Interaction With Popular Versus Aggressive Sons"; and Dr. Andrew Hepburn, Department of Communication Arts, $1,200, stipend, "Nature and Human Nature in the Mime of Jaques Lecog."

Faculty members from the Perdue School receiving grants are: Dr. Pamela Alreck, $1,200, stipend, "Interaction Style and Sales Effectiveness"; Dr. David Laband, $1,200, stipend, "The Professional Impact of Papers Supported by National Science Foundation Funding"; and Dr. H.V. Ramakrishana, $1,200, stipend, "Telecommunicating Initiation Decision: Validation of a Theoretical Model."

Others receiving grants were: Dr. Edna Quinn, School of Nursing and Health Sciences, $1,200, stipend, "Feasibility Study/Needs Assessment for a Nursing Center in Salisbury"; Dr. Carla N. Schultes, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science in the Henson School, $1,200, stipend, "A Needs Assessment for the Encouragement of Girls in Mathematics on the Eastern Shore of Maryland"; and Tom Dillon, Perdue School, and Thea McDowell, School of Nursing and Health Sciences, $2,404, research, "Spoken Language Interaction: Effects of Vocabulary Size on Nursing Performance and Acceptance."

Getting Ready For Summer Book Sale

Blackwell Library has its first "Getting Ready For Summer" book sale on Thursday, May 20, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. on the first floor of the library, near the elevator.

Most books will be "light," ideal for summer reading on the beach or in the backyard. They will be cheap—everything is a quarter. A good chance to stock up.

Hospitality Cards For Hershey Park

Hershey Park in Pennsylvania has provided SSU employees with hospitality cards for use between May 8 and September 12.

The cards offer savings on admission to Hershey Park, lodging near the facility, minature golf, the Hershey Museum and Hershey Gardens as well as several factory outlet stores in the vicinity.

Call or come by the Personnel Office to obtain a card(s).

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

For the second time in three years, the men's lacrosse team finished perfect for the regular season, capping a 13-0 campaign with a 29-6 thrashing of West Chester last Saturday. Freshman Jason Coffman scored three times and dished out nine assists to lead the barrage. Coffman fell one assist shy of Tim Berquist's 1988 single-game record, set against St. Mary's.

Coffman was one of 17 Sea Gulls to score against the Golden Rams. Mike Austin paced all scorers with four goals, while Ryan Murphy, Brian Hollingsworth and Andy Gordon also contributed three apiece.

The Gulls begin their quest for the NCAA Division III Championship on Sunday, May 16, in the first-round of the playoffs. The opponent will be named Sunday, May 9. As a prelude to the playoffs, the team will play an exhibition game this Sunday at 1 p.m. against the alumni squad. Some of Salisbury's top players of recent years will don uniforms once again as they test the latest Sea Gull crop. The game is open to the public, free of charge.

The women's lacrosse team finished its season on a winning note last week, topping Notre Dame 15-7. Junior Flossy Owens scored four goals to finish the year with 49, setting a new Sea Gull single-season record. Her 96-goal career total also moved her into third on the all-time SSU list. Additionally, freshman goalie Shawna Block moved into second on the single-season saves list as she ended the campaign with 190 saves. SSU finished 5-7 overall.

The men's tennis team concluded its season with a 10-3 record, defeating Wesley 8-0 in its final match. Freshman Dave Allewalt finished the year with the team's top winning percentage in singles play (84.6 percent, 11-2 overall). Sophomore Michael Daw tallied the most wins for the year, finishing 12-3 in singles play. Senior Ken Soliday, who capped his four-year career with a 35-27 record, was named Eastern States Athletic Conference Player-of-the-Year for the second straight season.

Junior Kirsten Owings and senior Tim Smith were the top SSU performers in last weekend's Mason-Dixon Conference Track Championships. Owings set a new Sea Gull record with a distance of 17'4" in the long jump, while Smith captured first place in the 5,000 meters (15:47) and second in the 10,000 (33:13). The SSU men finished fifth overall and the women fourth.

The baseball team split a doubleheader at Catholic last weekend, winning game two 12-10 after falling in game one 14-2. Brian Hollamon homered in each game for the Gulls, with Dusty Harbaugh also adding a homer and a double in the nightcap. Jamie Evans' solo shot accounted for Salisbury's other run in the first game. The Gulls, 11-14, conclude the season with a twinbill at York on Saturday.

The softball team upped its record to 14-10 by winning four of six games last weekend. After dropping a doubleheader at William Paterson on Friday, SSU bounced back with sweeps at Cabrini on Saturday and Virginia Wesleyan on Sunday.

Employees Credit Union Announces Branch Expansion

Because of a steady increase in business during the past five years, the State Employees Credit Union of Maryland (SECU) has announced plans for construction and remodeling which will nearly double the size of its branch on Mt. Hermon Road in Salisbury.

The existing branch area will remain open to members during construction this summer of a 2,000 square foot addition to the SECU building. The drive-through lanes will be closed at some point during construction; SECU is attempting to set up a temporary drive-through transaction area for members' convenience. The newly remodeled branch is scheduled to open later this year.

The changes come at a busy time for SECU which also announced its lowest auto loan rates in years—starting at 6.5 percent. SECU is experiencing its greatest year of loan growth in recent history which has magnified the space constraints at the Salisbury office.

For more information on SECU, which provides a full range of financial services to state employees and their family members, visit the Credit Union's Mt. Hermon Road branch or call (800) TRY-SECU.

Explore Tax Shelters With Personnel Office

An excellent way to avoid paying unnecessary taxes (legitimately) is to enroll in a tax shelter program. Why not explore the possibilities?

A portion of employees' paychecks can be tax sheltered for retirement purposes before being tempted to spend it elsewhere.

A representative of PEBSCO (commonly called Deferred Comp) will be on campus and available for individual meetings Monday, May 10. Call the Personnel Office (543-6035 or 548-4755) for further details and an appointment time.

Less Salt Means Better Health

Plan now to join in the American Heart Association's Salt-out Day on Wednesday, May 19. That date has also been designated as National Employee Health and Fitness Day which is sponsored by the National Association of Governor's Councils on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Participation in the Salt-out Day is simple—replace salt shakers with alternatives for flavoring food, namely spices. Too much salt in food is considered to be a risk factor for high blood pressure. Show your interest in employee health and fitness that same day by taking a lunch-time stroll. Make it a habit to remain active.

May 1993 Commencement Information

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m. on Saturday, May 29, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be Ambassador John W. McDonald, president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C.

3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

6. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through The Book Rack beginning April 28. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. and Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 28, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items on or before 4 p.m. on Friday, May 28.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack until May 17. Each student will be limited to six tickets each. If you do not need all six tickets please return the extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Guests are requested to be seated by 9:45 a.m.

Students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17 will not be guaranteed six tickets for graduation.

7. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

8. Students will then be awarded their diploma individually. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

9. During the recessional, graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in commencement must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 24. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

12. The Department of Nursing will hold its baccalaureate nursing convocation on May 28 at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, on Saturday, May 29, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through G, Gary Allan Gorman, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with G, Dustin Lee Gosewisch, through the letter O, Jennifer O'Shea, will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Polly Stewart. When you enter the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled Flanders Room 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6. Wulff and Stewart will line you up alphabetically in the Flanders area. You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with letter P, Melody Pairo through the letter Z, will go to the left corridor after entering the main entrance of the Civic Center and will report to Drs. Jerome Miller and Carolyn Bowden. You are to line up alphabetically along the windows, facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

19. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Norman Johnson. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree and will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

20. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional. (The Civic Center is air conditioned.)
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (It is worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president (and/or your faculty marshal).
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

21. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Photo on exhibit in the Atrium Gallery

Student, Alumni Exhibit Photographs

"Time Capsules," a group exhibition of photographs by SSU faculty member Jeanne Anderton, her students and alumni, will be exhibited in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center May 6-24.

The exhibitors have put together a group of images that serve as a visual journey through time and emotions. Included are photographs that trigger memories, feelings and thoughts, private and public. Images are of buildings since destroyed, people and changing landscapes. Several images will be included from books that have been created by the students as part of their class projects. Alumni have selected images from photographs that they have taken since completing their course with Anderton.

Exhibiting photographers include Frances Brueckmann, Susan Read, Ken Ruback, Jill Kartikis, Johnny Horney, Stephanie Campbell, Patricia Zawicki, Allison Dameron, Andrew Day, Theresa Foster, Greg Ardis, Mike Parker and others.

A reception will be held Friday, May 6, from 4-6 p.m. The public is invited. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. There is no charge for admission.

Art Exhibit, Auction Benefits Red Cross

An art exhibit and auction featuring the work of 10 local artists will be held on Saturday, May 15, at 7 p.m. at the Sheraton Inn in Salisbury. Sponsored by the Wicomico County Rotary Club, proceeds from ticket sales and the auction go to the American Red Cross.

The 10 pieces of original art by Shore artists include two-dimensional paintings, decoys and a Chesapeake Bay ship model. The local artists making contributions are Jerry Gerlitzki, Grover Cantwell, Myrna McGrath, Tom Jones, Keith Whitelock, Dick Adkins, Beebe Winterbottom, Rich Smoker, Walter Oler and Jean Preckel.

Admission for the exhibit and auction is $5 per person and includes wine, cheese and hors d'oeuvres. Everyone purchasing a ticket is eligible for a door prize raffle.

For tickets or more information call Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential Personal Information Form on file with the Center for Personal and Professional Development prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the CPPD as soon as possible to complete this requirement. Unless otherwise specified, recruiters are interviewing all graduates up to and including May 1993.

Thurs. May 6
Wicomico County Public Schools–All elementary and secondary education majors should apply.

Tues. May 11
Rose's Stores, Inc.–Business and accounting majors should apply for assistant manager positions.

Division of Parole and Probation–(State of Maryland) Social, behavioral or correctional sciences majors for parole and probations Agent I.

Thurs. May 13
Accomack County Public Schools–All elementary and secondary education majors should apply.

U.S. Government Printing Office–All majors should apply for program analyst trainee positions in Washington, D.C. Minimum GPA 3.45.

All recruiting requires sign-ups. Contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development, Guerrieri University Center, room 263, or call 543-6075.

Credential File: A credential file is a collection of letters of recommendation, resumes, personal history, grades, test scores, student teaching evaluation, etc. It is made available to employers or graduate schools at one's request. When students or alumni request CPPD to sent a completed file, its contents are duplicated, a Salisbury State University cover sheet is attached, then mailed to the address provided. If students or alumni have a cover letter or application, that can be included in the mailing. To open a credential file, stop by the CPPD during regular office hours. It only takes about 15 minutes to get the process started.

Senior Resume Book: The CPPD often gets requests from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact those seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to the CPPD. The resumes are made available to interested employers. Resumes remain in the office through a student's senior year and one year following graduation; at that time, the resume will be removed.

General Information

Connexion–A new service provided by Peterson's that links people in transition to employers and graduate schools across the country, the service is free to current students.

Kinexus–A national employment database, registration is free to current students. More information is available from the CPPD.

assignments while at Minot included missile staff and combat crew instructor, and senior code controller and instructor.

In 1982 Cottman was assigned to the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD) in Cheyenne Mountain as a missile warning officer and was eventually assigned as a senior director at the NORAD Backup Command Post at Peterson AFB in Colorado Springs.

In 1985 he served as a crew commander at a Ballistic Missile Early Warning site in Thule, Greenland. His last assignment in 1986 was as command manager for the Joint Space-Based Radar program. During that period, he earned his master's degree.

Cottman returned to Maryland in 1988 and worked as a consultant to the Johns Hopkins University/Applied Physics Laboratory and as a senior analyst at General Physics in Columbia, MD. He assumed his current position at the Center for Naval Analyses Corp. in 1990.

His community involvement and service has been extensive, particularly in the area of youth activities where he has volunteered his time for mentoring and tutoring programs, scouting and youth athletics.

Cottman also served on an alumni panel during the 1992 Career Day sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association.

He is married to the former Sharon Lawrence, also of the Salisbury area, who is assistant head nurse in the operating room at Veteran's Hospital in Washington, D.C. They have two children, Jamaal and Jurrel, and live in Fort Washington, MD.

Seldomridge Selected As Exam Consultant

Lisa Seldomridge, assistant professor of nursing in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, recently returned from a week-long session as a test item writer for the National Council of State Boards of Nursing.

She was selected as one of 15 registered nurses from across the United States to serve as a consultant in the development of test questions of the national examination for the licensure of registered nurses (NCLEX-RN). The NCLEX-RN measures the competencies needed to perform safely and effectively as a newly licensed, entry-level registered nurse.

In order to be selected, Seldomridge completed item-writing screening exercises which were reviewed by the CTB Macmillan/McGraw-Hill content specialists and editing staff and by the National Council Examination Committee. Seldomridge was nominated by the Maryland Board of Nursing as an expert in the area of adult health nursing.

Sea Gulls Begin Lacrosse Playoffs At Home on Sunday

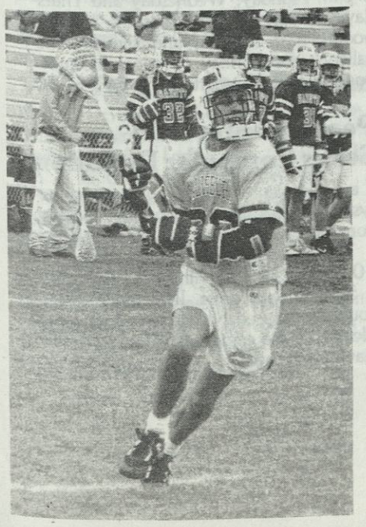
Having completed the regular season at 13-0 and ranked number one in the weekly poll, the men's lacrosse team now begins its "second season," the NCAA Division III championship tournament. The Sea Gulls face a familiar foe in this Sunday's opening round game as the Shoremen of Washington College come to town. Game time at Sea Gull Stadium is 2 p.m.

Advance tickets for Sunday's game are available at the Information Desk in the Guerrieri University Center. All tickets are $3.00, including students, faculty and staff. Due to NCAA guidelines, all spectators must purchase a ticket. Unlike regular season games, an SSU ID by itself will not get you in. Advance tickets will remain on sale until noon on Saturday, May 15. Game day ticket sales will begin at 12:30 p.m. at the Sea Gull Stadium ticket booth.

SSU is making its fifth straight trip to the playoffs, and 11th appearance in the last 14 years. Salisbury State's best postseason performance came in 1991, with the Sea Gulls advancing to the national championship game before losing to Hobart 12-11.

Sunday's game with Washington is a rematch of the regular season game played just two weeks ago. The Sea Gulls topped the Shoremen 17-5 at home on April 24. Salisbury has won its last three meetings against Washington, although the Shoremen lead the all-time series 14-5.

The Division III tournament concludes on Sunday, May 30 with the national championship game, scheduled for Byrd Stadium at the University of Maryland, College Park.



Former Ambassador Is This Year's Commencement Speaker

Ambassador John W. McDonald, a lawyer, diplomat and peacemaker, will be the speaker at commencement.

Commencement is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, May 29, at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. The topic of McDonald's address will be "The Challenge of the 21st Century."

McDonald currently is president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C., which focuses on ethnic conflicts. In 1992 he was named Distinguished Visiting Professor at George Mason University's Institute for Conflict Analysis and Resolution.

He is the father of Salisbury architect James McDonald. McDonald was appointed ambassador twice by President Carter and twice by President Reagan to represent the United States at various United Nations world conferences.

McDonald retired in 1987 after 40 years with the Department of State and became a professor at George Washington University School of Law in Washington, D.C. From 1989 to 1992, he was president of the Iowa Peace Institute in Grinnell, IA, and was a political science professor at Grinnell College.

From 1978 to 1983, he held various assignments in the area of multilateral diplomacy which included: president of INTELSAT World Conference called to draft a treaty on privileges and immunities; leader of the U.S. delegation to the UN World Conference on TCDC in Buenos Aires in 1978; secretary general of the 27th Colombo Plan Ministerial Meeting; head of the U.S. delegation which negotiated a UN Treaty Against Taking Hostages; U.S. coordinator for the UN Decade on Drinking Water and Sanitation; head of the U.S. delegation to UNIDO III in New Delhi, India in 1980; chairman of the Federal Inter-Agency Committee for the UN's International Year of Disabled Persons in 1981; and U.S. coordinator and head of the U.S. delegation for the UN's World Assembly on Aging in 1982.

John W. McDonald

From 1974 to 1978, McDonald was deputy director of the International Labor Organization in Geneva, a UN specialized agency with responsibility for managing the 3,200-person secretariat from 102 countries, operating in 120 member nations, with an annual budget of $135 million.

McDonald holds B.A. and J.D. degrees from the University of Illinois and graduated from the National War College in 1967.

Campus Vehicles To Run On Propane, Funded by Energy Administration

As a part of Clean Air Week, the University on Thursday will display its new fleet of vehicles powered by liquid propane, a cleaner and safer fuel source than gasoline.

The vehicles, along with displays of SSU's other energy conservation programs, will be in Red Square from 10 a.m.-noon.

Under a statewide experimental program sponsored by the Department of Transportation and the Department of the Environment, SSU has replaced 10 battery-powered golf carts with six Cushman propane-burning vehicles. Additionally, two vans, a car and a pickup truck have been retrofitted to burn propane, and two large trucks are scheduled to be converted this summer.

"The employees like them," said SSU's fleet coordinator Bill Bowen. They're quieter and start faster, and their performance is as good as the gasoline vehicles."

The vehicles are used by several departments at SSU including physical plant, public safety, dining services, the campus post office, central stores and the escort service. They are driven both on and off campus.

"The National Energy Policy Act of 1992 has a provision that state fleets must use an alternative fuel source by 1996," said Rick Sheckells, manager of environmental resources for Maryland's Department of Transportation. "As a result, the governor has directed the state to mount an aggressive fuel alternative program.

Alumni Office Offers SSU License Plates

Alumni throughout Maryland are displaying their pride in the University with special "Salisbury State" license plates on their passenger cars, multipurpose vehicles or light trucks registered in Maryland. New graduates interested in receiving a license plate form should call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Graduation Requires Tickets to Attend

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduates will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17 will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

Faculty members who are not marching, staff and family members who would like tickets should sign up for tickets at the information desk beginning April 28.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Challenge Exams For English Scheduled

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Wednesday, September 8, from 4-7 p.m. For students interested in taking either of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, May 24.

In August a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

New Student Seminar Needs Student Workers

A limited number of upper-class students are being hired to co-teach the five-week Fall New Student Seminar with a member of the faculty or University staff.

The 10-session course is offered during the first five weeks of the fall semester. Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and service organizations on campus, and articulate and well-organized in a teaching role. Good role models for incoming students are sought.

Students selected will be required to attend two brief training sessions (about two hours each), one before the end of the spring semester and one prior to the first day of classes in the fall.

Interested students should fill out an application with Priscilla Nichols in the Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs, Holloway Hall, room 239.

Perdue School Admission Requires Appointment

Any student wishing admission into the professional (upper division) programs in the Perdue School of Business or any student wishing to become a Perdue School major must make an appointment with Lee Townshend in Holloway Hall, room 113, prior to Monday, May 24. Failure to do so may result in deregistration from Perdue School courses.

Senior Art Show Opens in Fulton Gallery

The work of 27 senior art majors will be on exhibit May 1-21 during the 20th annual Senior Art Show.

The show will be in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall. The exhibit includes both two- and three-dimensional art work executed in a wide variety of mediums: pencil, pastel, charcoal, conte crayon, watercolor, acrylic paint, oil paint, wood, clay, plaster and fiber.

Art majors at Salisbury State may choose to concentrate in two-dimensional studio, three-dimensional studio, graphic design/visual communications, arts administration and art education. A general studies program along with a core group of art courses and art concentration enables students to acquire either a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Fine Arts.

Gallery hours for the exhibit are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.- 8 p.m. Tuesday; and noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The gallery is closed Friday. For more information, call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Peace Center Seeks Computer Donation

If a department is upgrading its computer system and has an extra computer, consider donating it to the Center for Teaching Peace.

The center is in need of an IBM model 30-286 or 386 PC with a hard drive and 3.5 inch floppy drive. IBM model 50z could also be used (should have a modem). Please call the center at 548-4166 and leave a message.

An Open Letter from Chancellor Langenberg

Dear Members of the UMS Family:

An extraordinary event occurred this spring that should not pass unheralded. The appeals process that resulted from the Regents' action plan (Achieving the Vision in Hard Times: II) showed this academic community at its finest.

Students, faculty, staff and leadership throughout the UMS can take great pride and satisfaction from the roles they played in helping review and streamline our academic offerings. Through this accelerated yet painstaking process, we will have eliminated or reconfigured 138 programs systemwide, freeing up significant resources to be reinvested in high priority areas.

More important than the number of programs affected or the dollars to be redeployed, however, are the levels of understanding, the spirit of cooperation and the commitment to change engendered by this process. The discussions that took place within campuses, among campuses and with the regents will have a long-term, positive impact on our ability to achieve national eminence. In fact we have already become "a model of American higher education" (in the words of the UMS vision statement) by virtue of the process itself. At a recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science our redeployment efforts were widely praised by the likes of John McTague, vice president for technical affairs at Ford Motor Company and a member of the President's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology. Similarly, at this month's meeting of the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, University of Maryland Eastern Shore President Hytche was lauded for the cooperative agreement reached between his institution and Salisbury State in response to the action plan. Some even suggested the agreement could provide a national model for addressing last year's Supreme Court decision (U.S. vs. Fordice) regarding the status of historically black institutions in Mississippi's system of higher education.

Our planning process was not without controversy. (The only way to avoid controversy would have been to avoid decisions.) Nonetheless, the passion with which students, faculty and staff defended individual programs was both refreshing and reassuring. It demonstrated just how dedicated you are to the important work you do. And when all was said and done, everyone demonstrated a remarkable willingness to accept necessary change.

The UMS presidents deserve high praise as well for handling the particularly difficult task of representing both the institutional viewpoint and the systemwide perspectives throughout the process. They performed their role, uncomfortable as it was, with professionalism and creativity. I also want to mention the crucial work of a group that is too rarely acknowledged—the System Administration staff. Theirs was a herculean and groundbreaking effort.

The regents deserve special thanks not only for the enlightened leadership reflected in the plan itself, but also for the personal attention each of them devoted to the entire process. They sat attentively through 18 hours of appeals, and the few who couldn't attend a hearing were diligent in listening to tapes of the session. They did not arrive at their decisions lightly, weighing carefully the impact of each aspect of the plan and the merit of every appeal.

It has been a massive undertaking; and yet the job is far from complete. We must continue to review our academic inventory, as part of the ongoing program review process approved by the regents. And we must take a hard look at how to reduce further the costs associated with administrative and support services, through such measures as consolidating selected functions in regional centers. This effort is well underway and is expected to yield savings in excess of those arrived at through academic streamlining. In addition we must address structural issues, most immediately in relation to the research enterprise and continuing education. In short we must begin to craft the outline for Achieving the Vision III.

And in the midst of all this, we must pursue with vigor the central mission laid out for use in our founding legislation and in the vision for the System. We must prepare our students and our society to meet the demands of a new world in a new millennium. And we must do so with an unbending commitment to quality. Examples of that commitment from this past year number in the thousands. I wish I could cite every individual who has gone beyond the call of duty during the course of this academic year; however, the list is far too long and the contributions far too significant to be properly acknowledged here. Suffice it to say that I consider it a great privilege to serve as chancellor for this exemplary academic community.

Thank you for all your efforts this year and for the many services you provided to our students and our state. In the spirit of Total Quality, I look forward to working closely with you in the months and years ahead to continuously improve those services. Based upon the experience and the outcomes of the regents' action plan, I am more confident than ever that we are on the right path toward making this University System "a source of pride for all Marylanders."

Sincerely,
Donald N. Langenberg
University of Maryland System Chancellor

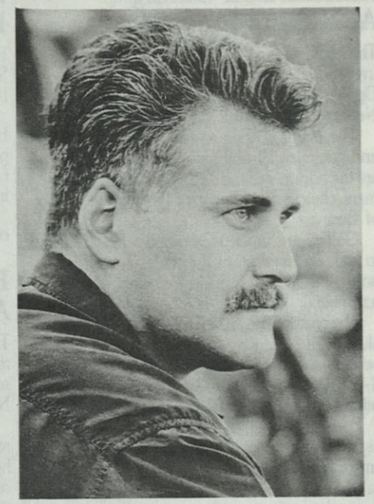
Faculty, Staff Perform in Great Hall May 14

The SSU Development Committee presents an evening of entertainment and dancing featuring faculty and staff or Friday, May 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

The program includes: Dr. Bellavance reading e.e. cummings; Dr. Don Singleton performing guitar songs; Dr. Furahaa Saba reading interpretations from contemporary literature; Dr. Michael O'Loughlin and Folk Heroes singing Irish songs; Dr. Andy Hepburn enacting scenes from Chekhov and Euripides; Dr. Polly Stewart performing mountain folk songs; and Mary Troy dancing.

Intermission features spirits, nonspirits and hors d'oeuvres followed by dancing. Martha Pfeiffer will provide dance lessons (including the Charleston). The master of ceremonies is Dean Defino.

The cost is $2 per person, if paid in advance ($2.50 at the door). Tickets are available from any member of the Faculty Development Committee: Dr. Ben Fusaro, Dr. Frances Kendall, Dr. Mary Gillespie, Dr. Mark Frana and Dr. Elizabeth Curtin. Feel free to bring a guest.



Richard Foerster

Poet Richard Foerester Concludes Literary Festival

The Writers on the Shore Spring Literary Festival draws to a close with a reading by poet and editor Richard Foerster Thursday evening, May 13.

Foerster published his first volume of poetry, Sudden Harbor, last year. A second collection is due next year and is titled Patterns of Descent. He is also the recipient of the 1992 Bess Hokin Prize from Poetry magazine. Poetry is the most prestigious journal of poetry in the country, and was the first to publish T.S. Eliot and Ezra Pound.

An SSU English professor, Dr. Michael Waters, coordinated the eries and described Foerster's poems as elegant and moving. "They express a constant yearning," said to Waters, "at times even without objects of their affection."

Foerster's poem, "Transfigured Nights," for example, is about many things, including remembered June nights when the sky was slittered with fireflies:

"They spawned a galaxy of light above the graveyard where I'd gone to lose myself among the weed-choked rows.

Soon I was reeling with my arms flung high—

a foolish man in the apotheosis of his childhood, saying 'O God. O God, never let this end.'

Of course, it did. And yet in each random spark tonight I snatch back something of that boy's lost fire."

An associate editor since 1978 of Chelsea, a literary review, since 1978, it is fitting that Foerster's reading is timed to celebrate the publication of Scarab, the SSU student arts publication.

Foerster's reading will be presented at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 13, in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. A reception follows and admission is free.

The Writers on the Shore Spring Literary Festival is sponsored by the English Department and the Guerrieri University Center.

Annual Golf Outing At Nutters June 14

The ninth annual Salisbury State University Invitational (formerly the Whack & Hack Open) will be held Monday, June 14, at Nutters Crossing Golf Course.

The event is open to faculty, staff, alumni and guests of all abilities—fun and fellowship are the priorities of the day. This year's tournament chair is Bob Spery of the Perdue School of Business.

Golfers are urged to arrive by 11:15 a.m. to pick up registration materials. Tee-off is at noon; the format is again four ball, best ball scramble.

The cost is $32.50 for SSU employees and alumni and includes green fees, cart, dinner, beverages and prizes. Guests are charged $42.50 each. Early registrants will receive an official SSU Invitational hat.

Foursomes will be entered in one of three flights: Ringer Division (one or more non-SSU employees in foursome); Collegiate Division (all SSU employees); and Inclusive Division (one or more women).

Efforts are still underway to organize a tennis tournament that same day at the SSU courts. More information will be forthcoming if sufficient interest develops.

Dinner will be served at 5 p.m. at the Nutters Crossing clubhouse and features a chicken and ribs barbecue. Golfers and tennis players are urged to complete play by 5 p.m. to ensure food is available for all participants. The cost for those interested in dinner only is $15.

For registration materials contact the Public Relations Office in Holloway Hall, room 264, or phone 543-6030. Checks should be made payable to the SSU Foundation and sent to Dee Hedrick in Holloway Hall, room 209, no later than Friday, June 4.

Golf Discount Books Benefit Heart Association

Golfers on the Eastern Shore can now take advantage of discounts at numerous area courses and retail stores while at the same time benefiting the American Heart Association.

The 1993 Eastern Shore Golf Passport Book features 31 coupons offering discounts for rounds of golf, driving range facilities, golf merchandise and more for $25 per book. Coupons are valid through April 30, 1994. Proceeds go to the AHA.

Discount coupons are available from the following country clubs and merchants: Nassawango Country Club, Peninsula Golf Center, Nutters Crossing Golf Course & Driving Range, DCM Sports Center, Pine Shore Executive Golf Course, The Sports Trappe, Winter Quarters Golf Course, Sandbaggers Discount Golf & Tennis, Assateague Greens, Ocean City Golf & Yacht Club, Eagle's Landing Golf Course, Cambridge Country Club, Boscov's, The Beach Club Golf Links, Salisbury Games 'N Golf Center, Mulligan's Restaurant & Sports Pub and Caroline Country Club.

Sponsored by the American Heart Association and the Association of Builders and Contractors, Eastern Shore chapter, checks for the Golf Passport Books can be made payable to the AHA.

To purchase books or for more information, call the American Heart Association in Salisbury at 742-4343, or Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Hospitality Cards For Hershey Park

Hershey Park in Pennsylvania has provided SSU employees with hospitality cards for use between May 8 and September 12.

The cards offer savings on admission to Hershey Park, lodging near the facility, minature golf, the Hershey Museum and Hershey Gardens as well as several factory outlet stores in the vicinity.

Howard Nursing Dean Addresses Students May 17

The vision shared by America's 2.1 million registered nurses for excellence in health care services will be the focus of this year's National Nurses Week to be celebrated May 6-12.

In today's complex health care environment, registered nurses are in the forefront of delivering health care. This year's National Nurses Week celebration will highlight the important role nurses now play and will continue to play as the U.S. health care system comes under more scrutiny and reform. As the nation looks for ways to assure quality, affordability and accessibility in health care, nurses stand ready to bring their expertise and experience to an ever wider audience.

This year National Nurses Week opens May 6, the traditional National nurses Day, and closes on May 12, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, founder of nursing as a modern profession. During this week, nurses in Salisbury will celebrate the theme, "Nurses Share a Vision for America's Health," by sponsoring a guest speaker, Dr. Dorothy Powell, dean of Howard University College of Nursing. Powell will address the graduate and undergraduate nursing students at Salisbury State on Monday, May 17, from 10 a.m.-noon in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Her address, "Transition to the Role of the Professional Nurse," is free and open to the public.

The celebration will also highlight the centennial year of the American public health nurse and will recognize the 50th anniversary of the establishment by Congress of the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps to meet the nursing shortage brought on by World War II.

Mushroom Watercolors Exhibited in Easton

Mary Elizabeth Banning, a Talbot County schoolteacher and natural historian, created a remarkable book of watercolor illustrations of mushrooms between 1868 and 1888. From careful study, she knew the intricate beauty of nature. From firsthand experience, she knew the frustration of being rejected by the 19th-century scientific establishment because she was a woman. Her legacy is celebrated in "Each a Glory Bright: Mary Banning's Mushrooms," an exhibition on view at the Historical Society of Talbot County in Easton through July 31.

Fifty-one of Banning's bright, exuberant watercolors are on view in the exhibition on loan from the New York State Museum at Albany.

Hours are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 1-4 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 for non-members. The society is located at 25 S. Washington Street. For more information call (410) 822-0773.

Winter Term Trip To England Planned

There will be a meeting for a winter term 1994 trip to England in Holloway Hall, room 118, from 5-6 p.m. on Wednesday, May 19.

Plans call for the offering of the following courses: one English course on drama, which will carry General Education credit; an English course on British film and media; a nursing elective, Cultural Considerations; and a biology course.

Faculty include James Welsh and Dr. Thomas Erskine, English; Dr. Edna Quinn, nursing; and Dr. John Molenda, biology. Faculty will discuss pre-trip requirements and on-site experience during the two weeks in England. Cost for the trip, including hotel and round-trip transportation, is estimated at $1,000.

Student, Alumni Exhibit Photographs

"Time Capsules," a group exhibition of photographs by SSU faculty member Jeanne Anderton, her students and alumni, will be exhibited in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center May 6-24.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Art Exhibit, Auction Benefit Red Cross

An art exhibit and auction featuring the work of 10 local artists will be held on Saturday, May 15, at 7 p.m. at the Sheraton Inn in Salisbury. Sponsored by the Wicomico County Rotary Club, proceeds from ticket sales and the auction go to the American Red Cross.

The 10 pieces of original art by Shore artists include two-dimensional paintings, decoys and a Chesapeake Bay ship model. The local artists making contributions are Jerry Gerlitzki, Grover Cantwell, Myrna McGrath, Tom Jones, Keith Whitelock, Dick Adkins, Beebe Winterbottom, Rich Smoker, Walter Oler and Jean Preckel.

Admission for the exhibit and auction is $5 per person and includes wine, cheese and hors d'oeuvres. Everyone purchasing a ticket is eligible for a door prize raffle.

For tickets or more information call Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Nursing Theorist Discusses Health Care

Dr. Martha Rogers, a nursing theorist and long-time head of the New York University Division of Nursing, lectures on "Nursing Science and Health Care for the Future" on Monday, May 17, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The lecture, sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, is open to the public. Admission is $5.

Rogers, whose theory is widely known as the "Science of Unitary Human Beings," has long been an advocate of nursing having its own body of knowledge. Her conceptual ideas have had a significant impact on nursing education, research and practice.

After completing her doctorate in 1954 Rogers began identifying the importance of justifying the place of nursing education in colleges and universities. While at NYU she developed a body of knowledge into an abstract system that would form the basis for nursing science. For more information on the lecture call the School of Nursing and Health Sciences at 543-6420.

Gala Features Intimate Dinner Parties This Year, Benefits University Gallery

Hosts for the Gala for the Gallery, sponsored by the SSU Foundation, are busy preparing their dinner menus for the June 4 event.

Instead of one large event on campus as in years past, guests at this year's Gala will be able to join one of several smaller gourmet dinner parties in private homes scattered in and around Salisbury.

Flo Mabe and her husband, Don, the retired president of Perdue Farms, will host a buffet dinner for 22 at their home, Jones Choice, outside Princess Anne. What are they serving? "What else would I be serving? Chicken, of course," said Flo Mabe. "But I might also serve a crab dish to go with it."

Marcia and Jeff Mumford of Ocean City will host 16 to 18 people at a formal sit-down dinner that they plan to cook themselves.

"We've decided on a 'surf and turf' dinner," Marcia Mumford said. "Probably Crab Imperial and filet mignon served with green beans with almonds and potatoes Anna. We also plan to serve a soup and appetizer."

Ann Duncan Haffner and her son and daughter-in-law, John and Regina Haffner, will host a dinner at Ann Haffner's historic Princess Anne home, Beverly. The main course and hors d'oeuvres will be prepared by Regina Haffner's brother, Nicholas Bell, the chef at the City Cafe in Washington, D.C.

The Haffners are planning to serve champagne and hors d'oeuvres followed by a meal that will include filet mignon, salad and "Scallops Beverly," a souffle-like creation by Ann Haffner.

Some of the hosts have hired professional caterers and area chefs. Stephen Jacques, chef at the Atlantic Hotel in Berlin, will prepare the dinner at Greg and Patsy Felthousen's Salisbury home. Dr. Andrejs and Christine Strauss, along with Dr. Charles and Valerie Schaefer, will co-host a dinner at the Strauss' Salisbury home cooked by Leo Medisch, chef at the Back Porch restaurant in Rehoboth Beach. And caterer Jill Barbon and her staff will be at the home of Sam and Lynn Seidel, also in Salisbury.

Others plan to do the cooking themselves, including Dr. Enzo DeMasi and Dr. Walter Lischick who are co-hosting a dinner with their wives, Nancy DeMasi and Karen Lischick, and Dr. Tom DeMarco and Phyllis Vinyard who are co-hosting with their spouses, Anne DeMarco and Henry Vinyard.

The other hosts are Michael and Joanna Abercrombie, Jane Bailey and Ellen Adkins, Dr. Thomas and Elizabeth Bellavance, Phillip and Ricki Bradshaw, Gerald and Jimmie Christian, Terry and Susan Conway with Dr. Philip and Jacquie Insley, Robert and Becky Gearhart, Palmer and Angie Gillis with Art Webster, Dr. Catherine and Ron Haselnus, Dr. James and Linda Lackie, Dr. David and Mickey Roe, Donald and Teri Williams, and William and Judy Wyatt, all of Salisbury; Randy and Ann Coates with Richard and Priscilla Leitch, and Lloyd and Alice Tweedy, all of Snow Hill; and Virginia Layfield of Princess Anne.

Following the dinner parties, all guests will meet in the University Gallery on the SSU campus for champagne, dessert and the opening of an exhibit of drawings by American painter Edward Hopper.

Because the hosts of the small dinner parties are donating the food, the SSU Foundation will have very little in overhead expenses at this year's Gala. As a result, the University Gallery will receive the full proceeds from each person's $100 donation.

For more information or to make reservations, call the Foundation Office at 543-6175.

Students Produce 'Fable Factory,' Children's Theatre

"The Fabulous Fable Factory," Salisbury State's children's theatre production, comes to campus on the weekend of May 14-16.

Throughout the show children will see several of their favorite stories acted out and will learn, from the cast, what the moral of these stories are. The show is both fun and educational.

The show features two SSU students sharing the role of Monroe. Christine Hall will be playing the part May 14 and the matinee on May 15. Cynthia Lasner performs during the evening performance on May 15 and the matinee on May 16. The show also features Lee Stanford, a sophomore, as Aesop.

The cast includes Holly Martin, Jennifer Allen, David Robertson, William Magee, Georgia Chipouras, Jodie Pelcman, David Shuhy and Julianne Kinkela. The show is directed by Melissa Hetteroth, a junior at SSU. Vocal direction is by Cynthia Lasner assisted by Cheryl Christian and Christine Hall. Salisbury State alumnus, John Staiger, currently working toward his M.F.A. in scene design at Rutgers University, designed the scenery. Lighting is by Chip Custis, music by Daniel Cuneo and costumes by Beth Nelson and Melissa Hetteroth.

The book "The Fabulous Fable Factory" was written by Joseph Robinette; the music is by Thomas Tierney. Performances are scheduled for 7 p.m. May 14 and 15 and 2 p.m. on May 15 and 16 in Caruthers Hall. Tickets are $2 for children; parents (with children) are free. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free. For more information call the Fulton Hall box office at 543-6228.

Outdoor Club Thanks Its Seniors

The Outdoor Club would like to thank seniors Donnie Clime and Cheryl Rogers for their time and contributions to the club for the past four years. Clime has served as an officer for two years and is currently the club president. Rogers has been an officer for three years and is currently the treasurer.

The club's semester ending social at Janes Island, MD, is May 14-15. Come and join in for a great time in the outdoors to celebrate nature. For information call Mike Baker at 546-4550.

Four Solos Highlight SSO Spring Concert

In final rehearsals for this year's spring concert, the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State is once again working with accomplished soloists. This year, however, some of the bright lights come from within. Each of the four solos in the program will feature SSO members. It's a concert SSO's music director, Dr. Thomas G. Elliot has long awaited.

"Besides being a medium for entertaining and for enjoying music, the orchestra is a vehicle for presenting talent," Elliot said. "We always feature someone in solo. I just love it when it's someone from our own community." Having worked with some of the soloists as SSO members—and having taught one of them, Carrie Work, Elliot is especially proud.

The soloists assembled for this concert include two who have been with the SSO for some time and two relative newcomers.

Pianist Gary Cheng is quite new to the SSO, but at five years old, already an accomplished performer. Harpist Hong Liang is also new to the orchestra; but her presence is likely to be felt for a long time. She is not only a talented performer, she is also giving harp lessons to several Eastern Shore children. Elliot is looking forward to seeing those musicians move up through the Youth Orchestra and one day join the SSO ranks.

Alexia Luscher is only 17, but is already preparing to leave the SSO. The violinist has plans to study music performance at Catholic University in the fall.

The horn quartet who will also be featured in the program has been assembled for the occasion by SSO member Carrie Work, herself an accomplished musician. The performers, who travel to Salisbury from Philadelphia and Baltimore to rehearse with the SSO, have found here an ideal match for their talents. Elliot explains that it is rare to find an orchestra that is not only willing to feature soloists, but also is capable of playing well enough to interest qualified musicians.

Inviting solo performers to play enhances SSO concerts, but also inspires orchestra members. "It says two very important things to all of us," he said. "First, they're here because the orchestra has developed to a point that it is attractive to soloists. Second, other fine players and soloists become encouraged to join us." Elliot adds that already "two years' worth" of soloists have lined up to play with the SSO.

The spring concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Friday, May 14 and 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 15 in Holloway Hall Auditorium on the campus of Salisbury State University. Tickets are $6, with $4 tickets available to students and senior citizens. SSO Gold Card Patrons will be admitted without charge. For more information, please call the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Notice to Graduates with Perkins Loans

All graduating seniors who have received a Perkins Loan(s) are required to attend an exit interview concerning repayment, rights, obligation and responsibility regarding the loan.

It is mandatory that those seniors call the Financial Services Office at 543-6065 or 543-6067 or stop by Holloway Hall, room 205, to schedule an appointment. Interview appointment times have been scheduled for the week of May 17. Notices are also being sent out to prospective graduates. Student teachers must also make arrangements to attend this interview.

The mandatory exit interview for Perkins Loans is in no way related to the exit interviews being given for Federal Stafford/SLS loans of the week of May 4.

'91 Grad Is TA at Ohio University

Gemma Connolly, a 1991 graduate with a B.A. in French, has been awarded a teaching assistantship from Ohio University. The assistantship consists of free tuition and a $6,400 yearly stipend.

Connolly, orginally from Ireland, traveled throughout Europe following her graduation from Salisbury State. She will pursue a master's degree in French literature and is interested in obtaining her Ph.D.

Gull Swim Club Accepting Memberships

Individual and family memberships for the Sea Gull Swim Club at Salisbury State are now available. Members are entitled to use of the Aquatic Center from June 2-August 22.

Individual memberships are $50 each and family memberships are $120. Family memberships include up to four family members with each additional family member an additional $5. Guests, accompanied by a member, are charged $3 per visit. Members are allowed two guests per visit.

This season an occasional swimmer can join the Swim Club for $30 and receive 20 visits to the Aquatic Center.

Lap swimming is available Monday through Friday from 6:30- 8:30 a.m., 12:30-1:30 p.m. and 4:30-6 p.m. and on the weekends from noon-1 p.m. and 5-6 p.m. Weekday free swim hours are 8:30 a.m.-noon, 1:30-4:30 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. and on the weekends from 1-5 p.m.

Memberships may be purchased at the Cashier's Office in Holloway Hall, room 203. There is a $10 replacement charge for lost pool tags.

Swimming lessons are available for both children over five years and adults in the following categories: prebeginner, beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate/advanced.

Children's swimming classes start June 21 and run until July 30.

The cost is $30 for members and $40 for non-members for 10 days of instruction.

Adult lessons for prebeginners, beginners and intermediate open to individuals 15 years and older will be offered. The fees are $30 for members and $40 for non-members. New this year is a Saturday swim program for children and adults.

A pair of two-day stroke improvement clinics will be held in which participants will be videotaped in the pool and their strokes analyzed.

Three courses will be offered in infant and preschool swimming for parent and child; the instructor works with parents in guiding their children through water orientation skills. It is open to infants six months to children five years.

A basic open water SCUBA and advanced SCUBA courses will be offered to individuals 12 years and over on Thursdays from June 24-July 29, 6-10 p.m. The instructor for the course is John Kiser, a Professional Association of Diving Instructors certified instructor. His shop is certified as a five-star facility. He has taught extensively in the Annapolis area, including Towson State University, and he and his staff instruct SCUBA courses at the U.S. Naval Academy. Open water SCUBA fee is $125 for members, $160 for non-members. Cost for the advanced class is $80 for members and $100 for non-members. There is an additional charge for the open water dive.

Private lessons for children and adults are provided upon request.

Contact the aquatic's director at 543-6357 or the pool information phone at 548-5000 for further information and a brochure.

currently testing alternative fuels and the only one using propane. The departments of Transportation and Energy are currently using compressed and liquid natural gas in their vehicles," Sheckells said.

SSU was asked to participate in the two-year testing program because of its reputation for success with the campus recycling and energy conservation programs.

Funding for the vehicle conversion at SSU—$18,585 in all— was supplied by the Maryland Energy Administration. The only cost to the University is the fuel itself.

"Salisbury State has a strong commitment to continue a leadership role in regard to conservation, environmental protection, personal safety and financial stewardship," said SSU's administrative services director, Richard Yobst. "Our participation is based on the premise that propane fuel will be a more efficient fuel source which will result in a reduction in fuel cost."

Propane burns cleaner than gasoline which means fewer oil changes and tune-ups and reduced labor cost for maintenance. Over the next two years, the University will be looking at the cost of operating the propane vehicles versus gasoline-powered ones.

"Sparkplugs on these vehicles get replaced every 60,000 miles and oil changes are recommended every 20,000 miles," Bowen said. "They'll probably never need a tune-up during the test period."

State and SSU officials will be comparing the amount of savings with the cost of converting the vehicles. "We're trying to find out if it's cheaper in the long run," Bowen said. "We already know it's cleaner."

Propane also is a safer fuel source because of a higher point of ignition.

Replacing battery-operated golf carts will contribute to SSU's recycling efforts as well by reducing the number of batteries which would have to be placed in the waste stream.

The move to propane-powered vehicles marks a continued effort on the University's part to be a community and statewide leader in the energy conservation field. Previously, SSU has implemented several programs on campus that include recycling glass, paper, metal and plastic products; composting food and garden waste; eliminating the use of disposable plates and utensils in the Gull's Nest snack bar; and asking staff and faculty to make two-sided photocopies.

May 1993 Commencement Information

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m. on Saturday, May 29, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be Ambassador John W. McDonald, president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C.

3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

6. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through The Book Rack beginning April 28. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. and Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 28, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items on or before 4 p.m. on Friday, May 28.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack until May 17. Each student will be limited to six tickets each. If you do not need all six tickets please return the extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Guests are requested to be seated by 9:45 a.m.

Students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17 will not be guaranteed six tickets for graduation.

7. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

8. Students will then be awarded their diploma individually. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

9. During the recessional, graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in commencement must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 24. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

12. The Department of Nursing will hold its baccalaureate nursing convocation on May 28 at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, on Saturday, May 29, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through G, Gary Allan Gorman, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with G, Dustin Lee Gosewisch, through the letter O, Jennifer O'Shea, will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Polly Stewart. When you enter the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled Flanders Room 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6. Wulff and Stewart will line you up alphabetically in the Flanders area. You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with letter P, Melody Pairo through the letter Z, will go to the left corridor after entering the main entrance of the Civic Center and will report to Drs. Jerome Miller and Carolyn Bowden. You are to line up alphabetically along the windows, facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

16. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through M, Byron Patrick McCrae, will report to Drs. Arthur Delpaz and Augustine DiGiovanna at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Kimberly Jane McCullough, through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and Gerald St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill the section starting from the side aisle.

17. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the rear of the corridor facing toward the back of the building and report to Dr. Arthur Delpaz. You will line up according to Dr. Delpaz's direction and will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

18. Bachelor of Arts in Social Work (B.A.S.W.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

19. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Norman Johnson. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree and will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

20. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional. (The Civic Center is air conditioned.)
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (It is worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president (and/or your faculty marshal).
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

21. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Director, Center for Technology in Education

The University seeks a flexible, creative and energetic individual to establish and promote a technology center for pre- service and in-service preparation of educators.

The individual will be responsible for providing training and computer assisted instruction, establishing a library of available software, introducing teachers and other school personnel to state of the art technology, performing research into the use of technology in the classroom and developing programs to enhance the technology literacy of school people throughout the region.

Candidates must demonstrate successful experience in schooling, curriculum development and technology applications to education. Competencies and a record of success are of primary consideration; however, in that this is a University position academic credentials will be considered as well. Demonstrated communication skills are considered essential.

Salary is commensurate with experience. This is a contractual position which includes no benefits. Consideration of applications will begin on June 1 and will continue until the position is filled.

Send letter of application, vitae and the name and address of three references to SEPS Search Committee, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Environmental Health

Applications are invited for a full-time tenure track appointment at assistant or associate professor level, beginning in August, in a recently established environmental health baccalaureate program.

Successful candidates must be able to teach environmental health undergraduate courses and courses in the biological sciences and serve as an effective mentor for undergraduates in research projects.

A terminal degree (Ph.D., Sc.D. or Dr.PH.) in environmental health is desired but a terminal degree in a related field with a master's in environmental health with teaching and practical experience will be considered. Although teaching at the undergraduate level is the primary focus, it is expected that the successful candidate will be actively involved in scholarly activity.

Applications containing a current curriculum vita, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work, and three letters of recommendation should be sent to Dr. John R. Molenda, Chair, Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6837. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization authorization to accept employment in this country.

Administrative Assistant

The Perdue School of Business seeks an administrative assistant to work with its graduate program, communicating with students, alumni and the business community.

A business degree is an asset, computer literacy is mandatory. A part-time contractual position (12 hours/week) with no state benefits, salary is commensurate with background and qualifications.

Send resumes to Director, Graduate Program, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801, by May 24.

Residence Life, Area Director

Applications are being accepted for a residence life, area director. Anticipated opening is July 1.

Duties include recruitment, selection and supervision of resident assistant and resident director staff, delivery of educational programs and services, the handling of disciplinary cases and sanctions, and general administrative duties within two or three residence halls. This is a live-in position on a 12-month appointment.

Salary of $19,400, health insurance allowance, apartment, utilities and meal plan are provided. Master's degree in college student personnel, higher education, counseling or related field and two to three years live-in experience are required. Multicultural emphasis and/or application of student development theory is desirable.

Send cover letter, resume and names of three references to Tony D'Antonio, Assistant Director of Housing for Residence Life, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be processed beginning May 17 and continue until position is filled. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. immigration and Naturalization Certification to accept employment.

Maintenance Mechanic

The University has an opening for a maintenance mechanic to perform semi-skilled work in general building maintenance and equipment monitoring.

A full-time state position with benefits, the salary range is $15,704 - $20,472. The schedule is a five-day/40 hour work week to include nights and weekends as dictated by rotating shift. The employee will perform routine preventive maintenance and minor repair work on mechanical equipment, fixtures and various building components. The ability to read and interpret pressure and temperature gauges and maintain a written log of activities is required. Knowledge of hot water boilers is desired. Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall until May 24.

Computer Services Seeks Student Monitors

The Office of Computer Services is accepting applications for the position of student monitor for the fall semester. Any student who has successfully completed either COSC 112, COSC 120 or ISMN111 may apply.

To apply students must complete a job application with the Work Experience Office and receive a referral card; complete the Office of Computer Services student monitor job application (These applications can be obtained at the student monitor's desk in Fulton Hall, room 149, beginning Tuesday, May 4.); and complete the application and attach the work experience referral card to the application. All applications must be returned to the Office of Computer Services help desk to be dated. Students will be contacted by the academic coordinator for interviews.

Students will not be considered if they have not completed the application, do not have a referral card or the application is not dated.

Kraft Receives Fulbright Scholarship

Dr. Evan Kraft of the Perdue School of Business will be traveling to Slovenia under a Council on the International Exchange of Scholars Fulbright grant this summer. The grant will allow Kraft to carry out research at the Institute for Economic Research in Ljubljana, Slovenia's capital.

Slovenia, a small but relatively prosperous nation located in the southern corner of the Alps, declared independence from Yugoslavia in June 1991. After a week of fighting, the Yugoslav Army withdrew from Slovenia. Slovenia's independence was formally recognized by Yugoslavia in October and the new country achieved widespread international recognition as an independent state (including U.S. recognition) in 1992.

While in Ljubljana, Kraft will focus on two topics: the transformation of the banking system, which remains bogged down with large quantities of bad loans inherited from the Communist period; and the economic implications of Slovenia's status as an independent country. Kraft also plans to meet with the authors writing for "Independent Slovenia," a book of essays edited by Kraft and Jill Benderly, to be published by St. Martin's Press.

Percussion Ensemble Gives 1st Performance

The Department of Music's newly-formed Percussion Ensemble presents a recital on Thursday, May 20, at 7 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 112, according to Dr. Richard L. Johnson, director of wind activities. The performance is free and open to the public.

The group fulfills a chamber ensemble experience for percussion majors similar to the University's Brass Quintet and Saxophone Quartet both of which have played on- and off-campus performances in recent semesters. The Percussion Ensemble program content includes original compositions as well as adaptations of works by such composers as Claude Debussy and Scott Joplin.

Most concert-goers recognize the role of percussion instruments in a larger context—symphony orchestra, wind ensemble, concert band—which utilize traditional mixtures of string, woodwind and brass instruments. The Percussion Ensemble, however, must rely on uniqueness of restricted timbres and instrument types characteristic of the percussion family to produce the traditional elements of melody, harmony and rhythm.

The majority of the recital will combine mixed timbres such as snare, bass, tenor and tympani drums with xylophone, marimba, vibraphone and bells as well as a variety of

This Year's Commencement Is Biggest in University History

The largest number of graduates in the history of Salisbury State—986 in all—will receive bachelor's and master's degrees during commencement exercises set for 10 a.m. Saturday, May 29, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Additionally the first group of graduates in the dual-degree biology/environmental science program in cooperation with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore will be awarded Bachelor of Science degrees from SSU. They received degrees from UMES earlier this month.

Ambassador John W. McDonald, a lawyer, diplomat and peacemaker, will be this year's commencement speaker. The topic of his address will be "The Challenge of the 21st Century."

McDonald will be awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Humane Letters, by Dr. Bellavance.

McDonald currently is president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C., which focuses on ethnic conflicts. In 1992 he was named Distinguished Visiting Professor at George Mason University's Institute for Conflict Analysis and Resolution.

He is the father of Salisbury architect James McDonald.

McDonald was appointed ambassador twice by President Carter and twice by President Reagan to represent the United States at various United Nations world conferences.

Of the 910 students receiving bachelor's degrees, there are 297 Bachelor of Arts, three Bachelor of Fine Arts, 563 Bachelor of Science and 47 Bachelor of Social Work.

Seventy-six students will receive master's degrees which include 13 Master of Arts, 44 Master of Education, four Master of Science and 15 Master of Business Administration.

Political Science Profs Author Books, Articles

Four political science professors are the authors of newly released books and articles on subjects as diverse as American government and contract farming in Africa.

"This is an example of the sort of scholarship that exists on the Salisbury State campus and it extends to practically every department," said vice president of academic affairs, Dr. K. Nelson Butler.

Dr. Harry Basehart, who was coordinator of Remembering Tet: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War held at SSU in November, is co-author of Understanding American Government, Second Edition published by West Publishing Co. Basehart was responsible for updating the first paperback edition. His co-authors are Susan Welch of Pennsylvania State University and John Gruhl, Michael Steinman and John Cromer, all of the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Greg Cashman's What Causes War? An Introduction to Theories of International Conflict has just been published by Lexington Books/Macmillan. The book is a college text for upper division courses in international relations or peace studies, and analyzes the various theories which purport to explain war. It is the first survey of theories of war to be published in several decades.

Dr. Michael O'Loughlin has just completed his second teacher's manual for American National Government: Institutions, Policy and Participation, a college-level text for introductory courses in American government. The book was written by Robert Ross, a professor at California State University at Chico, and published by Dushkin Press.

Dr. Cyril Daddieh has written chapters in two soon-to-be-published books. The first, "Contract Farming and Palm Oil Production in Cot d'Ivore and Ghana," is a chapter in the book Living Under Contract: Contract Farming

Inset is Mary Gay Calcott, associate professor of English, 31 years. Good luck to all.

Alumni Office Offers SSU License Plates

Alumni throughout Maryland are displaying their pride in the University with special "Salisbury State" license plates on their passenger cars, multipurpose vehicles or light trucks registered in Maryland. New graduates interested in receiving a license plate form should call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Graduation Requires Tickets to Attend

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for the May 1993 ceremony as well.

Each May graduates will be provided six guest tickets. Please note the following dates and deadlines:

—April 28-May 17: Pick up caps, gowns, etc., and six tickets at graduation center. Important: students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17 will not be guaranteed six tickets.

—April 28-May 17: Sign up at Guerrieri University Center information desk for additional number of graduation tickets.

—May 19-28: Pick up extra guest tickets at Guerrieri Center information desk.

Faculty members who are not marching, staff and family members who would like tickets should sign up for tickets at the information desk beginning April 28.

More information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Challenge Exams For English Scheduled

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Wednesday, September 8, from 4-7 p.m. For students interested in taking either of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Sydney Webster, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, May 24.

In August a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information, please contact the English Department at 543-6445.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Information Sciences

The Perdue School of Business is seeking an experienced applicant for a one-year visiting position in the Department of Information and Decision Sciences. The position begins August 15.

Qualifications include a doctorate in information systems or closely related field and the ability to teach two of the following courses: Database Management, Data Communications and Networking, and System Analysis and Design. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Send vita and letter of application to Chair, Information and Decision Sciences Search Committee, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801-6860. Consideration of applications begins immediately and will be accepted until the position is filled.

Annual Golf Outing At Nutters June 14

The ninth annual Salisbury State University Invitational (formerly the Whack & Hack Open) will be held Monday, June 14, at Nutters Crossing Golf Course.

The event is open to faculty, staff, alumni and guests of all abilities—fun and fellowship are the priorities of the day. This year's tournament chair is Bob Spery of the Perdue School of Business.

Golfers are urged to arrive by 11:15 a.m. to pick up registration materials. Tee-off is at noon; the format is again four ball, best ball scramble.

The cost is $32.50 for SSU employees and alumni and includes green fees, cart, dinner, beverages and prizes. Guests are charged $42.50 each. Early registrants will receive an official SSU Invitational hat.

Foursomes will be entered in one of three flights: Ringer Division (one or more non-SSU employees in foursome); Collegiate Division (all SSU employees); and Inclusive Division (one or more women).

Efforts are still underway to organize a tennis tournament that same day at the SSU courts. More information will be forthcoming if sufficient interest develops.

Dinner will be served at 5 p.m. at the Nutters Crossing clubhouse and features a chicken and ribs barbecue. Golfers and tennis players are urged to complete play by 5 p.m. to ensure food is available for all participants. The cost for those interested in dinner only is $15.

For registration materials contact the Public Relations Office in Holloway Hall, room 264, or phone 543-6030. Checks should be made payable to the SSU Foundation and sent to Dee Hedrick in Holloway Hall, room 209, no later than Friday, June 4.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Michael P. Jochynek

Gull's Nest Chef Is Chef of the Year

Michael P. Jochynek, the sous chef at the Gull's Nest snack bar, has been named the Delmarva Chef's Association chef of the year for 1993.

Jochynek is in charge of food production, ordering and catering events through the Gull's Nest. He also supervises SSU students who work for University Dining Services.

"Salisbury State has really helped me grow as a chef. They allow me time off to attend educational seminars and no restaurant would do that," Jochynek said. "This is also one of the best places I've worked because the Dining Services employees really take a lot of pride in their work."

Prior to working at Salisbury State, Jochynek worked locally at the Sheraton Salisbury and the Tidewater Inn in Easton. He also worked on a cruise ship out of Florida, the Hilton Hotel in Dallas and the Ramada Inn in Morgantown, WV. He has been cooking professionally since 1978 when he was hired at an Italian restaurant in Pennsylvania.

"Mike's enthusiasm, dedication and willingness to learn, coupled with his 10 years experience in food service, production and supervision, has earned him the respect of his co-workers and peers," said Monte Bradley, director of University Dining Services. "All of the Salisbury State community can be proud to have him rewarded, not only for his campus contributions, but also for the many community projects in which he has participated."

Through the Delmarva Chef's Association, Jochynek has offered his professional assistance to local charities and nonprofit groups for their fund-raising events. Among the groups he has helped are the YMCA, Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council, Joseph House Village, the Eastern Shore Symphony Society, Life Crisis Center, American Red Cross, March of Dimes, Peninsula Regional Medical Center and Atlantic General Hospital.

The Delmarva Chef's Association is a professional organization of cooks, bakers, purveyors and others from the hotels, restaurants and food service businesses on the Delmarva Peninsula. It is a chapter of the American Culinary Federation, the largest federation of cooks and chefs in America.

Outdoor Club Announces Officers

The Outdoor Club's newly elected officers for 1993-94 are: president, Mike Baker; vice president of public relations, Claudine Roussel; vice president of equipment, Marek Topolski; treasurer, Mike Bank; secretary, Wendy Rosen; and sports club council reps, Jen Shipley and Scott McIntosh.

Welsh Essay Is on Biographical Films

Jim Welsh, associate professor of English, has attempted to sort out biographical truth from Hollywood fantasy in an essay recently published in Studies in Popular Culture, titled "Hollywood 'Faction' and the New Biofantasy."

Welsh examines a number of biographical films, ranging from Great Balls of Fire (the life of rocker Jerry Lee Lewis), La Bamba (Ritchie Valens, killed in the airplane crash that also took the life of Buddy Holly) and Francis Coppola's Tucker: The Man and His Dream—all of which set the style for what Welsh calls the new "biofantasy"—to Jack Nicholson's Hoffa, Denzel Washington's Malcolm X and Robert Downey's Chaplin.

All of the films indulge in legendary embellishment and valorize their subjects. Even the most faithful attempts, such as Chaplin and Malcolm X, add invented characters to enhance the "real life" drama.

Welsh also wrote the review of Malcolm X that appears in the April 1993 issue of Films on Review, now on the news stands, a magazine that has regularly featured his work over the past decade. Films in Review, the oldest established magazine of its kind, has been published by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in New York City for 44 years. Studies in Popular Culture is published by the Popular Culture Association and the American Culture Association in the South and is edited by Dr. Dennis Hall of the University of Louisville.

Welsh himself edits Literature/Film Quarterly, now in its 21st year, published by SSU, where the author-editor teaches courses in cinema studies. He also reviews locally for Metropolitan Magazine and for The Beachcomber in Ocean City.

Singleton Writes, Directs Satirical Play

Dr. Donald L. Singleton of the Communication Arts Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts wrote and directed a play titled "Breakfast at the Toxic Cafe" which was presented at the Eastern Speech Association Conference in New Haven, CT, recently.

The original one-act was part of a program on environmental themes in the classroom. The play deals with the social and human consequences of a toxic waste dump in Arkansas. The role of Sue, owner of the Toxic Cafe and leader of the coalition to prevent the open-air burning of dioxin, was played by Kristen Dugan a senior in the Communication Arts Department. After graduating from SSU, Dugan will attend the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York.

The ghost of Phillip Potts, Sue's dead husband who was killed while working in the chemical plant responsible for the dioxin, was played by Chip Guy, a junior in the Communication Arts Department. Singleton, an experienced television writer and director, played the role of Bill Bradshaw, public relations officer for the chemical company.

Singleton had high praise for Dugan and Guy. "In spite of the press of other commitments, these two young actors performed like seasoned professionals, allocating many hours to rehearsal and to perfecting Arkansas accents."

The play was well received by the audience of university professors. "Although taking an original play to New Haven is a little like taking coals to Newcastle," Singleton said, "the point of the play was encapsulated by one of the members of the audience during a discussion period following the performance. The play personalized the impact of these waste dumps. The impact is no longer an impersonal line in the newspaper, but terrible harm done to people we know and care about."

The players will perform a scene from the play for several classes at SSU. Singleton is presently exploring other venues for performance of the play.

The University community has contributed $7,500 in the campaign to raise funds to build a home for a needy family through the campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity. The goal is $34,000 with several other fund-raisers in the planning stages. It is hoped that the money can be raised and construction completed within a year. Pictured above are: Richard Yobst, director of administrative services and coordinator of the campaign; Nancy Wagner of the Alumni Association which donated a pair of tickets to an upcoming Orioles game in a recent grand prize drawing; Christina Bach, student who won the Orioles tickets; Mia Vye, secretary in the President's Office who won the drawing for a weekend in Ocean City; and Mary Gillespie, director of instructional media, who donated the Ocean City weekend getaway. Anyone interested in contributing to the campaign should call Yobst at 543-6219.

Gull Swim Club Accepting Memberships

Individual and family memberships for the Sea Gull Swim Club at Salisbury State are now available. Members are entitled to use of the Aquatic Center from June 2-August 22.

Individual memberships are $50 each and family memberships are $120. Family memberships include up to four family members with each additional family member an additional $5. Guests, accompanied by a member, are charged $3 per visit. Members are allowed two guests per visit.

This season an occasional swimmer can join the Swim Club for $30 and receive 20 visits to the Aquatic Center.

Lap swimming is available Monday through Friday from 6:30- 8:30 a.m., 12:30-1:30 p.m. and 4:30-6 p.m. and on the weekends from noon-1 p.m. and 5-6 p.m. Weekday free swim hours are 8:30 a.m.-noon, 1:30-4:30 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. and on the weekends from 1-5 p.m.

Memberships may be purchased at the Cashier's Office in Holloway Hall, room 203. There is a $10 replacement charge for lost pool tags.

Swimming lessons are available for both children over five years and adults in the following categories: prebeginner, beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate/advanced.

Children's swimming classes start June 21 and run until July 30.

The cost is $30 for members and $40 for non-members for 10 days of instruction.

Adult lessons for prebeginners, beginners and intermediate open to individuals 15 years and older will be offered. The fees are $30 for members and $40 for non-members. New this year is a Saturday swim program for children and adults.

A pair of two-day stroke improvement clinics will be held in which participants will be videotaped in the pool and their strokes analyzed.

Three courses will be offered in infant and preschool swimming for parent and child; the instructor works with parents in guiding their children through water orientation skills. It is open to infants six months to children five years.

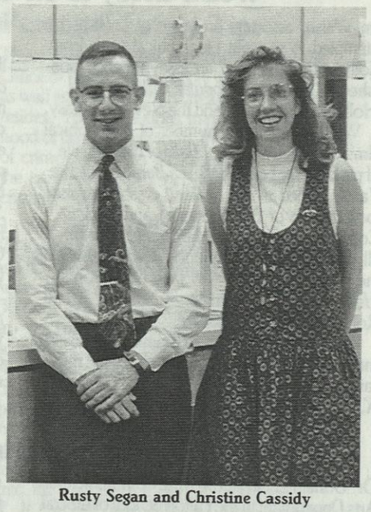
A basic open water SCUBA and advanced SCUBA courses will be offered to individuals 12 years and over on Thursdays from June 24-July 29, 6-10 p.m. The instructor for the course is John Kiser, a Professional Association of Diving Instructors certified instructor. His shop is certified as a five-star facility. He has taught extensively in the Annapolis area, including Towson State University, and he and his staff instruct SCUBA courses at the U.S. Naval Academy. Open water SCUBA fee is $125 for members, $160 for non-members. Cost for the advanced class is $80 for members and $100 for non-members. There is an additional charge for the open water dive.

Private lessons for children and adults are provided upon request.

Contact the aquatic's director at 543-6357 or the pool information phone at 548-5000 for further information and a brochure.

It's a Boy

Gerry DiBartolo, assistant professor in the Perdue School of Business and head soccer coach, and his wife, Mary (SSU Class of 1989, M.B.A.), have a new baby boy. Anthony Gerard was born on Wednesday, May 5, at Peninsula Regional Medical Center. He weighed 6 lbs., 13 ozs. Congratulations.



Rusty Segan and Christine Cassidy

Student Trainers Receive Accolades

Several student athletic trainers at Salisbury State have recently received scholarship awards and graduate assistant athletic training positions.

Rusty Segan of Collingswood, NJ, a junior, received the first place scholarship award from the National Athletic Trainer's Association and the Mid-Atlantic Athletic Trainer's Association in the internship category. Christine Cassidy of Port Republic, NJ, received the second place scholarship award from the Mid-Atlantic Athletic Trainer's Association in the same category. The scholarships are extremely competitive; Segan and Cassidy were chosen from hundreds of applicants.

Additionally several graduating student athletic trainers have received graduate assistantships, a paid position with a tuition waiver for post-graduate studies. Joe Cramp of Mantua, NJ, will be attending The Citadel in Charleston, SC, Greg Smith of Bowie, MD, will be attending California University of Pennsylvania, and Carlo Mastrangelo of Silver Spring, MD, Reggie Butler of Clinton, MD, Steve Ehasz of Bound Brook, NJ, and Paul Eng of Gaithersburg, MD, are awaiting appointments.

Also Jamie Bentkowski of Forest Hill, MD, was admitted into three physical therapy schools and was a finalist for a graduate assistantship at University of Nevada Las Vegas. He has chosen to attend University of Maryland at Baltimore physical therapy school, which will result in a master's in physical therapy.

"All of the awards are extremely prestigious in the field of athletic training and each student should be congratulated for their efforts," said Pat Lamboni, head athletic trainer at SSU.

Secretary's Day Lunch Door Prize Winners

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Salisbury State's undefeated season and hopes of a national men's lacrosse championship both came to an abrupt halt last Sunday as Washington College shocked the Sea Gulls, 12-11, in Salisbury. The loss eliminated the Gulls in the tournament's opening round for a second consecutive year. Salisbury State, ranked number one in the USILA poll throughout the year, finishes 13-1 for the season.

Trailing 12-10 in the final minute, SSU pulled to within one on Chris Soper's goal with 48 seconds remaining. Three shots in the closing seconds failed to find the net however, and Washington advanced to the semifinal round to play Ohio Wesleyan.

Coach Jim Berkman commented following the loss. "We played the whole game like we were losing. Our kids thought they had to beat this team by five or 10 goals, and when we were tied at halftime, we started to panic. The longer Washington hung in there, the more confidence they got and the harder they played."

SSU had defeated Washington the last three times the teams met, including a 17-5 win just three weeks earlier in the regular season.

Despite the loss, the four-year seniors on this year's squad—Ben Berquist, Mike Esham, Mike Gallagher, John Russell, Chris Soper and Mike Sweeney—leave a proud legacy. They amassed a 51-8 record in four years, with two undefeated regular season campaigns, four trips to the NCAA Tournament, one national runnerup finish and one other third-place finish. The team's winning percentage of .864 during this span is the most successful four-year run in the 20- year history of SSU lacrosse.

With the end of the lacrosse season, six members of the men's and women's track teams are the only varsity athletes still competing during the '92-93 year. Kirsten Owings, Tracy Tyler, Tony McCray, Sam Yurko, Jeremy Rallo and Jason Anderson will represent SSU at the NCAA Division III Track and Field Championships next week.

Individually, Owings will compete in the long jump, Tyler in the high jump, and McCray will run the 100-meter dash. The four men are also entered in the 400-meter relay.

The championships begin next Wednesday, May 26, and continue through Saturday at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio.

Seldomridge Presents At Nursing Conference

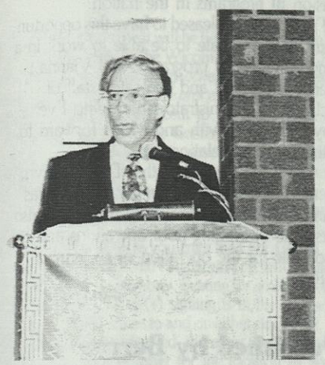
Lisa Seldomridge, assistant professor of nursing in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, made a presentation at the conference Nursing Staff Development '93, sponsored by the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Washington, D.C.

"Narrowing the Gap: College Credits for Hands on Learning" focused on the summer school course, Nursing 405: The Nurse Extern Seminar, which pairs nursing students with registered nurse preceptors in a variety of clinical settings. Employed by various health care agencies as "externs," the nursing students provide all the care provided by the registered nurse under the supervision of the preceptor.

Students enroll concurrently in Nursing 405 where discussion focuses on transition into the professional role, role conflict, values clarification and dealing with reality shock. Students refine skills in assertiveness, clinical decision making and time management.

Over 1,000 nurse administrators and educators from the United States and Canada attended the conference.

Phi Kappa Phi Holds 19th Annual Initiation



Dr. Richard Beebe

Academic excellence was again in the spotlight at SSU on Sunday, May 9. The event was the 19th annual initiation ceremony of the University chapter of the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi, held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Dr. George Whitehead, chapter president, presided at the ceremony. He was assisted by other chapter officers and members including Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, past-president; Betty Crockett, secretary and treasurer; Karen Eppehimer, student vice- president; Dr. G. Ray Thompson; and Dr. James C. Lackie. Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs at SSU, congratulated each new member and presented them with their certificate of membership.

Fifty-seven seniors were recognized as having achieved the highest academic records at Salisbury State. Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is among the highest academic awards that the University grants. It is reserved for seniors who are in the top 5 percent of their class. Juniors with exceptionally high outstanding academic records are occasionally invited for membership.

The new members are Sonja L. Akers, Meredith K. Allen, J. Michael Asplen, Samantha A. Bell, Tracey L. Berry, Brenda O. Boggs, Frances A. Butterworth, Sharon K. Collins, Allison J. Dameron, Rebecca L. Deckert, Thomas A. DiMarco, Jodi L. Elliot, Janis K. Gavai, Ruth L. Gibson, Todd A. Gillenardo, Cynthia M. Gruss, David A. Harris, Ruby L. Hayward, Shelley L. Herman, David Y. Hooper, Tana L. Hope, Walter Hudson, Kevin A. Johnson, Michelle M. Keeney, Denise A. King, Denise H. Kwiatkowski, Karen G. Lane, Jennifer C. Lins, Amy E. (Bennett) Litchford, Colleen Loftus, Mary Lou Mattax, Karen L. Mister, D. Sean Mullarkey, Steven E. Newcomb, Jin K. Park, Kathy Peterson, Dean S. Pierson, Nicholas R. Plants, Lynne S. Prettyman, Diana Realini, Gerry D. Reed, Ann T. Russell, Mohammad Sajadi, Ross D. Segan, William A. Seth, III, Todd M. Shea, Lori L. Shipe, Linda S. Shipp, Lisa M. Smith, David G. Sommer, Bettina I. Stern, Surai Thaneemit, April M. Thompson, Brenda C. Toney, James B. Truitt, Leigh A. Tull and Sharon Lynn Witt.

Dr. Richard Bebee, dean of the Perdue School of Business, was the guest speaker. In his address, Bebee emphasized the importance of striving for excellence in academics and of applying that quest in a practical way to all aspects of life. By doing so, people achieve personal fulfillment, encourage others to strive for excellence and increase the total quality of life for all members of society. He cited the curriculum and opportunities for community involvement at SSU as means by which students can develop the habit of academic and applied excellence. Bebee concluded by highlighting the special need for leaders to develop habits of excellence for themselves while empowering those they lead to do so also.

The initiation ceremony was followed by a banquet. Among the honored guests were Dr. Bellavance, Elizabeth Bellavance, Lucy Butler and Mary Lynne Bebee.

Pat McGlothlin (left), program coordinator for University Dining Services, and Carole Wright, a junior and the public relations assistant for UDS, hold framed certificate citing recent recognition accorded the SSU food service operation by The National Association of College and University Food Services (NACUFS). SSU was judged to have the best graphic and descriptive presentation of the institution's food service program among 13 medium size schools. University Dining Services at SSU offers students a variety of special events each semester including Lobster Night, Eastern Shore Crab Feast, Visiting Chefs Week, Black History Night, Hot Wing Eating Contest and many more. It offers a vegetarian option daily and each week presents a program discouraging food waste.

Car Talk Hosts Wacky Company Picnic

Tom and Ray Magliozzi, the hosts of National Public Radio's automotive advice program, Car Talk, broadcast on WSCL-FM 89.5 at 10 a.m. on Saturdays, are planning another wacky event for their listeners this year in their hometown of Cambridge, MA.

Car Talk's fictitious law firm, Dewey, Cheetham, and Howe, will hold a "company picnic" for Car Talk listeners on Saturday, June 26. Thousands of listeners have sent in postcards, hoping to win what the Magliozzis have billed as "an almost-all-expense-paid" trip for four to Cambridge to attend the event. The winner will be announced on Car Talk on Saturday, June 12.

The company picnic, in the style of previous Car Talk events, features music, food and off-beat games. The games are named after real and imagined members of the Car Talk staff. For example, there's the "Huey Louey Dewey Ambulance Chaser Bumper Spat," in which participants don velcro suits, jump off a miniature trampoline and stick to a large velcro wall.

"It's supposed to simulate how our chief counsel Hugh Louis Dewey feels when he's chasing an ambulance through Harvard Square, and it stops short to avoid a pedestrian," said Tom Magliozzi.

There's also the "Rick Shaw Wheelbarrow Race," named after Car Talk's transportation coordinator, the "John Bugsy Lawlor Free-Lunch," after the show's technical advisor who, according to Tom Magliozzi, "has never missed a documented free lunch in the history of Western civilization."

Ray Magliozzi adds that listeners can play the "Tappet Brothers Capital Depreciation Fund Coin Toss." The fund, for which Tom and Ray frequently solicit funds on their program, promises a "50 percent return of your money," said Ray Magliozzi. "That's of your money, not on your money." In keeping with this philosophy, winners of the "Tappet Brothers Capital Depreciation Fund Coin Toss" will get half of their money back.

The contest winner gets airfare for four to Boston, accommodations for the weekend, and "chauffeur service to the picnic in my '63 Dodge Dart convertible," said Tom Magliozzi. "If it starts."

Psych Major Makes Conference Presentation

Christopher Quarles of Miami, FL, a senior psychology major, recently presented an empirical study at the eighth annual Lehigh Valley Undergraduate Psychology Conference at Lafayette College.

His study, "Birth Order, Gender, and Hurricane Andrew," replicated some earlier work that examined the influence of birth order and gender on reactions to a power failure in New York City and an earthquake in California. Quarles found that his subjects were in the company of others during the hurricane and first borns were less anxious than were later borns. The finding is consistent with the hypothesis that first borns who affiliate during stress will be less anxious than later borns who affiliate during stress.

The research was done in collaboration with Dr. George Whitehead, professor and chair of the Psychology Department at SSU. Whitehead also chaired a paper session at the conference.

Ann Duncan Haffner, left, will co-host a Gala for the Gallery dinner party at her home, Beverly, outside Princess Anne with her daughter-in-law, Regina Haffner, right. All proceeds from the Gala, sponsored by the SSU Foundation, will help fund the new University Gallery.

Pair of Students To Study in Germany

Two Salisbury State students have received scholarships for one year of study at the University of Maryland University College campus in Schwabisch Gmund, Germany.

Patty Malesh and Amanda Miller, both SSU sophomores, will receive up to $2,500 each. This is the first time scholarships to the one-year-old Schwabisch Gmund campus have been offered to students at SSU and other University of Maryland System campuses.

"This is an unbelievable opportunity," said SSU modern languages professor and German Club advisor Klaudia Thompson. "Faculty are pulled from all over Europe and they're some of the best in their fields. They will even develop courses for you. It's very specialized."

Malesh is a philosophy major with a minor in German. She is the daughter of Margaret Malesh of Parkville and William Malesh of Perryville.

Miller is a political science major, but she plans to concentrate in international studies while in Germany. She is the daughter of Jerry and Joan Miller of Bethesda.

University College, which is one of 11 degree-granting institutions in the University of Maryland System, has offered courses overseas since 1949. Last year, UMUC offered courses in 23 countries on four continents. Schwabisch Gmund, located 33 miles east of Stuttgart, is the newest campus.

Berry Attends Slavic Conference

Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department recently attended the 31st annual meeting of the Southern Conference on Slavic Studies at Georgia State University in Atlanta where he participated in a roundtable on "Yugoslavia: Nationalism, Independence and Civil War.

He also served on the program committee and helped organize the roundtable on Yugoslavia, as well as a roundtable on the "Causes and Consequences of the Breakup of Czechoslovakia." Berry was responsible for organizing panels on "Postwar East European Society; Parties, Parliaments and Elections in the New Democracies in Eastern Europe; and Eastern Europe During World War I."

The Southern Conference is the oldest and the largest of the regional affiliates of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies. Next year's conference will be held in Norfolk, VA.

Vienna Promoted to Athletics Director

Dr. Michael Vienna has been promoted to director of athletics, effective immediately. Vienna, SSU's associate director of athletics since 1989, replaces Dr. William Lide, who resigned last month.

"We're pleased that Mike has accepted the offer to lead our athletics program," said Vice President of Administration Joe Gilbert. "He's done a magnificent job and been a valuable contributor to our success since joining the department. He's got outstanding rapport with coaches and student-athletes, he's well respected both within the department and outside of it, and we're certain that he will continue to maintain Salisbury State among the top NCAA Division III programs in the nation."

"I'm extremely pleased to have this opportunity and feel fortunate to be able to work in a strong, Division III program," said Vienna. "There's a talented and dedicated staff of coaches and administrators here who I've enjoyed working with and I look forward to continuing those relationships."

It was also announced that Dave Brown, director of campus recreation since 1988, has assumed additional duties. Brown will now also oversee all swimming pool operations and be responsible for the operation of all tennis facilities.

Polish History Articles Published by Berry

Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department recently had three articles, based on his research in 19th century Polish history, published as parts of major books.

His essay on Prince Adam Czartoryski, the Polish statesman who also served as foreign minister to Tsar Alexander I, is included in "Statesmen Who Changed the World." The book, published by Greenwood Press, is a biobibliographical dictionary of diplomacy which contains essays on more than 60 statesmen from the 15th century to the present, from Machiavelli to Gorbachev, whose actions have shaped the modern world.

"Eastern Europe and the West," a volume of selected papers from the Fourth World Congress for Soviet and East European Studies, held in Harrogate, England, contains Berry's article "Polish Diplomatic Activities in the Ottoman Empire, 1832-48: The Influence of the Hotel Lambert on Ottoman Policy." The volume was published by St. Martin's Press.

In addition Berry was invited to write an article for "Labyrinth of Nationalism, Complexities of Diplomacy," Slavica Publishers. The work is a series of essays written to honor the two foremost Eastern European historians in the United States, Charles and Barbara Jelavich of Indiana University. His essay is titled "The Hotel Lambert and French Foreign Policy in the Balkans 1840-1848." Berry was a student of the Jelaviches.

Marketing Chapter Wins Award Again

The American Marketing Association at Salisbury State was recently awarded the Outstanding Eastern Region Chapter title during the AMA's 15th annual International Collegiate Conference in New Orleans.

The award placed SSU in the top eight among 450 chapters nationally and internationally. It was the second year that the two-year-old SSU chapter has won the award.

"This award speaks very highly of our students," said Dr. Wayne Decker, chair of the Management and Marketing Department. "Winning this award once is impressive, but winning in consecutive years really underscores the ongoing quality of our students and our program."

Eleven SSU students traveled to New Orleans for the conference. They are: Laura Aumen, John Brannigan, Gary Broadwater, Tracy Candisky, Lori Hall, Aaron Obermyer, Missy Palmer, Tami Perron, Rob Ricker, Kara Towers and Keith Wehr.

The trip was sponsored by local businesses including Maryland National Bank, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury, the Book Rack (SSU's bookstore), Mid-Atlantic Sales and Marketing Institute, campus radio station WSUR, WOCQ-FM, WKHI-FM, April's Bridal and Formal Boutique, Bank of Delmar and Century 21-Emity Hanover Realty.

Additional funding was provided by the Office of Academic Affairs, the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and the Guerrieri University Center.

May 1993 Commencement Information

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m. on Saturday, May 29, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Admission will be by ticket only. All graduates are requested to form for the processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The commencement speaker will be Ambassador John W. McDonald, president of the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy in Washington, D.C.

3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.

5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

6. Caps, gowns and master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through The Book Rack beginning April 28. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours, Monday-Thursday, are 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. and Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 28, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items on or before 4 p.m. on Friday, May 28.

Tickets for graduation will be distributed by the Book Rack until May 17. Each student will be limited to six tickets each. If you do not need all six tickets please return the extras to the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Guests are requested to be seated by 9:45 a.m.

Students who pick up their cap and gown after May 17 will not be guaranteed six tickets for graduation.

7. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

8. Students will then be awarded their diploma individually. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage and, at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

9. During the recessional, graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in commencement must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 24. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

12. The Department of Nursing will hold its baccalaureate nursing convocation on May 28 at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC commissioning ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111, on Saturday, May 29, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through G, Gary Allan Gorman, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with G, Dustin Lee Gosewisch, through the letter O, Jennifer O'Shea, will report to Drs. Jack Wulff and Polly Stewart. When you enter the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled Flanders Room 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6. Wulff and Stewart will line you up alphabetically in the Flanders area. You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with letter P, Melody Pairo through the letter Z, will go to the left corridor after entering the main entrance of the Civic Center and will report to Drs. Jerome Miller and Carolyn Bowden. You are to line up alphabetically along the windows, facing the front of the building. You will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the side aisle.

16. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through M, Byron Patrick McCrae, will report to Drs. Arthur Delpaz and Augustine DiGiovanna at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with M, Kimberly Jane McCullough, through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Drs. Arlene White and Gerald St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill the section starting from the side aisle.

17. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the rear of the corridor facing toward the back of the building and report to Dr. Arthur Delpaz. You will line up according to Dr. Delpaz's direction and will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle.

18. Bachelor of Arts in Social Work (B.A.S.W.) candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seat via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

19. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S. and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to the faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to Dr. Norman Johnson. You will line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree and will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates will report to Dr. Robert Berry and line up alphabetically at his direction. You will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After you have walked across the stage, you are to return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

20. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional. (The Civic Center is air conditioned.)
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the president (and/or your faculty marshal).
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.
5. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

21. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long, hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Additional Ticket For Graduation Available

Beginning Wednesday, May 19, one additional graduation ticket will become available to those who signed up for extra tickets until the limited supply of unclaimed tickets lasts.

This additional ticket will be given on a first come, first served basis, including the following: your name must be on the sign-up sheet at the Guerrieri University Center information desk; you must come in person and present a valid SSU ID; and you must pick up the ticket by 10 p.m. Friday, May 28.

Credit Union Reminder On Loan Payments for 10-month Employees

Ten-month employees who use payroll deductions to pay off loans at the State Employees Credit Union of Maryland (SECU) need to send in loan payments during the summer when pay and deductions stop.

Loan payments should be sent directly to the Credit Union either in person at any SECU branch or by mailing them to SECU, 8503 LaSalle Road, Baltimore, MD 21286-5955.

For more information call the Credit Union at (410) 296-SECU or (800) TRY-SECU.

Computer Lab Hours

Computer lab hours for the week of May 23-29 are:
Fulton Hall Labs - Sunday, noon-midnight Monday, 8 a.m.-midnight Tuesday-Wednesday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m. Thursday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m. Friday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, closed
Devilbiss Lab (room 242) - Sunday-Saturday, closed
Blackwell WP Lab (room 010/015) Sunday-Saturday, closed auxiliary instruments such as cymbals, tambourine, temple blocks and triangle. Featured performers are Chris Reavis (Hebron), Mike Long (Boonsboro), Matt Willey (Milford, DE) and Jim Fornoff (Jarrettsville). Alumni Ted Nichols (1980) and Paul Cooper (1987) will join the ensemble for two of the larger works and each will perform and unaccompanied marimba solo. Scot Hawkins, staff accompanist, will assist on several selections.

Dr. Charles F. Smith, Jr., retired associate professor of music, an adjunct faculty member, is the conductor of the ensemble.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SUMMER 1993 VOL. IX NO. 31

SSU Selected as NASA Joint Venture Facility –Only One in State

Salisbury State has been selected as the only institution in Maryland to participate in the NASA Joint Venture Initiative (JOVE), allowing three faculty members the opportunity to study at NASA facilities to further their research.

The three-year program begins this summer, with faculty members spending up to 10 weeks at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility where they will have access to data from active space science missions. When they return to the University, electronic links will be established with the NASA facilities, allowing for continued joint research.

NASA has agreed to provide about $110,000 in equipment, summer stipends and travel costs to SSU, while the University has agreed to provide research time for the faculty members, consider curriculum development in the space sciences and conduct outreach to secondary and/or elementary schools about space science. Included in the award is $20,000 for student scholarships and undergraduates to work with the faculty at SSU.

"This joint venture is an excellent way to get the most out of our space program," said Congressman Wayne T. Gilchrest. "And it's a way to inspire not only University students but students all over the community about the importance of scientific research through the program's outreach efforts."

"This is a tremendous achievement for our University," said Dr. Phil Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology at SSU. "We are the only JOVE location in the state of Maryland, and it will provide our faculty and students an opportunity to work on the most current space-related research, with frontier information."

The three SSU faculty members are:

Dr. Steven Hetzler, a mathematician, who will work in collaboration with Dr. Alex Klimas at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, MD, will be developing a mathematical model of the solar wind and Earth's magnetosphere coupling; Dr. Andrew Pica, a physicist, who will collaborate with Dr. Susan Neff at the Goddard Space Flight Center, will be working with the ultraviolet imaging telescope; and Dr. John Tyvoll, a chemist, who will work in partnership with Dr. Arnold Torres at the Goddard Space Flight Center's Wallops Island facility, will be conducting upper atmosphere ozone analysis.

The goal of the JOVE program is to make the excitement, challenges and the research opportunities of NASA's space science missions available to a broader spectrum of colleges and universities while at the same time providing opportunities for outreach programs to grade schools and high schools in local communities.

The program is in its fifth year, and 21 universities including Salisbury State were selected this year to participate. There are already 53 universities participating in the program.

Campus Transportation Fleet Has Propane Powered Vehicles

The University is continuing its efforts toward maintaining an environmentally responsible campus by converting several gasoline-and battery-powered motor vehicles to liquid propane, a cleaner and safer fuel source.

Under a statewide experimental program sponsored by the Department of Transportation and the Department of the Environment, SSU has replaced 10 battery-powered golf carts with six Cushman propane-burning vehicles. Additionally, two vans, a car and a pickup truck have been retrofitted to burn propane, and two large trucks are scheduled to be converted this summer.

"The employees like them," said SSU's fleet coordinator Bill Bowen. They're quieter and start faster, and their performance is as good as the gasoline vehicles."

The vehicles are used by several departments at SSU including the physical plant, public safety, dining services, the campus post office, central stores and the escort service. They are driven both on and off campus.

"The National Energy Policy Act of 1992 has a provision that state fleets must use an alternative fuel source by 1996," said Rick Sheckells, manager of environmental resources for Maryland's Department of Transportation. "As a result, the governor has directed the state to mount an aggressive fuel alternative program."

Salisbury State is one of three state agencies currently testing alternative fuels and the only one using propane. The departments of Transportation and Energy are currently using compressed and liquid natural gas in their vehicles, Sheckells said.

SSU was asked to participate in the two-year testing program because of its reputation for success with the campus recycling and energy conservation programs.

Funding for the vehicle conversion at SSU—$18,585 in all—was supplied by the Maryland Energy Administration. The only cost to the University is the fuel itself.

"Salisbury State has a strong commitment to continue a leadership role in regard to conservation, environmental protection, personal safety and financial stewardship," said SSU's administrative services director, Richard Yobst. "Our participation is based on the premise that propane fuel will be a more efficient fuel source which will result in a reduction in fuel cost."

Propane burns cleaner than gasoline which means fewer oil changes and tune-ups and reduced labor cost for maintenance. Over the next two years, the University will be looking at the cost of operating the propane vehicles versus gasoline-powered ones.

"Sparkplugs on these vehicles get replaced every 60,000 miles and oil changes are recommended every 20,000 miles," Bowen said. "They'll probably never need a tune-up during the test period."

State and SSU officials will be comparing the amount of savings with the cost of converting the vehicles. "We're trying to find out if it's cheaper in the long run," Bowen said. "We already know it's cleaner."

Propane also is a safer fuel source because of a higher point of ignition.

Campus is awash with color during the summer.

Campus Facilities Ranked No. 1 3rd Straight Year

If you think the campus has been looking good lately, you're right. And you're not the only one who has noticed.

For the third year in a row, a report by the Maryland Department of General Services awarded SSU its highest ranking among college and university campuses in the University of Maryland System.

Each year, an inspector from General Services visits the 13 campus in the System, evaluating the facility itself, its programs for preventative maintenance, housekeeping, groundskeeping, management, its cost-effectiveness: "every aspect of the facility, from soup to nuts," according to SSU's vice president of administration, Joseph K. Gilbert. And for yet another year, SSU has finished ahead of the rest.

In fact, the University has held onto the title despite the fact it ranks last in state funding—and despite this year's rather severe budget cuts.

Gilbert gives credit for the high marks to the people involved: the students and other staff the University employs, who take pride in their work; the management team, each of whom is academically credentialed and dedicated to SSU's high standards; and to SSU's president, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, who is, in his own words, "convinced that when you give students an atmosphere that is pleasant and orderly it goes quite far in helping them to study and be serious about what they are here for."

While they are proud to be leading the state, both Gilbert and Bellavance point out that the notoriety has not been their goal. "We like to have awards," Gilbert said, "and we appreciate them; but we're working toward a higher, more idealistic goal. We strongly believe that an enlightened education institution ought to be able to manage itself well." As Bellavance puts it, "the facility should reflect the quality of the institution.

Maintaining their own high standards has been toughest this year. When the state cut back on the funding for its colleges and universities, all SSU departments felt the pinch, not just the physical plant. Like everyone else on campus, Gilbert and his staff worked hard to hold onto the improvements they had made in recent years. In some ways, the plan already in place has paid off. Gilbert reports that they are able to replace campus fixtures on a piecemeal, rather than a wholesale basis.

"Eventually, we will be able to stabilize the prices students pay," he said. "In housing, for example, we won't have to replace boilers or aluminum windows: we'll be maintaining what we are buying now."

Another key ingredient to SSU's success, according to Gilbert, has been its policy of hiring students, rather than contracting for campus services. Not only does this inspire students to take pride in the campus, but it can give them the experience they need in beginning their careers. One student, who was involved in the SSU recycling project, now works for a major recycling company, BFA. Others, who received their training in the food services and groundskeeping departments, have gone on to jobs in restaurant and landscaping businesses.

But the students aren't the only ones enjoying the campus. "People stroll the campus as if it's a park," said Gilbert. Bellavance is also pleased to see the community adopt the campus as their own.

All of which means more to both men than do accolades from a government agency.

"Along the way," Gilbert said, "all we did was what was correct and right. That was sometimes harder, but we have had good people on the job. As a result, the campus has blossomed."

Geography Department Rank's Among Nation's Best

It may be one of Salisbury State University's best kept secrets; but not for long.

The geography program at SSU has long been respected for the successful graduates it produces. And a new national study ranks the department in the nation's top 20.

A new type of survey of geography programs that values teaching and community involvement over graduate research ranks SSU's program 14th in terms of overall effectiveness in serving undergraduate students. The survey was conducted by the State University of New York College at Geneseo.

"This is a student-oriented department," said its chair, Dr. Calvin R. Thomas. "The faculty are required and encouraged to do scholarly activities, but students' needs come first. Students get a great deal of individual attention here."

That attention has won the small department the gratitude of its students; and it has won rewards for the students themselves. Seven of this year's graduates have not only been accepted to prestigious graduate programs, but will receive a remission of their tuition and a stipend to help support their studies. These seven are following in a long-standing SSU tradition of success.

Although they tend to finish the program with a firm grasp of their future, most SSU geography students start their college careers without knowing exactly what they want. Dr. Robert A. Rosing who chaired the Geography Department for 10 years, until 1985, explains that the connection is usually made in the classroom.

"It's very unusual that we get freshmen (geography majors). They're very often attracted by the courses or the teachers." Faculty members take time to talk to students about the discipline and about the career opportunities that can come with a degree in geography. It's part of what Thomas calls "meeting students' needs."

Dr. Brent Skeeter is one faculty member who has learned this lesson from two perspectives: he is a graduate of the SSU Geography Department who has returned to teach.

When he left for graduate school, Skeeter found that SSU had met his needs—even better than he had expected.

"There is a course taught to undergraduates here, Research and Writing. Most students don't get that until graduate school. When I started grad school, I had sort of an inferiority complex. I assumed that coming from a smaller school would be a disadvantage. What I found was that I was much better prepared to begin research.

"I found that I had an advantage over other students because of the attention I received at SSU. At larger schools, graduate programs come first.

In fact, one gratifying aspect of this national ranking is the support it lends to the philosophy that has long guided SSU's Geography Department: the importance of putting students first.

The American Association of Geography (AAG) tends to put greater emphasis on research and on graduate programs. AAG surveys of the nation's programs are therefore dominated by large universities with large graduate student populations.

While advanced research is important to future geography study, as Rosing points out, the programs with high AAG ranking very often have embarrassingly small numbers of undergraduate students.

The results of the Geneseo survey, in which SSU's geography program also receives high marks for attracting undergraduates to geography courses and for maintaining the presence of geography study on campus, have provided a boost for the faculty. Said Thomas, "It's nice to have a broader recognition that we are doing some things that benefit students." Thomas points out, the department's student orientation is "a continuation of a philosophy established and nurtured" over the past 35 years by a former department chair, Eugene D. Farace.

Farace has been a member of the SSU geography faculty since its earliest days. When he arrived in the '50s, in fact, he was a one-man department. He describes the department's philosophy in terms of a long-standing commitment. "We are here," he said, "to serve undergraduates. This is our primary occupation."

Farace adds that this focus has served geography students well. "They get a good solid foundation," he said. "Students get a good background for jobs in the field and for graduate study."

Among the things the department does for students has been the development of internship programs with planning commissions and soil conservation service offices in the area. This involvement in the community may ultimately help SSU spread the word that a degree in geography may have career benefits those outside the field would not otherwise see. "Parents' recollections of their geography lessons are usually uninspiring," Rosing said. "They may not realize the job possibilities that exist. There is a better balance of jobs to people in geography than in almost any other field."

Rosing says that SSU geography grads have gone on to careers in defense mapping and intelligence, and in regional and urban planning, as well as in research and teaching.

When Brent Skeeter left SSU 10 years ago, he was certain he was headed for a career in research. Then, when an opening on the SSU faculty opened up, he found it was difficult to choose between teaching and research.

Like others in this small department, Skeeter found the rewards of teaching grow each day.

"At the end of graduate school, I was doing a lot of research, getting a lot of work published. Many larger schools tend to neglect teaching, it's not as easy to measure. You can count the number of articles someone has published.

"Teaching is less tangible, more personal. Today, I find that I am more satisfied doing this than I thought I would be. You can sort of look yourself in the mirror and feel that you've accomplished something."

Spoken like a true member of the SSU Geography Department.

Karen Patterson

Henson Science School Student Is NASA Researcher

The environment is a hot topic on college campuses—but at least one University student has already begun to make a significant contribution.

After Karen Patterson graduated in May, she returned to her position with a team of research scientists working at NASA. Patterson was a student in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology and a Henson Scholar.

Her role in the project began last summer. The University of Maryland Remote Sensing of the Ocean program hopes to find the cause of an atmospheric anomaly. In this country, tropospheric ozone, or "smog," is considered an environmental consequence of the cars we drive. But there are not enough cars to explain the seasonal occurrence of smog that scientists find in the atmosphere over southern Africa. Since tropospheric ozone can damage agricultural crops, it has become important to find the source.

"My part of the program," Patterson said, "was to automate and improve upon the techniques being used to analyze the air movement patterns with respect to fires and high ozone levels over southern Africa." In addition, she improved the method for graphic display of the data in preparation for the TRACE-A (Transport and Atmospheric Chemistry Experiment—Atlantic) experiment the scientists conducted earlier this fall.

With Patterson's help, the team is confirming its theory that fires set in southern Africa to control overgrowth of vegetation, to clear land and as part of tribal rituals, are generating the smog.

"Karen did excellent, vital work which is being used in our NASA aircraft mission and which eventually will be published," said Dr. Anne Thompson, the NASA chemist who supervised the study.

This report came as no surprise to those at SSU who recommended Patterson for the project. She was one of only four students throughout the U.S. selected to participate in the program and the first ever from SSU.

"She's one of the best students we have," beamed Dr. Phillip D. Creighton, dean of the Henson School. "Karen takes the extra step all the time.

"She has a quiet assurance with an excellent mind and a clear way of thinking."

Dr. Robert A. Rosing of the SSU geography faculty agreed: "Students like Karen bring out the best in our department: blending the concept courses with the methodology courses," the theoretical with the practical.

For her part, Patterson modestly credits her professors at SSU with preparing her for the NASA program challenge. At SSU she has grown from a dual math/geography major interested in some day teaching high school to a research assistant capable of holding her own in a team of highly educated scientists and graduate students.

And Thompson hopes to see more of Karen Patterson—and other qualified SSU students. If the program is awarded the necessary grant money, Patterson will delay graduate school for a semester to return to the team.

In the meantime, Thompson has made plans to visit SSU to speak to Henson School students about the opportunities available to the next Karen Patterson.

Campus Achieves Arboretum Status From National Organization

The gardens on campus not only make the grounds more attractive, but have an educational benefit as well. And having achieved arboretum status, they have earned a new feather for SSU's cap.

The University is now an institutional member of the American Association of Botanical Gardens and Arboreta (AABGA), an organization dedicated to education, display and research in horticulture.

SSU's director of horticulture, Leslie F. Lutz, Jr., has been working toward this goal since he arrived on campus more than seven years ago. He and his staff continually expand the University's plant collection and keep records of it all. A map, designed to guide a walking tour of what Lutz calls the "significant" plants on campus, is also in the works.

The educational and research value of the arboretum has benefits not only for SSU, but for other horticultural institutions, including Longwood Gardens and the U.S. Botanical Gardens, with whom Lutz shares his findings. Lutz points out that AABGA membership will further enhance the University's status in the field.

According to AABGA's executive director, Susan H. Lathrop, SSU is at the fore of a growing trend among universities who recognize importance of their "green space" to their communities. Lathrop estimates that 25 percent of the AABGA's institutional members are university gardens, the fastest growing group of members. "The schools see themselves as having an important role," she said. "The gardens are an amenity for the community, as well as for the students."

Lutz currently offers plant tours of the campus each semester, for the growing number of students interested in horticulture and for area garden clubs.

Grants Awarded to Faculty For Scholarly Research

Each year the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research awards summer stipends and small research grants to faculty to encourage and support their research and other scholarly endeavors. This year a total of 18 proposals were submitted and 14 funded for a total amount of $18,354.

"We are especially grateful to Dr. K. Nelson Butler (vice president of academic affairs) who added $3,000 to our funds to allow us to support three additional proposals," said Dr. Karin Johnson, director of grants and sponsored research.

"All of the proposals were impressive this year making the decision-making process a difficult one for the Grants and Sponsored Research Advisory Committee," added Johnson. The committee included Dr. Steven Hetzler from the Henson School of Science and Technology, Dr. Memo Diriker from the Perdue School of Business, Dr. Adeline Tryon from the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Ellen Whitford from the School of Education and Professional Studies and Dr. Shielda Rodgers from the School of Nursing and Health Sciences.

"These individuals spent a great deal of time reviewing proposals and deserve much credit for their careful, objective reviews," said Johnson.

Faculty from the Fulton School receiving grants are: Sylvia Bradley and Dr. Ray Thompson, Department of History, $1,250, research, "Preparation of Grant for External Funding for Research Center DHAC Finding Aids Compilation" Dr. Cyril K. Daddieh, Department of Political Science, $1,200, stipend, "Donor Perceptions of Regional Integration in Africa"; Dr. Thomas Erskine and Jim Welsh, Department of English, $1,200, stipend, "Annotated Bibliography of Literature and Film"; Dr. James Hatley, Department of Philosophy, $1,200, stipend, "Justifying Literary Testimonies of Victimization"; Dr. Janet S. Horne, Department of Communication Arts, $1,200, stipend, "Conversation, Contingency, and Civil Society: The Rhetoric of Richard Rorty"; Dr. William C. Horne, Department of English, $1,200, stipend, "British Views of American Wilderness 1750-1825"; Dr. Adeline Tryon, Department of Psychology, $1,500, research, "Maternal Interaction With Popular Versus Aggressive Sons"; and Dr. Andrew Hepburn, Department of Communication Arts, $1,200, stipend, "Nature and Human Nature in the Mime of Jaques Lecog."

Faculty members from the Perdue School receiving grants are: Dr. Pamela Alreck, $1,200, stipend, "Interaction Style and Sales Effectiveness"; Dr. David Laband, $1,200, stipend, "The Professional Impact of Papers Supported by National Science Foundation Funding"; and Dr. H.V. Ramakrishana, $1,200, stipend, "Telecommunicating Initiation Decision: Validation of a Theoretical Model."

Others receiving grants were: Dr. Edna Quinn, School of Nursing and Health Sciences, $1,200, stipend, "Feasibility Study/Needs Assessment for a Nursing Center in Salisbury"; Dr. Carla N. Schultes, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science in the Henson School, $1,200, stipend, "A Needs Assessment for the Encouragement of Girls in Mathematics on the Eastern Shore of Maryland"; and Tom Dillon, Perdue School, and Thea McDowell, School of Nursing and Health Sciences, $2,404, research, "Spoken Language Interaction: Effects of Vocabulary Size on Nursing Performance and Acceptance."

Nursing Program Aimed at Those Seeking Career Change

It's not uncommon today for people to make dramatic career changes in midlife—leaving white collar jobs for farming, for instance. Sometimes the need to make a change is so strong that people are willing to go back to school to get the necessary preparation.

Faculty at Salisbury State's School of Nursing and Health Sciences noticed an increase in such students. "We saw people going back to college classes because they very much wanted to become nurses," said the school's dean, Dr. Karen Badros. SSU completed a needs assessment of area hospitals and medical facilities and decided it was time for an innovative response to the needs of these students. The master's degree program second degree track, was designed to allow individuals who want to make a career change into nursing to do so at an accelerated pace. The program admitted its first class last fall. Badros said the three-year, full-time program is "innovative, such programs are still unusual."

Ten students recently completed their second year and another 20 completed their first. The majority of students are in their 30s and come from a variety of backgrounds. These include other helping professions like social work or people oriented fields such as psychology and sociology. Others have an undergraduate degree in business, health administration or arts and languages. Some prospective students even have their doctorates in other fields. Interest in the program is growing as applicants from out of state and overseas are contacting the Nursing Department.

They return to school for many reasons, looking for practical job skills or fulfilling a long felt ambition. "More than one has said to me, 'I've always wanted to be a nurse, but something got in the way,'" said Badros.

The undergraduate component of the program, the first two semesters, consists of totally new courses designed for the adult learner. Third and fourth semesters mix undergraduate and graduate classes. Clinical courses are carried out in all three years. Graduate courses are taken with students in the regular master's program.

Some students try to keep their jobs, but this can be rough said Badros. Maureen McAllister said, "It demands your full attention. There is a lot of material compressed in the classes and you have got to synthesize it between classes.

The intensity of the program has caused the fist-year students to become a cohesive, close group. "They have formed many friendships," said Badros.

"The diversity of backgrounds adds to the flavor of the class," said Badros. The past experience of the older students makes them quick studies. "They know how to approach learning. If you hint at an extra reading, they gobble it up."

Badros noted that the second degree students are highly motivated and have more skills developed in life than the typical nursing student. "When they are learning how to start an I.V., for instance, they want to know the details. They are more precise and detail oriented." Mary Kane, professor of nursing, pointed out that older students already have the resources to handle situations in the clinical setting that might stress out a younger nursing student. For example, "when a psychiatric patient broke down a door and ran away, the second degree students reacted quickly and appropriately to the situation."

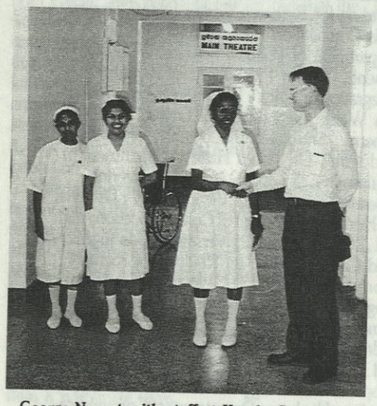
McAllister feels SSU nursing professors are responsive to feedback. "The professors are wonderful. They see us as junior peers. There is a mutuality, a responsiveness back and forth."

To be accepted into the program, students must first apply to the University for graduate study. Once approved, they can apply to the nursing program. Requirements include an undergraduate grade point average of 2.75. A written statement of career goals must accompany the admission request. Students must have taken or demonstrate content mastery in the undergraduate areas of anatomy and physiology, statistics and microbiology.

"If you are considering the program, I recommend contacting us well in advance," said Badros. "We are accepting applications for fall of '94."

Anyone wishing further information should contact the School of Nursing and Health Sciences at (410) 543-6401.

Nursing Students Find World of Differences in Sri Lanka



George Nepert with staff at Kandy General Hospital, Sri Lanka.

Traveling halfway around the world to the tropical teak forests, mountains and tea plantations of Sri Lanka may sound like an exotic vacation, but for a group from the University's Nursing Department it was an educational and eye-opening experience.

For almost two weeks in January, the SSU group of five was allowed to teach and observe at the 1,600-bed teaching hospital Kandy General at the invitation of hospital director Dr. A.M.L. Beligaswatte.

Heading the group was SSU nursing professor Dr. Edna Quinn who was invited to Sri Lanka by a British friend with the purpose of helping upgrade nursing care. In response to pretrip publicity, SSU nursing students Lisa Freyre and George Nepert, as well as registered nurses Norkie Cosgrove of Peninsula Regional Medical Center and Fay Rogner of Dorchester General Hospital (also a SSU graduate nursing student), decided to join Quinn on the trip.

What they discovered made them appreciate what is taken for granted at most American hospitals. "They had very limited supplies," said Quinn. "Patients have to bring their own soap and sheets when they check into the hospital. The doctors are well trained, but the hospital would be a lot better if it only had more resources available."

Nepert, who observed in Kandy General's intensive care unit, noticed that supplies designed to be disposable are reused whenever possible.

Rogner, a neonatal nurse, found a similar shortage of equipment during her stint in Kandy General's pediatric unit. Currently, there is no equipment for testing the glucose level of newborns for hypoglycemia and there is only one special set of lights used for jaundiced babies.

Quinn was amazed to find that practically all babies are born either by Caesarean section or induced labor. "With almost 10,000 births a year at the hospital, they schedule the deliveries," she said. "There are very few spontaneous deliveries."

Health officials in Sri Lanka encourage family planning and are having some success. Many women choose sterilization over other methods, she said.

The SSU group also had the opportunity to see patients with diseases rarely seen in this country, such as leprosy and typhoid fever. Cosgrove saw a seven-year-old child having surgery for a club foot, a common birth defect that is normally corrected in infancy in this country. However, the problem is often neglected for several years in Sri Lanka, in part, because the parents have problems arranging transportation to the hospital.

Freyre, who was given the opportunity to interview nursing students at the hospital, was surprised to find they did not own textbooks. "The students have to write everything down in order to study for exams," she said. "And the tutors have to teach all subjects—they have no specialists."

The student nurses were so intrigued by Freyre's description of Salisbury State's nursing program that they asked her to find them pen pals in order to learn more about American nursing.

In general, the staff was very receptive and open-minded toward the American visitors, according to Quinn. "The director of the hospital and nursing administrators are very forward-looking and believe in the possibility of change," she said.

Because the visit was so successful, Quinn and the others are already planning another trip to Kandy General in 1994, but they would like to find sponsors. Participants in the January trip had to pay their own plane fare, plus hotel costs during a three-day layover in the capital city Columbo (about $1,200 apiece). Housing in Kandy and transportation within Sri Lanka were provided by Sri Lanka's Ministry of Health.

To help sponsor the next trip or to contribute to a fund for supplies and equipment for Kandy General, call Quinn at 543-6420 or 742-7963.

Campaign Underway To Build SSU Alumni House

The SSU Alumni Association recently announced a campaign to build an Alumni House on recently acquired property on Camden Ave. opposite Holloway Hall.

The red brick Georgian-style home will be funded entirely through private contributions from SSU alumni. Architecturally it will bear a resemblance to Holloway Hall while at the same time blending comfortably into the surrounding residential area. Alumni Association representatives anticipate construction to begin in the summer with a fall 1994 opening planned.

"The project has been in the planning stages for over two years," said Alumni Association president Paul Rendine. "We are thrilled that construction is so imminent and fully anticipate alumni support to meet our fund-raising goal."

The SSU Foundation will finance the project initially, allowing construction to begin as early as this summer. After reaching the campaign goal, the Alumni Association will then reimburse the Foundation for its start-up contributions.

The Alumni House will be home to the administrative offices of the Alumni Relations Office as well as the Foundation staff. The facility will allow for myriad alumni-related events to take place in the home and on the grounds. Class reunions, socials, weddings, teas, committee meetings and other types of alumni activities will be held in the new facility.

"It's a maroon-and-gold (school colors) letter day for the SSU Alumni Association," said Anne Miller, vice president of the association which numbers over 12,500 members. "The Alumni House will provide the Alumni Association with a much more prominent place on campus in addition to the many opportunities for reuniting past graduates. Graduates from the Salisbury Normal School to Salisbury State Teachers College to Salisbury State College to Salisbury State University all now have a place on campus to call home. I hope and trust the rest of the alumni share my excitement over this project."

While the SSU Alumni House Campaign will have a great deal of visibility for the Alumni Association, the Annual Fund drive soliciting unrestricted funds will continue as in past years. Monies raised in the Annual Fund go toward scholarships and other on-going alumni activities.

For more information on the SSU Alumni House Campaign, please call the SSU Office of Alumni Relations at (410) 543-6042.

Attackman Jason Coffman, seen here scoring against Washington College, became the first freshman to earn Division III first- team all-America honors in three years. Coffman led the Sea Gulls in goals, 51, and assists, 38.

1992-93 SSU Sports Wrap-up: By the Numbers, One Through 10

One. The position held in the national weekly poll by the men's lacrosse team throughout the '93 season. SSU completed its second undefeated regular season in the last three years and made its fifth straight trip to the NCAA Tournament. The Gulls finished 13-1 for the year.

Two. Basketball guard Dameon Ross' final ranking in the national Division III scoring race. The junior finished with a 28.2 points/game average for the 18-8 Sea Gulls, who also topped Division III in team scoring at 98.1 ppg.

Three. The number of women's tennis singles championships won by the Sea Gulls at the '92 conference tournament. Nikki Lee won the number four singles crown, Kris Dodson, 12-1 for the year, won at number five and Kathy Castelli won the number six flight.

Four. Consecutive team MVP awards and all-conference honors won by senior cross country standout Tim Smith. He was SSU's top finisher in 37 of 40 career races.

Five. The number of consecutive Eastern States Athletic Conference men's tennis championships won by the Sea Gulls. SSU dominated the '93 conference tournament by winning all six singles titles and the three doubles crowns. Senior Ken Soliday was named the ESAC Player-of-the-Year for the second straight season.

Six. The record-number of SSU men's and women's track and field qualifiers for the NCAA Outdoor Championship. Tracy Tyler and Kirsten Owings represented the women's squad, while Sam Yurko, Jaime Rallo, Jason Anderson and Tony McCray qualified for the men.

Seven. The number of offensive records broken by last season's football team. Among these, QB Len Annetta set records for touchdown passes in a game (4), most attempts (56) and most completions (30). WR Charlie Whalen set new records for receptions in a game (12) and receptions in a season (63).

Eight. The men's soccer team's unbeaten string that closed out the '92 campaign. SSU finished 13-2-1 overall while also setting eight new team and individual records, including most wins in a season, best winning percentage, most goals scored in a season and longest win streak.

Nine. The field hockey team made its ninth straight trip to the NCAA Tournament last fall. SSU finished 12-7-1 and advanced to the national semifinals for the fourth time in school history.

Ten. The school-record for goals in a game set by women's lacrosse player Flossy Owens in a 23-11 win against St. Mary's. Owens also went on to break the single-season record by scoring 49 goals for the year. SSU finished 5-7.

Campus Habitat Chapter Embarks on Ambitious Fund Drive

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is embarking on an ambitious project which the organization hopes will be supported by the entire University community: raising $34,000 through individual contributions to finance the building of a home for a needy family.

If the fund drive is successful construction of the house would begin this fall and be completed within a year. In addition to financial contributions, the newly formed campus Habitat chapter hopes students, faculty and staff will actually build the house. According to Habitat officials no other college or university has both secured funding and built a Habitat home within a year. Salisbury State would be the first.

The genesis of the idea occurred while members of the campus Habitat chapter spent a week in Louisiana in January repairing homes destroyed by Hurricane Andrew.

"Realizing the great need Salisbury has for affordable housing for lower income families, and witnessing in Louisiana and in Salisbury the effectiveness of the Habitat for Humanity program, we felt the University sponsorship of a Habitat home would be a wonderful project," said Richard Yobst, director of administrative services and advisor to the campus Habitat group.

"If the University community can rally around this project," said Yobst, "it will send a signal to the broader Salisbury community that we are vitally interested and an integral part of achieving solutions to the housing problems in the region."

During the fund-raising drive, students, faculty and staff will be asked to contribute $5, $10 or $25 to the project. A $5 contribution by each member of the University community will achieve the $34,000 goal.

The project has been endorsed by Habitat on Maryland's Eastern Shore, the local affiliate of Habitat for Humanity, International. "We are so grateful for the enthusiastic support of Salisbury State University," said Dr. Tony Whall, Habitat vice president and SSU professor of English. "Our goal is to build seven homes in 1993—an enormous undertaking for a Habitat affiliate that's been averaging three a year for the past four

Students Spend Break Hammering for Habitat

What to do over the month-long semester break at Salisbury State isn't always an easy decision for some students. While some may opt for ski vacations or sign up for mini-mester courses at the University, this year one small group decided to work for Habitat For Humanity in hurricane-ravaged Louisiana.

"Instead of sitting around the house watching TV, I thought I'd go down and help," said Marc Moyer, a SSU senior from Gaithersburg.

Helping victims of Hurricane Andrew was nothing new for SSU students. Since last September, members of the Residence Hall Association have held bake sales and other fund-raising events to help the people of Homestead, FL.

Likewise, students have volunteered their time to Habitat in the Salisbury area for the past several years. The trip to Louisiana, however, was their first outside of the immediate area.

Shortly before the Christmas break, SSU's administrative services director and advisor to the campus Habitat group, Richard Yobst, put in a call to Pamela Rosen, president of the student Habitat chapter, and asked her to get a group together for the trip. Within a few days, Rosen had recruited eight students, plus three employees of the Call Center where Rosen works part time.

Although Yobst's intention was to take the group to Florida where all of the campus donations had been sent, Habitat International said their help was greatly needed in the New Iberia, LA, area instead.

The group set out on the trip in an SSU van pulling a rented trailer full of the food and other provisions they would need during their week's stay. Food and cash donations were provided by University Dining Services, McDonald's, Pepsi, Lankford-Sysco, the Call Center and the SSU Foundation. Driving straight through to New Orleans, the SSU group stayed one night at Tulane University before setting out for New Iberia.

The area in which they would live and work for the next week was in a poor, rural area of the state in the heart of Cajun country. At first glance, the area appeared to have been completely devastated by the hurricane, but the group soon discovered that the crude shacks in which some people were living was the way life had always been for them.

"I've never seen such poverty like I did in Louisiana. It was rough," said Rosen. "It was beautiful out there, though, and the people where really friendly."

On the first day, the group worked on repairs to a convent which was being converted into dormitory space for volunteers. The remaining four days were spent working on a three-bedroom house. With the help of four Canadian carpenters, they completed the foundation, floor, framing, roof, siding, insulation and exterior doors and windows.

"I've worked for Habitat in Salisbury a few times on weekends, but I never got to see the end product," said Moyer. "It was more satisfying in Louisiana because you could see the work in progress. And after five days, you knew you had really worked."

They slept at night in an old one-room schoolhouse on Red Cross cots and shared one shower, but the Salisbury group, who started out mostly as strangers, soon developed a strong bond in spite of (or maybe because of) these conditions. "I only knew two of the girls on the trip. The rest were strangers," said Moyer. "But we became good friends by the end of the week and we still hang out."

Moyer said the group also became friends with the Canadian carpenters who volunteered during the month when they usually have no work at home. Some from the SSU group are planning a trip to Canada this summer to see them, he said.

Back home, the student Habitat chapter is now embarking on another project—to raise $34,000 to build a Habitat house in Salisbury. If successful, construction of the house would begin in the fall.

Four SSU Graduates Share Vet School Experience

Dr. Terry Wattay and patient

His kiss is cold, wet. She smiles and scratches his nose. Ben has known Dr. Terry Wattay all his life and today, even though she's about to give him another shot, he is happy to see her. But then, puppies are like that.

"Ben" is a golden retriever and one of Wattay's happier patients. Wattay is one of several area veterinarians who were raised on the Eastern Shore, attended college here and have returned to the area to begin their practice. They all agreed that Salisbury State provided them the perfect situation: excellent preparation right here at home for the highly competitive world of veterinary school.

"Salisbury State did me well," Wattay said. "In my first year of veterinary school (at the University of Pennsylvania) there were some classes I didn't have to take, because I had taken them at SSU. I don't know how the other students managed, who did have to take them."

The pre-veterinary program is just one of the programs in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology at SSU that prepares students to go on in the health professions. Dr. Ellen Lawler, an associate professor of biology, is a member of the School's Pre-Health Professional Committee and is responsible for helping pre-veterinary students complete the requirements for veterinary school.

As Lawler points out, getting in isn't easy. "There is a lot of competition to get into vet schools," she said. "There are fewer of them than there are medical schools, for one thing. A student has to have good grades and experience."

While the students have to work for their own grades, Lawler can help them with the second qualification: experience. The program encourages internships and many SSU students earn credit working for area veterinarians, at the Salisbury Zoo or at the University of Maryland's Animal Research Center in Salisbury. And, as with other SSU internships, good work often turns the intern into an employee.

Like Wattay, Dr. Alfred Rayne returned not only to the Shore, but to the practice where he had worked while a student at SSU. But his work at the Ocean City Animal Hospital is a little different. Rayne grew up on a farm and has always been around horses. Today, in addition to caring for small companion animals, he does much of his veterinary work at Delmarva Downs, where he examines and treats the standardbred horses.

Rayne still keeps in touch with one of his SSU classmates. He and Dr. Daryl Layfield-Insley met in a pretty unlikely place: scuba-diving class. They went on from SSU to attend the Virginia Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and are both veterinarians now.

The practical experience Insley gained through SSU's cooperative program with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore continues to serve him today, he said. "That program gave me exposure to veterinary practice," he noted.

When he thinks back, Insley says that he knew even as early as elementary school that he wanted to be a veterinarian. But when he finished veterinary school, he didn't know where he wanted to go into practice. A job offer from Salisbury Animal Hospital has brought him home to his grandparents' farm in Princess Anne. And he often sees old friends and former classmates in the course of a work day.

Rayne sees another of their SSU alumni friends on a more regular basis. Dr. Will Watson, a veterinarian at the Ocean City Animal Hospital, received his bachelor's degree at SSU and went on to the same veterinary school as Rayne and Insley. Like Wattay, Watson was able to skip some first year courses, thanks to the foundation he built for himself at SSU.

"The biology courses were probably the biggest help to me," he recalled. "The way they were taught prepared me for vet school. And I had lots of one-on-one time with my professors at SSU; they were always available to give me guidance."

While all four veterinarians feel fortunate to have been able to come home to set up shop, they also note that it is probably beneficial to their respective employers to have a home-grown staff.

"I know the way people think and do things here," said Insley. "And they sure didn't have to sell me on living here."

Guerrieri Scholars Represent Many Academic Disciplines

For the first time since Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City endowed Salisbury State University with a $1 million scholarship fund, there are four Guerrieri Scholars in each class—freshman through senior—at the University.

Also for the first time, 10 of the 16 Guerrieri Scholars met their benefactor at a recent luncheon in the Guerrieri University Center at SSU.

"I came to the luncheon because I want Mr. Guerrieri to know of my extreme appreciation for my scholarship," said Melissa Hetteroth, a junior from Felton, DE, majoring in communication arts and elementary education.

"I felt really honored that my academic efforts were recognized," said Leigh Ann Tull, a Guerrieri Scholar and a junior mathematics/secondary education major from Seaford, DE. "The scholarship helped me out financially, too. Now I won't be paying off a college loan for the next 20 years."

The Guerrieri Scholarships are unusual because they are not limited to one area of study, according to Robert Gearhart, director of institutional advancement at SSU. The Guerrieris wanted the aid to go where it was most needed.

"It's the largest scholarship program at Salisbury State that's open to students in all five schools at the University," Gearhart said. "The gift has allowed us to provide more academic scholarships to the brightest and best students in every discipline."

Alan Guerrieri is president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms, Inc., a privately owned poultry corporation.

Patti Guerrieri, who is a Salisbury State alumna, met her husband in the early 1950s while she was still a student. After their marriage they continued to live in Salisbury and three of their five children attended the Salisbury State Campus Elementary School.

"I really enjoyed meeting the scholarship recipients and look forward to future get-togethers," Alan Guerrieri said. "Currently, Showell Farms is working with the University's Center for Personal and Professional Development to help identify students and recent graduates for possible internships and careers at Showell."

Minimum requirements for consideration for a Guerrieri Scholarship are a 3.5 grade point average and a score of 1150 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Scholarships range from $1,000 to $2,000 per year and do not exceed four years. Recipients must maintain a 3.3 grade point average for continuation.

Vietnam War Conference Attracts Scholars, Historians, Writers

American poet Bruce Weigl and Vietnamese poet Pham Tien Duat renew acquaintances during SSU Vietnam War conference.

U.S. military involvement in Vietnam may have ended two decades ago, but interest in the war seems to be stronger than ever. This interest was evident at Salisbury State University November 18-21 when some of the country's most outstanding scholars on the war gathered for "Remembering Tet, 1968: An Interdisciplinary Conference on the Vietnam War."

What started in 1990 as an idea for a small one-day conference turned into a four-day event attended by more than 100 writers, researchers and scholars, as well as a handful of Vietnam veterans. Certain events during the conference which were open to the public attracted crowds as large as 350.

"We really were overwhelmed," said SSU political science professor Dr. Harry Basehart, one of the conference organizers. "The interest and attendance far exceeded our expectations."

Probably the highlight of the conference was a joint poetry reading by Vietnamese poet Pham Tien Duat and American poet and Vietnam War veteran Bruce Weigl.

Duat, currently the editor of Van Nghe (Art and Literature) magazine, wrote about the war from the perspective of the common soldier in the North Vietnamese Army. His poems and essays written from the front were published to great acclaim in North Vietnam and he remains one of his country's most popular figures.

Like Duat, Weigl writes poetry based on his experience in Vietnam. During the SSU conference, he read from his book Song of Napalm, a collection of his Vietnam poems. Currently he teaches in the writing program at Pennsylvania State University and is on the faculty at Warren Wilson College.

"The poetry reading certainly was the most dramatic part of the conference because it brought the two sides in the war together," Basehart said.

Other speakers at the conference brought a depth of personal experience and scholarship from both sides of the conflict. R.W. Apple, Jr., currently the Washington, D.C. bureau chief for The New York Times, was a war reporter in Vietnam from 1965 to 1968. Bui Diem, South Vietnam's ambassador to the United States from 1967 to 1972, currently is associated with the Pacific Basin Research Institute and the author of In the Jaws of History.

Basehart said he was probably most impressed by the military historians who took part in the conference. "They were very candid in their accounts of the war," he said. "Some people at the conference thought they might present an official Defense Department position, but they seemed to be very interested in accurately reporting what happened."

Since the conference ended, Basehart said he has heard from many of the participants who are eager to hold some sort of follow-up in the future. There is a very good possibility of that happening, he said. With the United States still refusing to normalize relations with Vietnam and the POW/MIA issue still unresolved, the Vietnam War continues to be interesting for both scholars and average American citizens.

University Hires Highest Percentage of Student Workers in State

What do a gardener and a computer whiz have in common? Not much, by most standards of judgment. But at Salisbury State both of these people are students employed in on-campus jobs through the Work Experience program.

This year, more than 800 SSU students participated in the program, filling a need in almost every department. They serve food, wash dishes, paint walls, cut grass, pull weeds, sort mail, monitor the computer lab and reshelve books in the library.

While most colleges and universities hire students to fill part-time jobs on campus, Salisbury State probably hires the highest percentage of students of any university in Maryland, according to John Morris, SSU's work experience director.

The competition is increasing for work experience jobs in these times of rising tuition. Even jobs once considered to be less desirable are filled quickly.

Unlike the federally funded College Work Study program where students are awarded jobs based on financial need, the only requirements for work experience jobs are a willingness to work and a good attitude.

"We definitely don't take (bad) attitudes here," said SSU's assistant director of horticulture, Linda Langelo, who supervises 19 students this semester. "I try to hire on the basis of reliability. Part of it is just being on time for work."

Often, the campus jobs are the first real employment experiences for students. Their supervisors become responsible not only for training them, but for helping them develop a good work ethic as well. "If they do something wrong, we try to talk about it," said Linda Ziegler, who supervises 47 student workers in the computer lab. "They get an evaluation each semester and they have to earn their raises and promotions. They have to be responsible for their own success here."

Langelo agrees. "It should be like the real world. If I'm not hard on them and correct the problems, then they'll never know the difference," she said.

But the bottom line is that these are real jobs and students who slack off or do poor work could end up getting fired, just like in the real world. "But there are very few that come through here that I have to give up on," Ziegler said.

The program benefits the students not only by providing them with a source of income, but, in some cases, giving them work experience they can use after graduation. In the case of the computer lab workers, they can work their way up from a student monitor position to a student consultant and, eventually, to a student manager. By the time they're ready to graduate, they have accumulated on-the-job experience with computers, helping other students and managing some of the less experienced workers. "When they leave here, they're ready for the working world," Ziegler said.

Likewise, students that work for horticulture may start out mowing grass and pulling weeds, but they can end up doing more specialized jobs such as growing plants from cuttings and seed in the greenhouse and balling and burlapping trees, Langelo said.

Generally, students involved in the Work Experience program have higher grade point averages, according to Morris. "It imposes another discipline on them," he said. "There's often an esprit de corps in the various departments and sometimes the employers become like parents. All of these things contribute."

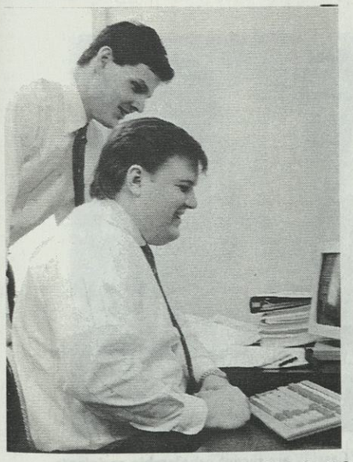
The arrangement is beneficial to the University as well because the students, unlike full-time adult workers, receive no fringe benefits and that means a 35-percent savings, Morris said. Additionally, hiring students to fill certain jobs, particularly in the dining hall, means the University doesn't have to lay off adult workers in the summer.

The base pay for most jobs is minimum wage, $4.25 an hour, but students are paid according to their experience and can earn up to $7 an hour in some positions. Morris said the University tries to pay above minimum wage in most cases to stay competitive with outside employers.

However, outside employment is not so easy to find these days. A few years ago, fast food restaurants near SSU were competing for high school and college workers, but a lot of those jobs now are filled with adults who have been laid off from other jobs, Morris said.

For most students, though, campus jobs are preferred. "I can work around my classes—that's a major bonus," said Danny Crumm, who's worked three semesters on the horticulture crew. "And it beats the heck out of wrapping hamburgers."

Area Companies Find SSU Business Students Are ABLE



Jim Gregory, controller for J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, Inc., looks on as Perdue School of Business student intern Mike Guercio completes a project for the company.

Business students in search of the classic "win-win situation" have found it in a program at the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at Salisbury State.

The school's ABLE program—for Applied Business Learning Experience—requires that students complete work designed to bring to life the lessons they are learning in the classroom. The program is drawing praise from the students and from their employers.

In many cases, the student intern takes his employer by surprise. Businesses that enter the program to support SSU find their interns a great asset. In a letter to SSU ABLE director Rebecca A. Emery, Charles B. Dashiell, president of J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, Inc., described his company's ABLE experience, exactly the success the program sets out to achieve:

"He (intern Mike Guercio) has not only been learning but he has also been teaching and instituting programs that we haven't had time to do, and has made improvements in several areas of our business," Dashiell wrote.

In making matches like the one that placed Guercio, who is from Towson, at Dashiell & Sons, Emery tries to customize the position to the student's major. She also screens both the student and the employer to ensure that the placement is both appropriate and informative for the student. Finally, the students check in with Emery regularly throughout the course of the internship, so she knows they are progressing on track. Emery has observed that in the process, the on-the-job relationship often shifts from the usual student-supervisor one to student-mentor. By the time their internship is completed, most students have established a network of business connections that should serve them well after graduation.

One such student was Donna Wheeley of Bozman, MD. Now a graduate of SSU and the ABLE program, Wheeley's first contact with her current employer, Perdue Farms, was made through the ABLE program. Not only did she have an opportunity to learn the company and make a positive impression on her future employer, Wheeley found that the experience she gained through the internship attracted other job offers.

"I had classmates who didn't have internships and some of them are still looking for jobs," she said. "When I interviewed with companies in Washington, Baltimore and Virginia I was able to talk about my experience and to give references."

Wheeley pointed out that, for her, the internship itself was just the beginning. When her supervisors at Perdue Farms offered to send her to training workshops, she took advantage of every opportunity. "Perdue Farms invested time and money in training me," she said. "And I think they noticed that I was willing to learn more." One such training program prepared Wheeley for her current position as associate programmer analyst in Perdue Farms' management information systems office.

SSU business student Kris Garofalo of Ft. Washington, MD, is still building her network of business contacts. Her internship at the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce has brought Garofalo into contact with many area business leaders. Garofalo tries not to miss any opportunities to learn about the business community and has seen many of the management strategies she learned about in class put to work on the job. Garofalo is hoping that the network she is building will enable her to get a job in Salisbury during her senior year at SSU—adding more business experience to her resume.

While all students hoping to graduate from the Perdue School must complete the ABLE program, not all are sent out into the local work force. Two courses, Marketing Research and Small Business Consulting, offer students hands-on experience with real business problems under the direction of a Perdue School faculty member. Emery said that has made it possible for her to ensure that the students placed in internships are qualified for the work to which they are assigned. "We have to stand behind the students we're sending out," she said. "They have our stamp of approval."

That kind of quality control has earned the program at least one convert. Rich Evans, who runs the equipment sales office for AT&T in this region, said he was skeptical at first that a college student could be of help to him. "As an account rep, I have many responsibilities and monthly objectives to meet," he said. "I was concerned that this would be a hindrance.

"I found quite the opposite. (Intern) Tom Baumann of Stone Harbor, NJ, runs with me every day. I've come to rely on him. He'll come away with some excellent experience. And I'll participate in the ABLE program again."

Replacing battery-operated golf carts will contribute to SSU's recycling efforts as well by reducing the number of batteries which would have to be placed in the waste stream.

The move to propane-powered vehicles marks a continued effort on the University's part to be a community and statewide leader in the energy conservation field.

Previously, SSU has implemented several programs on campus that include recycling glass, paper, metal and plastic products; composting food and garden waste; eliminating the use of disposable plates and utensils in the Gull's Nest snack bar; and asking staff and faculty to make two-sided photocopies.

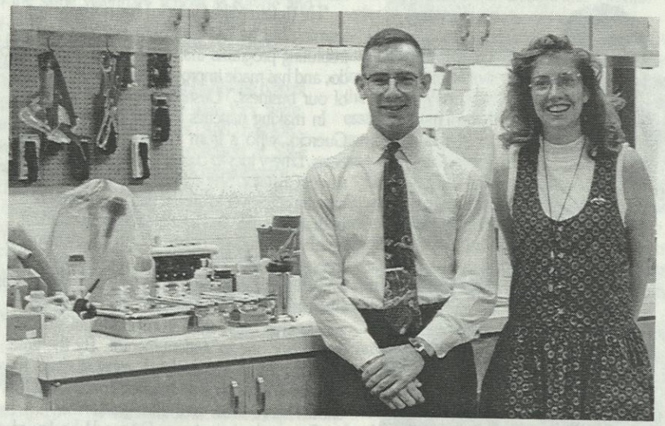
years, but not impossible with this kind of help from SSU faculty, staff and students. Habitat builds homes, but our ultimate objective is to build community. SSU's commitment is tangible proof that the spirit of community is thriving in Salisbury."

Family applicants to own the homes are selected on the basis of three criteria: they must be in need of a decent place to live; they must demonstrate that they are able to make regular monthly payments of $200; and they must prove themselves dependable partners by participating in the building of their own home and others' homes.

Once approved, a family is placed on the list for an available home and they begin to work out their commitment of 500 hours of work. A family may move in only after completing 200 hours of work (and receive title on completion of the full 500 hours) and after having made 12 on-time monthly payments.



Student athletic trainers Rusty Segan and Christine Cassidy are recent scholarship recipients.

Athletic Training Graduates Garner Awards, Scholarships

Several student athletic trainers at Salisbury State have recently received scholarship awards and graduate assistant athletic training positions.

Rusty Segan of Collingswood, NJ, a junior, received the first place scholarship award from the National Athletic Trainer's Association and the Mid-Atlantic Athletic Trainer's Association in the internship category. Christine Cassidy of Port Republic, NJ, received the second place scholarship award from the Mid-Atlantic Athletic Trainer's Association in the same category. The scholarships are extremely competitive; Segan and Cassidy were chosen from hundreds of applicants.

Additionally several graduating student athletic trainers have received graduate assistantships, a paid position with a tuition waiver for post-grad[illegible] studies. Joe Cramp of Mantua, NJ, will be attending The Citadel in Charleston, SC, Greg Smith of Bowie, MD, will be attending California University of Pennsylvania, and Carlo Mastrangelo of Silver Spring, MD, Reggie Butler of Clinton, MD, Steve Ehasz of Bound Brook, NJ, and Paul Eng of Gaithersburg, MD, are awaiting appointments.

Also Jamie Bentkowski of Forest Hill, MD, was admitted into three physical therapy schools and was a finalist for a graduate assistantship at University of Nevada Las Vegas. He has chosen to attend University of Maryland at Baltimore physical therapy school, which will result in a master's in physical therapy.

"All of the awards are extremely prestigious in the field of athletic training and each student should be congratulated for their efforts," said Pat Lamboni, head athletic trainer at SSU.
